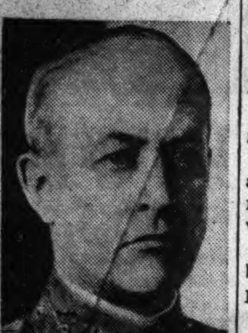
NATION REARMS TO PREPARE FOR ANY EMERGENCY

Builds Up Navy and Strengthens Army.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The United States today is pressing a program of preparedness. The nation is rearming. It is rehabilitating its army as well as building up its navy.



Gen. Malin Craig.

Twenty years ago this government was preparing to send troops into the front lines of Europe's battlefronts. In the years before American entry into the struggle the nation was engaged in making pleas for peace. Although warning voices were ringing through the land, no effort was made to build up the creaking and ill-equipped army.

Today the nation still pleads for peace as clashing Fascist and communist ambitions threaten to bring a great war nearer and nearer in Europe and aggression is precipitating a great conflict in the far east.

Brought Up to Date.

But today the nation is not weltering in blind altruism. The navy, which had been permitted to grow old in the era of limitation treaties, is being brought up to date and the army, which had been permitted to grow weak and rusty, is engaged in feverish activity.

Compared to the huge programs in hysterical Europe the modernization of the army is not ambitious. The most rabid apostle of preparedness may not be satisfied with it. But military men can look at the program of today without the fearful shudders they gave when they looked upon our army in April, 1917.

Begin to Halt Decay.

The decay in the army was halted when Gen. Douglas MacArthur became chief of staf. And his plans for modernization have been ably followed and augmented by Gen. Malin Craig, present chief of staf.

And the army of twenty years ago had recently come from a lesson which should have spurred improvement. The army found in the Mexican punitive expedition of 1916 that the troops of the bandit Pancho Villa, while an untrained army, carried superior weapons to those in the hands of regular troops and National Guardsmen.

National Policy Cited.

All national defense establishments are based on national psychology, geographical location, foreign policies and other things which are peculiar to the individual nation. The United States enjoys comparative isolation, the people are against conscription for army service, the nation is rich in raw materials and the national policy is against foreign entanglements.

For this reason the national army is primarily a defense army and is so conceived in the national defense act of 1920. The army will not fight outside the limits of this country unless it selects the time and place.

In the defense act congress decided that 18,000 officers and 280,000 enlisted men were needed to provide sufficient forces to defend the country. Since its enactment, due largely to economic conditions, the war department fixed an irreducible minimum necessary to provide for defense of the borders and overseas possessions.

Hopes to Enlarge Forces.

The strength of the army on June 30 was 12,269 officers and 158,600 enlisted men. The goal under Gen. Craig is 14,500 officers and 180,000 enlisted men. Within the present year he hopes to have increased the number of officers to 13,000 and the enlisted men to 165,000. The increases are to be about 8,000 men in the air corps, 3,000 in anti-aircraft, and 4,000 in the services.

The personnel program also contemplates an increase in National Guardsmen from 192,161 to 210,000

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chic .o Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Sept. 18.—Premier Mussolini of Italy took it on the chin from three nations in the league of nations today.

First Dr. Juan Negrin, premier of Spain, after marshaling all the published evidence of Italian intervention in the Spanish civil war into a particularly convincing brief, told the assembly:

"Today, with our words carefully weighed, we declare before the assembly that Italy is sending to the Spanish rebels an army twice as large as the one she has at present in Spain. May nobody plead ignorance on this point in the future."

Submits Five Demands.

Premier Negrin roundly denounced both Premier Mussolini and Reichsfuehrer Hitler as "international highway men." The Spanish civil war, he declared, has become a "war of invasion" by Germany and Italy. The international nonintervention agreement, he said, is "dead." Premier Negrin then submitted five demands to the league as follows:

FIRST—That German and Italian aggression be recognized by the league.

SECOND—In consequence of this recognition that the league of nations examine a means of putting an end to this aggression.

THIRD—That the Spanish government once more have the right to acquire freely all war material it may consider necessary.

FIFTH—That measures of security adopted in the Mediterranean be extended to Spain and that Spain be assured of her legitimate participation in them. This referred to the Nyon agreement under which the Mediterranean powers, except Italy, agreed to fight submarine, surface vessel, and air pirates.

France Warns Italy.

Immediately after Negrin's statement Yvon Delbos, French foreign minister, said with reference to intervention in Spain and the withdrawal of all foreign volunteers:

"If this is not done, and if the influx of combatants and of arms were to increase, the danger would be much greater owing to another aspect of the problem—the menace of a rupture of the equilibrium to the detriment of the legitimate interests and vital needs of other countries."

In plain language, this was taken to mean that if Italy sends substantial reinforcements to Gen. Francisco Franco, Spanish rebel leader, or perhaps if she even refuses to withdraw her forces already there, France would consider her security menaced.

Delbos Makes Meaning Clearer.

Several French official statements already have made it clear that if France considers her security menaced by Italian intervention in Spain she will have to intervene herself. The sensational feature of Delbos' speech was that this is the first time the French foreign minister has declared publicly that further Italian forces or armaments in Spain automatically would constitute a menace to her security, and this warning has made a deep impression on all the delegates.

Delbos, who usually is noted for the cautiousness of his public utterances, made his meaning clearer a little further on when he referred to the present insecurity in the world.

"If people who wish to survive are to be obliged to remain night and day in a state of readiness with

GoosePimples, Smiles Clothe Frisky Nudists

BY FREDERICK OTHMAN.

[United Press Staf Correspondent.]

Sunny Terrace Nudist Colony, Soquel, Cal., Sept. 18.—[U. P.]—America's biggest nudist convention—and nude is right!—convened here today for two days of fun and frolic and goose pimples in the altogether.

Each of the 400 delegates to the meeting of the American Sunbathing association had to take off every stitch of clothes before James F. Curl, the serious young manager, would let him register. His only concession concerned shoes. He let us nudists keep them on because of the splintery rocks.

Perfectly Normal People.

"We have judges here and their wives and doctors and lots of important people and they do not yet dare reveal that they are nudists," he said. "People still cannot seem to realize that nudists are perfectly normal people."

He turned to lead us into the bunkroom of the clubhouse and continued:

"Now you undress in here and then I'll introduce you to all the other guests.

"Don't feel embarrassed. You'll see a lot of people who look as funny as you do."

So there we stood at last in our birthday suit. All we wore was a wrist watch. A lot of good that did!

"You look fine," Curl said.

"Now come into the living room."

Not Even Wrist Watches.

Never did a man's legs quaver more than ours when we stumbled into the parlor where stood Irma and Diana and Leona and Lura and a couple of Marys and some Maries, some red headed, some blonde, some thin, a few fat—and they didn't even have wrist watches.

Other men and women in their birthday suits were splashing outside in the pool. Others rested in the sun with towels over their eyes to keep out the glare.

Several more watched a tennis match between a girl named Eloise and a woman of perhaps 45 who said her name was Elsa. She weighed nearly 200 pounds and as she ran she quivered.

The longer we watched the redder became our ears. Elsa looked our way and smiled. We fled.

MORMONS WILL FAST TO SAVE FOOD FOR COMING DEPRESSION

Salt Lake City, Utah, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Members of the Mormon church in and around Utah's capital will go hungry tomorrow—because they fear a depression within a few years "far more serious than the one we are now finishing."

Working on the theory of Joseph, who laid up stores for the seven lean years during Old Testament times, members were asked today by church officials to abstain from two meals and donate the monetary equivalent toward construction of a regional warehouse for storage of current bumper crops.

Although the Mormons observe a monthly "fast day" and donate money saved to the needy, this is the first "special fast day" in 50 years, said Regional Security Committeeman Winslow F. Smith.

Roosevelt to Dedicate Link Bridge Oct. 5

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt is expected to accept an invitation offered by Mayor Edward J. Kelly to stop in Chicago Oct. 5 and dedicate the new outer drive link bridge.

The ceremony had been scheduled for Oct. 9, but when Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, acting as negotiator for the mayor, asked the President if this would be an acceptable date Mr. Roosevelt is understood to have made it plain he could not attend on that date.

Mr. Ickes, however, reported that Oct. 5 was an open date and Mayor Kelly immediately moved the bridge dedication date forward four days.

Leaves Seattle About Oct. 1.

Mr. Roosevelt is expected to leave Seattle, Wash., about Friday, Oct. 1 after a visit to his daughter, Mrs. John Boettiger, and his two grandchildren and to arrive in Chicago on the morning of the following Tuesday, Oct. 5.

Mr. Ickes is known to be confident the President will accept, although the President has not as yet formally consented. According to an emissary of the mayor now in Washington, plans are being made in Chicago for a luncheon for the President under the auspices of the Chicago Charter Jubilee committee.

Span Built with U. S. Funds.

Heretofore it had been assumed that Mr. Ickes and Harry Hopkins, federal relief administrator, would be the principal representatives of official Washington at the formal opening of the new bridge, an $11,000,000 structure giving a new high speed highway between the north and south sides of the city.

The bridge itself was built with money furnished from funds of the public works administration under the secretary of the interior, and the approaches with works progress administration labor under the Hopkins direction.

The original dedication plans include a luncheon in the Stevens hotel, under the sponsorship of the Chicago Association of Commerce; a parade at 2:45 p. m., and impressive ceremonies on the bridge.

Burglar Slain in Barricade Battle

Squads Trap Escaped Felon in Rogers Park

A young burglar was fatally shot and a policeman was wounded slightly last night in a thrilling gun battle and tear gas bomb siege after the burglar had barricaded himself in a Rogers Park home at 2557 Farwell avenue.

Felix Keren.

The siege lasted nearly an hour and was witnessed by more than 1,000 men and women who were kept at a distance for their own safety by the police. Many of the neighborhood residents, among them Stanley Hack, Cub baseball player, appeared with guns, ready to help police. The entire scene was illuminated by police search lights and flares.

Burglar Shot in Abdomen.

The burglar, shot once in the abdomen, was identified by police as Felix Keren, 23 years old, who escaped on July 28 from Pontiac reformatory where he was serving a term of one year to life for robbery He was sentenced in August, 1933.

Shortly before 9 p. m. Keren broke into the Farwell avenue home, which is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Zeches. Mr. Zeches is a building contractor. He and his wife were away at the time.

Sets Off Burglar Alarm.

In entering the home through a bedroom window, Keren set off a burglar alarm which was heard by a neighbor, Mrs. Richard Lorenz, 2603 Farwell avenue. Her husband called Rogers Park police.

Detectives Walsh, Thomas Dunderdale, Stanley Hardy and Henry Bobene responded. Walsh, Bobene and Hardy went to the side of the house, and Dunderdale to the rear. Walsh and his partners saw Keren through the bedroom window, and called upon him to surrender. Keren responded by firing two shots, one of which stunned Walsh, who, however, revived and took part in the final attack on the burglar's refuge.

The squad sent in a call for help, and eight district and several detective bureau squads responded. Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan assumed charge, seconded by Lieut. Frank Gill. A few shots were fired and tear bombs thrown into the house.

Orders Charge on House.

Then Chief Sullivan ordered a concerted assault on the basement where it was believed the burglar had taken refuge. A policeman advanced behind a shield, and tossed several

PRESIDENT RUNS OUT ON TASK OF QUIZZING BLACK

Will Be in Seattle on Day He Returns.

Replies to President

BAY CITY, MICH.—Senator Arthur Vandenberg ((R. Mich.) at a statewide rally, in an addres in which he forecast a realignment of political parties and what was regarded as his bid for the G. O. P. nomination for President in 1940, diverted from his prepared speech to answer President Roosevelt's Constitution day address. He commented on appointees to the United States Supreme court, who, he said, ought to be "absolutely above reproach."

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The capital realized suddenly today that when Hugo L. Black returns to this country about Sept. 30, for his famed interview with President Roosevelt about his Ku Klux Klan affiliations, the President will be 3,000 miles away in Seattle.

This realization may have prompted Senator Carter Glass [D., Va.] to remark regarding the proposal of Senator David I. Walsh [D., Mass.] and others that the President pursuade Black to resign:

"The senators know perfectly well that President Roosevelt is not going to ask Black to resign from the court."

Steers Clear of Ruckus.

Senator Glass refused to comment on the charges against Black or to take part in the controversy, but he indicated that he believes it would be futile to investigate the case now.

Senator Augustine Lonergan [D., Conn.], who voted to confirm Black's appointment after first voting for further hearings on the klan charges, issued a statement today that Justice Black should resign if a fair hearing discloses that he is a member of the klan.

"If he fails to do so," Lonergan said, "I think congress should take action on the ground of concealment of a material fact. There is a possibility that the Supreme court will rule Justice Black ineligible due to the fact he was a member of the senate when the retirement act was approved by congress."

Roosevelt Evades Question.

At his press conference last Tuesday Mr. Roosevelt evaded any direct statement on the Black case by saying that Black was in Europe and had no chance to see all the evidence printed against him.

"Until such time as he [Black] returns there is no comment to be made," said the President.

The inference accepted unanimously from this statement was that the President would see Black upon his return, discuss the situation with him and then make a statement.

But the White House announced last night that "unless something unforeseen develops" the President will depart from Hyde Park next Wednesday night on his long talked of excursion to the west coast. Black's planned return to the United States from Europe hardly could be interpreted as "unforeseen," it was pointed out.

Six Days En Route.

The trip out to Seattle through the northwest, with stops for inspecting various projects, probably will take six days. While this leisurely expedition is in progress Black will sail on Sept. 25 from London.

Thus, at the very moment when Black touches land at New York, probably Sept. 30 or Oct. 1, the President will have removed himself as far as possible from his appointee. He will be in Seattle, happily renewing acquaintance with the two grandchildren whom he has not seen for more than a year, Curtis and Anna Eleanor Dall.

The President has described this reunion as the main purpose of the trip, but it is presumed he had his tongue in his cheek when he said it.

Court Opens Oct. 4.

The Supreme court meets the following Monday, Oct. 4, for its first session of the new term, and Associate Justice Black, it is assumed, will appear, ready to put on his black robes. Unless he should fly back, the President could not possibly see Black before the court reconvenes. There is, of course, no disposition to do anything of this sort, White House aids admit.

It is probable that the President, confessedly angry at the predicament in which he has been placed, wanted to avoid a personal interview with the man whom he signaled out for such honor, and left instructions with a cabinet member, possibly Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, to see Black and hear his statement on his alleged Ku Klux Klan connections.

A high administration official, unquestionably authorized to speak for the President, continued to insist today that Black would be requested by the President to resign. It was indicated that Black would be given every opportunity to state that his resignation was voluntary and dictated by the highest and purest motives.

But dispatches from London by a Washington correspondent, known as an intimate friend of Black, who only recently left the capital, indicated that Black had not the slightest thought of quitting a lifetime job which pays $20,000 a year.

The President relaxed today with an afternoon cruise aboard his yacht Potomac. He left late tonight for his summer home at Hyde Park, where he will remain until his departure Wednesday for the west.

CATHOLIC REVIEW RAPS ROOSEVELT IN BLACK AFFAIR

Archbishop Curley.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Bitter condemnation of every one connected with Hugo L. Black's appointment to the Supreme court, from the President down, for their failure to ascertain Justice Black's Ku Klux Klan affiliations, is contained in two editorials and a news story which will appear tomorrow in the Baltimore Catholic Review.

Since The Review is the personal paper of Archbishop Michael J. Curley, the editorial virtually constitutes official pronouncements by one of the most important members of the Roman Catholic hierarchy in this country.

The first editorial reherses the circumstances of the Black appointment. In scathing terms it describes the steamrollering of the appointment through the senate and recites Justice Black's evasiveness about the klan.

If anything, the other editorial is still sharper.

As for the news item, it attacks the way the appointment was jammed through the senate, and specifically attacks the President, implying that his proclaimed ignorance of Justice Black's affiliations with the klan sounds improbable.

NEW POLITICAL UNITS FORECAST BY VANDENBERG

Sounds 1940 Battle Cry Against Roosevelt.

Bay City, Mich., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Taking the battle cry "We have just begun to fight" as his slogan, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], declared in a speech here tonight that a realignment of political parties not only is inevitable but probably is imperative if our institutions are to be saved.

This reference to a possible new party was as close as he came in his address, given before a state-wide Republican rally, to what was expected to be his bid for the 1940 G. O. P. presidential nomination.

Mr. Vandenberg diverted from his prepared text at several points to make formal replies to certain sections of President Roosevelt's Constitution day address of last night.

Throughout his talk smacked of a candidate's campaign promises. He discussed labor, the lack of public credit, excess government spending, and the rescue of the Supreme court from the President. Through it all ran pledges of what "we aim to do."

Won't Predict Future.

"I do not pretend to know what the future has in store for political parties," the Michigan senator said. "If 1940 were 100 years remote it could not be farther away in terms of authentic prophesy.

"There may be a realistic realignment which will bring like-thinking patriots into common battle front, whether they live north or south of the Mason and Dixon line, whether they live east or west of the Mississippi.

"Whether this points toward the emergence of a new coalition party under a new name, or to sympathetic coöperation under hospitable Republican banners, events alone can tell. But a realignment is inevitable."

Fight Roosevelt-Farley, Others.

He pointed out that party fronts already have changed considerably. Republicans and Democrats, he said, have been in repeated coalition against the "Roosevelt-Farley-La Follette party for the preservation of great American fundamentals which transcend normal partisan divisions."

"It has been this coalition, for example," the senator declared, "which gloriously and triumphantly saved the integrity of an independent Supreme court from the assaults of a vindictive chief executive who sought to rule subservient courts precisely as he previously ruled a subservient congress.

"As a result, the intolerant, power-mad overlords, Mr. Farley's sweet gumdrops to the contrary notwithstanding, intend a complete purge of all those who decline to dance each time they call the tune. They still are drunk on last November's intoxicating elections returns."

Veils Attack on Black.

At this point the senator indirectly referred to the appointment of Senator Hugo L. Black of Alabama to the Supreme court when discussing the President's interpretations of the constitution.

"The constitution will continue to live only if the men named to the Supreme court remain absolutely above reproach," he shouted.

Referring to the President's phrases of a "layman's constitution" and the "lawyer's contract," Mr. Vandenberg said:

"Though this administration observes the letter of the constitution's mandate, in a lawyer's sense, as the President would say, it wrecks its spirit—in the layman's sense, as the President would say—when it places a lump sum [referring to the stabilization fund] at the President's disposal.

"That is not American democracy."

Discusses Third Term.

Asserting there has been nothing in the history of American politics quite like these recent goings on, Mr. Vandenberg opined that it seems absurd to think of politics in the old terms in the face of these new forces, appetites and aspirations.

"Is it not sheer blindness," he asked rhetorically, "still to contemplate politics in normal terms when infatuated 'me too' governors in various of the Roosevelt provinces already significantly punish our ears with loud demands that the existing dynasty must perpetuate itself with a third term presidency which will cinch these new controls and relegate George Washington to a secondary place in 'horse and buggy' history?"

If the Roosevelt party persists in its present trend it will seek allegiances regardless of previous party lines, the senator said, so successful opposition to the party similarly must arm itself with a union regardless of all previous party lines.

Finds Duty Clear.

"Our immediate Republican duty is clear," he declared. "Either our 17 million votes in 1936—the biggest minority ever registered at the polls—will be the direct foundation upon which this coalition to save America will be building, or it will be the major nucleus around which a completely new alliance will gather its triumphant strength."

Senator Vandenberg warned that it is folly to defend the proposition that everything the present administration has done since 1932 is wrong, because no administration ever yet had a complete monopoly on either vice or virtue.

"But I believe that history will say it made the grave mistake of seeking to impose permanently its emergency technique upon our people long after emergency had passed," he said, "that its social mindedness sought to attain security at the price of liberty and thus lost both; that it thus constantly created more problems than it solved, and that it disclosed a conscious purpose to remake the institutions of America without any authority from the people."

The senator asserted that if the Roosevelt party could have had its way during the last eight months, yesterday's celebration of the 150th anniversary of the constitution "would have been a funeral."

In "Contempt of Court."

"The whole country knows," he said, "that this administration in Washington winked at trespass and condoned lawlessness for many months; that some of its spokesmen actually lent aid and comfort to this anarchy; that at least by passive silence it gave consent; indeed, that it set a high and malignant example in contempt of court.

"We know that human society cannot survive without law and order. If laws are wrong, let them be repealed. If courts are wrong, let them be corrected in the legal way.

"And for this elementary principle of enlightened civilization we have just begun to fight."

BARBARA STANWYCK.

New York, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Barbara Stanwyck sailed for Los Angeles, Cal., on the liner Virginia today and talked readily about everything—that is everything except Robert Taylor.

The motion picture actress, denying she had heard from Taylor during her month's absence from Hollywood, was noncommittal about reports she was engaged to the screen star, now in England.

She said she would resume her film work Oct. 10.

KLAN TO DEFEND ROOSEVELT FOR NAMING BLACK

York, Pa., Sept. 18.—[Special.—The grand dragon of the Pennsylvania Ku Klux Klan said today that the current convention would go on record strongly supporting President Roosevelt in his appointment of Senator Hugo Black as a Supreme court justice.

The grand dragon, who refused to give his name, is a member of the imperial kloncilium of the United States klan. He declared he saw no reason why there should be any criticism of the appointment because of Black's alleged membership in the organization.

Three hundred delegates attended the morning session of the one day convention. According to the grand dragon, the Pennsylvania klan in 1928 had a membership of 1,600,000, which he admitted has decreased. He added, however, the klan is regaining its strength.

Helen Keller Is Gaining After Recent Operation

WIFE OF DOCTOR TELLS 10 NEEDS FOR THAT JOB

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 18.—(AP)—To be the wife of a man whose profession is healing the sick, a woman must obey a special set of "ten commandments," Mrs. A. S. Kech, president of the American Medical association auxiliary, told her executive board here.

Mrs. Kech, the wife of an Altoona, Pa., heart specialist, says she has lived up to the commandments "as much as humanly possible."

Average Income $2,500.

Among other things, the doctor's wife must be a good business woman and able to keep up a good appearance on a limited budget, Mrs. Kech said. Contrary to general opinion, she added, most doctors do not have a large income. The average, she continued, was $2,500 a year.

Her other "commandments" follow:

She must be intelligent and able to meet her husband on an equal intellectual basis.

She must be patient and possess a sense of humor.

She must be diplomatic, standing as she does between the public and a tired, overworked man.

She must not become angry at broken social engagements or late meals.

She must be ready to carry on for him in civic and religious ways.

Almost Endless Job.

She must combine the abilities of a nurse, secretary and telephone girl.

She must have social poise and steady nerves.

She never must violate a doctor's confidences.

Trotzky Hears Russia Grabs His Former Aid in Spain

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Leon Trotzky declared tonight he had been informed that his former secretary, Erwin Wolff, 34, has been arrested in Spain by Russian secret police agents. Trotzky, once a power in the soviet and now an exile here, expressed fear that Wolff would be taken to Russia and forced to make "voluntary confessions" implicating Trotzky in conspiracies against the rule of Joseph Stalin.

JUNIPER TREES DOT PLATEAU; FIND GOPHERS

Scientists Make Progress on 'Isle in Sky.'

Grand Canyon, Ariz., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Scientists exploring isolated Shiva temple tonight based their hopes of obtaining valuable evolutionary data on small animals inhabiting the mysterious "island in the sky."

Chief Naturalist Edwin D. McKee of Grand Canyon National park, who completed the hazardous journey back to the south rim, said traces of gophers and other small animals had been found on the summit.

A request for ammunition from Dr. Harold E. Anthony, mammalogy curator of the American Museum of Natural History, led to reports he was stalking big game.

"There is nothing to the theory that large animals are isolated on the plateau," McKee said.

Juniper Trees Dot Plateau.

Scientists believe the plateau was isolated from the mainland by erosion following the recession of ice from the Grand canyon area 12,000 to 35,000 years ago.

"Groves of juniper trees dot the table of the plateau," McKee reported. "There are many canyons several hundred feet deep."

"We hope, through these animals and others which we may find," McKee said, "to trace the evolution of small animals during a period of isolation."

The naturalist said there is no possibility of "spectacular developments" regarding mammal evolution on the plateau.

Calls Barrier Climatic.

He emphasized that the barrier which has isolated Shiva temple for untold centuries was climatic rather than geographic. The wooded 275 acre plateau is surrounded by arid gorges.

"The theory of cliffs forming a barrier to the movements of animals is wrong," McKee said. "The invisible climatic barrier probably grew over a period of centuries following the ice ages and an arid country developed."

Meanwhile Dr. Anthony and George Andrews, son of Roy Chapman Andrews, museum director, plagued by mosquitoes and with only a partly filled canteen between them, watched their traps and awaited arrival of packers with water bags from the expedition's base camp.

Can't Account for Mosquitoes.

Supt. M. R. Tillotson of Grand Canyon National park, was unable to account for the mosquitoes on the isolated semi-arid mesa.

There is no water on the 275 acre plateau, and I am therefore at a loss to understand where they breed," said Tillotson.

The shortage of drinking water was due to the second failure of Miss Amy Andrews, the expedition's airplane pilot, to land a supply by parachute while circling 300 feet above the mile and a half high summit.

To get water to Dr. Anthony and Andrews from the ground, Tillotson said, means transporting water 13 miles to the north rim overlooking the base camp. From there it must be carried in bags to the camp, 1,200 feet below the rim and then up a precipitous wall to the plateau top.

Tells of Stone Implements.

Don Louis Schellbach, assistant Grand Canyon park naturalist, who has been stationed at the base camp, reported finding stone implements near the saddle base.

"I would say that they date back to 1000 A. D. and possibly as long ago as 900 A. D.," he asserted. "From the information at hand I expect the archæological relics discovered on the summit are similar."

The saddle between Shiva temple and Tyo point, where the base camp is located, Schellbach believes was the camp for Indian hunters.

WHEATLAND MAN WINS LILY LAKE PLOWING MATCH

Carl Shoger of Wheatland won the seventeenth annual Lily Lake plowing championship contest in west central Kane county before a crowd of 10,000 yesterday. It was his third consecutive victory. His son, Clarence, 14 years old, won the event for boys. John Chrisse, 19 years old, of Aurora, won the men's open class championship. In a horse pulling exhibition, Pliny Baird of Plano, with a team from the Cedar Dell farm, set a state record. The team, which weighs 4,300 pounds, pulled 3,750 pounds, beating its former record of 3,600. A team from the Bartell farm, Elgin, won the open horse pulling contest, pulling 2,700 pounds.

STAR WHO SWAM NUDE FOR MOVIE WANTS DIVORCE

Hubby Joins Hedi Kiesler in Suit, Vienna Told.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Sept. 18.—Ecstasy has vanished from the married life of Hedi Kiesler, the trim little actress whose appearance swimming in the all-together in the film "Ecstasy" took all the boom out of the life of Fritz Mandl, Austrian munitions maker.

A cousin of Mandl revealed today that Hedi and her husband had filed a mutual divorce action. It was reported, however, that they would not wait for a trial of the suit but would go to Riga, Latvia, the Reno of Europe.

Hedi's aspirations to return to the stage were blamed for the final rift, although Vienna society has been talking for weeks about the public appearances of the actress with Count Max Hardegg.

Orders Wife to Stay Home.

Once divorced from Mandl Hedi is expected to appear at the Josefstadt theater in Claire Booth's play, "Women," to be produced in German. Although the invitation to play a leading rôle came from Director Horch, it is said in Vienna that Hedi arranged the request, presumably through Prince Ernest Ruediger von Starhemberg, once her husband's closest friend.

When Mandl heard about it, he forbade his wife to visit the theater and even ordered her not to leave the house, it was said.

Prince von Starhemberg, former Austrian vice chancellor, frequently was seen in Hedi's company until her husband was reported to have told him:

Gets Film Suppressed.

Starhemberg then turned his attention to Nora Gregor, brown-eyed ash-blonde German actress who failed to impress Hollywood during a twenty-month MGM contract that ended in 1933. He is credited with making her one of the outstanding figures in the state theater.

"Ecstasy," the Czechoslovak film in which Hedi wears only her makeup, has been suppressed in most countries, largely through the efforts of her husband. After buying up nearly all prints of the film, he has established a standing offer to buy all outstanding posters of Hedi in "Ecstasy."

ASSAULT CHARGE DROPPED.

Clarence T. Jans, 7229 Rogers avenue, who was arrested on a charge of assaulting Mayor Michael Didier of Niles at a Labor day picnic near Morton Grove Sept. 6, was discharged when arraigned yesterday before Justice of the Peace Alexander Falk in Morton Grove when Didier refused to prosecute.

MARRIAGE MILL RULING SOUGHT BY PROSECUTOR

Evasion of Hygienic Law Studied.

State's Attorney Charles E. Mason of Lake county announced yesterday that he would ask Attorney General Otto Kerner for an opinion on the legality of marriages of Illinois couples in other states which require no health certificates before the issuance of marriage licenses.

Since the Saltiel hygienic marriage law and the law requiring three days notice of intention to wed became effective in Illinois last July 1, hundreds of Illinois couples have gone to Crown Point and other towns outside the state to buy licenses and to be married. Indiana requires no health tests.

Two Suits Are Filed.

Two suits have been filed in the Cook county courts for annulment of Crown Point marriages on the grounds that they constituted an evasion of the Illinois law and were invalid. No court, however, has annulled a marriage on such grounds.

Judges John C. Lew and Rudolph F. Desort of the Superior court, who have had considerable experience in the divorce branch, and Attorney Nicholas Socrates, known as an authority on marriage and divorce laws, have declared that in their opinion Indiana marriages of Illinois couples are valid, even if they are contracted with the intention of evading the Saltiel law.

Other Aspects of Law.

Even a marriage performed in Illinois without the required health certificates would be valid the Chicago experts declared. The Saltiel hygienic law provides no penalty for the couple married under such circumstances, but only provides a penalty—a fine of $100 to $500—for the county clerk who issues a license in violation of the law, or for the physician who signs a false certificate.

The contention that Crown Point marriages of Illinois couples are invalid is based on the terms of the 1915 uniform marriage evasion statute. This law provides that a marriage made outside the state by an Illinois residents, who is disabled or prohibited from contracting a marriage here, shall be null and void.

How Saltiel Law Applies.

The courts have ruled that the 1915 law would apply in the case of first cousins, who are prohibited from marrying in Illinois, but, according to lawyers, it does not apply to evasion of the Saltiel law which does not pronounce marriages void because of evasion of its provisions.

Two more Crown Point marriages were attacked in divorce suits here yesterday. In Superior court M. C. Murphy, 27 years old, a foreman at the Ingersoll Steel and Disc company, living at 12007 Parnell avenue, charged that his wife, Flora, 716 West 120th street, struck him with a wash pan. They were married April 7, 1935. Mrs. Mary Jane Pappas Benda in a Circuit court bill complained that her husband, Charles, left her a month after their marriage May 19, 1935.

Finds Arsenic in Her Sandwiches; Mate Held

Carl Millsiagle, 47 years old, 7650 Eggleston avenue, an ex-convict, was held by the Gresham police yesterday after powder sprinkled on sandwiches that his wife took to work was found to be arsenic. His wife, Christine, 37 years old, a seamstress, said she knew of no one besides her husband who would have an opportunity to sprinkle it on the sandwiches. Assistant State's Attorney Francis McCurrie said Millsiagle would be asked to take lie detector tests.

BURGLAR SLAIN IN ROGERS PARK BARRICADE FIGHT

Squads Trap Escaped Felon in Residence.

There were two shots in the dimly lighted basement, and Keren was dragged out wounded. According to witnesses, he approached the invading policemen in the dim light in an attitude of surrender, but moved his hands in a momentary hesitation and was shot by either Policeman Walsh or Policeman Hardy when his hesitation was mistaken for renewed resistance.

Chief Sullivan declared, however, that he believed Keren shot himself in a suicide attempt. The wounded convict was taken to the Bridewell hospital, where he died on the operating table early today.

Shortly after the battle police found an abandoned sedan at Lunt avenue and Rockwell street. It was stolen by two bandits on Sept. 10 from Frank Gibbs, 538 North Cuyler avenue, Oak Park. This car was identified by Mr. Zeches as one he saw circling the block where he lives yesterday afternoon. Mr. Zeches said he suspected the car and its occupant then, and notified police. His home has been robbed four times before, and as a result he installed the burglar alarm which trapped Keren.

Mr. and Mrs. Zeches returned home while the police were preparing to rush in and capture the burglar last night. Mrs. Zeches collapsed and was carried to the Lorenz home.

Police went to 4602 North Melvina avenue, the address given by Keren before he died, and found his mother, Mrs. Hattie Keren. She said she had not seen him for a week.

BURGLAR FATALLY SHOT IN SIEGE

Illness Halts His Work; Neighbors Harvest Crop

Urbana, O., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Paul Guy, in the midst of adversity, was cheered today by a scene from Ohio pioneer farm days. More than 60 neighbors descended upon his 30 acre field of standing corn with corn knives and in two and a half hours cut and shocked the entire crop, then went away as silently as they came. Sickness and death in his family had prevented him from harvesting his corn crop.

CHINESE IN WILD FLIGHT ON PEIPING BATTLE FRONT

Japs Capture New Towns; Push Steadily Forward.

BULLETIN.

NANKING, Sept. 19.—(AP)—(Sunday)—Squadrons of Japanese planes today roared over the capital in an air raid, apparently retaliating for Chinese aerial attacks on Jap warships in the Shanghai war zone last night.

The attack, first raid on the capital for 24 days, came as China celebrated her famous mid-autumn festival. The extent of damage was not determined.

Chinese anti-aircraft batteries met the raid with heavy fire to drive off the raiders.

PEIPING, China, Sept. 18—(AP)—A Japanese aviator returned from the front southwest of Peiping today to report that he had seen an armored train flying Japan's Rising Sun flag steam into Kaopeitien, fifty-six miles from here on the Peiping-Hankow railway.

That apparently marked the greatest advance of the offensive which Japan's mechanized forces are driving toward Paotingfu, main Chinese base, about ninety miles below Peiping.

Japanese dispatches said the Chinese were in disorderly retreat toward Paotingfu. Tens of thousands were said to be isolated and in danger of destruction just west of the railway.

Cavalry Leads Advance.

The left wing of the Japanese drive was reported to be approaching Tinghsing, on the railway ten miles below Kaopeitien, to cut the retreat of thousands more Chinese. Japanese accounts described the battle as a series of almost uninterrupted Japanese gains.

The offensive, with some 60,000 troops, including 20,000 cavalrymen, was launched Tuesday with the purpose of smashing Chinese forces totaling some 200,000 which had blocked the Japanese advance below Peiping for weeks.

Cavalry led the advance across the Yungting river, 30 miles south of here. Kuanhsien, below the river, fell Wednesday; Thursday night the Japanese forced a crossing of the Chuma river, southwest of the Yungting, and Friday they drove into Chochow, the Chinese advance base on the railway. Thousands of Chinese were trapped north of Chochow.

Chinese Retreat Cut Off.

The right and center were driving toward Laishui, on a spur railway running northwest from Kaopeitien. Considerable Chinese forces were entrenched at Laishui, apparently ready to fight desperately, since their retreat either by the railway to Paotingfu or westward into mountains of the Shansi province border apparently was cut off.

Another Japanese column, part of an expedition from Manchukuo which already has seized Chahar province, was sweeping down the Shansi-Hopei frontier. The Manchukuoan force was reported to have captured the city of Fengchen, in Suiyuan province.

Neutral military observers believed effective Chinese resistance north of Paotingfu was as good as ended, and that the Japanese advance would encounter sterner opposition only when it reached the prepared defense line across central Hopei province. That line runs from Tsangchow, 60 miles south of Tientsin, to Shihchiachuang, 160 miles from Peiping. Troops of the Central Chinese government were reported moving into it.

Shrapnel Perils Americans.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 19 [Sunday].—(AP)—Japanese anti-aircraft shells, fired at Chinese bombing planes, endangered the United States flagship Augusta and other foreign warships on Shanghai's waterfront during repeated Chinese air raids last night and early today.

Shrapnel burst over the International settlement, bringing new terror to Americans and other foreigners. Four Chinese were killed and fourteen wounded in the settlement and the French concession.

One anti-aircraft shell pierced the French concession residence of F. B. Lynch, American adviser to the Chinese finance ministry. It lodged in a bathroom but failed to explode. Lynch and his wife, asleep in an adjoining bedroom, escaped injury.

Casualties thus far were few in comparison to those during other raids.

Chinese air bombs started fires among foreign warehouses in the Yangtzepoo district of the settlement.

The new outburst started when four Chinese planes dropped bombs on Japanese positions in the Yangtzepoo district and Japanese warships in the Whangpoo river. It followed a heavy Japanese artillery bombardment of the Markham road section, in which Japanese shells crashed into the area near defense lines occupied by United States marines.

Foreign Warships Hit.

Japanese anti-aircraft shells fell close to the Augusta, and shell fragments struck some of the foreign men-of-war. The Augusta was holding a movie show on deck when the raids began. As shells started to fall nearby sailors dashed below decks for safety.

One daring Chinese pilot dived to within 500 feet of the Japanese flagship Idzumo and sprayed its decks with machine gun bullets. He escaped the hail of anti-aircraft fire which showered shrapnel over the International settlement.

Shanghai suffered a sharp setback in its attempted return to normalcy. The Cathay and Palace hotels, struck by bombs on "bloody Saturday," Aug. 14, were in the midst of reopening ceremonies as the air bombardment began.

British Firemen Under Fire.

A company of British firemen fighting a blaze started by Chinese bombs in the Yangtzepoo sector had a narrow escape when the bombers returned and dumped a new load of explosives. The firemen hid beneath their engines and hurried back to the fire station as soon as the raiders left.

All China yesterday observed a day of mourning to commemorate the republic's loss of Manchuria to Japan in 1931. Flags were at half staf throughout the country. A three minute silence was observed, halting trafic, while the Chinese people pledged support to Dictator Chiang Kai-shek. Mme. Chiang, the American educated wife of the dictator, dressed in nun-like black, made a dramatic anniversary visit to comfort Chinese troops enduring severe hardships on the Shanghai front because of continuing downpours of rain.

Japanese War Machine Sweeps Forward

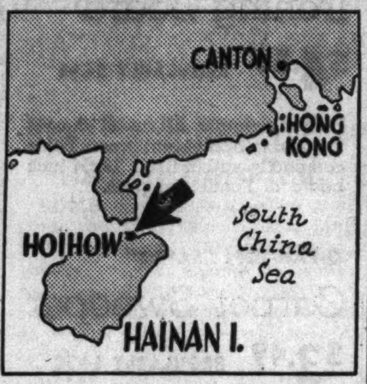
Chinese defenders in North China were reported last night to be in disorderly retreat south of Peiping toward Paotingfu, with the Japanese invaders in close pursuit. Arrows and captions on the map indicate how the Japanese are advancing on the Peiping front. Two other Japanese columns are moving south against the main Chinese line of defense (indicated by crosses) from Chahar province and from Tientsin (indicated by arrows at left and right of map).



Arrow indicates Hoihow, on Hainan Island off China's southern coast, where a Japanese destroyer was reported to have bombarded the forts.

NAZI LEADERS ADD INDUCEMENT TO GET YOUNG WIVES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Sept. 18.—Young German girls who marry elderly officials need no longer fear that when they become widows they will receive curtailed pensions.

Hitherto a widow whose husband was between 15 and 25 years her senior received a reduced pension. If there was a difference of 25 years she received only half the usual pension, but if the marriage had lasted over five years, then the pension scale again slowly increased.

This rule is abolished. A pension hereafter will not be affected either by a widow's age or the length of the marriage.

Chinese Women in Panama Sell Gems for War Victims

COLON, Panama, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Chinese women pawned their jewels and sold family heirlooms here today to raise $10,800 for compatriots caught in the toils of the Chinese-Japanese war. In addition local Chinese pledged to send $3,000 a month for the duration of hostilities.

CHINA PROTESTS INFORMALLY ON ARMS EMBARGO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—China today informally protested to President Roosevelt against the embargo he placed Tuesday on the shipment of arms and implements of war to China and Japan in government vessels on the ground that the effect of the action is to help Japan and harm China.

The protest was made by C. T. Wang, Chinese ambassador, in a White House call. The ambassador was accompanied into the President's offices by Secretary of State Hull to whom he had protested yesterday.

Because the protest was informal and involved no note from the Chinese government it was said that the ambassador called to discuss the reaction in China to the partial embargo. Neither he nor the White House made any comment after the visit.

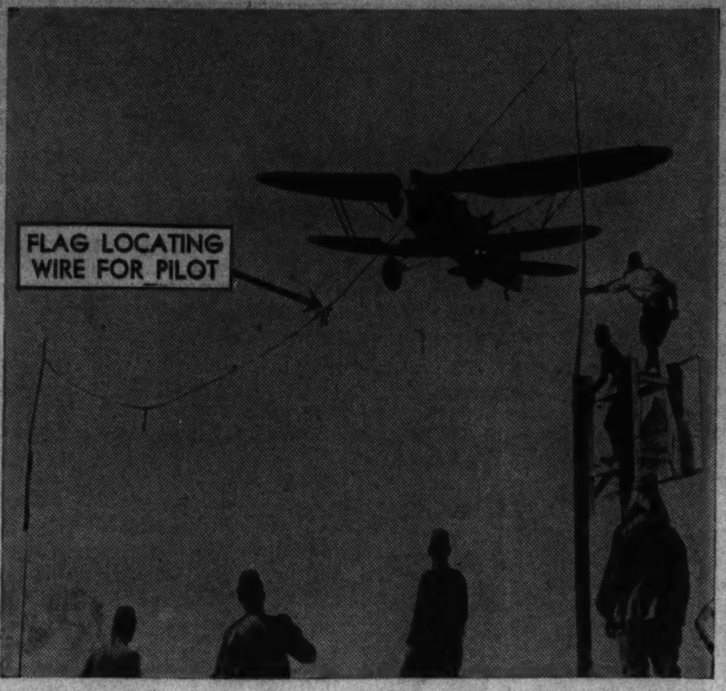
Ambassador Wang protested, also informally, yesterday to Secretary Hull just as the government owned freighter Wichita steamed out of San Pedro, Cal., after putting ashore 19 airplanes, bought by the Chinese government and shipped from Baltimore. The Wichita put into the port to unload the planes in response to the Presidential embargo.

The President's order also warned privately owned ships of American register that they would carry arms and implements of war to China and Japan at their own risk.

Japan Charges China Uses Ruse to Evade Blockade

TOKIO, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The Japanese foreign office today accused Chinese vessels of trying to evade the Japanese coastal blockade by changing their registry, thus to gain the protection of a neutral flag. The foreign office statement said "steps" would be taken to halt the practice.

A Japanese Scouting Plane Reports



[Acme Photo.]

This is how some of the Japanese war planes at the front in China deliver their reports to headquarters after observation flights. A cylinder containing the message is lowered from the plane as it flies low over a wire suspended between two poles. The cylinder catches on the wire, thus obviating the necessity of the pilot's landing.

Finds Residential Hotels Pay 32c a Room Daily Tax

Based on a study of eight properties comprising 4,432 rooms, Chicago residential hotels pay tax charges averaging 32.6 cents daily for each room, according to William M. Dewey, president of the Greater Chicago Hotel association. Real estate and personal property taxes account for about 26 cents of the average amount, while social security taxes and city license fees and permits make up the remainder, Dewey estimated.

AUSTRALIA PLANS DEFENSE OUTLAY OF $57,655,000

Arms Program Costliest in Its History.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Australia today is meeting the crisis in its own Pacific area and the threat to its Mediterranean communications with the motherland with the most ambitious armament program in its history.

Information made available in London showed the dominion is pushing a program of warship, airplane, and arsenal building to cost $57,655,000 and to dovetail with Great Britain's $7,500,000,000 rearmament outlay.

Japan's imperial expansion and Italy's threat to the Mediterranean sea lanes have spurred the Australian armament effort, relatively large for a land of 7,000,000 population and largest ever undertaken by a British dominion in peace time.

Australian leaders realized that the motherland needed all available ships nearer home, and that in time of stress Australia might have to fight her own air and sea battles.

Plan Air Raid Defenses.

No longer within guaranteed reach of a British fleet in sure control of the Mediterranean and now within range of the attack, Australia is to become a far more independent unit in empire defense.

The new program, as outlined by the Austrian ministry of defense, includes:

A first line aviation strength of 198 planes, including long range, high speed bombers to be bought in England.

Wireless Stations to Be Built.

Construction of three coast defense vessels and heavier armor for the cruisers Australia and Canberra.

Expansion of munitions manufacture to insure an emergency supply.

Construction of powerful wireless stations at Canberra and Darwin to maintain communications with warships and shipping.

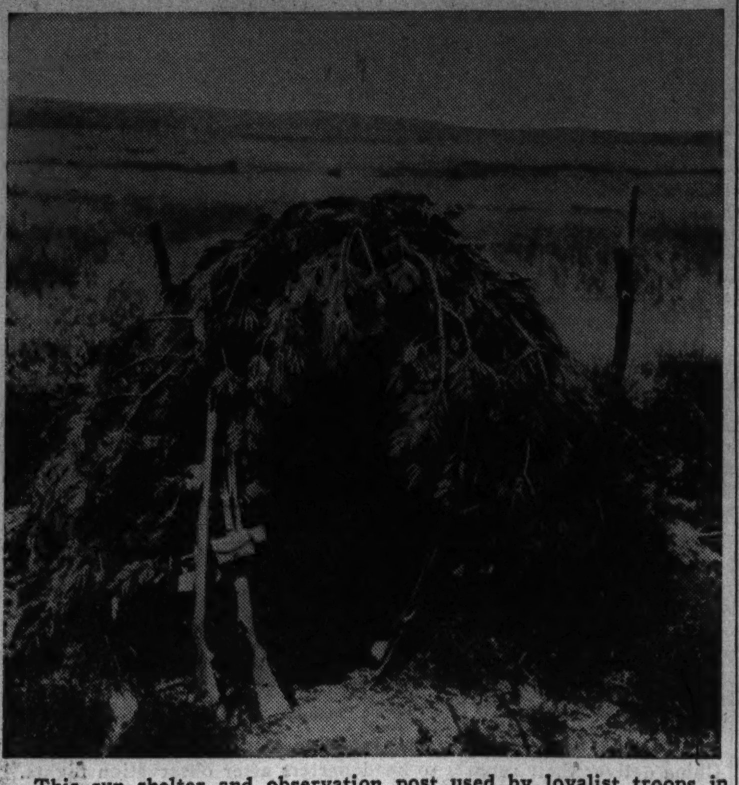
Establishment of an anti-submarine school.

In debate on this program at Canberra, the federal labor opposition leader advocated building an Australian air force of 50 squadrons at a cost of $75,000,000 — or twice the strength of Japan's seaborne aircraft.

CAR ON JUNK PILE TOPPLES OFF AND KILLS JOLIET BOY

John Zimmerman, 4 years old, looked on with childish curiosity yesterday as his father, Bert Zimmerman, a wrecker, was dismantling an automobile in the rear yard of their home at 607 Blackhawk street, Joliet. Zimmerman warned the boy away because the car was resting on its side on top of a pile of junk, and could be tipped over easily. The boy left, and soon afterward Zimmerman went into the house. While he was away, the car toppled from the pile. Zimmerman heard no cries and assumed no harm was done. He soon afterward missed John and made a search. He found him dead, crushed under the car.

Soldiers' Shelter on Spanish Front



This sun shelter and observation post used by loyalist troops in Spain was found by rebel forces after they took the ground. The shelter is covered with evergreen boughs. This photo is one of many taken by Russell Palmer, California publisher, during a tour of rebel held territory.

Takes 1,000 Pictures

Russell Palmer, publisher of industrial journals, who spent several months in Spain recently under a safe conduct from Gen. Franco, head of the rebel forces, was in Chicago yesterday en route to his home at Altadena, Cal. In his room at the Blackstone hotel Mr. Palmer displayed more than a thousand photographs of Spanish war scenes. He believes the civil war will end in a year with Franco victorious.

END FOURTH WEEK IN DEADLOCK ON RAIL WAGE BOOST

Representatives of 86 major railroads and of 300,000 union railroad workers ended their fourth week of government sponsored mediation yesterday with no indication of settlement of their wage dispute.

Dr. William M. Leiserson, member of the national mediation board who brought the disputants together for their first joint conference on Thursday, said joint negotiations would continue tomorrow at 2 o'clock in Union station.

Dr. Leiserson declared groundless a New York report that the union's demand for a 10 per cent wage increase had been settled. He would not say whether progress toward a compromise had been made.

PILGRIMS HEAR POPE ASSAIL NAZI CULTURE LEADER

Pontiff Hits Rosenberg as 'Self-Styled Prophet.'

CASTEL GANDOLFO, Sept. 18.—[U. P.]—Pope Pius XI., addressing German and Austrian pilgrims today, deplored the plight of the Catholic church in Germany and the activities of "a self styled prophet," referring to Alfred Rosenberg, Nazi "art and culture" leader, who recently assailed both the Catholic and Protestant churches at the Nuremberg Nazi rally

In a short speech, the pontiff broke his long silence over the strained relations between the Holy See and Germany, bitterly attacking Nazi policy.

"Grave Hour for Germany."

The pope, turning to the Germans, said in a strong voice:

"What shall we say, or better still, what shall we not say in this grave hour for Germany, in this hour so painful to the Catholic religion and to all those who wish to remain faithful to Rome?

"We extend to you a particular welcome in this hour when in your country a new, self styled prophet is acclaimed. This prophet acts, as every one knows, against all that is Catholic and Christian."

Urges Austrians to Keep Faith.

Turning his head toward the Austrians, the pope said:

"We give special welcome also to you, for it is a grave hour in which Austria is living. We hope that Austria will remain faithful to its spirit and always remain a Catholic nation, representing the Catholic church in middle Europe, which so much needs such an example."

The pope displayed unusual vigor, which church officials interpreted as showing how deeply stirred he is over the German situation.

PANTS THIEF SENTENCED.

3 NATIONS JOLT MUSSOLINI; SPAIN INVOKES LEAGUE

the finger on the trigger, the suspense in the end becomes intolerable," he said.

Britain Joins the Chorus.

A third jab at Mussolini was delivered by the British who were working under cover in the lobbies and corridors. It was learned authoritatively that Capt. Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, not only pledged England's vote for Spain's re-election to the league of nations council on Monday, but was lobbying to bring the small powers, including the South American nations, into line.

The British, it was understood, have used the insidious argument that the pro-Franco governments should vote for loyalist Spain all the same because the term of membership is three years and it is quite possible that the Franco forces will govern all of Spain when next year's assembly is convened.

A subtle appeal to the peoples of Spanish blood also is contained in the argument that the great Spanish nation should not lose the place in the world to which she is entitled because of the faults of her ephemeral governments.

Franco Agents Oppose Plan.

This sounds like Spanish rebel propaganda, but Gen. Franco's own agents here, disregarding Spanish pride, are pleading with the real friends of Spain to vote against Spain in the elections, whereas the Valencia delegates attach tremendous importance to saving their seats.

There was no word from Rome on the second Nyon agreement to fight surface and air pirates in the Mediterranean as well as submarines, but with the bitterness of the Italian press today showing clearly what the answer will be, the impending showdown between Fascist Italy and the western democracies over Spain overshadows everything else.

Geneva tonight was full of rumors of a great expeditionary force which Premier Mussolini is said to be assembling for Spain. The estimates run from 80,000 to 200,000 men. Actually nobody knows the truth, but in responsible circles credence was given to reports that on Sept. 6 7,000 Italian troops sailed for Spain from Melilla, Spanish Morocco, and that camouflaged batteries of German heavy guns are being installed rapidly on spots along the coast commanding the Strait of Gibraltar, as well as in the Pyrenees mountains. That Mussolini will send an important new army to Spain—unless the French scare him out of it—is not doubted here.

French Adopt Firm Stand.

In that case the British are making it clear, THE TRIBUNE understands, that they will not prevent France from going to the aid of the Valencia government. The French, on their side, THE TRIBUNE is able to reveal, are determined to check Mussolini in some way.

This, it is realized, would create a great danger of war, but the British, it is reported, take the line that France's patience already has been tried sorely and that Britain cannot prevent France taking measures deemed necessary to her security.

In very well informed diplomatic circles here it is believed Germany would not intervene in such a war.

Unconfirmed Report Says Submarine Attacked British Aircraft Carrier
MALTA (BR)

Outstanding events yesterday in the turbulent European situation are pictured by the captions on the map. France demanded at Geneva that Italy withdraw its volunteers in Spain, and Great Britain campaigned for loyalist Spain's re-election to the league of nations council. The French are worried by reports that German guns are being installed in the Pyrenees mountains, on the French-Spanish frontier, and the British are worried over reports that German guns are being installed along the coast commanding the Strait of Gibraltar.

ITALY SCREAMS DEFIANCE AT NEW ANTI-PIRATE PACT

New "Volunteers" for Spain Enrolled.

ROME, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The government controled Fascist press tonight printed defiance of Great Britain and France as the second Nyon agreement, providing for attacks on "pirate" surface warships and airplanes as well as submarines, was submitted to Italy.

Italian authorities received an invitation to join the extended Nyon accord with pronounced coldness amid reports that a considerable number of Italian volunteers had been newly enrolled for service with the rebels in Spain.

Reports Denied with a Smile.

The reports, coming from relatives and friends who spoke of the imminent departure of soldiers for Spain, were denied by officials—but with a smile. The officials adhered to earlier assertions that no men had been sent to Spain since the signing of the nonintervention agreement on Feb. 20.

Correspondents were told by Italians that they or their relatives or friends had been asked within the last ten days to go to Spain. To check with officials on their reports would be to endanger the soldiers' relatives and friends.

The newspaper La Tribuna in Rome headlined the Nyon agreement to extend the Mediterranean "pirate" hunt as "a French-British maneuver in favor of Valencia."

Predict Opening of Pyrenees.

La Tribuna's London correspondent predicted that the end of the nonintervention naval patrol, now succeeded by the Nyon delegated forces, would be "a prelude to official opening of the Pyrenees frontier between France and Spain."

The newspaper Stampa of Turin said of the general European situation: "The possibility of a return to good sense diminishes. Anti-Fascist elements in London, Paris and Geneva do not disguise their joy."

Stampa called Yvon Delbos and Maxim Litvinov, French and Russian ministers of foreign affairs, "the willing instruments" of Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary. It said it was doubtful whether a direct interchange between Premier Mussolini of Italy and Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain of Britain could "put brakes on the situation."

"Rely upon Ourselves."

Counselling serenity, Stampa said: "We are accustomed, especially in our most difficult hour, to rely upon ourselves alone. We did not bend or break under much graver conditions. We shall see who can last longest in the present situation."

Officials said Italy will take prompt measures to protect her Mediterranean shipping should this become necessary, although she has not decided to give warship escort to her commercial craft.

Italy will continue naval vigilance over her sea communications with the outside world, particularly in the western Mediterranean, because of the antipiracy patrol, an official said.

He termed groundless reports that a British warship sighted Spanish rebel submarines in the Mediterranean being escorted by German and Italian destroyers.

IL DUCE BOASTS 800 PLANES SHOT DOWN BY ITALIANS

MILAN, Italy, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini's newspaper, Il Popolo d'Italia, said tonight that at least 800 Spanish government planes have been brought down by Italian Legionnaire planes and anti-aircraft batteries fighting for the rebels in Spain.

The newspaper said 400 government planes were shot down in hand-to-hand aerial combat and another 400 were disabled by ground batteries.

4 SPANISH SHIPS BATTLE FOR HOUR OFF BARCELONA

Rebel Cruiser Reported Beaten Off.

MADRID, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The insurgent cruiser Canarias, steaming toward Barcelona, was reported turned back last night after a sea battle with three Spanish government cruisers.

Government advices said the engagement, taking place 130 miles to sea, lasted an hour, but none of the four vessels was damaged.

Another warship, unidentified, slipped through the coast patrol and attacked several merchant ships just outside the port of Barcelona, without damaging them.

Bomb Town Near Barcelona.

[Two Spanish loyalist ships, the Jaime Segundo and a sister ship carrying food and ammunition to Spanish ports, were captured near Barcelona by the Canarias, according to an announcement from insurgent headquarters at Salamanca. The rebel announcement said a convoy of destroyers was driven off by the Canarias and that the merchantmen then were seized].

Barcelona citizens scurried to cover when insurgent airplanes bombarded Reus, near Barcelona. There were a number of casualties and "material damage."

Rebels Move Nearer Gijon.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The insurgent column driving toward Gijon from the south reported today it had swept another obstacle from its path to the city, last remaining government seaport on the Bay of Biscay.

Insurgent military dispatches said this column was less than 35 miles from its goal and that the Asturian resistance was crumbling.

Heavy artillery fire and airplane bombing gave the rebel troops powerful support as they routed the Asturians from a strategic position on Mount Pajares, on the border of Leon and Oviedo provinces. The insurgents said this victory left them in "absolute control" of the highway leading to Gijon.

Set Fire to Villages.

An insurgent communique said the Asturians set fire to a number of mountain villages before retreating. Several hundred dead were left behind.

East of Gijon another insurgent column pressed its advance and reported it was approaching Ribadesella, 32 miles from Gijon. In heavy fighting on this front the government defenders lost 400 killed, the rebels declared.

Promise to Protect Cerbere.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CERBERE, France, Sept. 18.—Mayor Jules Cluzel and the municipal council of this village of 2,300 inhabitants on the Spanish frontier resigned today, protesting that Cerbere is inadequately defended against Spanish rebel air attacks. Rebel planes bombing Portbou on the Spanish side of the border have kept Cerbere constantly in peril, the officials said. The protest brought results when the department prefect promised one destroyer would be stationed permanently in Cerbere harbor if the officials would resume their posts.

British Destroyer Bombed as London Bars War Insurance

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Sept. 18.—British insurance companies have canceled all coverage of property losses caused by war and civil war, it was revealed today. Loss through "usurped power" also will not be covered. The underwriters announced that all policies will be so indorsed when due for renewal.

Although denying they anticipated war, insurance companies said it was impossible to estimate the risk accurately and therefore the risk is "not a proper subject for insurance."

Personal injury still is covered, but property will not be insured against any "consequence, whether direct or indirect, of war, invasion, an act of a foreign enemy, hostilities whether war is declared or not, civil war, rebellion, revolution, insurrection, military or usurped power."

Planes Attack Destroyer.

Despite denials, the action was evidence that the companies feel that the risk is growing. Some circles, on the other hand, felt that the cooperation of the British and French in the Mediterranean patrol and their strong stand against piratical attacks on shipping make the risk less than a month ago.

London, closely watching the Mediterranean situation, learned that another British destroyer, the Fearless, was attacked by unidentified airplanes off Gijon, northern Spain, but the lack of excitement over it was striking proof of the shift in the British point of view.

The new attack was the eighth in seven months. The planes, which dropped six large bombs near the Fearless, were believed to be loyalist Spanish planes. It was reported generally that they mistook the Fearless for one of two rebel warships in the neighborhood.

Fleet's Schedule Changed.

The Mediterranean fleet's whole training schedule has been altered radically by the French-British antipiracy patrol agreement.

After a two day delay, due to bad weather, five big flying boats for the anti-piracy patrol took off from Plymouth at dawn today for Malta. Each of these planes carries three guns and bomb racks. Another squadron of the same type of planes is due to leave as soon as it is overhauled.

As the planes got under way the destroyer Boadieca, which left Portsmouth on Thursday for Portland, en route to the Mediterranean, limped back to Portsmouth for "mechanical adjustments."

WARSHIPS AT GIBRALTAR

BY H. H. WALL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GIBRALTAR, Sept. 18.—Admiral Sir Dudley Pound, commander in chief of the British Mediterranean fleet, arrived here this morning aboard his flagship, the battleship Barham. Vice Admiral Somerville's flagship, the cruiser Galatea, arrived yesterday. One cruiser, six destroyers, and two submarines are due tomorrow. Four destroyers will arrive Monday.

The vessels will assist in policing the Mediterranean against piratical attacks on merchantmen under the nine power accord reached at the Nyon, Switzerland, conference.

U-boat Attack Reported.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Rumors reached here today that the British aircraft carrier Glorious had been attacked by a submarine near Malta yesterday, but admiralty officials were inclined to doubt the reports.

A dispatch to Lloyds said a Spanish insurgent armed trawler seized the Danish freighter Emilie Maersk, but later released it at Ceuta, Morocco.

Six French destroyers and two cruisers passed eastward through the straits, presumably to join the Mediterranean anti-piracy patrol.

A dispatch from Salamanca, Spain, said insurgent authorities there charged the Spanish loyalist government with trying "to sink British ships by any possible means," in order to provoke an international conflict. An official insurgent note making these charges declared the Valencia government was anxious to "drag the world into the horrors of the conflagration" because it would help its cause.

NEW PARALYSIS CASES HOLD UP SCHOOL OPENING

Children Afflicted Are All Under 13 Years.

Reports to the board of health, showing that seven new cases of infantile paralysis had developed in Chicago yesterday and that eight suspected cases were under observation, dashed hopes for an early opening of the city's elementary schools. One death was caused by the disease.

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, said that all the new victims are children under 13 years old and that therefore the board did not feel it would be advisable to open the schools tomorrow. A more hopeful attitude had been taken last Thursday and Friday, when only four new cases were reported each day.

Wait for Disease to Wane.

"Ninety per cent of all those who have caught the disease during the present outbreak," said Dr. Bundesen, "are under 13. Keeping the elementary schools closed is a wise precaution. As soon as the figures indicate that the disease is on the wane the board of health is prepared to meet on a few minutes' notice and make its recommendations for opening to the school board, which will work out the details of getting the youngsters back to their desks."

James B. McCahey, president of the board of education, and William H. Johnson, superintendent of records, kept in effect preparations to reopen the elementary schools as soon as the situation warrants.

All the 8,640 teachers in the standard course schools and the 100 or more in the pre-vocational schools were ordered to report to their buildings daily. Through the coming week these teachers will confer with the board's experts on courses of study.

Radio Lesson to Continue.

"Meanwhile," said Superintendent Johnson, "the radio lessons for the children will be continued. Tests will be given the children on these when school opens in order to determine the value of the method. I expect to appoint a committee of principals to study the advisability of continuing radio instruction as a supplement to class work. Perhaps commercial sponsors would be willing to broadcast this instruction."

Dr. Johnson has written to all the publishers of Chicago newspapers and to radio stations, expressing his thanks for their coöperation during the present emergency.

The city's parochial schools will remained closed tomorrow, but the Rev. Daniel F. Cunningham, superintendent, urged that parents be prepared to send their children to classes on a day's notice. There s a possibility, he indicated, that the opening may come before the end of the week.

George N. Wells, superintendent of Elmwood Park elementary schools, said last night there are now no paralysis cases in the suburb and the schools will be opened tomorrow morning for the first time this fall.

Hospital Gives Iron Lung.

The rule against the gathering of young people at Y. M. C. A. centers was lifted yesterday. Nelson Thomas, boys' work secretary, announced that the zoop ball tournament will be continued at nineteen centers this week. More than 10,000 boys and girls are entered in the tournament.

The Frances Willard hospital yesterday turned over to the board of health its respirator, or iron lung, for use in emergency cases of infantile paralysis involving the respiratory organs. The machine was sent to the Municipal Contagious Diseases hospital, where two others already are in use.

Altogether there are twelve of these machines available in the Chicago area. Dr. Bundesen said two of these were of small size, adaptable for children only. The adult size can be used either for adults or children. Six of the twelve are now being used. The Burlington railroad, through President Ralph Budd, announced that it had purchased one of the devices, which is available to families of employés of the road.

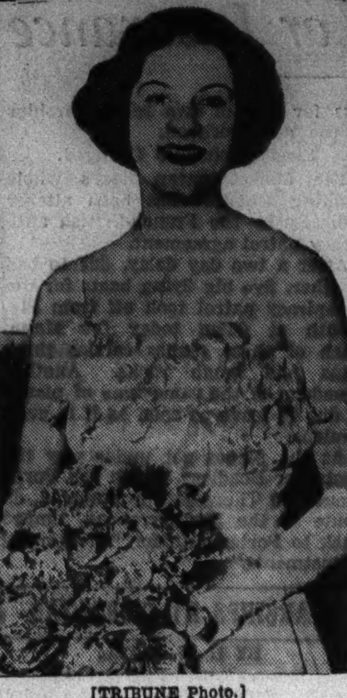
Gould Heiress to Wed



[TRIBUNE Photo.]

SYLVIA GOULD.

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Kingdon Gould today announced the engagement of their daughter, Sylvia, to Charles D. Thomson of Cincinnati, O. The wedding will take place in January.

Miss Gould is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Jay Gould of Lakewood, N. J., and a great granddaughter of the late Jay Gould, financier, who left a fortune of 50 million dollars. She made her debut last winter.

Thomson graduated from Yale last June, is a son of Alexander Thomson, chairman of the board of the Champion Paper and Fibre company of Hamilton, O. His mother is the former Mary Dabney, daughter of Dr. Charles W. Dabney of Winter Park, Fla., a former president of the University of Cincinnati.

GEN. PERSHING, IN FRANCE, BUSY ON LEGION SPEECH

AIX-EN-PROVENCE, France, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The graying chief of America's world war expeditionary force, Gen. John J. Pershing, has stopped having birthdays.

Another anniversary has come and gone—he was 77 years old Tuesday—but the general, busy with a strenuous program of public appearances and speeches, including a trans-Atlantic address to the American Legion's national convention in New York next Monday, declines to give birthdays a place on his calendar any more.

Instead he has abandoned a proposed rest in southern France to prepare his Legion speech. Pershing's words to the Legionnaires will be carried from his hotel room here, where he came after supervising war memorials in France.

He is scheduled to speak for six minutes, beginning at 11:50 a. m. [Chicago daylight time] Monday. He said today he hopes to join Legionnaires in festivities on their pilgrimage to France late this month.

WOMEN FLYERS HOLD THEIR OWN AIR RACES TODAY

Housewives, stenographers, a commercial artist, and a movie cashier will compete today in the fourth annual air carnival of the Chicago Girls' Flying club at the Curtiss-Reynolds airport, Glenview.

The event will start at 1:30 p. m. with the departure of a dozen ships on an 80 mile cross country flight to Naperville and back. Stunting, bomb dropping, spot landing, and speed trials will be on the program.

Of the girl contestants only three own their planes. The others learned to fly in rented ships. Two are flying instructors. One entrant, Dorothy Ring, 21 years old, is the youngest licensed woman transport pilot in America. Miss Marge McCormick of Pittsburgh, who flew to Chicago in her own ship, is the only out-of-town competitor.

Constitution Is Subject of Radio Address Today

As a part of the program of the Chicago Bar association in observance of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the constitution, Attorney Owen Rall of Evanston will speak at 9:30 a. m. today over radio station WJJD on "The Federal Constitution." This speech will conclude the series of talks on the subject sponsored by the bar association in the last week.

SOCIETY IS READY WITH CLOTHING FOR 5,000 PUPILS

Late School Opening Will Increase Work.

The School Children's Aid society announced yesterday it will be able to supply clothing for about 5,000 needy children when the elementary schools open. Mrs. George A. McCorkle, president of the 50 year old organization, said that because schools are being opened during cooler weather this year more children will need help at the start. Last year 3,000 children were aided during the first four weeks.

The society, which maintains distributing rooms at the Haven school on South Wabash avenue, is supported by the public schools' Thanksgiving day collection, by the community fund and by private contributions. Dresses supplied by the society are sewn by women's organizations throughout the city.

Reported by Truant Officers.

Children who need clothing aid are reported to school principals by truant officers. The principals in turn supply the society with names of needy children.

"We give clothing, instead of funds, to children because clothing can be given and accepted with no loss of self-respect," Mrs. McCorkle said. "Our dresses do not look like institutional clothes; they are gay in colors, and the patterns vary."

Last year the society aided 27,123 children and supplied 91,205 garments and 25,502 pairs of shoes. Of the garments 3,305 dresses were made by volunteer sewing groups.

The society supplies trousers and sweaters to boys.

Conferences between Chicago public school and Parent-Teacher organization leaders, to discuss new developments in the local school educational system, will be held for the first time in October, Dr. William H. Johnson, superintendent of schools, announced yesterday.

Dr. Johnson, assistant and district superintendents, will meet with the parents' groups Oct. 26 at Lane Technical High school and the following day at Calumet High school. New developments in the system are described in the superintendent's annual report for last year, published yesterday.

OPEN FALL CIRCUIT AND SUPERIOR COURT TERMS TOMORROW

All Circuit and Superior court judges will be on the bench tomorrow when the fall term begins. James G. Sullivan, Circuit court secretary, said yesterday that none of the 17 jurists in that branch is reported ill or absent from the city. William Thomas, secretary of the Superior court, said that the 15 judges, including four country jurists, will also be ready to hear cases. The outside judges will not be paid until the legality of hiring them is upheld by the state Supreme court in a test case.

COOLIDGE FARM MADE SHRINE OF HOMELY VIRTUES

Thousands Visit Vermont Hills Homestead.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Plymouth Notch, Vt., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Upward of 15,000 persons have visited this Vermont mountain hamlet this summer to see the place where President Coolidge was born and reared, where he took the oath of his high office by the light of a kerosene lamp that August night in 1923, and where he now lies buried.

This summer, however, has been no different from other summers in that respect. Every day, rain or shine, brings sightseers from the far corners of the country to what has become a national shrine to the homelier virtues. The only difference is between the years when Mr. Coolidge was President and the years following.

More When President.

"More people came when he was President," dryly answered Aurora Pierce, caretaker of the Coolidge homestead, to my inquiry. She spoke factually, it appeared, for not by the slightest flicker of an eyelid did she record a realization of this revelation of human nature.

Miss Florence Cilley, who became nationally famous during the Coolidge régime, still presides over the general store from which she has made a tidy fortune since the first wave of sightseers broke on this astonished hill top in 1923. She said she had kept no continuous record of the number of visitors. Once in a while she would "keep tab on them just for fun." Just the other day her count was 270 persons from nineteen states. Her estimate is that more than 300,000 persons have made pilgrimage to the Notch since August, 1923.

Quiet Pastoral Scene.

The Notch is cupped in the Green mountains but is perched on a hill itself, off the beaten track and reached by a steepish country road from the highway where there is now a sign directing travelers to the "Coolidge Homestead." Arrived in the little group of weathered gray clapboard houses the visitors park their cars, survey the beautiful pastoral scene amid these quiet green hills and then pick their way to the several points of interest.

They troop through Miss Cilley's store to see the back room where Calvin Coolidge was born. They cross the road to the homestead where he lived, until he was sent away to school. There they find Miss Pierce, the Coolidges' housekeeper for decades, occupying the sitting room of the old house. She is a prim wisp of a woman with white hair drawn severely back into a knot, with blue eyes calmly surveying you through spectacles. She presides over a table displaying picture postcards which she sells to the tourists at 5 cents each for the plain and 25 cents each for the hand colored.

Pictures of Lamp, Bible.

There are hand colored pictures of Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge and of the famous kerosene lamp and the Bible on which the Vice President received the oath from his father upon receipt of the news of the death of President Harding.

All the tourists want to see the kerosene lamp, some the Bible. They ask Miss Pierce where they are to be seen.

Tourists Visit Old Church.

The tourists go away disappointed They cross the road to the quaint, white Rockingham church dating from 1787, with its box pews and high pulpit from which the pastor preached to President Coolidge and his White House entourage a sermon on the text: "Lift up thine eyes to the everlasting hills." A brass plate on the third pew states that "In this pew Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States, worshiped." Unfurled above the pew is the flag that stood by Mr. Coolidge's desk in the White House.

At a stand beside the road jugs of maple sirup from the Coolidge sugar bush are offered for sale. Across the road a large, shaggy bearded man barks his wares to the tourists. His wares include a book of his poems. A native of Plymouth Notch and boyhood playmate of Calvin Coolidge, he became a structural iron worker. But he fell off a building in New York and woke up a poet.

A few of the pilgrims go on farther down a side road and visit the ancient burying ground. There, close to the road, stands a new tombstone, a simple marble slab inscribed:

CALVIN COOLIDGE

Coolidge Died at 60.

Mr. Coolidge was born July 4, 1872, and died Jan. 5, 1933.

New York Debutante

Miss Gloria Baker presented at party at estate of her mother, Mrs. Margaret Emerson, at Sands Point, Long Island, N. Y.

New York, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Gloria Baker, daughter of Mrs. Margaret Emerson and half-sister of George W. and Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, made her debut tonight at a party at Cedar Knoll, the Emerson estate at Sands Point, Long Island.

Miss Baker, 18 years old, is a daughter of the late Raymond T. Baker, one time director of the U. S. mint, and a granddaughter of Isaac Emerson, Baltimore millionaire.

She is related to the Vanderbilts through her mother's previous marriage to the late Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt.

Her debut, attended by more than a thousand guests, and preceded by gay parties throughout Long Island and the metropolitan area, was estimated to have cost $50,000.

Among those invited were Count Kurt Haugwitz-Reventlow and his wife, the former Barbara Hutton, 10 cent store heiress, the George Bostwicks and Devereux Milburns of polo fame, former Secretary of Treasury Ogden Mills and Mrs. Mills, the Marshall Fields, Playwright George Kaufman and O. O. McIntyre, columnist.

Miss Baker attended the Hewitt school and has been active in Palm Beach, Fla., society in the winter.

Coast Woman Sets 'Tiny' Plane Endurance Record

Modesto, Cal., Sept. 18.—(AP)—After 33 hours and 9 minutes in the air Miss Evelyn Hudson, 28 years old, brought her chunky little monoplane to earth late today and claimed a new endurance record for planes weighing less than 1,000 pounds. The old record was 24 hours and 1 minute by Norman Doerr of Northbrook, Ill.

POLITICS HINTED IN PURDUE'S NEW RADIO PROGRAM

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Speculation has been aroused here by the request of Purdue university for authority of the federal communications commission to move its low-power, educational and experimental radio station from West Lafayette, Ind., to Indianapolis. The request also asks for full time operation with one kilowatt power at night and five kilowatts in daytime through a new transmitter.

Observers suggested that the station might be used for political purposes, giving to Gov. M. Clifford Townsend and his Democratic political followers a news outlet not now enjoyed through the daily press. They contended that legitimate advertisers might be forced to use the station's facilities.

Purdue, a state supported university, is controled by a board of trustees appointed and removable by the governor. Last week a sister of Frank McHale, a power behind Paul V. McNutt, Townsend's predecessor, was appointed to the board.

SULPHUR AND SCIENCE

By CALEB

ON the Texas Gulf coast I have seen from the air enormous piles of brittle, bright yellow sulphur—thirty or forty feet high, containing thousands of tons each. This sulphur—99½ per cent pure—reaches the light of day through a most ingenious method. A six-inch pipe is forced deep into the earth. Within the six-inch pipe, a three inch pipe descends, and within the three-inch pipe descends a one-inch pipe. Down the largest pipe untold gallons of superheated water are forced. Simultaneously down the smallest pipe, air is forced under terrific pressure.

Pure deposits of sulphur deep in the earth receive the hot water. The sulphur melts and then under the pressure of the water and air, it seeks escape from its subterranean confinement. The only way out is up the three-inch pipe, and up it comes.

It is spread thinly to cool and as it cools it solidifies.

Sulphur is one of the essential elements by which men live. The particularly interesting thing about it to me, however, is that the engineering technique by which it is taken from the earth was arrived at as advanced techniques of modern business management are arrived at.

Most human activities are based on empirical knowledge—on things generalized as true from limited facts or observation.

Some activities, on the other hand, are based on sound reason or thinking. Fundamentally sound, simple concepts are combined and co-ordinated until fundamentally sound, important conclusions are arrived at.

The obvious or traditional way to get sulphur out of the earth would not be by means of concentric pipes. But engineers wanted economical production. By reasoning (I presume) they arranged the elements of the problem into a hypothetical solution. They experimented. On the basis of experimentation they predicted the potentials. And then they delivered!

Most important business decisions are based on the past experience or observations of the deciders. Occasionally the scientific method is applied to problems of management. Problems are stated in their fundamental form. They are analyzed into prime elements. As the result of pure reason and thought, the elements are arranged hypothetically to bring about the solution. And finally the future may be predicted.

Thus are solutions which seem inspired or luckily invented, fashioned through the sober, logical formulas of science.

NATION REARMS TO PREPARE FOR ANY EMERGENCY

U. S. Builds Up Its Navy; Strengthens Army.

Heavy emphasis is being placed on the creation of an enlisted reserve. The veterans of the last war are no longer considered reserves—they are graying. Foreign nations have huge reserves as a result of their conscription systems.

Want More Reserve Officers.

The United States has 3,189 enlisted reserves. The goal is 150,000. There are 96,602 reserve officers. The goal is 120,000. The goal is to be reached by increasing R. O. T. C. camps and citizens' military training camps. It is hoped congress may be induced to grant a small pay to enlisted reserves during training periods.

In the last year the war department has clamped down on publicity regarding progress of its program. Other nations of the world observe utmost secrecy on military and naval developments while the American policy has been one of frankness because this nation relies on superior training and superior men.

Recently the American high command has been annoyed when its offers to exchange information on developments with foreign powers have met with polite and firm refusals from foreign governments.

Pressing brought the answer: "We don't need to change with you; all your developments and improvements are in the newspapers."

Division Reorganized.

The first phase of the army modernization program has been the reorganization of the division to increase mobility, fire power and control. The division has been streamlined to 22,000 men. In the world war divisions of 30,000 to 45,000 men were found unwieldy.

The streamlined division is now engaged in maneuvers at Fort Sam Houston, Tex. These will be studied by the war department and new tactics for the command and performance of the new division are to be developed and perfected at staf schools.

Following the tests of the reorganization of the division the army will put into effect similar modernization of the corps and the army. These plans are under day and nearing completion.

Field Artillery Improved.

The army is pressing modification of guns and carriages for the field artillery to increase movement and flexibility of fire. Two years ago, the field artillery had only guns left over from the war or of war design. Today these are being replaced with guns of improved design. This work is progressing rapidly, the war department said, but withheld figures.

Skeletonized anti-aircraft regiments are being activated. The army is getting complete modern equipment for both regular troops and national guardsmen. A year ago weapons were of war vintage. Progress here has been slower than with the field artillery.

During the last year great improvements have been made in sea coast defenses. Most of these were weapons of war or prewar days and had been allowed to fall into decay. Today new emplacements are being built along the easter and western coasts. Secrecy is being maintained as to their location and the guns to be put in the emplacements.

New Light Machine Gun.

The army is placing great emphasis on machine gun and rifle improvements. The machine gun has been greatly improved since the war and a light machine gun of 46 pounds in weight has been developed in addition to the heavy machine gun. Both of the new weapons are being distributed to the army and guard in increasing numbers.

Until Gen. Craig took over the army there was not a single soldier armed with a rifle better than war vintage. Today there are more than 5,000 semi-automatic rifles in the hands of troops and the army plans to equip two divisions with the weapon and eventually have 200,000 of the new rfles.

The war department is not arming troops with automatic rifles as are other nations. It believes that the semi-automatic supported with the light machine gun is a superior weapon. To fire the semi-automatic the soldier must pull the trigger for each shot, while the automatic rifle will empty itself at one steady pull of the trigger.

In the air, the war department boasts proudly, the army is making its greatest progress. The army has 1,000 new planes on hand and has another 1,000 under order. The goal is 2,320 modern planes and will be reached by 1940. From that year on replacements will be made to keep the army at 2,320 modern planes. There are several hundred out-dated planes on hand at present but they are being grounded rapidly.

The modern planes on hand and under orders are the equal if not the superior of any fighting and observation planes in the world, army men insist.

UNCLE SAM'S ARMY STRENGTH

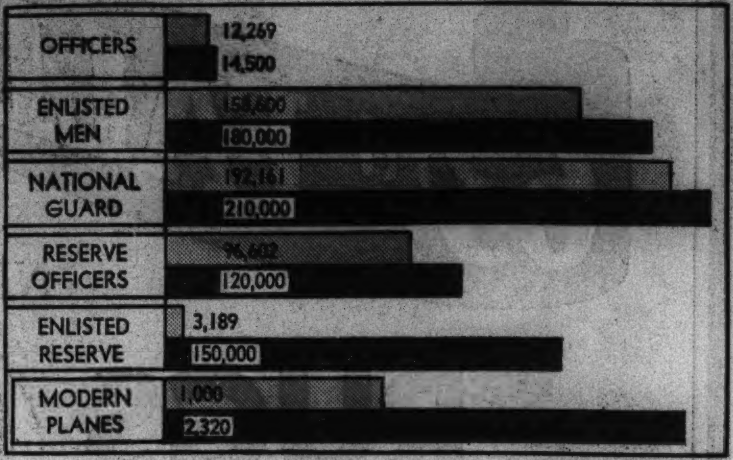
A visual representation of the progress the war department is making toward immediate objectives set for adequate preparedness for defense. The gray bars represent present strength and the black bars, the goals.



6,000 REGULAR ARMY TROOPS TRY OUT NEW TEETH IN WAR MACHINE

Indiantown Gap, Pa., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Six thousand regular army troops came to this modern military training plant today to begin two weeks of practical experience in the science of war.

Fifty-mile-an-hour tanks, armored scout cars and chemical warfare weapons—newest fangs of Uncle Sam's wardog—will work with old standbys—the infantry, cavalry and artillery.

All outfits picked up their equipment in home posts in Maryland and Virginia last week and marched more than 100 miles as though they were mobilized for war.

For the next week they will maneuver as individual units, but the second week they will divide their strength, square off and fire away at each other—with blanks.

Chief and Four Firemen Free on Arson Charges

Absecon, N. J., Sept. 18.—[U. P.]—Five members of the Absecon volunteer fire department, including Chief William Rodgers, were out on bail today on arson charges. Chief of Police Albert Talley accused them of starting five fires in the past six weeks for "the fun of putting them out."

Stripped of Strip Teasers, a Stag Party Stagnates

Four strip-tease dancers and two men will be arraigned Wednesday before Police Magistrate Dewey Arrigoni in North Riverside as the result of a raid by Willow Springs county highway police Friday night on a stag party in a tavern at West 117th street and Hoyne avenue. Lieut. Fred Mulhausen, who led the raiders and broke up the party, said the gathering was sponsored by a group of war veterans. The men arrested are George Sims, 925 East Fifty-fifth street, and Nicholas Keller, 6925 Yale avenue.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY FOUND SHOT TO DEATH IN HOME

Donald Nocton, 18 years old, a high school student, was found shot to death last night in his home at 11106 Church street, Morgan Park. A bullet from a small rifle lying near him had penetrated his chest.

Both his father, Earl Nocton, owner of a gasoline filling station at Halsted and 42d streets, and his mother, Mrs. Agnes Nocton, who found him dead, insisted his death must have been accidental. Police inclined to this view, pointing out that the rifle was broken in two and the stock in a closet at the time of the shooting. The boy may have been examining the weapon, they said.

However, detectives questioned Helen Bruesch, 15 years old, 16662 Monterey avenue, a high school girl and friend of young Nocton. She told them that she had met him earlier in the night and had scolded him for drinking.

POLICEMAN, OFF DUTY, CAPTURES GIRL'S ATTACKER

Policeman Hubert Klenck of the Maxwell street station, off duty last night, captured a young man as he struggled with a girl at 23d street and Ashland avenue. The prisoner gave his name as Joseph Benware, 26 years old, 3602 South Halsted street. The girl, Miss Lillian Mistel, 20 years old, 4415 South Honore street, said he seized her purse containing $10, then tried to drag her into a vacant lot.

Steinmetz Honor Graduate Appointed to West Point

Raymond Peters.

Raymond Paul Peters, 18 years old, who is an honor graduate of Steinmetz High school, has received an appointment to the United States Military academy at West Point, N. Y., it was learned last night. He was appointed by Congressman James McAndrews. Peters lives with his sister, Mrs. Gertrude Walker, at 1400 Sedgwich street. He was an all-city high school quarter back last fall, and now is employed as a loop bank messenger.

FOUND SLAIN IN KITCHEN.

Paterreville, Ark., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Elmo Behymer, 21 years old, was found dead in the kitchen of his café today.

PRIMARY PUZZLE UP FOR DEBATE BY ELECTION BOARDS

Officials of Large Cities to Meet Tuesday.

Officials of election boards in Illinois' largest cities will meet in Chicago next Tuesday to discuss registration problems and the workings of the permanent registration law adopted last year.

One of the subjects for discussion is whether voters may change their party affiliation at the primary election next April. The law provides that two years must elapse before voters may change parties. The 1938 primary falls on April 12, two days short of two years elapsed time since the 1936 primary, which fell on April 14. County Judge Harlington Wood of Springfield, Sangamon county, will lead the discussion of this problem.

Debate Weeding Out Aliens.

Another matter on the program of the conference, which will be held in the offices of the election commission in the city hall, is the weeding out from the registration lists of unnaturalized persons. The law in this respect will be explained by Fred J. Schlotfeldt, district director of the federal bureau of immigration and naturalization.

Alexander J. McKay, chairman of the Chicago election commission, will discuss the public relations of the board in respect to registration, and Cassius M. Doty, an attorney for the board, will talk on the proposed election code which is now being studied by a legislative commission.

At a round table ten county judges will exchange experiences under the permanent registration law. Participating will be Judges Edmund K. Jarecki, Cook county; O. C. Allen, Kane; Joseph E. Fleming, St. Clair; Homer W. Hall, McLean; Brantley E. Kerley, Alexander; Harlin M. Steeley Jr., Vermilion; Rodney L. Stuart, Knox; O. M. Williams, Winnebago; Harlington Wood, Sangamon, and Francis C. Vonachen, Peoria.

Dinner to Close Conference.

Joseph B. Fleming, former attorney for the Chicago commission, and Judge Jarecki will be the speakers at a dinner in the Blackstone hotel Tuesday evening which will close the conference. Holger A. Carlson of Rockford is chairman of the election board association, Mrs. Mabel G. Reinecke of Chicago is secretary, and Robert L. Taylor, assistant attorney for the Chicago commission, is the association attorney.

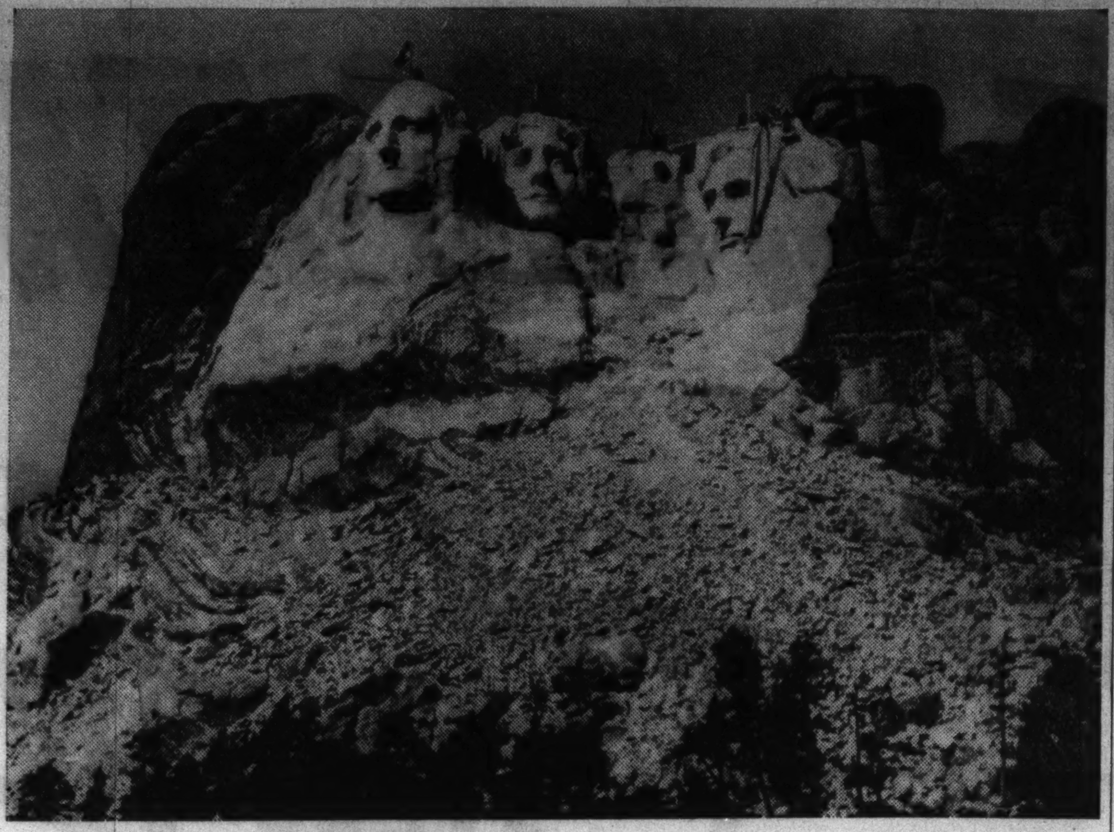
In addition to Chicago, the following cities operate under the permanent registration system: Peoria, Aurora, Galesburg, Bloomington, Danville, Springfield, East St. Louis, Rockford and Cairo.

Permanent registration for all the 27 municipalities in Cook county not under the Chicago commission's jurisdiction will begin on Sept. 27, the first of two registration days. The second will be Oct. 5. County Clerk Michael J. Flynn has prepared a registration system which he calls streamlined and simple.

Emmersons to Celebrate Their 50th Anniversary

Mt. Vernon, Ill., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Former Gov. and Mrs. Louis L. Emmerson will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary at their home here next Wednesday. The couple will be at home to their friends during the afternoon and evening. Mr. Emmerson was governor of Illinois from 1929 to 1933.

Mount Rushmore Memorial Nears Completion



A gigantic likeness of Abraham Lincoln (right), carved in the granite of Mount Rushmore, near Rapid City, S. D., was dedicated Friday. At the left is the face of George Washington and next to it is that of Thomas Jefferson. Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor, has started work on the likeness of Theodore Roosevelt, between those of Jefferson and Lincoln. This is the first picture showing the scaffolding removed from the Lincoln memorial.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Draws Visitors

Rapid City, S. D., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Visitors from many parts of the country journeyed to Mount Rushmore, near here, today to view the heroic likeness of Abraham Lincoln, which was dedicated yesterday. The face of Lincoln was the third of a group of four being carved in the granite façade of the mountain by Gutzon Borglum. The others completed are the likenesses of George Washington and Thomas Jefferson. The sculptor has started work on the fourth figure, Theodore Roosevelt.

Shore and Beach Group Will Convene in City

The American Shore and Beach Preservation association will open a meeting Sept. 27 at the Palmer house. J. Spencer Smith of New Jersey is president of the association. Problems of beach erosion and the use of beaches for leisure will be discussed.

TRANSIT BOARD BACKS WALKER'S JOB AS LAWYER

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Despite demands of the citizens' union for a "wide open investigation," the civil service commission today approved the appointment of former Mayor James J. Walker of New York City as special counsel of the transit commission.

The commission, however, limited Walker's employment in his $12,000 a year post to six months, retroactive to Aug. 16. It is understood, however, the common practice permits extensions if such is needed. The action of the commission is final unless there is some review by the courts.

Secures Walker Pension.

This approval assures Mr. Walker a pension of $250 a week for life after his retirement from service and half that sum to his wife if she should survive him.

The commission ruled that the temporary appointment was exempt from civil service examination. It adopted a resolution explaining "that the services to be rendered are temporary and of exceptional character, and that it would not be profitable to hold an examination of any kind, provided that employment . . . shall not exceed a period of six months from Aug. 16, 1937."

Walker's appointment was opposed by representatives of three New York City organizations at a two hour hearing.

Calls His Job Sham.

Samuel D. Smoloff, counsel for the citizens' union, called the appointment a "sham" designed merely to protect Walker's pension rights.' He demanded an investigation either by the civil service commission or by Gov. Herbert H. Lehman.

The commission's resolution was adopted by a vote of 2 to 1, according to Grace A. Reavy, chairman. Commissioner John T. Clark of New York City voted in opposition.

Smoloff, in his protest, charged Walker "is now drawing $12,000 a year for twiddling his thumbs."

In support of this he quoted Controler Frank J. Taylor as saying New York City would not be ready for two years to undertake the $30,000,000 Atlantic avenue grade crossing elimination project for which Walker specifically was retained.

100,000 WILL BE IN NEW YORK FOR LEGION SESSION

Broadway Is Bedlam; Hands Off Labor Strife.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—With war clouds threatening, and talk of dictatorship at home, members of the American Legion converged on New York City tonight to breathe new life into the principles for which they marched grimly away 20 years ago. Four hundred thousand persons will take part in this annual convention which begins tomorrow.

More eagerly than at any other of their assemblies in the last two decades, the members of this powerful veterans' organization are working out their solution of the problems of the hour.

Already the vanguard of some 100,000 graying veterans, wearing their overseas caps and firing everything from baby cannon to cap pistols, have smashed Mayor Fiorelio H. La Guardia's anti-noise campaign. Broadway was bedlam tonight.

Keeping Hands Off Labor Strife.

Because of the diverse membership of the Legion, no part will be taken in the burning labor controversy. Officially, the Legion has maintained a policy of neutrality but this year when the wave of sitdown strikes arose under the spur of John L. Lewis, C. I. O. dictator, National Commander Harry W. Colmery warned the rank and file they must not wear their uniforms or regalia while participating in labor strife on either side.

It is expected that a resolution making this edict the official stand of the Legion will come before the convention.

Court May be Issue.

The Legion may take a more positive stand, however, on another issue, the court packing plan of President Roosevelt which culminated recently in the appointment of Hugo L. Black, reputedly a Ku Klux Klansman. After the designs of the President in relation to the Supreme court were announced to congress early in the year, Commander Colmery left the door open to action by the convention. Colmery stated his position as follows:

"I do not have the authority, nor would I be exercising sound judgment, did I attempt to declare for 1,000,000 men, a policy, the determination of which depends on my personal appraisal of the motive of one man who recommends a reorganization of the judiciary.

"Did I do so I would be usurping the function and power of the men of the Legion acting through their national convention and national executive committee. Until such time as either speaks, unless circumstances change, there is no Legion policy either supporting or opposing the President's specific proposal."

Disclosures Revive Issue.

Had not the exposure of Justice Black occurred recently, the Legion might have "let sleeping dogs lie" and straddled the issue because the senate had defeated the President's pet court measure. However, Black's recently disclosed klan affiliations again have brought the controversy to the fore, it was said.

The organization's three point program for keeping the country out of war are:

Legislation to provide "adequate neutrality laws"; to take the profits out of war through a universal service law, and appropriations to assure what Legion experts in national defense problems regard as the minimum insurance against any foes on land or sea.

The convention opens tomorrow night with a memorial service at Madison Square Garden. The annual parade, a monster affair lasting 18 or 19 hours, will pass up Fifth avenue on Tuesday.

33d Division Receives Eight New Ambulances

Eight new ambulances designed from regular army medical corps specifications were on display yesterday in front of the 108th Quartermaster regiment headquarters at 3400 North Western avenue. They are part of new armament and equipment allocated for several units of the 33d division, Illinois National Guard.

FALLS FIVE FLOORS; LIVES.

Michael Tishka, 45 years old, 4525 South Rockwell street, a window washer, was critically injured in a fall yesterday when his safety belt broke while he was at work on a fifth floor ledge at 1214 West Van Buren street.

FIRST DIVISION VETS WILL HOLD BIGGEST REUNION

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The Legion convention will bring together nearly 20,000 veterans of the First division in the biggest reunion that famous fighting unit ever has held. Members of the American Legion, the veterans, who are organized as the society of the First division, A. E. F., have arranged their own special program, including a day at Governor's Island, where units of the present First division are quartered.

On Wednesday, with their wartime commanders, Lieut. Gen. Charles P. Summerall, retired; Lieut. Gen. Robert Lee Bullard, retired, and Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, retired, as guests of honor, the veterans will witness a reënactment of their attack on Fleville in the Meuse-Argonne offensive by a company of the sixteenth infantry, supported by artillery, howitzers, and machine guns, on Memorial field, Governor's Island. Col. Karl Truesdell, commander of the sixteenth, will be in command.

NORTHWESTERN U. TO HOLD PARLEY ON JOB DISEASES

Northwestern university will conduct a symposium on industrial disease and hygiene Sept. 27 and 28 in the Palmer house. The program was announced yesterday by Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of Northwestern medical school. Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, and Dr. Cutter, will speak Sept. 28 at the conference banquet.

Conference speakers include Dr. Marion B. Sulzberger of Columbia university; Dr. Leroy U. Gardner, director of the Saranac Lake [N. Y.] tuberculosis laboratory; Drs. Clarence W. Muehlberger and Samuel M. Feinburg of Northwestern; Dr. Eugene P. Pendergrass of the University of Pennsylvania medical school, and Dr. James A. Britton, medical director of the International Harvester company.

KILLS SELF WITH AUTO GAS.

Mishawaka, Ind., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Elmer Havens, 37, committed suicide here last night. He attached a hose to the exhaust pipe of his car with the engine running and ran the other end of the hose into the window of the automobile.

200 in Vanguard

The drum and bugle corps of Police post, No. 207, were among 200 Chicagoans who left the La Salle street station yesterday for the national American Legion convention at New York City. Out at the municipal airport Municipal Judge Charles S. Dougherty and Mrs. Dougherty started for the convention via plane. From New York they will continue to Paris for another Legion convention.

EX-TREASURER TO REPAY BOSTON ABOUT $171,579

Boston, Mass., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Former City Treasurer Edmund L. Dolan was ordered today to repay to the city of Boston approximately $171,579 which, a Superior court judge found, represented "secret and illegal profits" made in purchase of bonds for the city through his Legal Securities corporation.

The Massachusetts Supreme court upheld, with slight modification, the ruling of Superior Judge Edward P. Hanify, who ordered Dolan to reimburse the city with $131,161, plus $40,417 interest.

The decision said Dolan as city treasurer bought bonds from the Legal Securities corporation, which he owned, "at prices he knew were excessive, . . . bonds which had been offered to him shortly before by other dealers at lower prices."

PETE M'CLURE, ONCE GRID STAR, SHOOTS GUNMAN

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 18.—(AP)—A former Notre Dame football player, now a detective, today shot and seriously wounded Michael Montanaro, 28, described by police as one of the biggest of the remaining Philadelphia gangsters.

For six months the former footballer, Richard [Pete] McClure of Clearfield, Pa., now 31, has hunted Montanaro, indicted for two holdups in Philadelphia and Chester, Pa., and wanted for questioning in the killing of Pius Lanzetti, John Avena and Martin Feldstein, Philadelphia underworld characters shot to death in the last year.

ODD FELLOWS CONVENE FRIDAY AT MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—When the Independent Order of Odd Fellows opens its national convention here next Friday, Thomas G. Andrews of Oklahoma City, Okla., deputy grand sire, is scheduled to be elevated to grand sire of the organization. He is a former Oklahoma Supreme court justice. Mrs. Harriet P. Reeves of Wellesley, Mass., now vice president of the International Association of Rebekah Assemblies, will be elected president of that group.

PICKETS ROUTED IN NEW YORK BY LEGION CANNON

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—A group of radicals who were staging an anti-war demonstration in front of the Japanese consulate at 500 Fifth avenue broke their ranks and fled in terror today when a Detroit member of the American Legion fired a toy cannon into the air.

The pickets threw down the placards and ran screaming into nearby doorways until the cannoneer, who was riding in a miniature train along the avenue, had passed. The Legion member, laughing at the effect of his bombardment, ceased firing as soon as the pickets ran.

The pickets, numbering around 250 members of the American Friends of the Chinese People and the American League Against War and Fascism, were taken by surprise by the cannonading. The Legion member held his fire until the train was alongside the picket line. Then he opened a door in the box car, poked the muzzle of the cannon out and let off the first blast.

KILLS BYSTANDER DURING DISPUTE OVER LOST JOB

Barney Solomon, 30 years old, 4240 Clarendon avenue, a West Randolph street bag merchant, was fatally wounded yesterday by a colored man in the offices of the Coöperative Bag and Burlap company at 816 West Randolph street.

Harold Horwitz, one of the owners of the Coöperative company, whom Solomon was visiting, told the police that the colored man had been employed by his company for a few days and was discharged Thursday.

Horwitz said the gunman, whose first name he recalled as Leon, drew a pistol during a dispute over his wages and forced Horwitz to hand over $4. He then fired three shots as he left, one of the bullets striking Solomon.

FALLS FROM PORCH; DIES.

Benjamin Dalsing, 75 years old, 3412 North Halsted street, was injured fatally yesterday when a railing against which he was leaning on the second floor porch gave way.

HELD AS AUTO KILLER AFTER TAVERN QUARREL

Driver Is Charged with Manslaughter.

Stanley Lubec, 25 years old, 5204 Lakewood avenue, was recommended held to the grand jury for manslaughter yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the death Sept. 11 of Anthony Wojtala, 21 years old, 5211 South Latrobe avenue, victim of a hit and run motorist.

The action was taken after hearing two witnesses, Irving Djediec, 6033 Archer avenue, who said he was a passenger in Lubec's car when it struck Wojtala, and Matthew Walczak, 5226 South Long avenue, who was with the victim at the time of the accident. Both witnesses said they overheard Lubec threaten Wojtala with death in a tavern quarrel preceding the accident.

Threat Is Charged.

They quoted him as saying to Wojtala, "Sooner or later I'll kill you." Walczak said Wojtala, who had survived a similar accident a month previously, was repairing a tire on Central avenue, near 61st street, when a second car struck him. Walczak said he recognized Lubec in the hit and run car. Lubec vigorously denied his car struck Wojtala.

An unidentified man, about 43 years old, was killed last night when he was run down by an automobile at 38th street and Union avenue. The driver, Lester J. Turney, 30, of 7715 South Hermitage avenue, told police that the man walked suddenly in front of his car, giving him no opportunity to stop in time.

Child Killed by Truck.

Robert Dams, 9 years old, 2052 North Sawyer avenue, was killed by a truck yesterday when he ran into the street near his home. Frank Drews, 4915 Parker avenue, the driver, said the boy darted from between two parked automobiles.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 743 persons had been killed in automobile accidents in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these 572 were killed in Chicago, where 16,123 were injured in the same period.

[See editorial page for the massacre clock.]

WOMAN CHARGED WITH MURDER IN ABORTION DEATH

A charge of murder by abortion was placed against Miss Marie Trampush, 27 years old, at Oak Park police station yesterday in the investigation of the death of Phyllis Brown, 16 years old, Riverside High school girl, from an alleged abortion. Miss Trampush, who lives at 1426 South Ridgeland avenue, Berwyn, is secretary to Dr. C. Harold Edmunds, an Oak Park physician, who has been similarly charged. He is alleged to have performed the operation.

Assistant State's Attorney Benjamin Nelson, who ordered the charge placed against Miss Trampush, questioned her yesterday. She denied having knowledge of the operation. Miss Trampush was released on bond of $5,000 and Dr. Edmunds is being held in lieu of $25,000 bond. Both will be arraigned Tuesday in Felony court.

DOCTORS TO GET FREE SUPPLIES IN SYPHILIS WAR

Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board of health, announced yesterday that the board will supply blood test tubes and laboratory blanks free to the 5,000 private physicians who have indicated their willingness to coöperate in Chicago's campaign against syphilis.

Distribution will begin this week and will be completed by Oct. 15, said Dr. Louis Schmidt, secretary of the board and chairman of Mayor Kelly's anti-syphilis committee.

Carrying out the methods of standardization of tests described to laboratory technicians by Dr. Rueben Kahn, inventor of the Kahn syphilis test, at a meeting Friday night, 35 young doctors will call on physicians to explain the uniform testing and reporting procedure.

Some "Don'ts" for Pile Sufferers

If you are a sufferer from Piles or some other rectal disorder, read carefully the following list of "don'ts" — prepared by The McCleary Clinic, widely known rectal specialists. Don't neglect a well defined rectal ailment and expect it to right itself. Don't use an ointment for temporary relief, believing it will produce a permanent cure. Don't wait until your whole system may become undermined before you consult a competent rectal specialist. Don't take the grave chance of some malignant and incurable condition developing before you decide to do what you should do now. The McCleary Clinic has prepared a book that describes all rectal conditions and the mild McCleary treatment. It will be sent free to any rectal sufferer.

Use the following address: McCleary Clinic, 9-514 Elms Blvd., Excelsior Springs, Mo. Use a postcard or write a personal letter, describing your case if you so desire.

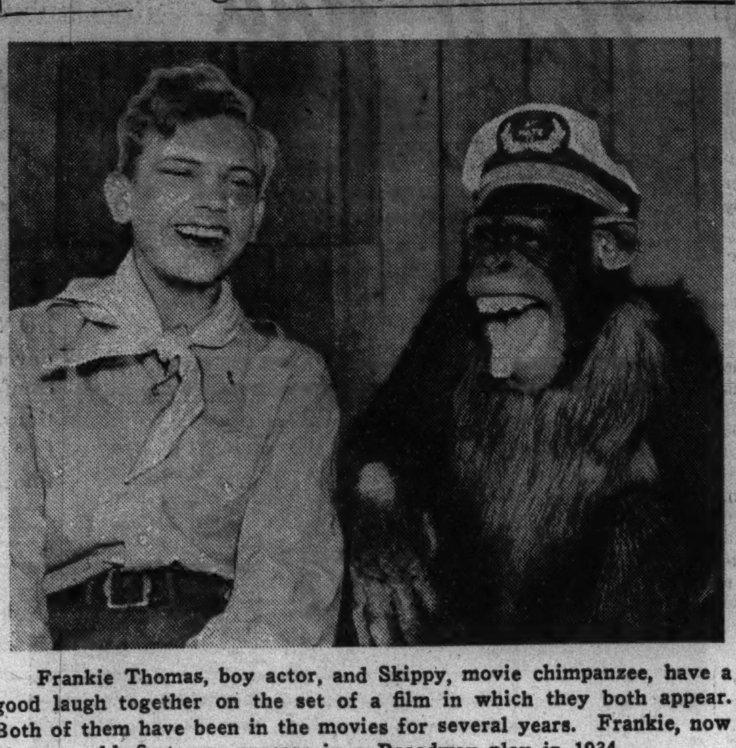
Something's Funny in Hollywood



Frankie Thomas, boy actor, and Skippy, movie chimpanzee, have a good laugh together on the set of a film in which they both appear. Both of them have been in the movies for several years. Frankie, now 14 years old, first won success in a Broadway play in 1934.

Pals with Beasts

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—For his starring rôle in "Tim Tyler's Luck," the Universal serial being adapted from the comic strip hero, Frankie Thomas, 16 year old screen actor, had to become friends with a half dozen or so denizens of the African jungle, trained, it is true, for motion pictures, but nevertheless still ferocious enough to demand a whole crew of guards on the sets where they are emoting.

Thomas' fellow actors include Skippy, the 6 year old 135 pound chimpanzee of the Tarzan series fame; midnight, the $15,000 black panther, one of the few in captivity, who more than once has turned on his trainer, Olga Celeste; Niesa and Jackie, the movie leopard pair, and Anna May, the giant elephant.

Before filming of the picture commenced Frankie spent several hours a day with the chimpanzee to gain the animal's confidence. During the filming, however, the animal sank a tooth into the actor's leg and a second later groveled at Frankie's feet in apology. The movie Tim Tyler escaped with a superficial wound.

Lie Tests Clear Two in Rape Slaying of Nurse

Two colored men held in the investigation of the murder of Miss Anna Kuchta, 19 years old, a nurse who was raped and slain in her room at the Chicago hospital, 811 East 49th street, on Aug. 21, took lie detector tests yesterday. Capt. Ray Crane of the Hyde Park station said the tests eliminated the men, John T. Cobb and John Weaver, as suspects.

HORNER ENLISTS BOARD TO FIGHT AUTO MASSACRE

176 Are Named to State Safety Commission.

In a new attack on the highway massacre Gov. Horner yesterday enlisted 176 Chicago and downstate leaders to help map out ways and means to reduce and end the slaughter. The governor described the highway toll as "murder and suicide."

The 176 men and women named become members of the newly created Illinois highway safety commission. Their charge will be to study the automobile accident problem, try to correlate the efforts of city, county and highway agencies, and plan legislation to fit the needs. Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, is named president of the commission.

Need Is Immediate, He Says.

"The gravity of the problem created by the tremendous annual toll of human lives, maimed bodies and property loss in Illinois through street and highway accidents appeals to all of us," said Gov. Horner. "The need for an effective solution of this problem is immediate. We are all agreed that the murder and suicide by reckless and incompetent driving must be stopped to the extent it is humanly possible."

Attack on Several Fronts.

As part of the new safety drive, all police and judges are to be given the names of drivers who lose their driving privileges, police are to enforce strictly all state driving laws, and fixing is to be penalized.

In another move, Mr. Hayes, the motor club head and president of the commission, announced his club would work for legislation to bar the sale of gasoline to drivers showing signs of intoxication.

CONDUCTOR 7772 IS POLITE, SO HE WINS $5 AWARD

Meets Real Competition in Courtesy Contest.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Conductor No. 7772 of the Chicago Surface Lines, who collects fares and punches transfers on the Madison street line, today gets THE TRIBUNE'S $5 politeness award.

To get it, Conductor No. 7772, a large genial fellow, had to demonstrate exceptional courtesy, because he was up against competition among his fellow conductors.

A reporter rode some 20 cars, all on different lines, all at rush hours, with the cars so crowded that in many cases passengers hung precariously on the rear steps. Yet only one conductor was found who at any time displayed what even verged on rudeness.

Rude at the Wrong Time.

And this particular rudeness, it might be added, was most unfortunate, for it came just as the reporter, after half an hour's observation ending at 6 p. m., was ready to give him the day's prize.

What you did, Mr. Conductor on the Lincoln-Peterson line, was to yell at a wizened, long nosed little man, as he tried to swing off the car before it stopped at North avenue: "Hey, what's the big idea? Why can't you wait?"

He Makes No Slips.

But Michael Fogarty, 4511 Maypole avenue, who is conductor No. 7772, made no such slips, although he had many exasperations. The reporter boarded his car at Wood and Madison streets, and soon noted that the genial Irishman's politeness was no thin veneer. "Ashland, Ashland, Ashland!" he boomed out. When a sallow, dark, young man finally looked up inquiringly, Mr. Fogarty winked at him. "Here you are," he called.

An elderly woman, carrying a heavy bag, lunged down the aile. "Be careful, lady," Mr. Fogarty cautioned, laying a restraining hand on her arm. "You'd better sit down first and pay me later."

An Extraordinary Act.

The single extraordinary act which won him his $5, however, came when the car, westbound, neared Ashland avenue, and a woman passenger asked how soon it would reach State street.

"State street!" Fogarty exclaimed. "We'll never get there, lady. For one thing, we're headed the wrong direction. For another, you have to get off at Dearborn and walk a block east to State. But, hurry now, and you can catch that car over there," indicating one on the opposite track.

Hastily he punched a transfer, thrust it at her, signaled for the car to stop and began helping her off. "Now watch your step," he cautioned, "and hurry."

When the passenger reached the eastbound car, she found it had stopped, not for a trafic light, but in response to the signal of thoughtful Mr. Fogarty.

Mr. Fogarty, it turns out, is 42, married, and has three children, all under 9. He has been working for the surface lines for 20 years and is always getting fan mail from grateful passengers.

HUNTS MISSING SISTER.

Miss Adela Neva, 40 years old, 719 Melrose street, asked help yesterday in finding her sister, Minnie Emilia Neva, 45 years old, whom she has not seen for 20 years.

BOY SHIELDS HIS WOUNDED FATHER IN CAFE ROBBERY

Samuel Speredes, 44 years old, who was shot early yesterday in a battle with three colored robbers in his tavern and restaurant at 1307 West Roosevelt road, was in a critical condition last evening at the Mother Cabrini hospital. A bullet struck him in the abdomen.

John Speredes.

Speredes' son John, 18 years old, New Trier High school athlete, who attempted to battle the robbers after Speredes was struck, was shot in the chin, right shoulder, and left leg. At the County hospital it was said he was recovering. The Speredes family resides at 1448 Wilmette avenue, Wilmette.

The battle in the restaurant was started by Samuel Speredes after the robbers had taken $7 from a customer, Peter Papaleo, 18 years old, 1507 Taylor street. After the shooting the robbers fled.

INQUEST FOR EX-ARMY SURGEON.

A verdict of suicide was returned yesterday at an inquest over Dr. John W. Meek, 80 years old, a retired army surgeon found shot to death Friday at his home, 2234 Washington boulevard. Dr. Meek is survived by a son, Maj. Sterner Meek, U. S. A., stationed at San Francisco.

THE SIXTH GOVERNMENT.

Chicago has for years had five local governments. They are the city, board of education, county, sanitary district, and the park districts, recently consolidated. Every resident of the city benefits by the services of each to some extent, and every resident, directly or indirectly, contributes the taxes which support them.

Since 1932 a sixth government has arisen. Its direct beneficiaries are only a fraction of our population, yet its disbursements equal those of any of the other local governments. It is the relief administration.

Since its inception this government has always operated as an emergency agency, without long term policy. It has been operated by various commissions, under various controls, and with varying sources of financial support. At present it is a dual government, consisting of the relief administration proper, financed by state and local tax funds, and the WPA, financed by federal funds.

The local relief administration is facing one of its periodical crises. They arise every six or nine months. The present one arises from the fact that the city's most direct contribution to relief, raised by a general property tax, has been exhausted with more than a quarter of the year yet to go.

The amount available from this tax was known at the beginning of the year. Any other local government would have budgeted it to cover a twelve month period. Why similar action was not taken by the relief administration last January, adjusting monthly expenditures to expected income, seems to require explanation.

However, the current crisis will be smoothed over, if experience means anything. All of the previous crises have been met, in one fashion or another. All that remains unsolved is the continuing crisis of relief rolls which show relatively little decrease, after more than four years of what we are assured from Washington has been a miraculous recovery from the depression.

The relief rolls fluctuate seasonally, rising in the winter and dropping during the summer. In July, 1932, there were 119,000 cases on Chicago relief rolls. The number varied as follows during the same month of the three following years: 1933—154,000; 1934—126,000; 1935—136,000.

By July of 1936 the WPA was in operation. There were 76,000 relief cases and approximately 64,000 relief employés on WPA projects, a total of 140,000. In July of this year there were 80,000 relief cases and 42,000 relief employés on WPA, a total of 122,000.

There is some duplication between relief and WPA totals. Relief clients assigned to WPA projects are carried on relief rolls until they get their first WPA check, and some WPA workers get supplementary sums from the relief authorities. Account was taken of this duplication, so far as available information made it possible, in the totals given above.

In brief, we find that in July, 1937, during a period of relative prosperity, the total of home and WPA relief cases exceeds that of July, 1932, which statisticians have fixed as the bottom of the depression, and is still 79 per cent of the total of July in 1933, the year in which the local relief load reached its peak.

Relief costs present an even more discouraging picture. Costs for July over the last six years follow:

1933....	3,602,982	1936....	4,838,862
1934....	3,802,681	1937....	4,692,610

The figures for 1936 and 1937 include estimates of WPA costs, based not on the total cost of projects but only on wage payments to relief workers during the month. Had all of the WPA relief workers been transferred back to home relief rolls the relief cost for July of this year would have been approximately $3,500,000.

A conference of public officials and business leaders, held on Tuesday to consider the current relief crisis, concluded that the only solution was to find jobs in private industry for some of the reliefers. The conclusion is hardly startling, but it is doubtful whether any emergency action along the lines suggested is going to make a permanent impression on the relief load.

For the last year direct relief, as distinguished from WPA, has been supported by state and local taxes. Illinois is not beholden to Washington any more. It can, if it wishes, undertake a revision of one branch of Chicago's sixth government.

Revision is needed, perhaps not so much in personnel as in policy. Relief policy heretofore has been to support the relief clients first, with reëmployment a secondary consideration. Reëmployment should be made the primary function of the revised relief administration.

No one who has given any consideration to the relief problem believes that this will be an easy task. It is certainly not a task which can be accomplished by any emergency drive within a few months. It will require a great deal of study, close coöperation with private business, and time, perhaps several years.

The relief load today, in a period of comparative prosperity, is unbearable. Unless something is done to ease it before the next depression, which some recent developments indicate may not be a great distance away, it will wreck the financial structure of both Chicago and the federal government.

A MODERN ARMY.

While the American people enjoy the benefits of the most advanced political institutions and their industry is foremost for productive energy, high organization, resourcefulness and progressiveness, their military organization is still retarded by outworn conceptions inherited from the past.

Perhaps this is natural in an unmilitary people, who look upon war, in spite of their own experience, as an improbable interruption of their civilian activities and confidently count every war they fight as the last. Nevertheless they are not so optimistic as to dispense with an army and a navy, and theoretically their defense agencies should be characterized by the qualities that distinguish American civil achievement.

Yet the American army as an instrument of modern military force does not express the American genius for progress. We must turn to the great industries for that while the army remains under the influence of 18th and 19th century ideas. It is not in its organization aware of the possibilities of modern warfare. In weapons it competes with other armies and it is now interested in making use of mechanical and chemical invention and discovery; but rather belatedly and under compulsion, not eagerly and in advance, like our industries. The military mind, for perhaps understandable reasons, is conservative and somewhat unduly impressed with what it takes to be the lessons of the past, yet in the American atmosphere of daring and successful initiative in industry and communications it is strange that even the military mind should not move with more celerity. Yet the American army is only modern in detail, whereas it needs a basic reorganization to bring it up to the level of efficiency under modern conditions of warfare.

Modern armies developed from the medieval army. The medieval army was an expression of the feudal idea with its main reliance upon the knight, the horseman, the progenitor of cavalry of later times. As feudalism declined the foot soldier—archer, crossbowman, and pikeman—came into his own and infantry became "the queen of battles." Later still artillery was added to the evolving modern army. These branches, separate in their tactical functions and even by social distinctions, retain their separateness into the present time, when revolutionary changes in the science of war have erased the lines dividing them and move powerfully toward a unification or fusion of their functions.

Along with the development of the main arms have grown up many other departments. Artillery developed ordnance, a manufacturing department, and recently chemical warfare added an experimental service. The engineers have reached a plane of importance even higher than in classic wars. The signal corps, operating the complicated resources of modern invention, and aviation with its rapid evolution and extraordinary possibilities have added to the resources and responsibilities of the modern commander. Administrative departments have become, with the size of modern forces and the complexity of their material, departments of importance. Quartermaster generals, judge advocates, adjutant generals, financial officers, inspector generals, and the nonmilitary officials, the doctors and chaplains, all these make up a huge structure which must be coördinated so as to operate with as little as possible of the confusion which is so costly if not indeed fatal in warfare.

Yet each arm of the service and each department or bureau has its own ambitions and jealousies. The main arms are no longer properly divided as in the days when cavalry rode horses and infantry only carried its muskets or rifles. The old demarcations are obsolete and tactics are rapidly being transformed. The old historical organizations should be abandoned in toto, not clung to in obedience to precedents now without basis in realities or through service pride or inertia. There should be a single list of officers with men assigned to different weapons, and when these weapons become obsolete the men should be reassigned to other weapons. Classification, in other words, should be made upon the basis of modern realities, not upon past conditions.

This reform is a fundamental requirement of the highest military efficiency and should not be held back by tradition, with the artillery and infantry squabbling for the possession of the new weapons, field artillery and coast artillery fighting each other, and obsolete branches of the service fighting for self-preservation. This is turmoil, not the coöperation essential to the evolution of a modern instrumentality of national defense, a coöperation more than ever difficult in a period of radical transition compelled by the advance of science and invention. The higher control of our army affairs should be more conscious of its duty to rise above the habits of thought and particular loyalties and ambitions which protect organization surviving from the long past. It should face present realities and impose its authority to compel a reorganization of the whole establishment in conformity with principles of the highest modern efficiency.

LAKE POLLUTION.

The Indiana department of commerce and industries has ordered cities in Lake county, Indiana, to cease polluting Lake Michigan with their sewage. A survey has disclosed that wastes from these towns are menacing the health of other communities which draw their drinking supply from Lake Michigan, notably Chicago.

The abuse is an old one and it is inexcusable. When the wind blows from the south the wastes from the Indiana towns are carried toward the Chicago intakes, particularly those on the south side. Increasing the dosage of chlorine in the water has thus far prevented an epidemic, but the risk is always present and menacing. A failure of the mechanism or an oversight by some employé of the city water department might result in much illness and many deaths from typhoid, dysentery, and other water-borne diseases.

It would be unfair to the authorities in Indiana to accuse them of unneighborly conduct all these years. There have been many delays but little downright resistance on their part to proposals for sewage treatment. Most of the responsible officials have admitted that the Indiana towns were at fault. Now that the state health department has been authorized to go ahead there is every reason to expect that the abuse will be ended promptly and effectively. Chicago, which more than a generation ago was a pioneer in the prevention of lake pollution, has a right to expect its neighbors to show an equal regard for the purity of our common water supply.

YOUR DOLLAR THAT "WENT" TO SPAIN.

[Milwaukee Journal.]

For many months now American societies have been soliciting dollars to aid this side or that in Spain. The money was to save the world from Fascism or it was to save us all from communism. It was to put democracy back on its feet. It was to feed Spanish babies or it was to carry medical relief. Anyway, it was something in Spain.

Was your dollar one of those that really got to Spain? Light is thrown on that question by the report of the American state department. Since May 1, when the neutrality act went into effect, all soliciting organizations have been compelled to register and submit reports. Twenty-three organizations have done so.

One, the American Committee for Spanish Relief of New York, took in $30,753.96, spent $25,793.72 on "administration and publicity," and had $3,340.22 on hand as of July 31. The American donors were apparently making nice jobs for somebody in that organization.

To sum up: These 23 organizations collected $376,926.91, sent $139,193.40 to Spain, spent $124,986.97 on publicity and administration, and had $133,006.44 on hand for Christmas.

These reports ought to open the eyes of American donors. Why not call the thing Relief for American Promoters and Publicity Agents? It seems to be relieving bull throwers in this country before it reaches the Spanish toreadors.

DRINK WATER, BUT NOT TO EXCESS.

We know that no cell in the body can perform unless it is bathed in fluid, and water is essential to every living thing—plants and animals alike. We drink when we are thirsty and instinct [satisfaction] helps us to determine how much to take.

How does the body lose water?

1. In the presence of diarrhea the outflow may be very great. This is a sort of upset which depletes the cells of necessary salts—so much so, in fact, that a dangerous situation may ensue—acidosis or alkalosis. Children are quite susceptible.

2. The amount of urine may vary from a little more than one pint to several quarts in each 24 hours. Much depends upon the ability of the kidneys to concentrate their secretions. If they cannot do this a large quantity of water will be required to carry away the tissue wastes.

3. Via the skin and the lungs. The average person will throw off from a quart to a quart and a half daily in perspiration. Of course, this is increased greatly in warm weather and as a result of activity.

Many individuals, weakened by illness, perspire excessively and, of course, a patient with a temperature of 103 to 105 degrees F. will breathe more rapidly. Furthermore, the rate of the heart is "stepped up." In other words, the whole process of metabolism, raised above normal levels, will call for more liquids.

* * *

Today one of the principal jobs of the physician is to see that the body is provided with plenty of fluid to maintain normal tone, and rarely will we see a patient with a hot, dry skin, a lethery tongue, sunken eyes, and what is practically suppression of urine, a victim of water starvation. But to present the above picture one would need to lose a fluid equivalent of only 6 per cent of the body weight which, translated, means between four and five quarts for the average adult.

In each 24 hours, even though the man or woman is fairly active, a total of two to four quarts should suffice. Some use far less while others perhaps force themselves to imbibe more than they really care for on the theory that it is good for them.

Thirst, of course, can be stimulated by various devices. We can eat salty foods, for example. This will bring an order for liquids with which to dilute the salt. The more salt, the more water. But we should recall that such a process is likely to engorge the blood vessels and the tissues, and the excess must all be excreted via the circulation through the lungs, kidneys, skin, etc. It requires a pretty powerful pair of kidneys to preserve a balance when one is constantly throwing into the digestive tract water which is not needed and which merely clutters up the machinery.

It is good policy not to demand too much of any structure within the body, especially the heart and the kidneys. As a result, instead of advocating a plethora of water drinking for every ill to which the flesh is heir, it is common sense to insist that our natural wants be supplied in moderation—not by a flood. Particularly as we grow older are we less able to handle large amounts. When we are calculating our own intake we should consider the total volume in the diet. Many vegetables are 95 per cent water and every article of food contains a generous portion.

Thirst is an excellent guide and there are but few occasions when, in the absence of diabetes, it will not furnish a safe criterion.

BABY FOOD.

Mrs. I. W. writes: My mother-in-law insists that babies should not be fed canned baby foods and I contend that these must be satisfactory, otherwise physicians would not recommend them.

REPLY.

Mothers-in-law are right—occasionally—but not in this instance. Nothing is quite so wholesome for an infant as the breast milk of a healthy mother. Lacking this, numerous canned preparations are proper and safe. Ask your mother-in-law to compare the death rate among infants today with that of her early married life.

PROBABLY RINGWORM.

Mrs. B. writes: For a year I have been bothered with small, white blisters on the fingers and inside the hands. The skin peels off in small pieces but there is no pain. What is it and how can I get rid of it?

REPLY.

Your trouble is probably ringworm. Are your feet affected in the same way? It may be wise to consult your family physician if the condition persists. Several types of eczema may exhibit similar symptoms.

* * *

BULGING VEINS.

Mrs. H. writes: What causes the veins of the hands to fill so full when the forearms are flat on a table? Can anything be done about it?

REPLY.

Usually prominent veins indicate that the return circulation is not quite up to par. On the other hand, the symptom may mean nothing. With many persons the veins on the back of the hands will bulge whenever the arms are lower than the heart.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence, follow up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

LACK OF EXITS.

Chicago, Sept. 10.—[Friend of the People.]—Being an old reader of THE TRIBUNE I was always interested in your services and would like to know what you can do about this problem. There are always in every large city more or less firetraps, but the one here is one which should be examined immediately. This building has a store in front and three rooms [flat] in the rear. Between the store and the flat, in the middle of the building on the west side of the same, is a stairway going up to the second floor which has a four room flat in the front and a three room flat in the rear, which are both rented. So there is only one entrance and one exit for all three apartments. The store, naturally, has a front entrance, but in other respects it is a perfect firetrap. I cannot understand how a building of this character can pass the examination. P. T.

Our inspector reports this is a two story frame building with insufficient means of egress from the second floor. The owner has been notified to provide an additional three foot stairway from the second floor to grade. If this work is not done at the expiration of time allotted in our notice we will proceed as the law directs.

Commissioner of Buildings.

CEMETERY DEEDS.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In 1922 I was admitted as a member of a lodge which governs a cemetery. I bought a cemetery lot and paid cash for it, and received a deed, which I still hold, subject, however, at all times in its use, devise and for purposes of taxation, to the laws, rules and regulations now existing or that may hereafter be enacted. At that time one of the rules read $4 a year taxation for a nonmember who owned a lot. There is no taxation for a member.

Since then I have become a nonmember, and the taxation for a nonmember has been raised to $9 a year, which is used for maintenance purpose. On July 16, 1937, I received a registered letter stating that my lot has been forfeited for nonpayment of maintenance tax and have no further burial rights therein. I have not paid this tax because I think $9 a year is too much money as I understand most cemeteries have a tax of $1 to $3 a year, and besides, this lodge can raise more. There have been two burials. I do not want to forfeit this lot. Please advise. L. J. D.

Cemetery deeds commonly provide that the lot owners shall be subject to the bylaws of the association. While this wording would not permit assessments which had no relationship to the wise management of the entire enterprise, it does permit the officials to adopt a landscape plan and to require individuals to conform to it, by refraining from haphazard individual planting, by limiting monuments to those in harmony with the plan, and by meeting reasonable assessments for care of the lots. We cannot advise further without knowing the wording of your deed and of the bylaws.

POSSESSION OF FIREARMS.

Chicago, Sept. 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I would like to know about a citizen's privilege of carrying guns in a car; also on his person for target shooting. Do they have to be registered? If so, where does one register them and how much does it cost? Are permits of any kind issued to citizens to carry guns in Chicago? K. D.

Section 4 of the Sadler act provides: "No person shall carry concealed on or about his person a pistol, revolver or other firearm." In 322 Illinois at page 52 our Supreme court held "'on or about his person' means sufficiently close to the person to be readily accessible for immediate use. A firearm is concealed about the person when it is pushed down behind the cushion of an automobile on which the accused is sitting . . . but not when it is lying on the floor under a rug."

The statute also prohibits ex-convicts and persons who associate with thieves or who frequent gambling places from carrying firearms in motor vehicles.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—Experiments in Russia suggest that the blood of the dead may soon be used to restore the living to health.

These experiments are said to have disclosed these facts: Blood from corpses gives better results than from live donors, and red cell increase is higher than after transfusion of an identical quantity of blood from live donors.

Prof. W. N. Shamor, Russian researcher, outlining in the Lancet, British medical publication, his experiments on animals and man, declares that the transfusion of cadaver [corpse] blood has other definite advantages—notably the rarer and less conspicuous reactions on patients—but that they could be utilized in practice only with widespread and efficient organization for procuring such blood.

"In spite of the fact that there is a large body of supporting evidence for its value, and that full sanction has been obtained for taking blood from cases of sudden death, medical men at the courts of justice were unwilling to allow the blood of bodies that are at their disposal to be drawn for clinical needs," writes the professor.

"Yet here, by an active coöperation of those in charge of mortuaries, there is opportunity for a further practical development of the method of obtaining cadaver blood."

He speaks of the strong prejudice in the majority of people at the bare thought of transfusing into a live person the blood from a corpse and the "holy awe" at the thought of "disturbing the repose of the dead," and asks: "If it is true that the blood of a dead person drawn into a glass vessel retains its full vitality would this not produce a desire not to destroy, but to give it a chance of continuing useful life even while the body to which it formerly belonged is decomposing?"

From experiments on animals the professor "confirmed our fundamental thesis that the blood in the dead body preserves its vitality for about ten hours after death."

Another interesting question is asked by the professor: "Could not some tissues or organs from the dead body be transferred to the living and continue to function normally?"

A member of the medical staf of a London hospital said:

"The use of corpses' blood in the treatment of illness has been in vogue for some years in Russia. I saw it being done in a big accident hospital in Moscow. Of course, elaborate precautions are taken to insure that the dead man did not die from any disease. It is claimed that very good results have been obtained from this method.

"Since I saw the Moscow methods I have been trying to advocate their use in this country in order to relieve the strain on blood donors, but there seems to be very little enthusiasm for it among British medical men."

THE SALES TAX AND RELIEF.

Chicago, Sept. 11.—Will some bright mind please explain this to me? Harry Hopkins stopped payments to Illinois for relief some time ago, saying that we would have to increase our 2 per cent sales tax to 3 per cent, thus securing one cent more for relief purposes, before more federal money would be forthcoming. A necessary law was immediately passed to increase the sales tax as ordered. Did this extra cent go to relief? It did not. Now I ask, why? And why does not the entire 3 per cent go for relief? My understanding is that this tax was designed originally for this one purpose. A. B. PAUL.

RELIEF FRAUDS.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—How shall we reduce the relief rolls? Answer: Stop mailing relief checks to people who have other income. This easy money is too easy. I choose to work hard to support my family rather than go along the line of least resistance and become a beggar and impostor. I cash relief checks for people who have more income than I have. Storekeepers and people with income property come to me with their checks.

I am willing to contribute my share to help people in need. More than that, I have helped people in my neighborhood. But when I see relief checks going to idlers who do not want to work and who have no intention of working so long as the government will feed them, I get disgusted. There ought to be some way to weed out those fellows who impose on those who pay the bills. I suspect that politics, pull, and graft have had something to do with getting unworthy persons on the relief rolls, in some cases.

My opinion is that if all payments were stopped until new applications were made out, with an affidavit attached, about 25 per cent would not make a new application. FAIR PLAY.

WE'VE THOUGHT OF TRYING THAT.

Berwyn, Ill., Sept. 12.—Today's Met section says, "wide pavement on Cermak road called hazard." It isn't the wide pavement that is the hazard; it's the dirty, unprincipled, impolite so-and-so's that drive over it that are the hazard.

They can make bum cracks about the humpty-dumpty car line in Cermak road, but, believe me, there are many people still living today who owe their lives to that unpaved car track. They can thank God and the street car company for the chuck holes in it that keep the maniacs out of it.

Even so, one came roaring down on me one night when I took refuge in the car tracks. The fact that I stood there meant nothing to him. I leaped just in time and then that egg got the surprise of his life. I happened to have an empty milk bottle in each hand and I'm that kind of a guy, if I have to explain it. I sailed one bottle right through his back window, and stooped over and picked up one of those loose paving bricks with which the crossings are paved, just in case he came back to do something about it. Well, he didn't. FRANK J. SCHINDLER.

KLAN TRICK.

Chicago, Sept. 15.—No one seems to remember the trick of the K. K. K. of automatically suspending membership in their order of any member while in court or public notice.

In the face of this liberality of the laws of the K. K. K. Justice Black's denial of membership in the order will be easy. O. ODDEN.

KIDNAPER TAKES POLICE ON TRAIL TO STUDY CRIME

Ex-German Sailor Sought "One Gay Year."

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The confessed kidnaper of Julius Redlich, 63 years old, a wealthy hotel man and wine importer, who was chained in a wildwood dungeon for eight hours while his abductor haggled over a $20,000 ransom demand, today begged the authorities to "Hurry up and send me to prison."

After reënacting the abduction for state police, Franz Hanawald, 36 years old, a German who jumped ship to get into this country in 1926, told Dutchess County District Attorney John R. Schwartz that he would plead guilty and "take what's coming to me."

May Get Life Term.

In a confession covering twenty-seven typewritten pages, Hanawald amplified admissions that may send him to prison for from twenty years to life. He led state troopers to a place in the woods near Millbrook, where he had hidden his gun and a can of ether. He told the police he used the ether to ease pain he suffered as a result of a kidney operation a year ago.

Following a visit to the cement lined pit in which Redlich was chained and handcuffed, Hanawald was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Seeley Johnson at Dover Plains.

For Few Merry Days.

Questioned in German by Redlich's wife and son, John, the prisoner repeated his story he wanted the money to splurge on because a doctor told him he had only one year to live.

Redlich, who was abducted on the night of Sept. 4 from his home on the grounds of his Berkshire Country club, an exclusive Harlem valley summer resort, also was in court. He identified Hanawald as the masked kidnaper. Hanawald was held without bail for the grand jury. Schwartz will present the case on Tuesday.

RESUME TRAVEL LECTURES TODAY AT ART INSTITUTE

The Art institute of Chicago today will resume its popular Sunday travel lectures, given in Fullerton hall by Dudley Crafts Watson.

The opening lecture, at 3:45 p. m., will be "The Bay of Naples." It will be illustrated by colored slides and accompanied by symphonic music. The subject next Sunday will be "Rome." The lectures also are given on Friday evenings for members of the institute and their guests.

The fall series of lectures and gallery tours directed by Miss Helen Parker, head of the institute's education department, will open Sept. 29 at 12:15. Her subject will be "How to Enjoy Italian Primitives," given in gallery 45. On Oct. 6, at the same hour, she will speak on the Buckingham Gothic room, in the terrace addition.

The Photographic Society of America will exhibit some 300 photographs in the east wing galleries from Oct. 1 to Oct. 31.

The Goodman theater will open its seventh season Monday, Oct. 4, with the presentation of Raphaelson's "Accent on Youth."

STORM WATCHED OFF LOUISIANA; MOVING INLAND

New Orleans, La., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Weather bureau experts today set a close watch on a moderate tropical disturbance hovering off the Louisiana coast for two days.

Charting the storm was difficult, because of its slow motion and freakish shifting in the gulf.

An afternoon advisory placed the disturbance 175 miles south of middle Louisiana, moving northward or northeastward.

The strongest wind reported from the storm area was 35 to 40 miles an hour.

Only 4 Other Augusts Warmer Than Last One

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Last month was the fifth warmest August on record, exceeded only in the years 1881, 1900, 1918, and 1936, the weather bureau said today. The mean temperature was reported at 78.1 degrees, the same as in 1913, or 3.9 degrees above normal.

Seize Company President on Schoolboys' Charges

William W. Miller Jr., 41 years old, 861 Lincoln avenue, Highland Park, was arrested yesterday at Monroe street and Michigan avenue on charges made by two high school boys, and he will be arraigned in Felony court tomorrow on charges of disorderly conduct and contributing to the delinquency of minors. Miller is president of the E. W. A. Rowles company, 2500 Prairie avenue, dealers in school supplies. His accusers said that while they were waiting on a street corner, Miller invited them to ride in his automobile. Miller denied their charges. He was released on a $1,000 bond.

FREE TEN DAYS, YOUNG PAROLEE TRIES EXTORTION

Asks $10,000 Under Threat to Child.

Rock Island, Ill., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—A young ex-convict, twice released from state institutions, confessed today that he attempted to extort $10,000 from Mrs. Truman Plantz Jr., wife of the president of the Rock Island board of education, by threatening to kidnap and kill her young daughter.

The prisoner is Kenneth Harris, 19 years old, who was freed ten days ago after serving a year at the Vandalia state prison farm for breaking into a law office. Two years ago he was committed to the East Moline State hospital as a mental defective, but he was released a few months later.

Lured Into Trap by Package.

Harris was arrested last night by federal agents and police as he picked up a dummy package in Long View park, where the demanded money was to have been placed. He mailed two threatening notes to Mrs. Plantz, on Sept. 9 and Sept. 15. The first note said:

"If you do not leave $10,000 by the lamp post on the north side of Long View park your youngest daughter will be kidnaped and killed and her body sent back in pieces. This is a warning. Put personal in Argus [a Rock Island newspaper] reading: 'Howard, money is ready.'"

The personal advertisment was inserted in the newspaper as directed and police watched the park. Harris failed to appear. The second note gave more explicit directions for placing the money in the park and police deposited the package.

Four Seize Parolee.

Last night four officers saw Harris walk past the rendezvous several times. Then he stooped to pick up a tin can with the package and was seized.

The youth confessed after several hours of questioning. He said he had no accomplices. United States Commissioner A. A. Klove ordered him held for the federal grand jury on a charge of attempted extortion.

Mrs. Plantz and her youngest daughter, Nancy Lee, 5, have been visiting in Oklahoma for the last few weeks. Mr. Plantz opened the extortion notes and immediately turned them over to police and federal authorities.

OPEN KNIGHTS TEMPLAR'S 81ST STATE MEETING

Drill teams from all parts of the state competed at Winnemac park, Damen and Foster avenues, yesterday at the opening of the 81st annual meeting of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar of Illinois. After the drill 3,000 knights, with bands and drum corps marched in review.

Officers from Canada, Wyoming, Missouri, Michigan, Wisconsin, Iowa and Indiana were guests last night at a banquet in the Edgewater Beach hotel. A band concert of sacred music will be presented on the Edgewater Beach esplanade this afternoon. Business sessions will be held tomorrow.

FARMER KILLED BY BULL.

SMOKE ABATER GIVES A TIMELY WORD ON FIRING

Advises Preparations for Heating Season.

The beginning of the heating season means that the early autumn air will soon be murky with chimney smoke, said Frank A. Chambers, head of the city department of smoke abatement, yesterday. That is, unless the 400,000 fuel users in Chicago are guided by the advice now offered by his department.

Growing public knowledge of the fact that householders must pay for careless firing in higher fuel bills is doing much to abate the smoke evil, Mr. Chalmers said.

Instructions Issued.

Detailed illustrated instructions are now available at the department in the city hall. Householders in residences and small apartment buildings [less than six flats] should ask for Firing Bulletin E, while those in larger buildings should get Firing Bulletin D. There is no charge for this service.

Mr. Chambers also issued the following general instructions:

1.—Carefully select the kind and size of fuel suitable for your heating plant.

2.—Clean boiler or furnace smoke pipe and chimney thoroughly before starting fires and keep them clean during the entire heating season.

Urges Proper Repairs.

3.—Keep everything about the heating plant in good repair and proper working order. Examine grates to see if any sections are burned out or warped.

4.—Control the heat wastes. Cover hot water heater or steam boiler piping in basement, eliminate air leakage in living rooms by having weather strips on doors and windows.

5.—Fire soft coal in large charges. Coke it thoroughly before disturbing fire. Do not poke or slice fires unless necessary. If fires are low, do not shake or remove clinkers until fire is built up.

Keep Temperature Even.

6.—Keep rooms as near uniform temperature as possible. If the fuel bed is allowed to die down, coal is wasted in building it up again.

"Correct firing is unquestionably the most important factor in determining fuel consumption," Mr. Chambers said. "If coal is not correctly burned, a waste of two out of every three tons may result. Draft control by means of the dampers can be done right only if they fit tight and operate easily."

ELLIOTT, VICTIM OF LOOP OFFICE SLAYING, BURIED

Funeral services for former Municipal Judge Frederick W. Elliott, who was shot to death in his office at 77 West Washington street Wednesday, were held yesterday afternoon in his home at 2711 Sunnyside avenue. His body was buried in Mount Olive cemetery with Masonic rites.

George L. Chicharevich, 57 years old, an ex-convict, his slayer, is held without bonds on a murder charge. His indictment will be sought within a week, the authorities announced.

Attorney George A. Mason Sr. stabbed three times by the ex-convict while in his office at 69 West Washington street before the shooting, was reported in an improved condition at St. Luke's hospital yesterday.

Mrs. Mary Danna, mother of the dead boy, weeping as she testified.

Alfred Vivent, 34 years old, 1505 Madison street, whose home made electric thief trap on a trailer automobile caused the death of Salvatore Danna, 5 years old, 202 South Laflin street, Friday, was ordered held on a charge of manslaughter yesterday after an inquest had been continued until Sept. 28.

Vivent, a mechanic, formerly employed in the army air corps, had connected all the metallic parts of his trailer automobile with the electric light current in his apartment. The trailer was kept in an open yard in the rear of the building. The body of the boy was found lying across a charged connecting chain on the trailer.

At the inquest hearing yesterday several playmates of the victim told how they had received shocks by touching the car on previous occasions. Vivent told the police that he did not believe the current strong enough to cause injury. He will be arraigned in the Felony court tomorrow.

8 a. m.-6 p. m. New Hours for Autos at Safety Lanes

Chicago's safety inspection lanes, which 94 per cent of the automobiles in the city already have visited, will be open from 8 a. m. to 6 p. m., beginning tomorrow, instead of from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. This was announced yesterday by Edward J. Gorman, deputy vehicle commissioner. As the current inspection period nears its end about three-fourths of the cars brought to the lanes are being rejected for defects, Mr. Gorman said.

Rahway, N. J., Sept. 18.—(AP)—The engineer of a fast Pennsylvania railroad freight train died at the throttle today as the locomotive, pulling 80 cars, roared at full speed toward Jersey City from Wilmington, Del. The fireman seized the throttle and halted the string of cars at the Rahway tower.

LOTT R. HERRICK, STATE JUSTICE, DEAD AT AGE 65

Body Will Be Taken to His Farmer City Home.

Rochester, Minn., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Justice Lott R. Herrick of the Illinois Supreme court died in an oxygen tent today. Cerebral lesions were said by physicians to have been the immediate cause of death.

Justice Herrick, who was 65 years old, was brought to Rochester last week by special train. He had been seriously ill since Aug. 24.

Mrs. Herrick was at the side of her husband when he died. Also present were their daughter, Mrs. J. G. Thomas of Champaign, Ill., her husband, and Lyle Herrick, brother of the justice.

The body of Justice Herrick will be taken to Farmer City, Ill., his birthplace tonight.

Strong Man of Court.

Regarded as the "go-gettingest" lawyer in central Illinois before his election to the high court June 5, 1933, Herrick was known as one of the court's "strong men."

An able prosecutor and a man who had made his mark as an attorney in civil cases, he probably had wider experience in law practice than any member of the court. However, except for brief service as county judge, he had no previous experience on the bench. He was born in Farmer City, Ill., on Dec. 8, 1871, almost within a stone's throw of his office in that town, where he lived his entire life.

Graduated from University.

After attending school in Farmer City he obtained a liberal arts degree at the University of Illinois in 1892. Two years later he was graduated from the University of Michigan law school, his father's alma mater.

He immediately became associated with his father, George W. Herrick, in the practice of law in Farmer City. Following the death of the elder Herrick in 1904 the young lawyer went into partnership with his brother Wirt.

Resigned from County Court.

Prior to his election to the Supreme court, the only public office Herrick ever sought was that of judge of the De Witt County court. He was elected to that post in 1902, but he resigned upon the death of his father two years later.

Herrick was elected to the Supreme court in an extremely bitter contest. Constant speech making, resort to the radio, and every tactical advantage taken by a candidate for any office were used in the race in which he defeated Judge James S. Baldwin, long a power in Republican circles in Macon county.

Justice Herrick succeeded Justice Frank K. Dunn of Charleston, who had served twenty-six years as a member of the court and was 79 years old.

Heart Attack Is Fatal to Wm. Lang, Retired Actor

William Lang, 77 years old, a retired actor and former booking agent, died suddenly of a heart attack last night in his home at 747 Sedgwick street. After retiring from the stage he operated a booking agency for actors in the loop for many years. A son, living somewhere in Oklahoma, survives.

Miner Who Found Gold Worth $1,000,000 Is Dead

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Al Hilty, who sank the first prospect hole in the 1903 Cleary creek gold rush and took more than $1,000,000 from it, died last night of injuries suffered in an auto accident. He was 72 years old.

HARRIET DEWEY, 64 YEARS IN NEWS WORK, DIES AT 93

Miss Harriet M. Dewey, 93 years old, 10444 Church street, who had been associated with Chicago newspapers 64 years before her retirement five years ago, died yesterday at Little Company of Mary hospital. She was cashier of the Chicago Daily News 55 years.

Miss Dewey was born in Westfield, Mass., and for a time lived on a farm in New York. At the age of 12 her parents brought her to Berlin, Wis. In 1865 she came to Chicago. Her first newspaper employment was on the old Chicago Mail.

Miss Dewey is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Sarah Hanchette of Milwaukee and Mrs. H. W. Murkley of Berlin, Wis., and a brother, H. B. Dewey of Milwaukee. She made her home here with a nephew, E. R. McClennan. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. in the funeral chapel at 63d street and Harvard avenue, followed by cremation.

LEAP FROM AUTO DURING QUARREL KILLS BRIDE, 17

Mrs. Alice McKimson, 17 years old, a bride of last June, died yesterday in St. Joseph's hospital, Joliet, of injuries incurred when she leaped from her husband's automobile Tuesday while it was going forty miles an hour. The husband, Herbert, 21 years old, told Joliet police she had threatened to jump, but he had not taken her seriously.

On Tuesday they had quarreled when he returned to their home at 1507 East 61st street, Chicago, and found dinner unprepared, he told police. Mrs. McKimson said she was going back to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anton Grazis of Rockdale, near Joliet, the husband added, and he started to drive her there. On the way she changed her mind and they started back. The quarreling was resumed and Mrs. McKimson leaped. She did not regain consciousness in the hospital. Police took a statement from McKimson, but did not hold him.

E. C. FELTON DIES; EX-STEEL CHIEF, RAIL DIRECTOR

Haverford, Pa., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Edgar C. Felton, 79, a Pennsylvania railroad director and former president of the Pennsylvania Steel company at Steelton, Pa., died today at his home after a brief illness. He was graduated from Harvard and was a director of the Philadelphia National bank and the General Asphalt company, manager of the Western Saving Fund society and Girard Trust company and at one time was director of the United States employment bureau of Pennsylvania.

DIES OF SLASH WOUND.

Otto Fiedler, 53 years old, 1015 North Drake avenue, a laborer, died yesterday a short time after his mother, 74 years old, found him in bed, his throat cut with a razor blade which lay at his side. He had been worried over finances.

GRANT, BURNHAM PARK PROGRAMS LURE 7,000,000

Music Festival and All-Star Game Lead Events.

More than 7,000,000 persons attended events in Grant park and Burnham park during the summer, George T. Donoghue, Chicago park district general superintendent, announced yesterday.

While the Grant park open air concerts headed the list with an estimated total attendance of 3,379,000, the two TRIBUNE charities events, the Chicagoland Music Festival, Aug. 21, and the All-Star football game, Sept. 1, were the single day events attracting the largest crowds. The Music Festival attendance was listed at 80,000 and the All-Star game at 84,000.

Soldiers' Field in Demand.

Supt. Donoghue said more events were held in Soldiers' field this summer than in any previous year and that the Burnham Park Lagoon theater, in which several events were held this year, is growing in popularity.

Other events held in the downtown lake front area and their estimated attendance were: Military show, two days, 115,000; Polish day, 50,000; circus, one week, 100,000; American Legion Fourth of July celebration, 65,000; German day, 50,000; Carnival of the Lakes, one week, 300,000; C. Y. O. boxing tournament, 65,000; Charter Jubilee horse show, one week, 10,000; American Sokol celebration, 40,000; Italian day, 55,000; Charter Jubilee style show, 16,000; Fire Fighters' contest, 45,000, and miscellaneous events, 60,000.

The records show that 116,398 persons attended the Planetarium, 829,916 the Shedd aquarium, 504,652 the Field museum, and 699,450 the 12th street beach.

Forty thousand persons also took part in softball games, archery matches, and tennis in Grant park.

C. F. W. SCHULTZ, BETTY JAYNES' UNCLE, IS DEAD

C. F. William Schultz, 64 years old, 826 Douglas avenue, Elgin, died yesterday in the Sherman hospital in Elgin following an operation. He was an uncle of Betty Jaynes, young opera star whose real name is Betty Jane Schultz.

Mr. Schultz was for 40 years a druggist in Elgin, retiring in 1929. As young men he and Charles R. Walgreen were fellow clerks for the I. W. Blood Drug company in Chicago.

Mr. Schultz is survived by his wife, Mrs. Jeanette Cree Schultz. Funeral services will be held from the First Universalist church, Elgin, at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Funeral Tuesday for Victim of Plunge in Elevator Shaft

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 10 a. m. from St. Pius church for Michael Padula, 22 years old, 1441 South Paulina street, who was killed Friday when he fell in a freight elevator shaft at the Hamilton Glass company plant, 220 North Sangamon street, where he was employed. Burial will be in Mount Carmel cemetery. The young man is survived by his mother, Florence; a brother, Frank, and a sister, Margaret.

COMMUNITY FUND TO OPEN ANNUAL DRIVE ON OCT. 11

Expect Quota to Exceed Last Year's.

Chicago's seventh annual community fund campaign will be launched formally on Oct. 11, Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman of the drive, announced yesterday. Although the goal of the drive to provide funds for the private welfare agencies of Chicago has not yet been stated, the general belief is that it will exceed the $4,200,000 sought and raised in 1936.

Studies of the organized welfare field in Chicago indicate that the demand for humanitarian service will be materially greater in the coming months than in the past year, Gen. Wood declared.

Cost of Charity Rises.

"In addition," he said, "it has become apparent that the cost of providing these services has increased and is increasing. Rising prices of food, clothing and rentals and increased cost of labor will have a definite effect on the budgets of the agencies.

"On the other hand, the support of the agencies will be somewhat easier on the public at large and individual givers because of the increased employment, the appearance of profits in business and increased wages.

"The response Chicago will make to the coming appeal is indicated by that of the past. During the six years that the Community fund has undertaken to raise almost half of the $7,500,000 expended annually for welfare and charitable purposes, the outcome of the campaigns has never been in doubt.

Quota Met in Bad Years.

"Some of these years marked the lowest depth of business activity and income yet Chicago has always met its quota."

More than 2,500 volunteers will be organized to conduct the campaign, which will follow the same general plan of preceding years. By building a larger and more pliable organization of workers, Gen. Wood hopes to shorten the actual campaign period.

Organization meetings for industrial chairmen and members of the sponsors' committee [which solicits large gifts from wealthy individuals] will be held the last week in September.

The Evanston Community Chest, through which thirteen philanthropic agencies are financed, will start its $150,000 drive Tuesday. For ten days, until Oct. 1, more than 1,000 workers will solicit funds. Joseph A. Rushton is director, with Charles G. Dawes and George B. Dryden as honorary chairmen.

Chicago Plane with 17 Aboard Forced to Land

Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 18.—(AP)—A United Air Lines main liner, with 14 passengers and a crew of three aboard, was forced to land at the municipal airport here late today when one of the two motors failed. The plane was bound from Chicago to Denver. The left motor stopped when the plane was 40 miles west of here, Pilot Edward Eshelman of Chicago said. He turned about and brought the ship in with one motor. Passengers were transferred to another plane.

One Killed, Girl Is Hurt in St. Louis Air Crashes

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 18.—[U. P.]—Frank Whitworth, Asheville, N. C., student airplane mechanic at Parks Air college, near East St. Louis, Ill., was killed when he sought to land his plane and crashed into a telephone pole. At Lambert-St. Louis flying field Miss Margaret Newman, 20, student pilot, of Hartford, Ill., was injured when her plane struck a gas storage tank when she "undershot" the field in attempting to land.

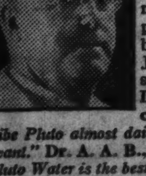
Need A Laxative? DO AS DOCTORS DO

This is what over 50,000 doctors have used and recommended for gentle, thorough action



WHEN you need a laxative, play SAFE and follow the method thousands of doctors use and recommend. For doctors, of all people, know what is best for constipation. Just listen to what they say about Pluto Water: Dr. H. A. O., of Wisconsin, writes: "I prescribe Pluto almost daily, and find it a trusty servant." Dr. A. A. B., of Georgia, advises: "Pluto Water is the best purgative I have found in 40 years." Dr. M. W. J., of Mississippi, says, "I use Pluto in my practice and take it when I need a laxative."

Easy To Take This New Way

Simply mix 1-5 of a glass of Pluto Water in 4-5 of a glass of water. You'll find this new mixture pleasant. There's no overnight waiting. No painful griping. You get quick yet gentle, thorough action.

So when you need a laxative, be sure—take Pluto Water. Your own doctor will tell you there is nothing better than this non-habit forming saline mineral water, bottled at famous French Lick Springs, Indiana. Get Pluto Water from your druggist, and you'll feel worlds better quickly.

A Girl and a Ring

Marybeth McGurk poses through a mammoth ring, set with the largest piece of onyx ever mined, which will be displayed today at convention of the National Association of Credit Jewelers.

Cocktail rings with large square-cut stones and fishtail wedding rings [the platinum kind that need an additional band each wedding anniversary] will be on display today when hundreds of members of the National Association of Credit Jewelers open their annual four day convention at the Hotel Sherman. The autumn vogue for jewels, President Gibson said yesterday, embraces not only pearls and huge colorful stones but yellowgold pendants and lockets of the old days.

HOPE LOST YACHT MAY HAVE GONE ON ACROSS SEA

Boston, Mass., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Growing anxiety for the safety of 20 men aboard the British racing sloop Endeavour I., missing since she lost her tow in a 100 mile gale Monday night, was met tonight with the suggestion that the sloop might have continued across the Atlantic rather than turn back, as did the Convoy.

An intensive three day search by four coast guard vessels over a wide area extending from a point 200 miles east of Nantucket lightship to the Nova Scotia coast produced no trace of Endeavour. Neither have signals been picked up from Endeavour's low powered radio.

The veteran Capt. Ludwig Schlimbach of Hamburg, former north German Lloyd skipper who has crossed the Atlantic five times in small sailboats, said he would not be surprised if within 10 days Endeavour was reported coming up the coast on the other side.

"On the other hand," he added, "I would not be surprised if you never heard of her again." He pointed out that Endeavour's hull was built for speed rather than to withstand the pounding of stormy seas.

1776 MEMORIAL CONTRACT TO BE LET TOMORROW

The contract for the erection in Grant park of an eighteen foot granite and bronze monument to three revolutionary war heroes—George Washington, Robert Morris, and Haym Salomon—will be awarded tomorrow to Lorado Taft associates. This was announced yesterday by Corporation Councel Hodes, who is a director of the Patriotic Foundation of Chicago. Mr. Hodes said that the foundation had raised $40,000 of the $55,000 cost of the memorial by popular subscription. Construction, he said, will begin immediately and be completed in nine months.

GUNMEN PERIL 3; SEIZE $100. Two gunmen yesterday entered the offices of the Apex Iron and Metal company, 2204 Laflin street, forced three employés to lie on the floor, and took a cash box containing $100 from a safe.

Apartment Rentals Will Rise Next May, President of Real Estate Board Predicts

HOME SHORTAGE CLOSE AT HAND, LORISH ASSERTS

All October Rents to Be Slightly Advanced.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Chicago, at present enjoying the lowest rent schedule of any large American city as compared with the 1923-'25 high level, faces a slight increase in rentals on Oct. 1 and a stiff advance next May. The long heralded housing shortage, now close at hand, actually will be with us by next May and then it will be the tenants who boost the rents by bidding against each other for desirable locations. Already there is a scarcity of the popular sized small suites in many desirable locations.

John R. Scott.

Predicts Sharp Advance.

This was disclosed yesterday by officials of various city and suburban real estate boards, who outlined present residential conditions and made predictions about next year.

"Chicago rents, which are the lowest of any major city in the country, are expected to make a sharp advance during the coming year," said Fred M. Lorish, president of the Chicago Real Estate board.

"The United States bureau of labor's statistics show Chicago rents to be about 57 per cent of normal, considering 1923-'25 as 100 per cent.

"There are more families than housing units, thereby creating a technical shortage. The absorption of vacancies in the last four years has followed a startling path. From an occupancy ratio of 74.7 in March, 1933, the net occupancy ratio has risen today to 98.1 per cent.

Sees Economic Shortage.

"I'm of the opinion that when occupancy reaches 98.5 per cent, which should be by May 1, 1938, we will then have an economic shortage and the result will be a substantial increase in residential rentals.

"In 1936 there were built in corporate Chicago only 852 dwelling units and since 1931 there has been built a total of 1,862 residential units.

"There were 43,876 marriages in Cook county in 1936. Chicago normally would absorb about 22,000 new homes per annum. So it is apparent that a serious economic shortage of housing space may be reached almost any time."

Meanwhile, Chicago's secondary leasing and moving day, Oct. 1, is near at hand, with practically every apartment tenant whose lease expires on that date facing an advance.

Boost October Rents.

In a majority of instances the rent boost has been in the neighborhood of 10 per cent and brings the October rates up to the level of tenants who had their rent raised last May.

In instances where buildings are still 100 per cent occupied despite the May 1 advance the October rent rate has been pushed still higher than the May schedule.

In other words, landlords who boosted rents last May and then discovered that several families moved out are going to raise the October rents up to the May level. If, on the other hand, the May 1 advance failed to make any tenants move, and the building still is 100 per cent occupied, those occupants whose leases expire on Oct. 1 have in most instances had their rent pushed up above the May 1 schedule.

Will Exceed May Rentals.

On the south side, where, according to John R. Scott, president of the South Side Renting Men's association, the occupancy has climbed to the record figure of 99½ per cent, which means the situation is startlingly close to an actual shortage, the tenants whose leases expire on Oct. 1 will practically all pay higher rentals than the May 1 schedule.

"With only one-half of one per cent of available apartments vacant we are pretty close to a real shortage," Scott said. "There has been no concentrated action in raising October rents; some have been leveled off with the May 1 schedule, but most of them have had a 10 per cent rise over May 1.

"But next May we will see a real rise. By that time there will be a real shortage and tenants themselves will boost rents by bidding against each other for the desirable places.

Asserts Rents Still Low.

"Even with the October advance Chicago rentals will not be more than 60 per cent of the 1923-'25 level, and still will be the lowest in the United States."

On the north side general occupancy is about 98½ per cent with an actual shortage in small suites, according to Paul E. Olson, vice president of the North Side Real Estate board. October rentals have been advanced to correspond to the May schedule except in cases where buildings still are 100 per cent occupied despite the May boost; in such instances the October rate will be higher than that of May.

Fred M. Thuerk, president of the West Side Real Estate board, said occupancy had climbed to 98 per cent, but that October rents had been raised only to the level of last May.

Suburban Rents Climb.

Suburban realty bodies also reported high occupancies and rising rents. Homer Bundy, president of the Oak Park Real Estate board, said the slight decline in occupancy last spring, when the May 1 rent boosts went into effect, had been absorbed.

"We're going into the fall market with as near 100 per cent occupancy as it is possible to get," he said. "But October rent advances will be mostly to level off schedules with those of last May, which were about 10 per cent higher."

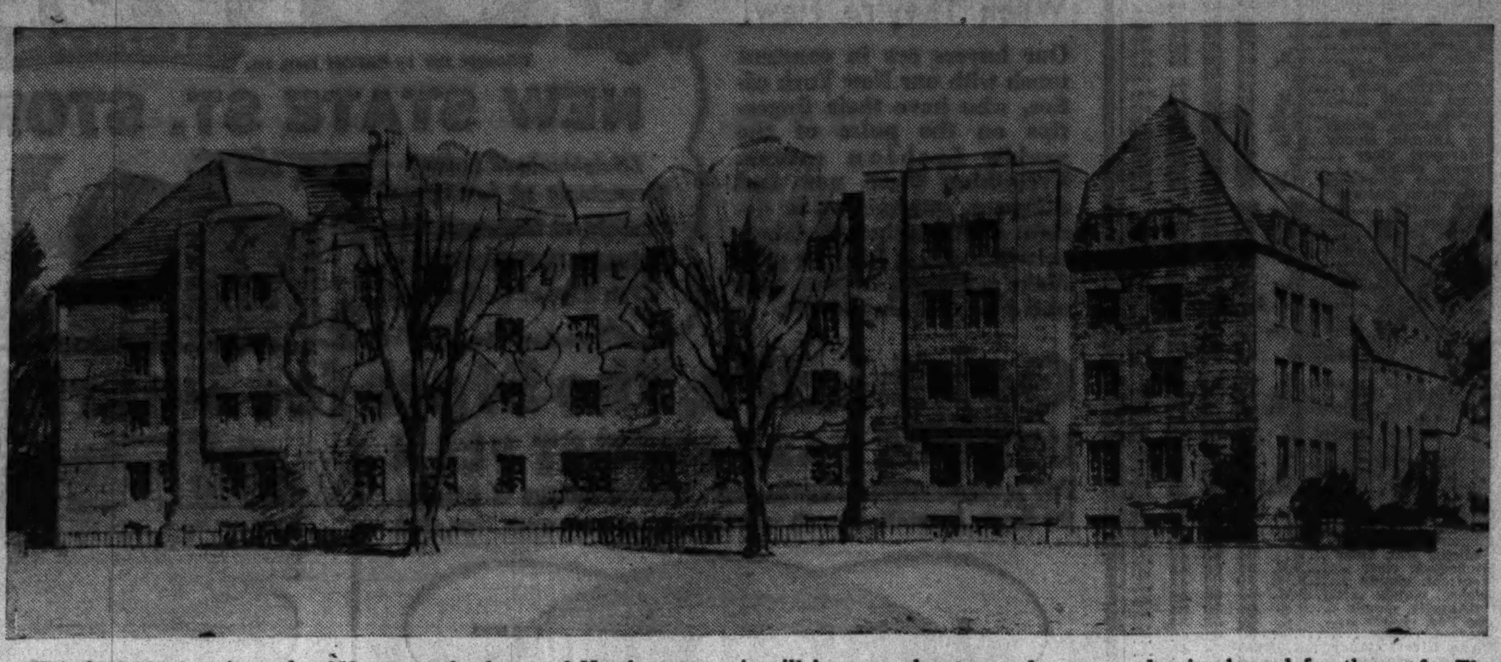
Stewart B. Matthews, president of the Evanston-North Shore Real Estate board, also said suburban October rents north of Chicago mostly had been raised merely to the May 1 level. He said a shortage in two to four room suites exists, however, and October tenants in those had had their rents advanced 5 per cent. Occupancy, he said, now was approximately 98½ per cent and expected rapidly to reach 100 per cent.

Predict Little Moving.

According to Walter R. Drennan, chairman of the renting and management division of the Chicago Real Estate board, the average October raises in rents have been equal to those of May and in a few cases higher. He said that only approximately 40 per cent of the year's leases begin on Oct. 1 and about 60 per cent in May.

Heads of all real estate boards agreed that there will be little moving on Oct. 1. Tenants, it was pointed out, who tried to shop around when they found their rents were raised, discovered comparable living quarters were hard to find at the same rates and decided to stay and pay the advances.

For Women Freshmen at Northwestern



This $600,000 dormitory for 250 women freshmen of Northwestern university will be erected on the women's quadrangle, bounded by University place, Emerson street, Orrington avenue and Sherman avenue, in Evanston. The new unit will front north on Emerson street. It will have an elevator, and a sun garden is planned for the roof. The basement will house the dining room. The social rooms and library will be on the first floor. Living quarters will be on the second, third and fourth floors. James Gamble Rogers is architect.

PUBLIC TALKS WILL OPEN "Y" REALTY COURSES

A series of public lectures will feature the opening of the fall real estate courses at the evening school of commerce of Central Y. M. C. A. college, 19 South La Salle street, on Tuesday and Thursday evenings of this week, Sept. 21 and 23.

James C. Downs Jr., president of Real Estate Statistics, Inc., will lecture on "Market Analysis as the Basis of Money Making in Real Estate" at 6 p. m. on Tuesday. At 7:45 p. m. Walter R. Kuehnle of Walter Kuehnle Associates, will lecture before the real estate appraisals class on "Correct Methods of Appraising Real Estate."

On Thursday evening at 6 o'clock Joseph B. Ford, vice president of the Chicago Real Estate board, will talk on "The Outlook in Real Estate for 1938," as guest speaker at the opening session of the class in real estate practice of which Percy E. Wagner of the Federal Housing administration, is the instructor.

The final lecture of the series will be by Calvin M. George of the law firm of Harmon & George, on the same evening at 7:45 o'clock. His lecture on "Important Trends in Real Property Law" will launch the course in real property law.

Central Scientific Co. to Build $70,000 Addition

Ground was broken yesterday for a $70,000 three story addition to the Ravenswood plant of the Central Scientific company at 1700 Irving Park boulevard. According to C. P. McConnell, chairman of the board, the new structure, designed by J. Lisle Kincaid, head of the company's architectural staff, will be completed in three months. The Central Scientific company, founded by the late A. Howard McConnell, brother of C. P. McConnell, formerly was at Lake Shore drive and Ohio street.

Bartlett Reports Program of 100 Homes Nearly Done

With seventy-two homes completed, under construction, or contracted for, the Robert Bartlett Realty company yesterday announced that only 28 more are required to round out the program of 100 houses by Christmas for its Palos Heights development at Harlem avenue and 123d street. Six of the homes under construction were started early in August. Contracts were let for ten more during the last week. Fourteen of this group already have been sold.

Steel Concern Buys One Story Cicero Warehouse

Wheelock, Lovejoy & Co., Inc., who warehouse and sell alloy steel, yesterday purchased from the Corey Steel company the one story warehouse building at 1834 South 54th avenue, Cicero. According to Chandler & Montague, brokers for all parties, $60,000 was paid.

LEASE HOWARD STREET CORNER.

Robert Appelbaum and Harold Miller, who operate under the trade name of the Batt Style Shop, leased for five years the store at the northwest corner of Howard and Marshfield, beginning Sept. 1. The E. B. Woolf Realty company was the only broker. The Howard Marshfield Building corporation was lessor.

MERGE TWO OLD TIME REAL ESTATE FIRMS, KRUMRINE AND SNOW

Two of the oldest real estate firms in Chicago, both dating back nearly three-quarters of a century, were merged yesterday when E. G. Krumrine & Co. purchased the business of Edgar M. Snow & Co.

Edgar M. Snow, former president of the Chicago Real Estate board, who died recently, started in the real estate and mortgage business in 1873 with James H. Keeler. In 1876 he went with Henry C. Morey, and in 1881 they became partners. In 1884 the firm of Snow & Dickinson was formed, and continued until 1892, at which time the firm of Edgar M. Snow & Co. began business under that name.

Henry L. Hill started in the real estate and mortgage business in 1865. At Hill's death Russell D. Hill succeeded to the business, operating under the name of R. D. Hill & Co., with which firm Earle G. Krumrine became associated in 1900. On the death of Russell D. Hill Mr. Krumrine took over the business and operated under the name of E. G. Krumrine & Co.

A. Stanley Brock, formerly of Edgar M. Snow & Co., will be associated with the E. G. Krumrine & Co. organization. The offices of Edgar M. Snow & Co. at 69 West Washington street will be moved to the Krumrine offices at 29 South La Salle street.

Report Burnham Building Is Now 90 Pct. Occupied

George S. Lurie of the George S. Lurie company, and president of the Court Building corporation, owner of the Burnham building, reports that structure now 90 per cent rented. Many state and county offices have moved there recently. Among them are Attorney General Kerner, James M. Slattery, commerce commission chairman; State Treasurer Martin, the county superintendent of schools and the Cook County Welfare department.

At the Realty Boards

Lyndon H. Lesch, in charge of management and loans at the business office of the University of Chicago, will address members of the Oak Park Real Estate board at the first fall session of that organization tomorrow noon at the Oak Manor hotel, in Oak Park. His subject will be "Real Estate Trends and What the Future Holds Forth, as Seen by the University of Chicago."

◆

Membership in the Evanston-North Shore Real Estate board has reached the highest mark in the history of the organization, according to Elmer Olson, secretary. Forty-three new members have been admitted since the first of the year, he said, and it is anticipating that fifty more will join by the end of the year.

TWO BOND ISSUE OWNERS GET MORE IN DIVIDENDS

With improving real estate conditions, holders of real estate bond issues on two properties reorganized through the American Bond and Mortgage company committee are getting larger dividend checks than formally, it was announced yesterday.

The annual dividend on the Sunny Court apartments, 7822 Laflin avenue, being paid to holders of record Aug. 23, is $3, as compared with $2 for 1936. Stockholders in the Patricia Manor, Evanston, now operated as the Hinman Avenue Building corporation, are receiving $3, or fifty cents more than the 1936 dividend.

Rental income from the latter, according to Dayton Keith, chairman of the committee, was $1,963, or 8.8 per cent, more than during the previous year. The property was operated at full occupancy for the year with no losses through unpaid rentals. The Sunny Court rentals increased $955, or 5.7 per cent over the previous year, with the building fully rented for the third consecutive year.

The trustees, who are Keith, Lucius Teter and C. S. Tuttle, announced appointment of the Continental Management corporation to manage the property, succeeding the Central bureau, a management division of the committee which has been dissolved.

LEWIS TO HAVE CLASSES IN AIR CONDITIONING

Courses in air conditioning, refrigeration, Diesel engineering, and welding will be offered evening students at Lewis institute this fall, according to V. L. Sherman, acting head of the department of mechanical engineering. Beginning Monday, Sept. 27, temperature control and refrigeration classes for engineers and men of some experience in allied fields will start, with William Bodinus and Julius Wolf in charge.

Diesel engineering will be offered in both elementary and advanced courses on Tuesday and Thursday evenings. Welding also will be taught classes on the same evenings, with Arthur Turner in charge.

Contracts Awarded

Contracts awarded in Chicago during the week of Sept. 10 to 16, according to figures supplied by the F. W. Dodge corporation, totaled 28, with a combined cost of $757,975. For the corresponding week last year there were 27 contracts totaling $783,600. So far this year the total cost of contracts is $43,231,283, compared with $33,973,209 for the same period last year.

ANNOUNCE PLANS FOR $600,000 N. W. DORMITORY

Ground Will Be Broken in Two Weeks.

Ground will be broken within the next two weeks for a $600,000 freshmen women's dormitory for Northwestern university, in Evanston, President Walter Dill Scott announced yesterday. It will house 250 women, almost double the number now accommodated in Willard hall, one of the university's oldest structures, now used as living quarters for first year women students.

Frances E. Willard.

The new building, designed by James Gamble Rogers, former Chicagoan, will complete the women's quadrangle in the block bounded by University place, Emerson street, Orrington avenue, and Sherman avenue.

Raze Men's Dormitory.

Emerson hall, the men's dormitory which has been located on the northwestern end of the site, facing Emerson street, is being razed to make way for the new structure.

According to Harry L. Wells, business manager of the university, the new building, which has been approved by the board of trustees, will be ready for occupancy next September. It will be of modern Gothic design, following the pattern of the other buildings on the quadrangle, which were built in 1927 of Indiana limestone.

This will be the third nonsorority building on the two women's quadrangles, which include a total of nineteen sorority houses, housing approximately 450 upper class women students. The two upper class dormitories on the east quadrangle, Roger house, and Hobart house, accommodate 75 students.

May Wreck Willard Hall.

With the completion of the new building, there will be a total of 22 sorority houses and dormitories on the two quadrangles.

Willard hall, the present freshmen women's dormitory, will be dismantled or used temporarily for class rooms. The trustees will decide this later. Willard hall originally housed the Evanston College for Ladies, the cornerstone being laid on July 4, 1871. The college was united with Northwestern university in 1873.

Frances E. Willard, graduate of Northern Female college, whose charter was taken over by the Evanston College for Ladies, was president of the latter.

Pay Honor to Miss Willard.

The large new building, now known as Willard hall, was completed in 1873. Up to 1900 the building was called "Women's Hall," but in that year, at the request of the students living there, it was renamed Willard hall in honor of Miss Willard.

When work starts on the new dormitory three building projects of the university and affiliated institutions will be in progress. A project to house five fraternities on the north end of the men's quadrangles soon will be completed. On the Chicago campus, the Wesley Memorial hospital is under construction.

Eighth Shoe Shop in Block to Be Opened Tomorrow

The eighth shoe store in the Madison street block between Wabash and Madison, will be opened tomorrow, The Treadeasy Shoe Shop, leased and remodeled space at 60 East Madison, in the Kesner building.

Start Construction of Row House Project in Evanston

With six of the eight "town house" group just north of the northwest corner of Euclid avenue and East 77th street, already sold, the Fred J. Walsh company has started construction on a duplicate of this project in Evanston. It is being built on the west side of Wesley avenue, between Mulford and Kirk streets, from plans by Martin H. Braun, who designed the south side group.

Like the Chicago project the suburban building will contain eight self-contained two story houses side by side and separated by fire walls. Each house has its own yard, its own heating plant, and its own mortgage.

Elaboration of Eastern Plan.

It is an elaboration of the Philadelphia and Baltimore custom of building long rows of houses side by side, except that in the east there is seldom any variety in design, merely block after block of buildings with the same front elevation.

Six of the eight row houses will have five rooms and the remaining two will have six rooms each. A feature of their interiors will be the elimination of woodwork around the doors and windows. All radiators will be concealed.

Six Houses are Sold.

The eight houses will be heated by eight gas fired hot water heating systems. Lighting will be indirect. Every house will have a recreation room in the basement finished in knotty pine.

The Chicago "town house" group on Euclid near 77th is now nearing completion. The following Chicagoans have purchased home units in it: George J. Robson, Lyle M. Cook, Rollin A. Wilson, Dr. J. W. Glynn, James McKeough, and Robert N. Meyer.

LARGE INDIANA FARM TRADED FOR IRVING PARK BLVD. HOTEL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

One of Indiana's large farms was traded yesterday for a Chicago apartment hotel. The three story fireproof Irving Park hotel, 4019-27 Irving Park boulevard, containing forty-four two room furnished suites and six stores, was sold to the Indiana Farms, Inc., for $125,000, subject to a $40,000 mortgage.

Title was conveyed by Reginald S. Altman, nominee for the First United Finance corporation. The property has a frontage on Irving Park boulevard of 123 feet and a depth of 124 feet.

The Indiana Farms gave in exchange the 1,150 acre Ridgebrook farm, west of and adjoining Fort Wayne, Ind., on route 24, once owned by former Gov. McCray of Indiana. J. C. Wilkinson & Co., Inc., represented the First United Finance corporation, and Frankenstein & Co. acted for Indiana Farms.

NORTH SHORE FIRM REPORTS RECORD MONTH

Reporting the most activity for one month since the boom days prior to 1929, W. G. Ruggles & Co. of Evanston announced that during August twenty-one properties were sold along the north shore.

O. H. Armstrong, sales manager of the Ruggles firm, said this activity was reminiscent of 1925, when the real estate organization he was then with completed a sale a day, which at that time was considered exceptional selling.

Among last month's transactions by the Ruggles firm was the French provincial residence at 320 Lucust road, Winnetka, sold at a price reported to have been more than $22,000. The price range of these twenty-one sales was from $5,000 for a five room brick bungalow to $30,000 for a nine room, three bath colonial residence.

The twenty-one transactions included fifteen houses, two newly constructed homes, a two flat building, and three vacant lots.

Expect to Complete Annex to Klaus Store on Oct. 1

Completion about Oct. 1 is scheduled for an addition to the Klaus department store at 2857-65 Milwaukee avenue, which will nearly double the present selling space and include a remodeled store front over the old building and the annex. The enlarged store will front 115 feet on Milwaukee avenue with a depth of 125 feet to the alley. Edward P. Steinberg is architect.

100,000 CZECHS VISIT LIBERATOR MASARYK'S BIER

Throngs Pour Into Prague on 3 Day Pilgrimage.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 18.—A nation reborn to independence after 300 years under the rule of alien Hapsburg emperors today paid homage to the man to whom it owed its freedom—Thomas Garrigue Masaryk The liberator and first president of Czechoslovakia died last Tuesday. He was 87 years old.

The homage of this proud little democracy in the heart of Europe is being expressed in the form of a pilgrimage of rich and poor past Dr. Masaryk's coffin in the imperial castle above Prague. The pilgrimage will last three days and two nights.

Wait for Hours at Gates.

At 6 o'clock this morning when Prague usually is stirring, the city itself seemed almost deserted. At the railroad station the bronze monument of Dr. Masaryk was draped with crêpe and banked with flowers. Travelers stopped, doffing their hats or caps in silence. Women who did not frankly weep had eyes brimming with tears. In the silent streets were black flags.

Those who usually were on the streets early were up at the castle waiting for the gates to open so they could start filing past Dr. Masaryk's coffin.

In the crowds waiting patiently for four and five hours in a line four miles long peasant women, with bright kerchiefs tied under their chins, stood beside the elegant matrons who had carefully chosen their mourning outfits.

Children Pay Tribute.

Peasants and workers in their best garb stood in line with workers and with wealthy burghers in top hats and striped trousers. The Sokols, school children and Scout organizations turned up in regular formations.

The highest officers of the Czech army and the chief of the French military mission, Gen. Faucher, had kept the death watch with bare sabers all night. They were relieved by twelve officers and soldiers of the Czech legion.

At noon whistles shrieked and all activity stopped for two minutes. To night fires atop the black cenotaph in the market, with the silver letters T. G. M., were burning brightly against a moonlit sky. The streets were packed with silent mourners.

Urge Visitors to Stay Away.

So many people are pouring into Prague that the authorities appealed to the population to remain in their home cities and take part in local ceremonies there.

Tuesday the body will be taken back to Masaryk's Castle Lany and laid to rest in a simple village cemetery beside his American born wife.

FILIPINO SHOT; ANOTHER HELD.

The Chicago avenue police yesterday were holding Benjamin Cortez, a Filipino, on a charge of shooting Marcel Pasqual, 27 years old, also a Filipino, in the arm during a quarrel in Cortez' room at 201 West Hill street.

MAYOR WILL GET PLANS FOR LAKE FLOOR AIRPORT

A plan to construct a huge airport on the floor of Lake Michigan will be submitted to Mayor Kelly this week by Ralph R. Leffler, a structural engineer employed by the Chicago sanitary district.

The airport would be located in a triangular area, covering approximately two and one-quarter square miles, in the lake from 23d to 41st streets. It would be enclosed by dikes, and the water would be pumped out. The floor of the proposed airport would be about 30 feet below lake level.

Mr. Leffler said the cost of such an air field would be approximately $20,000,000, but would give Chicago one of the finest plane depots in the world. Runways would be from one to two miles long and would accommodate 50-ton airplanes.

Woman and 8 Men Fined $100 on Gambling Charges

Eight men and a woman arrested by the Willow Springs county highway police in raids three weeks ago pleaded guilty yesterday to charges of possessing slot machines and each was fined $100 and costs by Police Magistrate Dewey Arrigoni in North Riverside. The woman fined was Mrs. Charles Eiseler, owner of a tavern at 5940 West 111th street in Worth township. The other defendants operate taverns and restaurants in Willow Springs, Cicero, Lemont, and Palos townships.

REPORT EDWARD AND WALLY ARE COMING TO U. S.

Likely to Take House Near Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 18.—(AP)—The Baltimore News-Post says it learned from an "authoritative source" today that the duke and duchess of Windsor are coming to the United States this fall, in either October or November.

The paper said the couple "expect to take up their residence somewhere near Baltimore, with strong probability that it will be the fashionable Green Spring Valley neighborhood.

Although the news is clouded with mystery and is denied whenever it is broached to any one who has the slightest connection with either the British government or the former Baltimore girl, nevertheless there is little doubt the rumored visit will take place," the paper said.

Couple Back in Vienna.

VIENNA, Austria, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The duke and duchess of Windsor returned today from their Czechoslovakian visit and prepared for a brief stay here before going on to Paris where the duchess plans to do some shopping. They have been at Nicholsburg, Czechoslovakia, on a hunting trip.

Arriving in Vienna at noon, the couple lunched in a hotel and then went to the Enzefeld château of the Baroness Rothschild, a close friend. It was at this château that Windsor spent his unhappy pre-marriage days.

Plan to Visit Paris.

In about five days, it was learned, the Windsors intend to proceed to Paris, where they will stay about two weeks in a hotel—not with friends.

Afterward, their plans are indefinite but it is known that the duke would like to spend part of the winter in tyrol.

DRUM TO SPEAK AT FT. SHERIDAN REUNION DINNER

Maj. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, commander of the Sixth Corps area, will be the principal speaker at a banquet ending the first reunion in twenty years of the Fort Sheridan association, on Oct. 8 and 9 at the Hotel Sherman. Brig. Gen. James A. Ryan, retired, chairman of the reunion committee, has sent 7,500 invitations to members of the association, which comprises all men who attended the two officers' training camps at Fort Sheridan in 1917. The reunion program will include visits to the Museum of Science and Industry in Jackson park and the Union stock yards on Oct. 8. Saturday, Oct. 9, will be Fort Sheridan day, and there will be a review, mess, air show, and a visit to the old training grounds at Fort Sheridan.

Alarm Clock and Lights Deceive Hens; More Eggs

Sterling, Ill., Sept. 18.—(AP)—George F. Miller reported today he gets more eggs from the 650 pullets on his farm since he started using an alarm clock. Every morning at 4 a. m. it jangles and the lights go on in the poultry house, an hour or more before dawn.

With the Acoustical Labyrinth, the ordinary "earmarks" of radio—the "booming" vibrations from the rear of the speaker—are eliminated not merely minimized. The deep fundamental tones which produce true bass response are heard in full value at every volume.

So revolutionary is this exclusive Stromberg-Carlson development that it makes obsolete any radio in a cabinet large enough to contain a Labyrinth and not having one.

In addition the new Stromberg-Carlsons have a style and elegance of cabinetry that makes them a distinct addition to the furnishings of the planned home. See your dealer before you buy and be surprised. "There is Nothing Finer than a Stromberg-Carlson."

Persian Rug Market Prices Are Up!
Mandel's Persian Rug Prices Are Down!!

JUST 17! SPECIALLY PRICED FOR THE CUSTOMER'S CHOICE SALES! HANDMADE

Sarouks and Kirmans In Palatial Rug Sizes!

10x14 TO 10.9x17.8 CARPETS THAT WOULD HAVE BEEN "BUYS" AT $1,000 AND MORE A FEW YEARS AGO . . . AND HAVE ADVANCED RAPIDLY!

It's little short of a miracle to get palatial size Persian rugs at this price—with the present market conditions. These are extra large rugs . . . and usually sell for about two to three times as much. So many rooms today require these sizes. Sumptuous hand-woven Sarouks and Kirmans as beautiful as rare tapestries, done slowly and lovingly in the hills of Persia, where time means nothing, and weavers take years. Like all Mandel Persian rugs . . . these are masterpieces! And, as always, Mandel's offers the BEST at thrilling savings! Not all sizes in each weave.

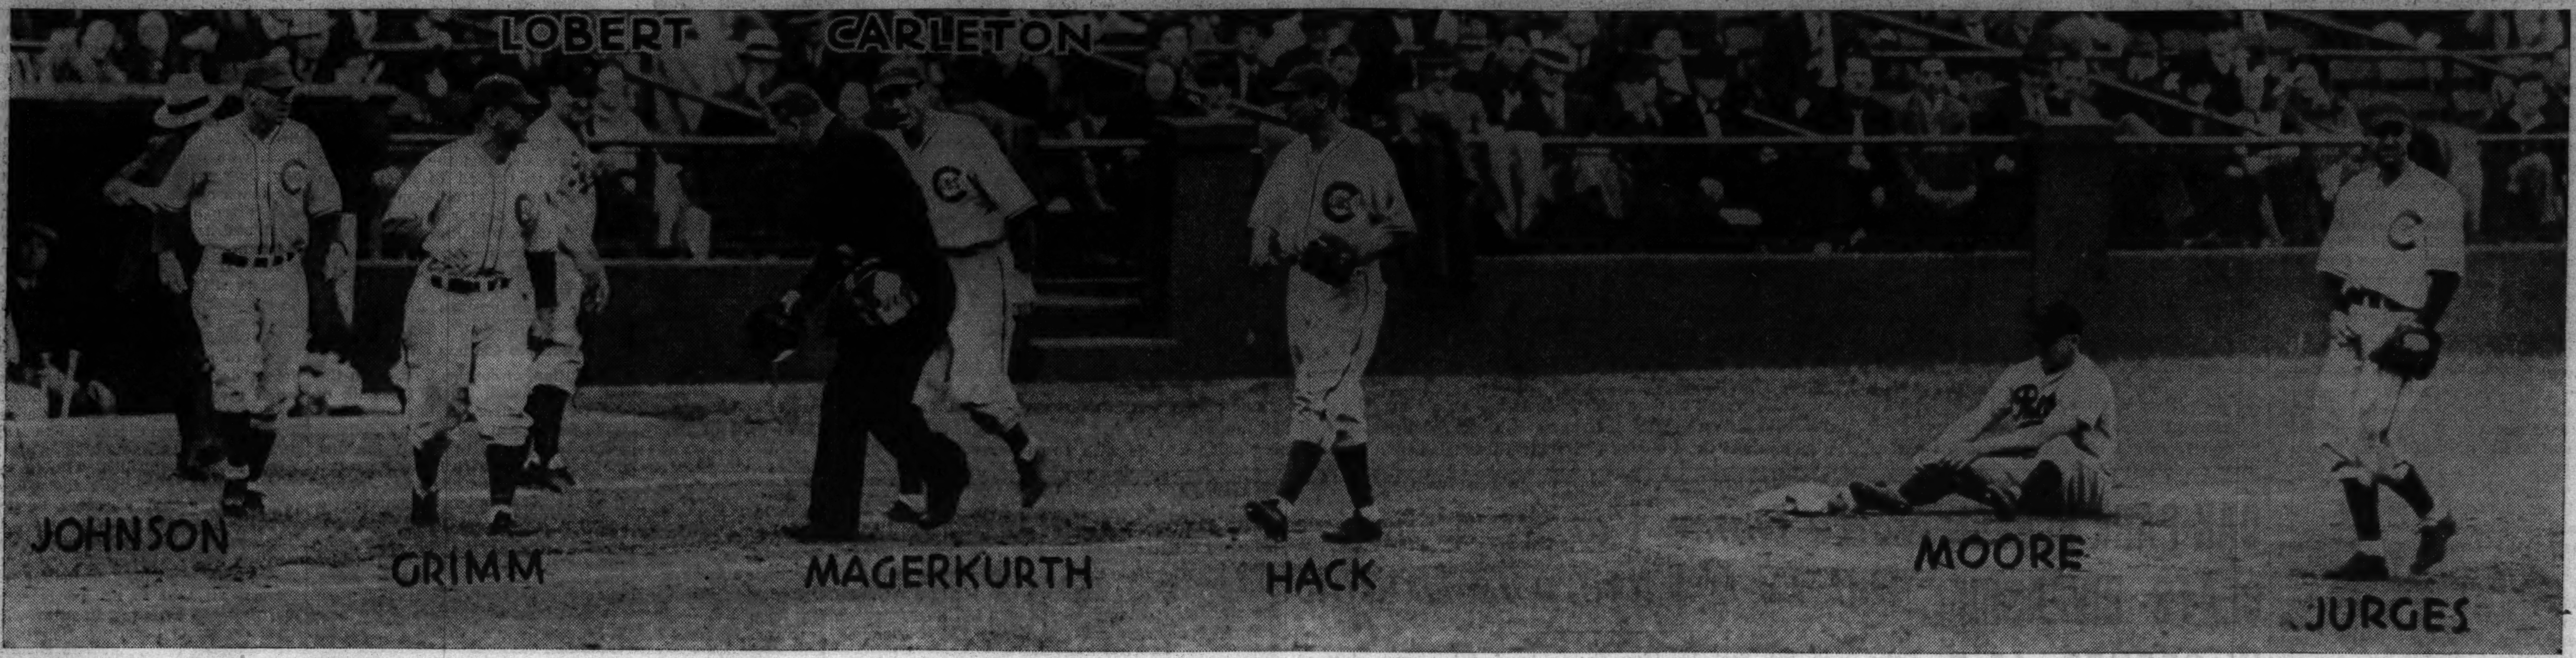
SEPTEMBER 19, 1937. A **

SOX LOSE TWO; CUBS DEFEAT PHILS, 9 TO 3

REAPING TAKES HAWTHORNE SPRINT HANDICAP; DOUBLE B. 2D

SOMETHING TO HOLLER ABOUT EVEN THOUGH GIANTS' LEAD IS REDUCED



The Cubs argued with Umpire George Magerkurth after he called Outfielder Johnny Moore of the Phillies safe at third base in the fourth inning of yesterday's game, which the north siders won, 9 to 3. Moore, who had beaten out a hit, raced to third on Catcher Earl Grace's single and the Cubs thought they had accomplished the putout. It did not make much difference, for Carleton got the next two batters to retire the side. The victory enabled the Cubs to reduce the New York Giants' lead to two and one-half games. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

SAHRI II. RUNS 7TH; WINNER RETURNS $20.20

BY FRENCH LANE.

Sahri II., the mare from South America which won the $15,000 Hawthorne Gold Cup a week ago to start every racegoer's tongue in the country wagging, finished seventh—third from last—in the $2,500 Hawthorne handicap sprint yesterday afternoon.

The money she burned up for those in the crowd of 16,000 who had watched her run in both stake races was sufficient to start a good sized bonfire.

There was an excuse, of course. She dropped back when saving ground on the turn. Then she failed to rally. When Jocky Paul Ryan brought her back to be unsaddled she was bleeding slightly from the nostrils, indicating she had suffered a mild hemorrhage. Late last night she was reported fit and ready for her next engagement.

Reaping Returns $20.20.

Reaping, at $20.20, was the winner. He finished in a manner that had every customer at the track standing and cheering. In the early stages it was Reaping instead of Sahri II. that was running back in seventh place. On the turn into the stretch he was fifth. Transmutable was in front, Double B was running second, Silverette, the favorite, was third, and Black River was running fourth.

Then it was that Reaping started to run around horses and in between horses. He was hitting 'em hard in this final stage of the battle. Those in front of him could not deny his challenge.

Forty strides from the line of finish he dashed into the lead. Jocky Jack Richards did not find it necessary to apply the whip. The big brown son of Sickle-Duchess Lace was in a running mood. He drew out into a lead of three-quarters of a length by the time the finish line had been reached. Double B moved up with him and also conquered Transmutable to take second money by a length and a half.

The race, which shared top honors at Hawthorne with the Hawthorne Juvenile handicap, had a gross value of $3,160. The prize picked up by Reaping for his owner, Mrs. A. M. Creech, was $2,225.

Reaping Keeps Busy.

Snead Leads with 142 in Western Open

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., Sept. 18.—Samuel Snead, the White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., youth who leaped from the freshman league to the post graduate section of professional golf in one semester, stayed at the head of the class today as the 37th annual open tournament on the Canterbury club's campus reached the midterm mark. Brother Snead's paper for the first 36 holes of the 72 hole examination was 142, two under par. He could produce no such a plus theme as his first round 68 of yesterday, but his 74 was satisfactory enough to insure him of a one stroke advantage over the field of 145 pros and amateurs battling for the title.

It took Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill., who matriculated under almost the same auspices as Snead to cling to the leader's heels. Smith the gentleman and scholar of the class, turned in a paper of 71 in the bright of the morning to set himself at 143.

Chicagoans in Front Seats.

When the commencement exercises are concluded with tomorrow's 36 holes, the folks from Chicago may once more sit back and beam over the fact that our town produces the brightest boys in the game. They have been smart enough to win the last three gold medals in the western, and one of them may well take a bow come sundown tomorrow.

There is Ralph Guldahl, the national open champion, who spelled down the class with a final round of 64 in last year's western at Davenport. Master Guldahl is the boy who was going to drop out of school last year until he won the medal and decided to stay around. Tonight Ralph is tied at 145 with another kid from our street, Ky Laffoon of Northmoor who also brings home good report cards. A shot back of them at 146 is Dick Metz of the Mill Road Farm course, sitting in the same row with Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y. at 146. And Harry Cooper, the lad who has maintained a rating of nigh 100% in all his studies, is in his favorite seat by dint of 147.

All of the young hopefuls who did not submit papers of 161 or better flunked out, for that proved to be the qualifying limit for the final 64 and ties.

Rain is Forecast.

The second section of the current quiz was conducted under peculiar weather conditions native to Canterbury. The students fought a whipping south wind as well as the course's approximate 7,000 yards for most of the day. In midafternoon, clouds mobilized above, and a glowering ceiling frowned upon the late finishers. The forecast for tomorrow indicates the likelihood of showers for the morning round.

Sneed three putted the first green, but regained that with a 20 footer at the short third. He then overshot the fourth and fifth carpets and reached the turn in 39, three over par. He had retrieved all of this by the time he stood on the 15th tee. His second to the 12th pin was dead, he droped a 6 footer at the next hole, and then stuck one up a foot off the

4 YANK HOMERS BEAT SOX, 12-8; TAKE 2D, 4 TO 0

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 18.—The White Sox today tangled in two contrasting types of games with the New York Yanks, a slugging bee, which they lost, 12 to 8, and a pitchers' battle, which they also dropped, 4 to 0.

There were six Yankee homers during the afternoon's business devoted to the anti-climax entertainment of 24,010 clients still willing to pay to watch Joe McCarthy's boys play with nothing on the line.

The Yankee homer list in the first game was as follow: Frank Crosetti, No. 11, off Lee in first inning. Lou Gehrig, No. 35, off Lee with one on in first inning. Myril Hoag, No. 3, off Lee with two on in seventh, which switched a 7 to 5 Sox lead into an 8 to 7 Yankee lead. Bill Dickey, No. 27, off Clint Brown with two on in the eighth.

Two More in Second.

The homers in the second game were knocked off Bill Dietrich at the start of the eighth just after Johnny Whitehead had concluded a swell performance to make way for a pinch batsman. The first of these was a 425 footer by Joe Di Maggio, his 43d, and the other was Gehrig's No. 36, which wouldn't have been a homer in any other American League park, although it would have been a well smacked extra baser in any locale.

The double licking concluded the 1937 relations of the two teams, giving the Yanks a 13 to 9 edge on the series. Two of the Sox victories were won here, both by Lee, loser of three straight since he won five straight in early competition with the New Yorkers.

The Sox knocked out Charley Ruffing in the first game, the smashing including a homer by Rip Radcliff. They were rather helpless before Ivy Andrews in the second game, making only six hits, the second of which was not effected until the sixth inning. Seven Sox batsmen went out on fouls.

New Iowa Coach Revives Double Wing Back Attack

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 18.—The double wing back system of football attack has returned to the Western conference. Into this general classification falls the offense which Iowa's new coach, Irl Tubbs, is teaching the Hawkeyes.

Irl Tubbs.

It is merely a matter of record, of course, to mention these wing backs and to recall that at one time, Ohio State, Wisconsin and Northwestern placed hope for touchdowns in the so-called Glenn Warner system of strategy. Actually the type of play of Ohio State under the late Sam Willaman, of Wisconsin under the coaching of Glenn Thislethwaite, and Northwestern, when directed by Dick Hanley, differed as widely as do the standard methods for contract bridge.

Uses Balanced Line.

To be sure, Ernie Nevers, whom Pop Warner once named as the greatest of all time full backs, is Iowa's back field coach. Yet the one fact that Iowa is using a balanced line, three men stationed on each side of the center, is indication of other variants immediately discernible. Warner still insists, as do his pupils, that there must be an unbalanced line with the tackles paired on one side of the center in the offensive line.

Bernie Bierman, at Minnesota, and Lynn Waldorf, at Northwestern, use this offensive line maneuver, but they have banned use of two wing backs.

Consequently, along with the formal statement that Iowa does have two wing backs and that the ends are stationed as closely as possible to the tackles, it is best to add that Iowa will use an attack designed by Tubbs. This attack has speed and deception, two prime necessities in any method of football offense.

Tubbs also has given new spirit to the Iowa squad. In today's scrimmage there was an enthusiasm and vigor which the boys did not have a year ago. But obviously from the caliber of the opposition the Hawkeyes must face, more than morale and diligent work are necessary if Iowa is to win a conference game.

Iowa's regulars ran over the second team, 21 to 0, in a 30 minute game this afternoon. In scoring three touchdowns the first team made twelve first downs.

Iowa leaves next Wednesday for Seattle, where on Saturday it meets the University of Washington, champion of the Pacific coast conference. No game is scheduled Oct. 2 and one week later Bradley Tech will be the opponent at Iowa City. After this Iowa swings into a five game conference schedule, meeting Wisconsin, Michigan, Purdue, Minnesota and Indiana. To complete the eight games permitted by conference rules, the Hawks will face Nebraska on Nov. 20 at Lincoln. Nebraska is the champion eleven of the Big Six.

No Stops for Practice.

The arrangements Tubbs has made for the Washington trip are characteristic of the man. Iowa will arrive in Seattle at 2 p. m. the day before the game. There will be no stops for practice en route.

"Unless your team can practice two weeks on the coast," Tubbs said, "it is better that it plays as soon as possible after arrival."

That Tubbs also has positive ideas for development of Iowa football is shown by his decision that the varsity will not scrimmage against the freshmen. He doesn't wish the freshman elevens to waste time learning Wisconsin plays, or Minnesota plays, or any plays for the benefit of the varsity. This year's Hawkeye freshmen will devote all their practice periods to learning Iowa football.

Luebcke Must Reduce.

Iowa will depend largely on the same linemen who played last year. Henry Luebcke, Chicago sophomore, quite likely will win a tackle berth. His weight is given in the official roster as 253 pounds. Actually he now weighs 274 pounds. Last spring,

HERE'S THE WHEN AND WHERE OF WORLD SERIES

New York, Sept. 18.—[U. P.]—The world series will open on Wednesday, Oct. 6, in the park of the American league winner, club executives and presidents of the two major leagues decided today.

The first two games, on Oct. 6 and 7, will be played in the American league park. The next three will be played Oct. 8, 9, and 10 in the park of the National league winner.

The last two games, if necessary, will be played in the American league park on Oct. 11 and 12. There will be no days off for travel, even if the Cubs win the National league pennant.

Today's meeting was attended by William Harridge, American league president; Ford Frick, National league president; Ed Barrow and Charley MacManus, New York Yankees; Horace Stoneham and Leo Bondy, New York Giants; John Seys, Chicago Cubs; Charles Navin and Walter O. Briggs Jr., Detroit Tigers.

Plan for Playoff Series.

In case of a tie in the National league race between the Cubs and Giants at the end of the regular season Oct. 3, a best of three playoff series will determine the winner. That series would open Tuesday, Oct. 5, in New York. In case of rain the teams would stay in New York until they had played one game. The second game and third—if necessary—would be played on successive days in Chicago.

In case of such a tie the world series would open in the American league park on the second day after the playoffs. Thus, if the playoffs ended Thursday, Oct. 7, the series would open Saturday, Oct. 9.

And the Prices.

Prices for all games will remain the same—$6.60 for boxes; $5.50 reserved seats; $3.30 unreserved, and $1.10 for bleachers. Seating capacities for the parks were announced as: Yankee stadium, 71,303; Wrigley field, 46,004; Polo grounds, 56,437.

The officials, presided over by Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis, decided all games would start at 1:30 p. m. with the exception of any Sunday games in New York, which will start at 2 p. m.

Any games called before the regular 4½ or 5 innings will be played the following day on the same field. In case of a tie game, it will be played off on the field where it occurred, if

CARLETON'S 14TH VICTORY CUTS NEW YORK'S LEAD TO 2½ GAMES

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs' pennant hopes, which had been breathing only faintly for several days, were revived slightly yesterday by tonic furnished from two sources. The Cubs fixed up one life saving prescription themselves. They used the Phillies as stepping stones to a decisive 9 to 3 victory in the last meeting of the year between the two teams. And the other help came from Cincinnati, where the Reds smacked down the first place Giants, putting the Chicagoans two and one-half games from the top.

What the Cubs didn't do to the Phils, and Claude Passeau in particular, with homers and other assorted blows, was done by Tex Carleton, now the owner of fourteen triumphs for the season. The Texas slat got away badly because one of his pals had a temporary attack of the shakes, but refused to notice the treachery in the ranks and finished his day's work on a yield of six hits, only one of which was produced after the fifth inning. Two of the half dozen hits were infield flukes.

Two Healthy Drives.

Carleton found himself ably assisted by at least two mighty smacks from the bats of his fellow workers. When a run was needed for a tie in the second inning, Joe Marty christened the new center field bleacher with the first homer, a drive which traveled 425 feet. In the next inning, with one on base, Rip Collins, the recent invalid, spanked his season's sixteenth homer beyond the 368 foot sign in right center. Of course, a high powered tail wind was blowing, but what of it? The same wind aided Leo Norris in a home run act against Carleton.

Collins' homer gave the Cubs a 4 to 2 lead in the third and a run in the fourth stretched the margin to 5 to 2, part of which was lost when Norris exploded his homer with none out in the fifth. As a certain method for protecting the two run advantage Carleton hurled perfect ball for three innings, whereupon his mates made his ninth inning job a cinch They plastered Passeau for four runs in the eighth. So Carleton decided to weaken a bit at the finish. He granted one hit in the ninth.

Herman Errs Twice.

Herman had a little trouble with his aim in the first inning, and this enabled the Phils to get away to a momentary one run lead. Norris opened with a scratch hit off Carleton's glove. It bounced to Herman who made a hurried throw to Collins, but the ball shot into the dugout, Norris taking second. He was bunted to third by Martin and reached the plate safely when Herman threw wild to Hartnett on Klein's grounder.

The Phils were kind enough to hand the run back to the Cubs during the latter's opening half. Hack survived at first on a high throw by Whitney and sprinted to third on Herman's looping single to right. Hack carried home the tying run while Whitney was tossing out Demaree.

The visitors picked up another one run lead in the second, this also proving a temporary situation. Whitney walked with none out and went to third on Grace's single. Scharein blew a fly into Cavarretta's hands close to the scoreboard, and Whitney counted after the catch. Marty tied it again with his homer into the center field bleacher in the same inning.

Collins Smacks One.

There was no lost motion about the two runs with which the Cubs moved into a 4 to 2 lead in the third. It all happened after two were out. Hartnett poled a single to right. Collins then hoisted a healthy fly into the gale and the ball descended in the right center field bleacher for his homer No. 16. Cavarretta, the next batter, survived on a fumble by Norris, but Passeau fanned Marty.

The Phils had a little fun with Carleton and the Cubs had a little fun with Umpire Magerkurth in the first half of the fourth, but the words and hits involved were in vain. Moore led off with a single which bounced high off the plate. Whitney flied out, but Grace singled to center. Moore went to third on the play and was called safe by the umpire mentioned, The Cubs didn't agree with the decision and Manager Grimm, to make his argument clearer, spoke in German, adding a few fancy gestures when he realized words were of no avail. Carleton erased the effects of the disputed decision by getting Scharein on a short fly to Marty and Passeau on a roller to Herman.

Cavarretta Out at Plate.

The Cubs added to their edge in the fourth, Hack and Herman being the principals in a one run episode. Hack singled to left after two were out and stole second. He scored a moment later on Herman's single to center. The Phils took this run back in the fifth when Norris drilled his homer into the right field seats. The Cubs also bid for a run in their half, but were shy by inches. After two were gone, Cavarretta tripled to left center and when the throw in eluded Scharein, Phil made an attempt to score, but was thrown out by Whitney.

Four hits were touched off while the Cubs were shoving four men across the plate in the eighth. Collins started it with a two bagger off the right field bricks and Cavarretta followed with a pass. Marty lined a single to right, Collins scoring. Jurges singled to center, sending Cavarretta home and Marty to third. After Carleton had fanned, Hack tapped to Scharein and Marty beat the throw to the plate. Herman then singled to center and Jurges scored.

The sixth and final hit off Carleton appeared in the ninth. Whitney hoisted a fly to right and it was blown against the wall for a double with one out. The rest was easy, Grace tapping to Herman and Carleton personally tossing out Scharein.

HEAP, JEFFERSON LEAD PURPLE IN FIRST SCRIMMAGE

Swisher Goes 60 Yards for Touchdown.

Capt. Don Heap and Bernie Jefferson, veteran half backs, were the leading performers in Northwestern's intra-squad scrimmage yesterday in which five teams were used.

Heap and Jefferson were instrumental in the six touchdowns the first string eleven rolled up against the second and third teams. They reeled off several long runs and their passes set the stage for four touchdowns.

The varsity opened the game with a back field consisting of Heap and Jefferson, half backs; Fred Vanzo, quarter back, and Jack Ryan, full back. Barring injuries, this is the combination that probably will start against Iowa State Oct. 2.

The line was composed of Erwin Wegner, center; Mike Calvano and Dick Wells, guards; Bob Voigts and Frank Young, tackles, and Cleo Diehl and Tom Eby, ends. John Kovatch, veteran end, and Nick Cutlich, sophomore tackle, who have been on the first string line, were unable to play because of leg injuries.

While the varsity rested, Bob Swisher, fleet half back who was ineligible last year, led the second team attack with several long runs, one of them a 60 yard touchdown sprint after intercepting a forward pass.

INDIANA VARSITY WINS.

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Scoring two touchdowns on passes, the Indiana university football team defeated a reserve squad, 12 to 0, today, in a practice game which lasted for only one half. Corby Davis scored first on a 40 yard pass from Frank Filchock. Swede Clasen intercepted a reserve pass and ran 30 yards for the second touchdown.

Iowa Revives Double Wing Back System

At 250 pounds Luebcke may help rally a line which was overwhelmed by Minnesota last fall, 52 to 0. At his present cumbersome size he's just a monument and a player to bracket with Floyd Deheer, a senior, who weighs 235 pounds, is six feet eight inches tall.

The linemen have been shuffled as much as a worn deck of cards. There is only one rule: You are on the left side of center, or you're on the right side. And Richard Anderson, who substituted for Ted Osmaloski for two years, is the center. For substitutes at center, Fred Lindenmeyer has been drafted from tackle, and even Emil Klumpar, a half back, has been given a chance at the position.

Balazs' Shoulder Hurt.

Three broken noses and two shoulder injuries, the latter received by Frank Balazs, Chicago full back, and Charles Irvine, sophomore tackle, are tangible results of the daily half hour of scrimmage.

Shipley Farroh, senior from Michigan City, Ind., who was a blocking back two years ago, a guard last year, now is trying to play tackle. The veteran ends, Capt. Homer Harris and Bob Lannon, will be ready to start against Washington. Lannon is one of those who have broken noses. Erwin Prasse, Chicago sophomore from Schurz High school, has been impressive in drills. Fred Smith from Cedar Rapids, another fair sophomore prospect, has been shifted from tackle to end. Dick Evans, Chicago, is an adept pass catcher and may develop.

Wilbur Nead, tackle, and Charles Brady, now at guard, a minor lettermen from last year who have developed to status of replacements for this year's line.

The line material, as a whole, has weight, but it is slow, ineffective in blocking, particularly in the open and by slow charging may find lighter men pushing through them.

Has Good Backs.

Iowa's major assets are its backs, several of whom may be outstanding if given support. All backs must learn the four back field positions. Probably the best combination is Bush Lamb, senior from Newton, Ia.; Jack Eicherly, Holstein, Ia., junior; Nile Kinnick, Omaha, Neb., sophomore, and Edwin McLain, a Chicago sophomore. Eicherly is running hard and fast. McLain is a driving back.

Kinnick, a 160 pound quarter back, is expected to be the No. 1 field general. He is a fine passer, an excellent kicker. Other sophomore backs worthy of consideration are Floyd Dean, Atlantic, Ia.; Russell Busk, Clinton, Ia., and Bill Gallagher, Oskaloosa, Ia.

It'll Be a Homecoming, but Who'll Be There?

Bozeman, Mont., Sept. 18.—(AP)—It's homecoming at Montana State college next Saturday—football game and everything. It's odd, you see, because college doesn't open until the following Monday. The game—Montana State versus Utah—was designated the homecoming encounter because it is the only Rocky mountain conference game scheduled at Bozeman this year.

Ohio University Wins, 80 to 0, from Rio Grande

Athens, O., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Ohio university, co-champion in the Buckeye conference last year, opened its 1937 football season today with an 80 to 0 defeat of Rio Grande college of Rio Grande, O. A powerful running game and brilliant passing attack were combined to swamp Rio Grande.

FIRST HARD WORK FOR NORTHWESTERN ELEVENS

Don Heap, captain of the Northwestern football team, hurls a pass in intra-squad game at Dyche stadium yesterday. Heap and Bernie Jefferson were instrumental in the first team scoring six touchdowns against the second and third elevens. Heap returned a punt 60 yards for one of the scores and figured prominently as a passer. Jefferson also passed well and made long gains. This was the Wildcats' first hard drill of the season. The opening game will be with Iowa State on Oct. 2. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

OAK PARK ELEVEN BEATS RIVERSIDE IN OPENER, 45-7

Ray Wengierski, left half back, led Oak Park High school's football team to a 45 to 7 victory over Riverside at Oak Park stadium in the opening game of the season yesterday. Wengierski scored three touchdowns, one in the first quarter and two in the second. Germond scored Riverside's only touchdown, in the second period. Lineups:

LA GRANGE WINS, 34-0.

La Grange beat Marmion academy of Aurora, 34 to 0, at La Grange yesterday. Goodyear scored three touchdowns and three extra points. Hitzel scored one touchdown and converted the point. Porter made the other touchdown.

YORK LOSES, 34 TO 6.

York of Elmhurst suffered a 34 to 6 defeat at the hands of Thornton Fractional in York's opening game at Elmhurst yesterday. Boloski scored two touchdowns for Thornton, while Van Laninhan, Lazini and Coye each scored one. Galvanac scored York's touchdown on a 60 yard run in the second quarter.

MORTON DIVIDES.

Downers Grove and Morton broke even, at Downers Grove yesterday, the former winning the lightweight contest, 19 to 0, and Morton taking the heavyweight game, 12 to 0. In the heavyweight game both touchdowns were made near the close. Fugate plunged four yards for the first and Kuda intercepted a forward pass and raced 80 yards for the second touchdown.

CATHOLIC RACE OPENS

There's a familiar cry being heard in the camps of Chicago Catholic High School league football teams these days. Fearful coaches gloomily shake their heads and adhere to one of the cardinal principles of the coaches' union—remarking that it can't be done. But on the practice fields of thirteen teams there is evidence that the cry of "Beat Fenwick!" once again has hit the camps.

"I believe they really must have something there," says Len Sachs, coach of Loyola academy's eleven, when the conversation touches on Fenwick, champion of the league last year and co-holder of the city title with Austin, Chicago Public High School league winner.

St. Mel vs. St. George.

Two of Fenwick's rivals, St. Mel and St. George of Evanston, will go to work this afternoon on the latter's field in the north section league opener. The game marks the debut of Al McGuff, former Notre Dame star, as coach of the St. Mel eleven. McGuff succeeded Paddy Driscoll, who resigned to become coach at Marquette university.

Coach Tony Lawless' Fenwick team will not start its title defense until Oct. 3, when De Paul visits Mills stadium, home of the Fenwick squad. The league, which last year operated in three sections, this season has been divided into two sections. The new setup follows:

NORTH SECTION.	SOUTH SECTION.
Fenwick.	St. Ignatius.
Loyola.	Leo.
Weber.	St. Philip.
St. Patrick.	Mount Carmel.
St. George.	De La Salle.
De Paul.	St. Rita.
St. Mel.	Catholic of Joliet.

Four Other Games.

Four other games will be played this afternoon. Coach Wally Fromhart will lead his Mount Carmel eleven against St. Bede on the latter's field, Andy Pilney's Weber team plays St. Philip at St. Philip field, and St. Patrick will meet St. Rita and Coach Len Sachs' Loyola team will face Leo at Shewbridge field, 74th and Aberdeen streets.

Notre Dame Varsity Wins, But 12-0 Victory Is Hollow

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's No. 1 football team was made to resemble something akin to a group of novices in today's hour scrimmage against a team of sophomores from the fifth and sixth teams, although it eventually won, 12 to 0.

The first string worked the ball down into reserve territory on two occasions, Bunny McCormick scoring from the 3 yard line and Mario Tonelli driving over from the 7 yard line for the day's only scoring.

Joe Kuharich, South Bend right guard, missed both placements for the extra point. McCormick, Jack McCarthy, left half, and Ed Beinor, left tackle, all with the varsity, were retired with minor injuries.

At one stage of the contest the green-shirted reserves made three first downs, topped by a 45 yard run by Jack Sullivan, left half, which was called back because of offsides. The No. 1 team was frequently held for downs. The touchdown marches were of 24 and 37 yards, respectively, and each started after a weak punt by the greens into a brisk south wind.

GOPHERS SCRIMMAGE.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 18.—[Special.] — Minnesota's Gophers were given their hardest workout of the year today when they held a regulation game length scrimmage.

A varsity lineup of Capt. Ray King and Dwight Reed at ends; Warren Kilborn and Lou Midler, tackles; Bob Weld and Francis Twedell, guards; Dan Elmer, center; Vic Spadaccini, quarter back; Andy Uram and Wilmer Moore, half backs, and Larry Buhler, full back, was started against the reserves. This combination along with substitutions scored four touchdowns on long runs by Matheny, substituting for Uram, and Buhler.

SPARTANS PLAY GAME.

East Lansing, Mich., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Despite the danger of incurring additional injuries, Coach Charles Bachman sent the Michigan State Spartans through a two hour practice game this morning to conclude the two weeks training period before school opens. Four teams took part in the game. The regulars or first string team was composed of Nelson and Gaines, ends; Speelman and Swartz, tackles; Gortot and Dudley, guards; Miknovitch at center; with Halbert at quarter, Coolidge and Pingel halves, and Haney at full back.

MICHIGAN COACHES SMILE.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Michigan's first formal scrimmage today, although held in the rain, impressed coaches as varsity rolled up four touchdowns against first string reserves.

Fred Trosko, sophomore triple-threat half back who has been the center of Michigan's offensive plans, went to the showers with a recurrence of the shoulder injury suffered last Monday. He must be kept out of scrimmage for ten days, doctors said.

Stark Ritchie, senior from Battle Creek, paced the varsity with a long run for one of the touchdowns, a series of completed passes, and acceptable kicking. Although he left the game with a twisted ankle, Ritchie will be back on the field Monday.

WISCONSIN HOLDS SCRIMMAGE.

Madison, Wis., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Bronko Malesevich, junior back from Mayville, Wis., was shifted from right half to full back today as Coach Harry Stuhldreher sent the Wisconsin football squad through the first scrimmage of the season under regular game conditions. Malesevich's defensive work has stood out during this week's drills.

A sophomore passing combination, Tony Gradisnik of Milwaukee, a left half back, to James Riordan of Rhinelander, at right end, proved the most effective offensive weapon as the Green team defeated the Cardinal eleven in an intrasquad game, 19 to 9.

MAROONS HOLD SCRIMMAGE.

Scrimmage for the second straight day topped off the University of Chicago football drill at the Midway yesterday. Sollie Sherman, star ball carrier last year, appeared the team's best offensive threat. Sherman has put on weight but is elusive and passes well. He calls signals from left half back. He has developed a knack for getting off long quick kicks.

Allan Shackleton, sophomore from Cresco, Ia., is being groomed to replace Dick Wheeler as first understudy to the regular center, George Antonic. Wheeler, an able student, left yesterday for Lima, Peru, where he expects to get a job and also to study international relations.

Remy Meyers, first choice for right end, showed promise. He is one of the few Maroons who can handle the hard, accurate passes of Lew Hamity, varsity quarter back.

ILLINI BEAT FRESHMEN.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The University of Illinois varsity, after a slow start, downed a rugged freshman squad, 21 to 0, today.

Tony Mazeika, junior half back from Farragut High school, Chicago, scored all three touchdowns, and Ralph Bennett, sophomore from Alton, place kicked the three additional points.

Capt. Lowell Spurgeon and Jay Wardley were unable to play, because of injuries. The lineup:

OHIO STATE HAS GAME.

Columbus, O., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Coach Francis Schmidt drove his Ohio State football squad through two hard practice sessions today, ending them with a practice game between the regulars and reserves. The regulars scored three touchdowns on runs of 17 and five yards by Miller and Fordham, respectively, and on a 21 yard pass from Waslyik to Bliss.

ARIZONA MEETS NOTRE DAME IN FOOTBALL IN '40

Notre Dame, Ind., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The University of Arizona will open Notre Dame's 1940 football schedule here Oct. 5, 1940, it was announced today by Director of Athletics Elmer Layden.

The Tucson school turns over its athletic plant to the Irish on the latters' trips to California to meet Southern California every two years. Notre Dame spends two days working out in Tucson.

NAME NEIHOFF 1938 MANAGER FOR LOUISVILLE

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Bert Neihoff will return next year as manager of the Louisville Colonels of the American association, Capt. William Neal, general manager of the Colonels, announced today.

South Carolina Wins, 45-7, from Emory and Henry

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 18.—(AP)—South Carolina, employing more than four complete teams, defeated Emory and Henry in the season's football opener today, 45 to 7.

Louisiana State Normal Holds Centenary to 0-0 Tie

Shreveport, La., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Centenary's football team, playing its second game of the week, was held to a scoreless tie today by Louisiana State Normal of Natchitoches. Centenary played sluggishly and although many passes were completed they were seldom good for more than a few yards. State Normal showed flashes of touchdown-scoring form but bogged down before Centenary's defense.

BEARS TO OPEN SEASON TODAY AGAINST PACKERS

Cardinals Invade Detroit; Pirates Play Dodgers.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

National league football teams settle down to a steady fire on division championships today, with engagements on three fronts. By nightfall one, the title defending Green Bay Packers, may be eliminated from immediate contendership. The Packers already have lost one league game. The five other contestants in today's games are unbeaten in league competition.

Green Bay is host to its oldest and bitterest rival, the Chicago Bears, who will be making their season debut in the race. The Chicago Cardinals, who, with the aid of the breaks they have had coming for some time, defeated the Packers last week, go to Detroit to meet Dutch Clark's Lions. Detroit won its opening game ten days ago, easily whipping the Cleveland Rams. The third game on today's schedule brings together Pittsburgh and the Dodgers, both victorious in their opening games, in an eastern division contest at Brooklyn.

Attention Centers on West.

Attention, of course, focuses on the western division, where the bulk of the league's strength has been centered for several years. This division again is expected to supply the ultimate champion, with the eastern section's only serious challenge coming from the Washington Redskins.

Green Bay is on the spot today. If it is to salvage something from the ambitious program it outlined for itself before the All-Star game, victory over the collegians and retention of its championship, it must defeat the Bears. Unless this proves to be an unusual season, two defeats will eliminate a team from championships consideration.

The Packers enter the game without their chief offensive threat, Arnie Herber, the Sammy Baugh of the north country. Herber still is nursing a shoulder injury. In addition they have not found a competent replacement for George Sauer, an exceptional running back, who retired to take up coaching.

Bears Must Prove Power.

The Bears, with many new men, have yet to prove they have the power necessary to withstand the assault of the rest of the division in a round robin which is being inaugurated in the National league schedule this year. They have been slow in rounding into shape, slower than any Bear team in history, according to Coach George Halas. Bronko Nagurski, the wrestling full back, who figures so prominently in any Bear attack, is not expected to see much action today. He reported late, after a wrestling tour of the west, and has not become thoroughly acquainted with the Bears' new offense. If the Bears win over the Packers without Nagurski they must be considered one of the favorites in the championship race.

At Detroit the Cardinals will attempt to avenge last year's 39 to 0 defeat draped on them by the Lions when they had only six able-bodied men to throw against Ernie Caddel, Ace Gutowsky and Clark. The task appears almost insurmountable, since it must be accomplished without an aerial attack. The Cardinals have everything except a passer to present the greatest aerial offensive in the league. With Gaynell Tinsley and Bill Smith at the ends and Doug Russell in the back field for receivers, all that is needed is some one who can get the ball away with some degree of accuracy.

A crowd of 16,000 saw yesterday's program run off.

REDS WIN, 4 TO 3; HUBBELL, GIANTS ARE THE LOSERS

Peaches Davis Is Hero in Cincinnati Victory.

Cincinnati, O., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The Reds defeated the Giants, 4 to 3, today, and slashed the New Yorkers' lead over the second place Cubs to 2½ games. The Cubs defeated the Phillies in Chicago.

The Reds whipped Carl Hubbell, thus frustrating his ambition to become the first pitcher in the big leagues to win 20 games this season.

Peaches Davis, limiting the Giants to seven hits, and personally driving in what proved to be the winning run in the eighth, was the No. 1 hero. But he had to have a lot of help from Al Hollingsworth, who cut off a threatening Giant rally in the ninth, and from Ernie Lombardi, whose double drove in two runs during the Reds' three run uprising in the third.

COLORED NINES TO OPEN WORLD SERIES TODAY

The Chicago American Giants and Kansas City Monarchs combine forces to oppose the Homestead, Pa., Grays, Negro National league champions, in the first of a seven game colored world series at the Giants park, 39th and Wentworth, today at 2:30 p. m.

Other games will be played in Indianapolis, Dayton, Columbus, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, and New York. The powerful Homestead club, winner of both halves of the Negro National league, will be opposed by a team including the following:

Chicago—Cornelius and Trent pitchers; Redus and Stearns, outfielders; Radcliffe, Bonds, and Marshall infielders, and Byas, catcher.

Kansas City—Cooper and Smith pitchers; Duncan, catcher; Strong Allen, and Johnson, infielders, and Brown and Milton, outfielders.

Cubs Gain, but Giants Have No Cause to Worry

By lopping a full game from the New York Giants' lead yesterday the Cubs slightly improved their pennant prospects. The Giants' task, however, still is comparatively easy unless the second place Cubs should suddenly bounce up with a winning streak, which, of necessity, will have to include a sweep of the three game series here with the leaders this week.

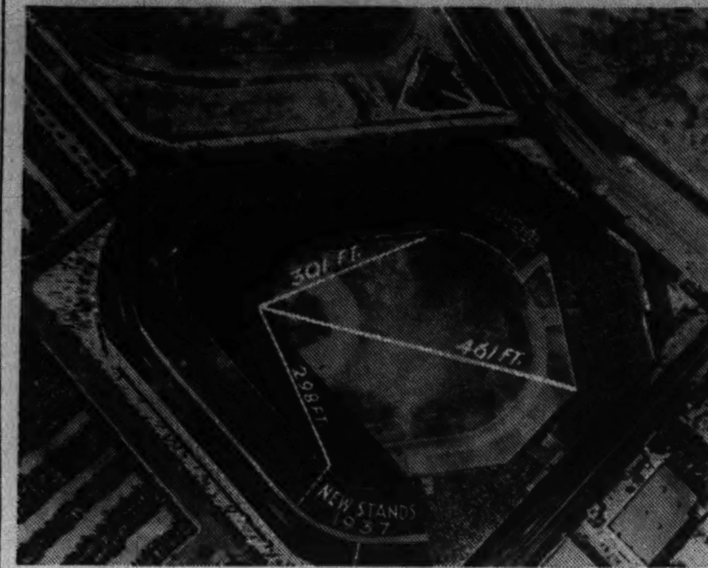
The Cubs have 15 more games to play, the Giants 18. If the Giants do no better than break even the Cubs, to tie them at the finish, must win 10 out of 15. If the Giants should take 11 of their remaining games the Cubs will need 12 victories in 15 starts to tie and 13 out of 15 to win.

Yankee Stadium Is Imposing; Overflow Crowd Can Hit 84,000

This is the last of a series of pieces describing all of the major league baseball parks, including the two in Cleveland used by the Indians and the one in St. Louis, home grounds of both the Cardinals and the Browns. E. B.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]



NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Col. Jake Ruppert, owner of the Yanks, will have enough left after paying the salary of Joe McCarthy, Lou Gehrig, et al, to pay off $850,000, the cost of the improvements made at Yankee stadium since the last world series. And we'll bet he won't have to mortgage any of the completed plant, in which he has an investment of $3,350,000. The $3,350,000 figure represents actual costs to Col. Jake and does not take into consideration the increase in property valuations in the Bronx neighborhood where the stadium stands.

If Yankee stadium is not the best playing locale in the majors, it is the largest in seating capacity and the most imposing in the magnitude of its triple deck grandstand and the new bleachers which can accommodate 18,000 sunworshiping fans. The new listed seating capacity of the stadium is 84,000 for baseball when an overflow crowd is permitted. The listed capacity for a world series [seats only] is 71,303.

Giants Once Were Yankees' Landlords.

Before the original portion of Yankee stadium was completed in the spring of 1923, the Yanks played their home games at the Polo grounds, owned by the Giants. It frequently was reported that the Giants were inclined to be bullying landlords, working under the assumption that the Yanks could not obtain a favorable site and that even if one were found Col. Ruppert probably wouldn't go for such an expensive enterprise, as long as he already had a place for the Yanks to play.

Great was the surprise, therefore, when it became known in 1921 that the Yanks had acquired 10 acres of vacant land from the William Waldorf Astor estate at a cost of $600,000. The chagrin was not helped by the knowledge that the new Yankee home was to be only a mile from the Polo grounds. Announcement was made that the first structure would be built at a cost of $2,000,000.

First Alteration Is Made in 1928.

The first game was played in what was a bobtailed structure as compared with the present structure, on April 18. The Yanks beat the Boston Red Sox, 4 to 1, that day, and Babe Ruth contributed a homer to the inaugural ceremonies.

The first alteration was made in 1928 when the left wing of the triple decked stand was extended on a curve across the foul line well into left field territory.

The right field triple deck stand curves over the foul line, making the stand ends virtually symmetrical.

The press stand is capacious, but not a comfortable place to work. It is on the dark mezzanine. Formerly scribes had to look out through two thicknesses of netting. This has been changed and the sector is now unprotected.

The working tables are ample, but sometimes get a little rickety. Once we caught the front of our pants on a nail protruding from a drawer handle, ripping a tremendous snag. We were embarrassed at the ventilating features of the accident and horrified at the ruination of the pants. Mark Roth, traveling secretary of the Yanks, rushed down to look over the results of the accident and the causes thereof. When Mr. Roth said: "I'll take care of that right away," we envisioned a new pair of pants or at least some de luxe weaving. Mr. Roth disappeared and presently a carpenter came and drove in the offending nail. That's what Mr. Roth meant when he said he'd fix things right away. Somehow we got back to our hotel, but never wore the pants again and whenever we hear about Jake Ruppert's $100,000,000 we think about those pants and the carpenter who carried a rule, but never used it to measure us for replacement raiment.

Foul Lines Short, but Dimensions Increase Rapidly.

The foul lines at Yankee stadium are short, but the dimensions increase rapidly. There are seven rather regularly spaced distance numerals on the grandstand barriers and on the new barrier in front of the enormous bleachers. These give some idea of the way the place spreads out. The left foul line is only 301 feet, but the next marker, beyond the end of the grandstand, is 402 feet and the marker in left center is 415 feet. The farthest point from the plate is 461 feet, as compared with the 490 foot distance that existed before the construction of the new bleachers. Going to the right the markers read 405 feet, 344 feet, and at the end of the right foul line, 298 feet. Three feet were added to the length of the right field line with the new construction, but now there is a three foot barrier in front of the boxes instead of the high screen that existed in front of the old Babe Ruth bleachers.

The scoreboard, which is beyond the right center field stands is by far the largest in the majors. Until the new construction this summer the announcing was done by an inarticulate little man with a little megaphone. Now they have a public address system.

Mills and Coals to Clash Today in Two Games

Play in the Chicago Semi-pro league will be resumed at the Mills stadium this afternoon when the Chicago Mills and the Spencer Coals renew their title fight in a double-header. The first game will start at 1:30 p. m.

The Spencer Coals already have won two games in the playoff series, but Manager Bill Harley of the Mills is confident his charges will even the count today, since he has signed two new pitchers and will put them to work against the Coals. The newcomers are Lefty Veller, the former University of Indiana luminary, and Bud Matthews, recently of Kenosha, Wisconsin.

The Coals will rely on their undefeated southpaw, Bill Stevens, who is after his nineteenth straight victory, and the capable Tony Sims, who will seek his twelfth victory in thirteen starts. If either fails Manager Nate Shyer has Larry Irvin, another left hander, and Marvin Carlson in reserve.

COLUMBUS WHIPS MILLERS; TOLEDO WINS IN PLAYOFFS

The Columbus Red Birds, winners of the pennant during the regular season, defeated Minneapolis, 5 to 0, yesterday at Minneapolis behind the two hit pitching of Max Macon to approach within one game of clinching a place in the American association playoff finals.

In the other semi-final playoff contest, the Toledo Mud Hens, trailing three games to one in their series with Milwaukee and facing elimination, pushed over a run on three singles in the eleventh inning to defeat the Brewers, 11 to 10, at Milwaukee. Scores:

INDIANS DEFEAT RED SOX; ENTER FIRST DIVISION

Score Six Runs in Eighth; Win, 7 to 6.

Boston, Mass., Sept. 18.—(AP)—With fourth place at stake, the Cleveland Indians put on a six run rally in the eighth inning today to gain a 7 to 6 victory over the Red Sox and take over the first division berth. The Indians, trailing 6 to 1, went on the warpath against Archie McKain and Jack Wilson in their big inning. Lyn Lary hit a three run homer to lead the attack and assure the Indians' 26th victory in their last 37 starts.

Kennedy, Lyons Face Senators for Sox Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 18.—The White Sox will play a double-header in Washington tomorrow. Vern Kennedy is scheduled to pitch the first game and Ted Lyons the other one. It is said Washington will employ two rookies.

Commissioner K. M. Landis and Will Harridge, president of the American league, saw the first game of today's Sox-Yank double-header, then departed for Chicago.

The Sox will say farewell to Washington tomorrow night. They will go to Philadelphia for rest Monday and will play single games Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday.

MIDLOTHIANS AND WAGGONERS MEET IN TITLE SERIES

The Waggoners will meet the Midlothian Boosters in the second game of the three game series for the Thomas J. Bowler trophy, emblematic of the Midwest Baseball league championship, at Midlothian field, 152d street and Crawford avenue, today. Midlothian won the first game and victory will give it the title. At Chicago Heights, play will continue for the Mayor Kelly trophy with the Harmon Boosters playing the McCook Boosters in the first game starting at 1:30 o'clock and Chicago Heights meeting McCook in the second contest. Six other games, including a double-header, will be played. They are:

Gabby Hartnetts vs. Szmnarski Cragins, Fullerton and Long avenues, 3:30 p. m.
Famous Chicagos vs. Szmnarski Cragins, Fullerton and Long avenues, 1:30 p. m.
Maciejewski Supervisors vs. Benda Slovaks, 52d and Ogden avenues.

Trinity Lutheran Wins in Church Baseball Final

Trinity Evangelical Lutheran defeated Central Avenue Baptists, 10 to 6, yesterday at Paul Revere park to win the baseball championship of the Church A. A. of Chicago.

YANKS MAKE SIX HOMERS; DEFEAT SOX, 12-8, 4-0

Hose Rout Ruffing with Futile Rally.

American Legion, put on a drill just as soon as they were armed with bats in the first game. Crosetti started things with a homer to left, his 11th of the season. Rolfe flied to Radcliff, but Di Maggio singled to center. Gehrig then slammed his No. 35 homer into the right field pavilion, scoring Di Maggio. Dickey fouled to Conners, but Hoag singled and scored on Lazzeri's double, which hit the barrier in deep right center. Henrich struck out.

Lee was so conscious of the long range shelling that he went in for it himself. He opened the third with a triple to left center. Lefty paused while Hayes popped out and scored on Kreevich's long fly to Hoag.

Henrich's Throw Nips Radcliff.

The Sox were stopped at the plate in a fourth inning foray. Radcliff walked and stopped at second on Appling's single to right. Conners struck out, then Haas singled to right, but Radcliff was out at the plate, Henrich to Dickey.

It was in the sixth that the Sox constituents got a chance to do their first hollering. Walker opened with a double and rode home on Radcliff's No. 4 homer, a shot high into the left field stand.

The Yanks subsided after their first inning splurge until a fumble by Appling set them off in the fifth. With one out Luke kicked Di Maggio's easy grounder. Gehrig singled off Hayes glove, after which Dickey singled to left, scoring Di Maggio.

Before the Big Blowoff.

Here's the record of the big but innocent and futile parade the White Sox put on for the Legionnaires in the seventh inning. Sewell opened with a double to left. Lee grounded to Ruffing and Sewell apparently was trapped off third, but Rolfe dropped Ruffing's throw, Sewell reaching third and Lee first. Crosetti was charged with an error when Hayes' grounder got past him, Sewell scoring. Kreevich singled sharply to left, filling the bases. Walker lined to Hoag, but Lee got home while Radcliff was forcing Kreevich. Appling walked, filling the bases, after which Conners singled to left, scoring Hayes and Radcliff. Murphy replaced Ruffing and retired Haas.

The Yanks, having spotted the Sox to a 7 to 5 lead, promptly took it away from them in the seventh. Rolfe and Gehrig were on base as a result of infield singles when, with two out, Hoag cracked a homer into the right field pavilion to make the score 8 to 7.

Brown pitched the eighth and gave up four runs on five hits. One of the hits was Dickey's No. 27 homer with Di Maggio and Gehrig on base as the result of singles.

The Sox made one in the ninth on singles by Kreevich and Walker and Appling's out.

SECOND GAME

The Yankees pushed off with one run in the first inning of the second game. Crosetti was hit by a pitched ball and stopped at second on Rolfe's single to center. He took third on Di Maggio's fly and scored while Hayes was throwing out Gehrig. Appling threw out Dickey.

The Yanks added their second run in the third on singles by Rolfe and Gehrig and Dickey's double. The Sox hit tabulators had no work to do from the time Hayes opened the game with a scratch single until the same gent made a double with one out in the sixth. After said double, Kreevich and Walker fouled to Dickey, giving the Yank catcher four such putouts in two successive innings.

Radcliff opened the seventh with the third Chicago hit, a single to right, but Appling fouled to Rolfe and Conners lined into a double play.

Haas got the eighth under way with a single to left, the fourth Chicago hit. Steinbacher batted for Shea and fouled to Dickey. Rosenthal batted for Whitehead and singled to center. Haas stopping at second. Then Hayes fouled to Gehrig and Kreevich forced Rosenthal.

Dietrich and Rensa formed a new battery for the Sox in the eighth. Di Maggio teed off against Dietrich with his No. 43 homer, a 425 foot shot to left, and Gehrig followed with a line homer which just cleared the 296 foot mark on the right field wall. Hayes threw out Dickey and Hoag. Walker made a circus catch in right to rob Lazzeri of a triple.

Radcliff made the sixth Sox hit in the ninth.

Davis Faces Dodgers for Cubs Today

The Daffy Dodgers, in charge of Burleigh Grimes, will be at Wrigley field today for the first half of a two game series. Curt Davis will try to stretch his winning streak to four this afternoon. The Dodger starter may be Max Butcher.

When Phil Cavarretta was blocked off the plate trying to score on his triple in the fifth he went in head first. When Joe Marty was scoring on Hack's tap to the shortstop in the eighth he went in feet first and thus ruined Grace's effort to block him.

Carleton was almost as busy with his first basing as with his pitching yesterday. He had to sprint over to first four times to take the put out throw on batted balls captured by Collins.

DIESEL ENGINES Are Revolutionizing INDUSTRY!

Vast New Fields of Opportunity Are Suddenly Opened

DO YOU KNOW—That the Diesel industry broke all records during 1936 . . . that railroads are making higher passenger traffic profit through the adoption of Diesel power . . that the 14-car Zephyr broke all speed records between Chicago and Denver at a fuel cost of only $65, as against the usual $500 . . . that General Motors is enlarging its Electro-Motive plant, where they are working at capacity to fill orders for Diesel Electric railway equipment . . that General Motors has also established a Diesel Engine division and has started experimental work with Diesel type engines . . . that the Merchant Marine is 80% Diesel . . . that mining and trucking industries are turning to Diesel . . . that municipal power plants are making smaller cities tax-free through use of Diesel power . . . that Hemphill Diesel graduates hold responsible positions throughout the nation?

Learn more about the place you might occupy in this new field. FILL OUT COUPON below and you will be sent—without charge or obligation—the 32-page illustrated booklet, "MARCH OF DIESEL."

100 LAP EVENT TOPS FINAL CARD AT FAIR GROUNDS

Auto Pilots Seek Record and Gold Cup.

The last roar of racing motors for the season will be heard at the Fair Grounds speedway this afternoon when Promoter Carl Stockholm sends another field of driving talent away in a program of seven events, including a 100 lap race for which he is offering a heavy cash prize list and a gold cup donated by an anonymous Chicago sportsman. The Fair Grounds is located at North avenue and River road.

Three former winners of Fair Grounds features this year will be in the starting field. Jimmy Snyder, Chicago; Frank Wearne of Los Angeles, and George Connor, also a California star, have entered. Each is confident he can repeat early season victories. In addition, Emil Andres, Frank Brisko, Shorty Cantlon, Floyd Davis, Lou Webb, and a score or more of the most noted pilots in the country will be on hand.

Match Race Arranged.

As an added feature Promoter Stockholm yesterday arranged a match race between Snyder and Wild Bill Cummings of Indianapolis, former national champion. It is planned for them to test their driving skill over a distance of five laps.

Additional entrants yesterday were Billy Devore of Indianapolis and George Kolar of Lake Geneva, Wis.

Promoter Stockholm again has offered a special purse for the driver who breaks the track and world record for the half mile made by Frank Beeder on the same oval.

Arrangements have been made for buses to meet the North avenue car line to transfer patrons from the end of the car line direct to the main entrance of the Fair Grounds.

Willis Directs Races.

The program, which will start at 12:30 p. m., will include time trials, preliminary heats, a consolation race, and the 100 lap feature.

The meet will be under the direction of Fred Willis, zone supervisor of the contest board of the A. A. A., and the chief starter will be Ray Johnson, assistant starter at the Indianapolis motor speedway. E. von Homback, a member of the contest board, also will be on hand for the race. The field:

Billy Devore, Indianapolis.
George Kolar, Lake Geneva, Wis.

Northern Zone Snipe Season Opens Oct. 9

BY BOB BECKER.

Hunters living in the northern zone of states where the duck, mudhen and jacksnipe season starts Oct. 9 will have the advantage this fall in at least one sport. That is jacksnipe hunting. October is the jacksnipe month. Take a clear, cool October day when the marshes are green and the wooded hills around are ablaze with color and you have an ideal setting for hunting the tricky little jacksnipe, the circus tumbler of the lowlands. The jacks will stay around in October as long as the weather is pleasant and the nights not too cold. Their living depends on thrusting that long, slender bill into soft mud to find food. When it freezes up, most of them disappear in the night as quietly as they arrived.

Warmer the Better.

In former years we have had our best snipe hunting in Illinois during the month of October. Last year we found a few around early in November. In fact, we shot several on the opening day of the pheasant season. But the big flight had passed on several days before that date. The warmer the month of October, the better. Such being the case, hunters in Illinois will find the Nov. 1 opening date too late for big time snipe hunting such as many of us have enjoyed in former years.

Wisconsin will be one up this fall. That state's snipe season opens on Oct. 9 and continues through the month . . . the best time of the season to find the fast flying, darting snipe executing loops and side slips over the marshlands. But Wisconsin has a pretty stiff non-resident license fee. Thus, not many hunters have a desire to visit that state just for the jacksnipe hunting, even though the little game bird is just about tops in sport.

State License $1.50.

Illinois hunters are being reminded that the state license will cost $1.50 this year; that a duck stamp will be required again for duck and goose hunting, and that it will be Nov. 1 before one may disturb the big mudhen flights that sweep into the northern Illinois lake country.

CLOSE BIG CAR RACING TODAY

14th flag. He played his best hole of the tournament on the 386 yard 15th. After slicing his drive among the trees, he spilled his second in the ditch under a water pipe. He played back into the fairway, rifled a 7 iron to within ten feet of the cup and holed out for a great five, losing only one stroke. This is the same ditch which cost Denny Shute the 1932 western. A third shot out of bounds at the 16th cost him a shot, and he was trapped back of the 18th, but his chip out with a putter saved the par.

Smith Gets an Eagle.

Smith had no difficulty in hammering down five straight pars, but he really went to work on the next three holes. The 460 yard sixth yielded a grand eagle, born of a perfect drive into the wind, a fine No. 1 iron and a 15 foot putt. He nearly holed his tee shot at the 200 yard seventh, the ball lighting almost in the cup and then rolling three feet away. A niblic pitch to the 412 yard eighth almost resulted in another deuce, the ball stopping four inches short of the cup. A poor third and three putts on the ninth cost him an out nine of 32, which would have been low for the tournament. Horton drew a bad break on the par four 12th, where he hooked into a bunker, leaving himself a poor stance. He hit what began as a good shot, but it struck a slope off the green and kicked out of bounds, sending him away with a six. A 30 foot putt brought a birdie at the long 16th, but he was short on the next green.

Breaks Pitching Iron.

Laffoon, who had opened the first round with three straight birdies, nearly duplicated that feat this morning. He got his birdie at the first hole, a par at the second, and then rammed home a 20 footer at the third. The rough cost him a shot at the fourth, and after reaching the road with his second at the ninth, he took three putts to get down. The Chicagoan then overshot the 12th, but regained that with a birdie on the next hole, after having driven the woods.

Guldahl was around the first nine in eight pars and one birdie, the latter gained at the fourth, where he hooked an iron five feet from the pin and holed out for a 3. He needed a six at the 13th, where he hooked into an almost unplayable lie among the trees and although he did escape, he broke his pitching iron in doing so. A fine 20 footer fell for a bird at the fifteenth, but the next two holes rebuked that with bogies. The wind dropped his third shot far short at the 16th, and he missed the 17th green by fifty yards. He topped off the day with a 25 foot putt for a finishing bird at the eighteenth.

5 GAMES TODAY TO END CRICKET LEAGUE SEASON

The final five games on the schedule of the Illinois Cricket league will be played today. The outstanding game will be the Washington Park-Chicago match at Washington park. Play will start at 1 o'clock.

The result of this game may determine the champion as the standings of the first three teams is so close that all still are in the running. If Washington Park defeats Chicago and Winnetka also is successful these teams will be tied for first place and must meet in a playoff. However, if Chicago beats Washington Park, the former will have undisputed possession of first place as it leads the league by one point at present.

The standings:

	Won.	Lost.	Drawn.	Pts.
Chicago	14	2	1	29
Washington Park	14	3	0	28
Winnetka	13	2	2	28

Other games today:

Winnetka vs. Melbourne at Washington Park.
Hyde Park vs. Oak Park at 48th street and the Outer drive.
Lake Forest vs. Lake Shore at Lake Forest.
Garfield Park vs. Milwaukee at River Forest.

Burleigh Likes Burley, So Dodgers Will Have 2 Grimes

Pittsburgh, Pa., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Burley Grimes, a left handed pitcher who pitched for Jonesboro in the Arkansas State league this season, reported at the Brooklyn Dodgers' camp today and talked so convincingly that Burleigh Grimes, Dodger manager, gave him a tryout. "He looks pretty good," said Burleigh of Burley. "I'll probably sign him a little later and send him to a minor league club on option."

JEDRZEJOWSKA'S FOOT HURT; MAY END CAMPAIGN

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Jadwiga Jedrzejowska, Polish tennis star, who arrived today for the Pacific southwest tournament, reported a foot injury suffered on the train last night may keep her from continuing her American campaign.

"The train, she jerked, and I go oop," explained the Wimbledon and national open runner up.

Baron Gottfried von Cramm of Germany served notice he would be a leading contender for the men's title by displaying a smashing brand of tennis in an exhibition match. The German paired with Alice Marble of San Francisco against Helen Jacobs of Berkeley and Donald Budge of Oakland to win the first of the two sets, 9-7, and lose the second by the same score.

TEMPLETON FOUR BEATS AURORA IN CUP TOURNEY

Westbury, N. Y., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Winston Guest's Templeton four opened defense of the Monty Waterbury memorial polo cup today, defeating Aurora in the first match of the high goal handicap event, 16 to 7.

HURLS 2D NO HIT GAME OF YEAR TO GIVE TEAM FLAG

Centreville, Md., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Joe Kohlman pitched a no-hit, no-run game today as the Salisbury Indians scored a 7 to 0 victory over the Centreville Colts to win the Eastern Shore league pennant. It was his second no-hit, no-run game this season.

Only 29 men faced Kohlman, the league's star hurler, who, with four teammates, will join the Washington Senators tomorrow. He walked one man and an error put another on base.

ROSS, ESCOBAR, AMBERS DEFEND TITLES THURSDAY

Parade of Champions at New York.

New York, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The nearest thing to a pugilistic world war since the gaslight days of the gay nineties will be held Thursday night at the Polo Grounds when Promoter Mike Jacobs produces his carnival of champions.

Three world championships will be at stake simultaneously for the first time in history. New Orleans furnished the nearest parallel, in 1892, when on successive nights Jack McAuliffe knocked out Billy Myer in defense of the lightweight crown, George Dixon whipped Jack Skelly to keep the featherweight title, and, as a grand climax, Gentleman Jim Corbett knocked out John L. Sullivan in the first glove fight for the heavyweight championship.

In next week's show Sixto Escobar, Lou Ambers, and Barney Ross, respective holders of the world bantomweight, lightweight, and welterweight crowns, meet the challenges of Harry Jeffra of Baltimore, Pedro Montanez of Porto Rico, and Ceferina Garcia of the Philippines.

A fourth major attraction involves Marcel Thil of France, holder of the European middleweight championship and claimant of the world title, and Fred Apostoli of San Francisco. By official edict, however, this has been stripped of title significance. The recognized middleweight title holder in this country is Freddie Steele of Tacoma, Wash.

All four bouts will be over the championship distance of fifteen rounds.

Randolph League Champions Win Opening Bowling Series

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

The Mineralites, defending champions, were in midseason form, and Bud Wright, one of their mainstays, was even better than that, when the 27th annual season of the Randolph Bowling league opened at the 29 West Randolph Street alleys.

In gaining three victories over the Black Hawk club the Mineralites piled up a total of 3,054 pins, a large portion of which were contributed by Wright, who shocked himself and other members of the league by obtaining a 714 series. This count is more than acceptable to any topnotch bowler after the season is well progressed, but on opening night that's more than the most hopeful pin toppler expects.

If any average bowler has been fretting about getting a game of 108 in his first effort of the season he has company in Vic Malecki, a former city singles champion and member of the Randolph league.

Of the new teams in the league the Union Printers made a creditable showing by winning two of their three games from the Whitecaps.

Windy City League.

Only the J. M. Kralovecs and the Serrano Cigarros were able to sweep their inaugural series in the Windy City Major league, the opening of which was marked by the 655 series rolled by Ceitham]. Tomorrow night's schedule:

William Smith vs. Soper Brothers, Vogel Brothers vs. Boyer Schultz, Blazek Tailors vs. McKessons Old Crows, Serrano Cigarros vs. O'Keefe Coals, Whitecaps vs. J. M. Kralovecs, Burlington Zephyrs vs. Strachan Old Ben Coals, Mineralites vs. Town Club of Cicero, Budweisers vs. G. & W. Mill Farm.

Here and There.

The 30 team league of the Portage Park Athletic club will launch its season at the Garden Recreation tomorrow night. William L. Murray is president. . . . On Friday evening the Peoples Gas Club league opened its schedule with 44 teams in action at the Bensinger, 131 South Wabash alleys. . . . Employés of the Bismarck hotel will try their luck at getting strikes and spares starting Wednesday evening at the Lake View alleys. There are six teams named for the public dining rooms in the hotel. . . . Another opening this week is that of the Tribune Night Hawk league, whose members are printers and editorial department workers. This organization will get under way at 2 a. m. Wednesday at the 29 West Randolph alleys.

About the Women.

Twenty teams have begun firing away in the Congress Women's league, leading pin organization for women in the city. On opening night Mary Gordon totaled 641. May Davidson's 245 was high game and the Budweiser Girls' 996 game and 2727 series were the best team efforts. Other leading scores:

Nettie Kolb, 515; Wilma Wright, 569; Edna Glatz, 513; Berenice Kranz, 517; Adeline Waddell, 537; Anna Manz, 531; Emily Lange, 524; Florence Waterman, 530; Betty Ramsey, 516; Agnes Pitelka, 527; Catherine Fellmeth, 513; Emma Munzel, 506; Berenice Kemph, 506; Eva Phillips, 512; Evelyn Rogan, 529; Ethel Kelly, 517; Mae Ebert, 558; Nellie Kellogg, 532; Margaret Immel, 510; Grace Leiferman, 527; Maud Konen, 540; Celia Grob, 571; Henrietta Wilman, 506; Carrie Enders, 527; Irene Engle, 562; Marie Warmbier; 508; Laura Stellmacher, 527; Lillian Jung, 564; Tess Morris, 536; Dorothy Burmeister, 638; Ida Stockmar, 539; Anna Flint, 523; Sally Ostrowski, 521.

Wednesday's schedule:

Evans Fur Company vs. Art Williams, Triangle Shirts vs. Bee Vac, Anna Flints vs. Queen Recreation, Riddell Athletic Shoe vs. Congress Recreation, Leo's Red Lions vs. Villa Moderne, Morris B. Sachs vs. Lincoln Bottling, Budweiser Girls vs. Logan Square Buicks, Murray's White City vs. Mabel Cummings, Brucks vs. B. A. Railton, Garden City Brewery vs. De Young Fuel.

North End League.

Three teams topped the 3,000 mark in the second week of the North End Traveling league with the Schamberger Schlitz total of 3,078, which included a 1,106 game, being high. The Michelobs, despite their 3,047, lost two games to the Schlitz boys and the Goldammer Milfords piled up 3,022 for a clean sweep over the Keeley Beer quintet. The Birk Brothers, with a 1,053 game, took two from the Budweisers to hold the league lead. The Kruse Stations won three from Fox De Luxe and the Samuelsons took the odd game from Richter's Sausage.

ANGOTT FACES MARQUART ON MARIGOLD CARD

Sammy Seeks to Extend 18 Victories String.

Sammy Angott, Louisville, Ky., featherweight, who possesses a record of 18 straight victories, will figure in the headline bout on this week's calendar against Billy Marquart at Marigold Gardens tomorrow. They meet for eight rounds in the 119th show presented under the auspices of Irving Schoenwald and Jack Begun.

The chances of Marquart, whose victory chain of 13 was broken by Varias Milling May 3, to register an upset triumph over Angott depend on his ability to explode the dynamite he carries in either hand. Sammy's reputation is not causing Marquart or his manager, Jack Hurley, uneasiness.

"I don't care about an opponent's age, reputation, or experience," the manager explained. "Ability to cope with the style of an antagonist is a fighter's chief asset, and the aggressive Angott has a style Marquart will solve."

Marquart watched Angott defeat Jimmy Christy at Marigold Aug. 23, and he makes no secret of the fact that Angott's showing did not impress him.

Horseshoe Pitchers to Compete in A. A. U. Meet

The first annual Central A. A. U. horseshoe pitching tournament will be held at the Lincoln park courts next Sunday. Qualifying trials for the singles will commence at 10 a. m. with finals at 1 o'clock. Elimination contests and finals in the doubles will be run off at 3 p. m.

Cigars Needn't Interfere with KISSES

The Metallic Nose Knows

Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor . . . to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten different brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was at least 25% easier on the breath than all the others. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

Smokers' test shows that White Owls are at least 25% easier on your breath

YOU don't have to give up cigars—or kisses either. Choose the cigar that is easier on your breath! Then enjoy both.

New scientific discoveries have shown that White Owl's Vintage tobacco is exceptionally low in the substances that cause unpleasant tobacco breath. Tests with a delicate osmoscope prove that this tobacco leaves less odor.

White Owl is a better cigar because it always has a Vintage-tobacco filler. Nature—not artificial factory processing—made this tobacco exceptionally mild, mellow.

We maintain a vast crop-inspection system—the only known organization of its kind—to locate Vintage tobacco. Even in Vintage years, we classify all filler tobacco into seven grades—and use only tobacco of the quality of the top three for White Owls.

Look for a White Owl the next time you feel like smoking. Light it up and let your taste tell you that it's better than ever. This will please the ladies, too.

SKY LARKING IS DESTROYED AFTER FRACTURING LEG

Leader of Two Year Olds; Menow Wins.

New York, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Tragedy threw the race for the 2 year old turf championship wide open today when Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Sky Larking, leading contender for the honors, broke a leg and was destroyed as Hal Price Headley's Menow came through with an unexpected victory in the 67th Champagne stakes at Belmont Park.

The bay son of Blue Larkspur, a $13,500 investment as a yearling, snapped his right foreleg three furlongs from the finish of the six and a half furlong sprint while racing head and head with Menow. There was no chance to save the speedy colt which had won five of six races, including the Hopeful, and earned $41,135.

Alfred Robertson, who escaped injury when thrown from Sky Larking, was heart broken, crying like a baby as he returned to the jockies' room in the starter's wagon.

"The best horse I ever rode," cried the veteran rider. "Why did such a thing have to happen to him?"

Crowd Is Shocked.

The accident so shocked 15,000 fans that they nad few cheers for Menow as Charley Kurtsinger drove the 12 to 1 shot on to win the purse of $4,225 by four lengths from Warren Wright's Bull Lea, which also finished second to Sky Larking in the Hopeful. Another length and a half back trailed William Woodward's Fighting Fox, a brother of Gallant Fox, maintaining a record of having finished in the money in each of four starts.

Sky Larking, whipped only in the Arlington Futurity, was the even money choice. He broke from the barrier as if to quickly justify the favorite's rôle. For three-sixteenths of a mile he battled stride for stride with the Kentucky-owned Menow. Then he began to falter. Gamely he tried to carry on, but his leg snapped and a gasp went up from the throats of thousands watching through their binoculars. The majority kept their glasses on the ill-fated colt as the remainder of the field sped past.

Back of the three leaders at the finish in order trailed C. V. Whitney's The Chief and Dauber, the Wheatley stable's Quick Devil, Maefleet from Dewitt Page's Maemere farm, and the Natoma stable's Bright News.

The Third Victim.

Sky Larking was the third famous horse to be destroyed in recent years at Belmont Park. The Wheatley stable's Dark Secret had to be destroyed after winning the 1934 Jocky club gold cup and Mrs. John Bosley's Chase Me met the same fate during the running of the Metropolitan handicap the same year.

The death of Mrs. Mars' ace took some of the interest away from the 68th running of the Jerome handicap, in which Myron Selznick's 12 to 1 shot, Pasha, defeated eight other 3 year olds in a mile race for $4,930.

Ridden by Lester Balaski, Pasha closed fast to finish a half length in front of the heavily backed Regal Lily, Walter M. Jefford's Man o' War filly. The latter just managed to nose out W. H. Gallagher's pace setting Rudie in the battle for runnerup honors.

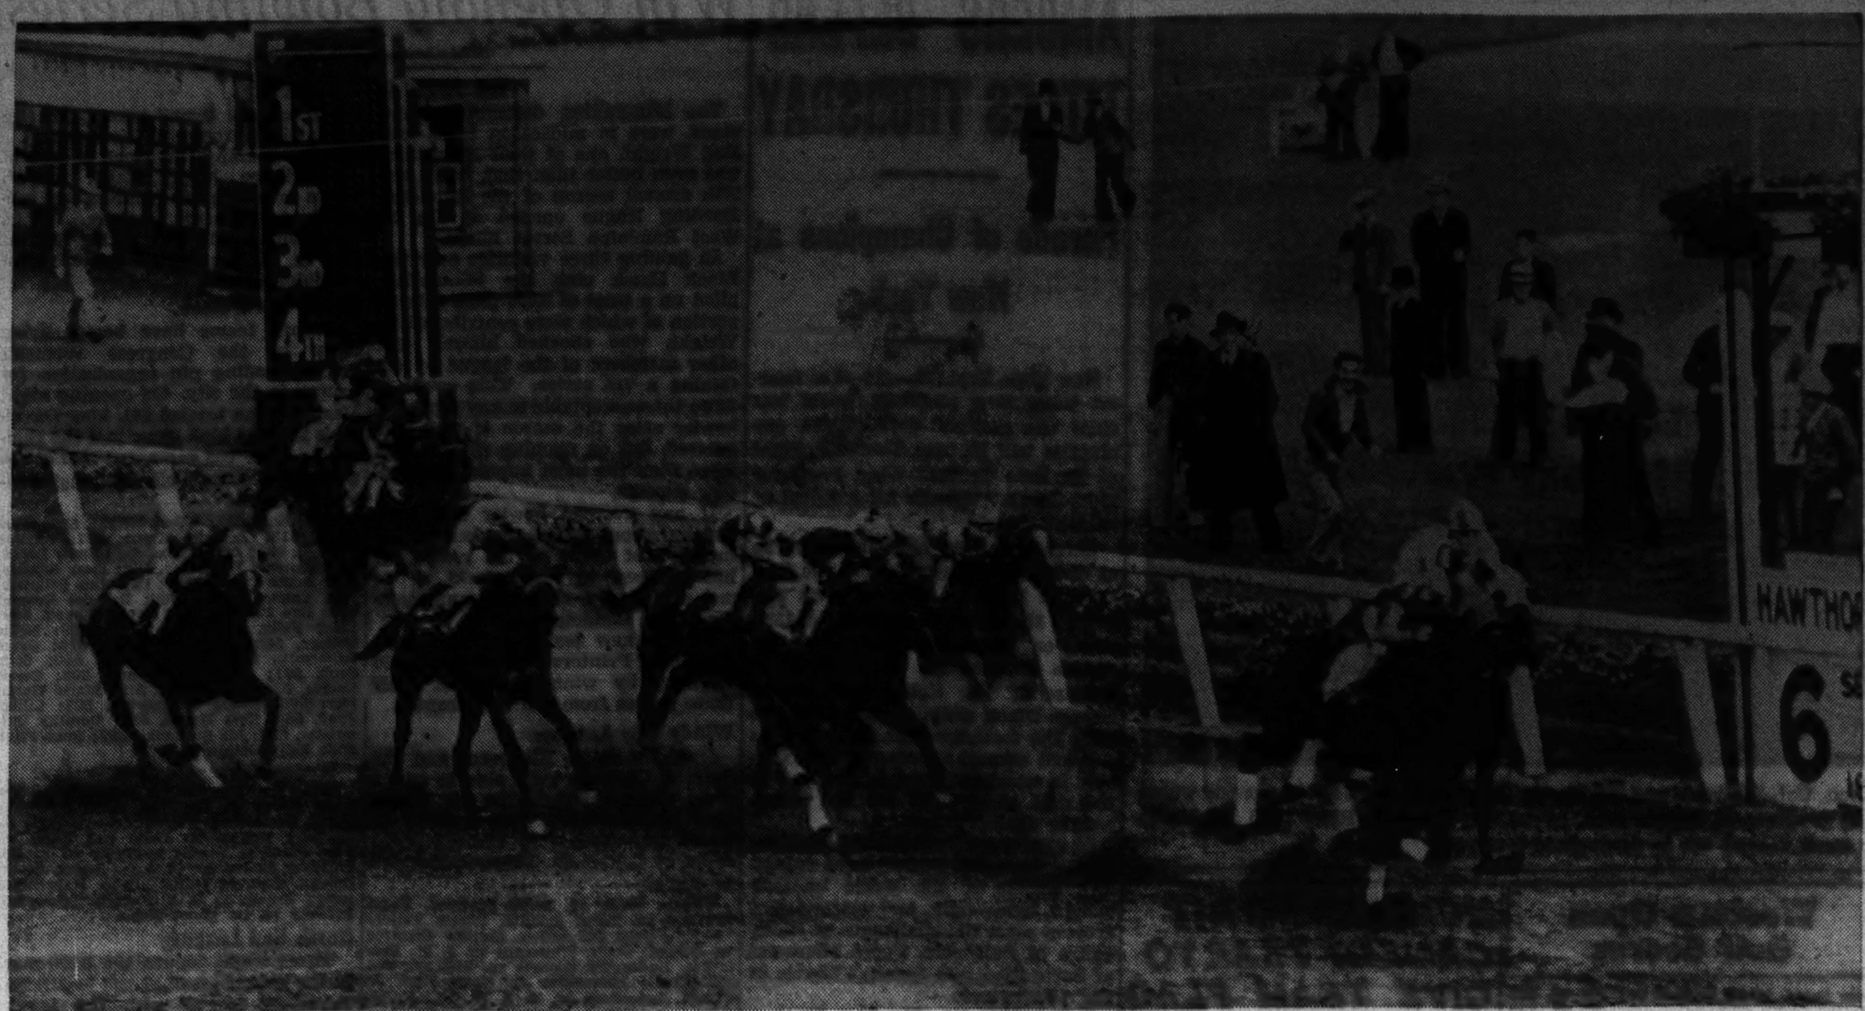
REAPING A HARVEST OF $20.20 FOR HIS BACKERS



Sixteen thousand fans at Hawthorne see Sahri II., South American mare which won the $15,000 Gold cup last week, finish in seventh place as Reaping, owned by Mrs. A. M. Creech, captures the $2,500 sprint handicap yesterday. Reaping (leading on the outside) sweeps to the finish in front after coming from behind in the stretch. Reaping beat Double B., owned by J. D. Weil, by three-quarters of a length and paid off at $20.20 for $2. Transmutable, owned by I. C. Little, was third.

Time, :23, :47 1-5, 1:13 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Be Blue, $7.40 straight, $4.80 place, $3.80 show; Rommy, $7.80 place, $5.80 show; Sister Polly, $14.00 show. Winner trained by T. Marshall. Went to post at 2:15½. At post 7½ minutes. Start bad from gate. Won handily; place driving.

BE BLUE, lucky and well up from the start, cut off several contenders when being forced over by TRANSVIEW in the opening quarter, drew into command when continuing on the inside after reaching the turn, was shaken up in the final eighth, and probably had little left. ROMMY, much used at the post and required to start from a position outside the stalls, began poorly; bore out badly the first half mile; came with a rush when straightened in the stretch, and appeared much the best. SISTER POLLY, away in a tangle, began to move up after three-eighths, entered contention with a rush in the stretch, and held on gamely to the end.

SECOND RACE—Mile and one-sixteenth. Purse $800. Net value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25.

†Disqualified. Time, :24, :47 4-5, 1:13 1-5, 1:39 3-5, 1:46 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Almac $6.60 straight, $3.60 place, $2.60 show; Second Guess, $4.80 place, $3.60 show; Redress, $2.80 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 2:54. At post ½ minute. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same.

ALMAC, raced wide throughout, began to move up after a half mile, was under severe pressure the final quarter, and got up in the last stride. MARFEU followed the early pace under restraint, moved up on the outside of SECOND GUESS when called upon, repeatedly impeded the latter when holding on stubbornly in the drive, and was disqualified for the fouling. SECOND GUESS took command easily, was racing in hand when MARFEU came to him, suffered sharp interference when going resolutely in the drive, and might have been best. REDRESS, badly outrun for five-eighths and raced wide the last half mile, closed with a rush and was strongest of all at the end.

THIRD RACE—Mile and one-sixteenth. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $75; fourth, $25.

Time, :24 2-5, :48, 1:13 1-5, 1:39 2-5, 1:46 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Come to Taw, $9.80 straight, $5.40 place, $3.80 show; Desgai, $4.80 place, $3.00 show; Timberline, $2.40 show. Winner trained by owner. Went to post at 3:25. At post 1¼ minutes. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving.

COME TO TAW, much the best and taken to the outside approaching the final half mile, raced to the lead gradually, swerved over slightly before drawing clear and, opening up a commanding advantage before reaching the final eighth, held sway easily thereafter. DESGAI, well up early, dropped back slightly on the far turn, responded when straightened up on the outside in the stretch, and outgamed TIMBERLINE. The latter, in hand early, had to be eased when COME TO TAW swerved over in front of him on the stretch turn, recovered quickly, and stood a drive gamely.

Time, :23, :46 2-5, 1:12 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Keokee $14.20 straight, $5.40 place, $3.40 show; Our Crest $4.00 place, $2.80 show; Pertladdie $3.40 show. Winner trained by F. Nancolas. Went to post at 3:55. At post 3½ minutes. Start good from gate. Won handily; place driving.

KEOKEE followed the early pace under restraint, came around OUR CREST with a rush and, under vigorous riding, held his advantage in the final eighth, but had little left. OUR CREST took command easily; was on the inside throughout, and sustained good speed to the end, though no match for the winner. PERTLADDIE, well up from the start, raced wide and showed a game effort.

FIFTH RACE—Six and a half furlongs. Purse $2,500, added. Net value to winner, $1,965; second, $500; third, $250; fourth, $125.

Time, :22 4-5, :46 1-5, 1:12, 1:19 1-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Co-Sport $5.00 straight, $3.20 place, $2.60 show; Employer $2.60 place, $2.40 show; Allanwood $2.60 show. Winner trained by R. T. Runnels. Went to post at 4:26. Off at once. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving.

CO-SPORT, much the best and kept on the inside when under strong restraint the first quarter, went out badly when racing around the leaders under urging on the turn; quickly overtook EMPLOYER when straight in the stretch, and came away fast in the final eighth. EMPLOYER, on the inside early and eased to go to the outside of ALUP and DIXIELAND on the turn; took a short lead when under strong urging entering the stretch, but could not withstand the winner and weakened in the late stages. ALLANWOOD, slow to begin, raced wide the final three-eighths and showed an even effort.

SIXTH RACE—Six furlongs. Handicap. Three year olds and up. Purse, $2,500 added. Net value to winner, $2,225; second, $500; third, $250; fourth, $125.

Time, :22 3-5, :46, 1:11 4-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Reaping, $20.20 straight, $9.20 place, $6.40 show; Double B, $4.80 place, $3.40 show; Transmutable, $17.00 show. Winner trained by B. Creech. Went to post at 4:56. At post 1½ minutes. Start good. Won driving; place same.

REAPING, slow to begin and under light weight, began to improve his position when racing wide on the turn, obtained room behind horses when continuing resolutely in the stretch and, wearing down DOUBLE B, drew out fast in the last few strides. The latter, well up from the start and always under strong urging, took command quickly after reaching the final eighth, but tired and could not hold the winner. TRANSMUTABLE had high speed from the start, swerved out badly in the stretch, and gave way steadily after five-eighths.

SEVENTH RACE—Mile and three-fourths. Claiming. Four year olds and up. Purse $1,000. Net value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $75; fourth, $25.

Time, :24 4-5, :49 4-5, 1:16 2-5, 1:43, 2:08 3-5, 2:36 1-5, 3:04 2-5. Equals track record. Two dollar mutuels paid: Big Gawk, $5.60 straight, $3.60 place, $3.00 show; Bold Bid, $5.60 place, $3.80 show; Monocle, $4.00 show. Winner trained by R. S. Byrum. Went to post at 5:26½. At post 1 minute. Start good. Won easily; place driving.

BIG GAWK took command easily, was rated under a snug hold to the final quarter and, shaken up, continued well to hold BOLD BID safe to the end. The latter, under strong restraint for a mile and one-quarter, stood pressure gamely thereafter, but could not reach the leader. MONOCLE, badly outrun for a mile, held on well, passing tired horses in the final quarter.

Time, :24, :48 1-5, 1:13 1-5, 1:39 4-5, 1:47 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Martin Barton, $6.40 straight, $3.80 place, $3.00 show; Miss Firefly, $6.60 place, $5.00 show; Emily Jane, $4.60 show. Winner trained by A. G. Tarn. Went to post at 5:58. At post ½ minute. Start good. Won easily; place driving.

MARTIN BARTON forced the pace under restraint, took command gradually when called upon and, shaken up in the final eighth, probably had little in reserve. MISS FIREFLY, taken back early, bore out on the first turn, again went out when beginning to move up on the final turn and, closing boldly when straight, wore down EMILY JANE in the final strides. Latter saved ground throughout and had no mishaps.

Reaping Takes $2,500 Sprint; Sahri II. 7th

In 1936 he started 45 times and was in the money on 24 occasions. Six times he was the winner. He was making his 23d start of 1937 in the sprint handicap. He has been in the money eleven times this year and has been victorious in seven of those engagements.

His three-quarters in 1:11 4-5 was the fastest of the Hawthorne meeting. It is far short of the track record, but the Hawthorne running strip has been dull throughout the meeting.

Co-Sport, long striding bay son of Cohort-Sportress which races for Ben Friend, rolled up his third straight stake triumph in the Juvenile event.

He galloped six and one-half furlongs in the good time of 1:19 1-5 to beat Mrs. Bryant Ott's juvenile Employer by four lengths. Allenwood, after getting away slowly, showed fine speed in the stretch. He was up in time to take down third money. Dixieland was fourth and Alup last in the five horse field.

Co-Sport's Backers Get $5.

Co-Sport and Employer both had mustered many backers. Co-Sport paid $5 for a $2 ticket.

Alup was the early leader, with Co-Sport in fourth place. On the last turn Co-Sport dashed up into the lead. He pulled away from his rivals all the way down the stretch. Co-Sport carried top weight of 124 pounds. It was his ninth victory of the season.

Co-Sport was claimed from Warren Wright by Owner Friend at Arlington Park on July 19 for $4,000. He has won six times in eight starts since then. The colt's total earnings for the year, including the $1,965 he picked up yesterday, is $10,595. He is the best horse taken out of a claiming race in Chicago this season.

The next best attraction was the mile and three-quarters race which came seventh on the program. It was the first race at this distance ever run over the Hawthorne track.

Big Gawk Likes a Distance.

Big Gawk, once a performer for Col. Edward R. Bradley and a son of North Star III.-Bed of Roses, made a runaway of the long distance affair.

For the first mile and a half he enjoyed a lead of five and six lengths at all times. He tired slightly in the final furlongs, but still was able to stagger home the winner by two lengths. Boldbid finished second and Monocle was third.

Discourse, the heavily backed favorite, broke down in the race. Finally he stumbled into the infield rail. He never was a contender.

Big Gawk paid $5.60 for $2 after he had scored his easy triumph.

WIND PREVENTS GREYHOUND'S TRY FOR MILE RECORD

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 18.—(AP)—A high wind again prevented Greyhound, 5 year old trotter, from making an assault today on the world trotting record for one mile.

The existing mark of 1:56¾ was set by Peter Manning in 1922.

Greyhound was scheduled to go after the record last week, but a heavy rain washed out the trial. On Tuesday he was to have tried again, but the high wind made high speed unlikely at the shorter distance, so he went for the mile and a half mark and succeeded in clipping almost 10 seconds off the record, set by Rosalind at 3:12¼. Greyhound went the distance in 3:02½.

MEETING CLOSES; LID CLAMPED ON NARRAGANSETT

Providence, R. I., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Less than an hour after the current race meet closed tonight at Narragansett park, the state racing commission clamped down a suspension of the track's license in an order that also called for removal of Walter E. O'Hara as managing director by Sept. 30.

Chairman Francis J. Kiernan of the racing commission said the suspension was indefinite.

Late Meet Periled.

Hanging in the balance was the late fall meet at the Pawtucket track—one of the richest in the nation—which is scheduled to open Oct. 18. Suspension of the license brought what appeared a final showdown in a battle that has ripped this little state with accusations and denials. In many quarters it was expected track interests would seek a court review on the commission's order.

Silence from the O'Hara camp met the order, which was effective at 7 p. m. Edward T. Hogan, one of O'Hara's attorneys, said only:

"There is nothing contemplated at the moment."

Governor Called a "A—— Liar."

Pending were criminal libel charges brought on behalf of Gov. Quinn and William E. Beehan, New York advertising man, against the turfman-publisher, and a petition to put the track under a receivership, filed by a minority stockholder.

O'Hara was ordered held for the grand jury yesterday on Quinn's charge that he called the governor "a—— liar" in his newspaper, the Providence Star-Tribune. A hearing on the Beehan complaint is scheduled for Sept. 23.

VICTORY WINS IN COLUMBIA CLUB'S CRUISER EVENT

Offshore Wind Stops Two Scheduled Races.

A blustery southwest to west wind scudded out into the lake yesterday and kept two yacht clubs from holding races. Two other clubs held theirs despite the weather.

Carl Norberg sailed his 39 foot gaff rigged sloop, Victory, to first place in the Columbia Yacht club cruiser race for the Commodore's cup. Victory won on both finishing and corrected time. The mainsail on Milton Friend's 36 foot cutter Betty Bro was torn in a 30 mile gust of wind. With only jib and stay sails to the wind, Betty Bro completed the race by tacking with its headsails. Baccarat, Louis Ainbinder's 47 foot cutter, was forced to withdraw from the race when its mainsail was torn. R. C. Richheimer was at Baccarat's helm. The course was off Grant park.

Five Jackson Park Yacht club cruising yachts and one racing sloop started and finished a twelve mile triangular race. Ann, E. G. Daniels' cutter, was the winning cruising cutter. Shamrock, John O'Rourke's 8 meter class sloop, sailed the course alone, finishing far ahead of the cruising craft.

The Chicago Yacht club's regular club course competition for racing sloops was called off due to the unsteadiness of the wind.

The wind being west, offshore, the water level in Wilmette harbor fell more than a foot yesterday. It was so shallow that several of the Star class sloops rested their keels on the bottom making it impossible to sail the scheduled race. Summaries:

CHALLENGE RACE TODAY

Thirty motor yachts, one of the largest fleets of power craft to race in Chicago waters this season, will compete this afternoon in the annual challenge race between the Southern Shore and Jackson Park yacht clubs.

The race is a navigational consistency race with seven different courses to be followed by contestants. The directions and distances will not be announced by the race committee until the 30 skippers are handed sealed orders before the start. Competing craft vary in size and engine power, and any handicaps given will be applied at the start. Thus all entries theoretically finish at the same time. The yacht crossing the finish line closest to the theoretical finish time will be given the maximum number of points.

If a Jackson Park Yacht club entry is victorious, it wins the race for its club. The same rule applies for Southern Shore Yacht club cruisers. The losing club must provide a trophy to be presented to the winners. Cruiser owners-skippers of the Jackson Park Yacht club are challenging the Southern Shore defenders for this contest.

Yachts will start between 2:30 and 3 o'clock, according to the race committee.

JOCKY DIES

Sydney Erwin of Dallas, Tex., who was fatally injured when thrown from a horse during race yesterday at the Detroit Fair Grounds track.

Neck Broken in Tumble of Two Horses

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Jocky Sydney Erwin was killed in a fall at the Detroit race track this afternoon. Erwin's neck was broken when Charley Dawn, the horse he was riding, fell over Busy Lutrecia, another horse which had fallen. Jocky Bobby McCarthy, Busy Lutrecia's rider, also was thrown, but was uninjured.

Erwin was 27 years old. His home was at Dallas, Tex. He was married and had one child. The accident occurred as the field came into the stretch in the fourth race. Busy Lutrecia was running alongside Sablin. Wild Pigeon drove up on the outside and Busy Lutrecia tripped and fell. Charley Dawn was so close behind Busy Lutrecia that he could not dodge and fell over her.

ST. ADRIAN NINE AND LOUISVILLE TO CLASH TODAY

St. Adrian baseball team of the south side, winner of the Catholic Youth organization title, and St. Benedict, champion of the Catholic Baseball league of Louisville, Ky., will clash in the annual intercity game at Comiskey park this afternoon.

This will be the fifth meeting between Chicago C. Y. O. baseball champions and the Louisville title winners. The series is even thus far, each having won and lost two contests. St. Adrian handed Louisville one of its defeats in 1935, when it won over St. Elizabeth, 9 to 4.

Ray [Lefty] Owens, who pitched St. Adrian to the city and state C. Y. O. championships, will hurl for the south side team. Field events for players will be held before the game.

SOVIETS EXPECT TO RIDE GOLD TO WORLD POWER

Secret Police Drive Mine Labor.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[This is the first of a series of three articles on Russian gold production and economic policies.]

RIGA, Latvia, Sept. 18.—Bolshevism's opportunity to play a still more important rôle in world politics through increasing Russia's gold production is fully realized by the soviet government, which is taking extraordinary measures to increase the population of the Ural and Siberian gold fields.

Soviet Dictator Josef Stalin.

For ten years gold production in Russia has been under control of the G. P. U. [secret police], now called the commissariat of interior. American engineers, employed as specialists by the soviets, confirm reports that extensive gold mining in Siberia is under G. P. U. management and that the people of the gold bearing districts are not permitted to return to their homes in Russia once their sentence of forced labor has been served.

Caused Many Uprisings.

Dictator Stalin's decision to collectivize agriculture in Russia resulted in many local uprisings and hundreds of thousands of kulaks [farmers who employed farmhands] were driven from their homes and transported to the Siberian gold fields. This policy, started in 1928, caused an immediate increase in gold production. In 1928 Russia produced approximately 1,000,000 ounces of gold. In 1935 it produced 6,000,000 ounces and this year hopes to exceed South Africa's production of 11,000,000 ounces. With such a production of gold the Moscow government expects to find a warmer reception in London than it has been accorded in the past.

A few months ago Russia suddenly exported approximately $100,000,000 of gold. This caused a "panic" in London where many private hoarders decided to sell all or a part of their holdings. Soothing declarations by Montagu Norman and Secretary Morgenthau, who asserted the United States would not cut the price of gold, failed to halt the panic and for a short time the price of gold wavered. America came to the rescue of England and bought the larger part of the soviet gold and much of the offered hoardings.

Europe Cuts Gold Reserves.

Central bank officials of most European countries have been watching the attempts of England and America to maintain the price of gold at its artificially high level. During the last six years the majority of the European banks liquidated part of their gold holdings. A study of their balance sheets reveals that their holdings of valuta [foreign currencies] have increased while their gold reserves decreased. All these banks today are doing everything possible to increase their holdings of dollars and pounds sterling. They do not believe the present price of gold can be maintained. They are speculating on the possibility of America suddenly balking at holding the sack for England and reducing the price of gold. If this happens their dollars and pounds will increase in value.

But a number of these bank presidents assert that even if gold decreases in value they see no reason for purchasing larger supplies. They are willing to continue accumulating dollars and pounds whose gold backing is more than sufficient and permit these to serve as backing for their own currencies.

Causes of Gold "Boycotts."

Clearing agreements which have been arranged by most European countries also contribute to this unofficial boycott of gold by the smaller nations of Europe. Sweden's decision to utilize a large portion of her gold reserve to purchase supplies of raw materials and store them in anticipation of increased prices has influenced other countries to do the same. Another interesting fact is that in countries where the population formerly bought and hoarded gold, fantastic prices asked for gold pieces have caused people to bank their savings and to invest in real estate.

The soviet press contends that Europe's economic recovery is based on an armament boom and therefore is not permanent. Bolshevik economists predict that the present improvement will either end in a war or, if a feeling of international security can be achieved, then a new world crisis will arise. Moscow is basing her economic and foreign policy on this theory.

Russians Get Pay Boosts, but Look at Costs

MOSCOW.—(AP)—Higher wages and lower prices are raising the soviet worker's income and standard of living, Pravda, the communist newspaper, reports. Prices of both food and manufactured goods are considerably lower than they were in 1934, the newspaper said, estimating the reductions would keep 1,450,000,000 rubles in the pockets of the workers this year.

"There are still defects in the trade organization, however, which prevent further reduction of prices and which should be eliminated," Pravda said.

White bread is selling at less than half its 1934 price at 2.60 rubles a pound, which is 49½ cents at par. Loaf sugar, at 1.90 rubles [36 cents] a pound, is only 27 per cent of its 1934 price. Butter at 7.95 rubles [$1.51] a pound and beefsteak at 4.36 rubles [83 cents] a pound are 51.5 and 36.7 per cent cheaper.

Reports Average Salaries.

The annual average salary of a worker employed in heavy industry, the paper said, has increased from 6,513 rubles [$1,240] in 1932 to 11,017 rubles [$2,098] in 1936. The average cash incomes of collective farmers since 1935 show an increase of 761 [$145] to 1,006 [$192] rubles in the Azov,Black Sea province; from 1,528 [$291] to 2,150 [$409] rubles in Crimea, and from 2,274 [$433] to 3,775 [$719] rubles in Uzbekistan. The farmers, in addition to money, also receive payment in fruits, vegetables, and grain for flour.

Vegetable and fruit prices are easier on the housewife's purse, statistics show, as a result of larger production by the collective farms for city markets. In Moscow, potatoes and carrots are about 18 [3.4 cents] kopeks a pound and cabbage 23 kopeks [4.4 cents]. A kopek is onehundredth of a ruble.

The abundance of vegetables and fruits, in fact, has resulted in what Izvestia, government newspaper, calls "criminal spoiling" in the Moscow railroad yards, and suggests that officials of the vegetable trust be prosecuted.

Distribution System Faulty.

Moscow receives 160 to 170 carloads of vegetables daily, but only 100 to 120 cars are unloaded, the newspaper said. As a result, heaps of potatoes, cabbage, and cucumbers were found rotting in the yards where only eight trucks were provided to haul the thousands of tons of produce to the stores and markets. Pravda suggested American food-handling methods be adopted.

"American experience in mass production of semi-manufactured goods, refrigeration of vegetables and fruits, and wrapping, packing and preparation of goods to be sold in weighed packages may be used by our food industry and should be used as soon as possible," Pravda said.

Wildcat Oil Well Near Noble, Ill., Starts Flowing

Olney, Ill., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—The Mammoth Oil company's Lee Heitz No. 1 wildcat well, three miles northeast of Noble came in under its own power this afternoon producing 123 barrels in the first hour. Herman Livingston, head of the Mammoth company, said tonight the well would produce "three thousand barrels or better in the first 24 hours" making it the biggest producer in the southeastern Illinois field to date.

REP. MARTIN ASSAILS TRADE TREATIES AS A BLOW TO U.S. WORKERS

Worcester, Mass., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Asserting that Massachusetts wage earners were threatened with the "impoverishing effect" of reciprocal tride treaties, Representative Joseph W. Martin Jr. [R., Mass.] today urged a protest to the state department against a proposed agreement with Czecho-Slovakia.

"If American workmen are to compete with the conditions of virtual serfdom which prevail in China, Japan, and Czecho-Slovakia," Martin said, "then we must prepare to abandon the American standard of living."

Martin said the "well meaning but misguided Secretary Hull" was negotiating a treaty with Czecho-Slovakia, and that cotton textiles, woolen carpets, shoes, silverware, furniture, and jewelry were only a few of the many items manufactuered in New England which were in the agenda for consideration.

"Let us say to the administration we will not permit the American workers to be crucified on the cross of a mistaken 'good neighbor' policy," he urged.

NEW NATIONAL BANK TO OPEN ON NORTHWEST SIDE

Plans for opening a new bank in quarters of the old Inland-Irving National bank at Irving Park boulevard and Cicero avenue, were announced yesterday by John H. Klunder, president of the Dependon Roofing compang and one of the organizers.

The new institution will be known as the Northwest National bank of Chicago, according to Klunder. Word was received Friday from Washington, he said, that a national bank charter will be granted.

W. W. Pearson will be president of the bank and W. W. Turner vice president and cashier.

The organizing committee will meet tomorrow night to complete plans for the bank and to decide on an opening date, Klunder said.

INDUSTRY INDEX LOWER; NEARLY ALL LINES FALL

New York, Sept. 18.—(AP)—The industrial tempo slowed down this week, all the major indices except railroad car loadings declined. The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index of industrial activity dropped to 103.0 of the 1929-'30 average from 104.6 last week. It stood at 94.0 in the same period a year ago.

The index, with its seasonally adjusted components based on 1929-'30 as 100, compared as follows:

	Last wk.	Prev. wk.	Yr. ago.

U.S. Bureau Blames Closing of Schools for Light Trade

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—(AP)—The commerce department said today postponement of school openings in Chicago, brought about by infantile paralysis cases there, may account in part for "light" retail trade in mid-September. The department said Chicago's trade was light despite "more favorable weather conditions." "Some fall buying was evident, but the general condition is substantially unchanged," the department said.

Guesses of U.S. Idle Bad, Says Business Chief

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—(AP)—President George H. Davis of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States said today an impartial survey of the employable jobless would show their numbers had been exaggerated and disprove alleged needs for spreading work by reducing working hours.

George H. Davis.

Referring to President Roosevelt's challenges to industry to absorb the unemployed, the business spokesman said the public should be given the facts of the situation. He talked to reporters at about the same time the chamber's official review announced the prospects are for rising business this fall which may bring "additions to employment to the point of labor shortage."

Many Unfitted for Work.

Davis said current unemployment figures include many persons too old or too young to work, persons otherwise unfitted for work, and others who do not want jobs. He said the number of persons wanting and able to work may be only half of popular estimates."

Saying business was called on to solve unemployment after the politicians found their "panaceas don't work," Davis asserted that an analysis of the employable jobless indicated "that legislative remedies to increase employment are based on a misconception of the relief problem as well as the unemployment problem.

"No one really knows how many unemployed there are," he said, "but 5,000,000 is a popular figure. If we take that figure, probably not more than 2,500,000 are qualified to work."

What Survey Disclosed.

The chamber recently employed a statistical agency to make a sample survey of 100 relief recipients in a representative city of more than 100,000 population. The names of 50 men and 50 women were picked at random from federal and local governmental relief rolls in the city.

The survey showed, Davis said, that 44 of the 100 never had been employed in private business, 17 were over 70 years old, and 82 never had a bank or savings account.

Of the 100 only one had been employed in the machinery and equipment industries, and factory workers of all kinds constituted a minority "which makes it obvious that technilogical developments were an inconsequential factor."

"On the basis of these findings, chamber officials concluded that legislative remedies to increase employment are based upon a misconception," he said.

French Franc Holds Steady; Other Currencies Weaken

The French franc was steady in the foreign exchange market yesterday at 3.38¾ cents. Other foreign currencies were lower. The British pound declined ⅝ of a cent to $4.96, and the Swiss franc eased .005 cent. The Canadian dollar was firm at par.

STOCKS SLUMP ON ROOSEVELT'S POLICY SPEECH

Jittery Speculators Dump Holdings.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Sept. 18.—Jittery traders dumped stocks overboard today in answer to President Roosevelt's defiant attitude toward the Supreme court and his announced determination to proceed with social and economic reforms. Prices throughout the list declined fractions to more than 4 points. Industrial shares, especially the steel issues, bore the brunt of the selling.

Coupled with the pessimism engendered in the street by the President's speech and contributing to the selling was the report that the operating rate of the steel mills in the Pittsburgh area had undergone a sharp recession. Another influence was the alarming news from the Spanish war territory, especially the bombing of a British warship reportedly by Loyalist planes.

Trading Outruns Ticker.

Activity for a time was pronounced and midway through the abbreviated session the high speed ticker tape lagged a minute behind operations on the floor of the exchange.

The extent of the decline in the industrial section as measured by the Dow-Jones averages amounted to 4.32 points, but no section of the list was spared from the nervous liquidation. Out of a total of 739 issues traded only sixty-two were capable of finishing higher than the previous close, whereas 571 lost ground and 106 were unchanged.

Stocks were substantially lower on initial transactions and in most cases opening prices were the best of the day. A feeble attempt was made to rally the list in the second hour, but no convincing support appeared and the close was at or near the worst prices of the day.

U. S. Steel Off 4¼ Points.

Stocks generally followed the example of United States Steel, which came over the tape on the first sale at 93, an overnight loss of 1⅜ points, and then continued dipping until it remained a bare fraction above 90. At that level the issue met some support and moved up a point until the selling pressure was renewed, driving the stock back to its lowest level of the day for a loss of more than 4¼ points. Bethlehem also declined more than 4 points, Youngstown dropped 2⅛, National Steel lost 2, Schloss Sheffield sagged 3, and Republic declined more than a point.

Coppers, oils, and automobile shares weakened with the rest of the list and a number of new low quotations for the movement appeared on the overburdened ticker tape. General Motors and Chrysler resisted pressure for a time but finally sagged, the former giving up more than a point and the latter incurring a setback of 3⅛.

Copper Shares Fall.

Copper shares softened coincident with a further drop in the export price of the red metal by nearly a third of a cent. Anaconda dropped 2¾ and Kennecott fared equally as bad. Each recorded new lows.

Allied Chemical opened at 200, a loss of 4 points and a duplication of the low for the year. It soon dropped 8 points more, bringing its loss for the session to 12 points. Farm implement issues were hard hit. Case Threshing lost more than 5 points and International Harvester sold off 3⅝.

Carrier shares hit by losses of a point or more included Great Northern, Delawar eand Hudson, New York Central, Atchison, and Pennsylvania. Rail equipments were correspondingly soft. Losses in the rubber section ran to more than 2 points and the same was true in the electrical equipment section, where Westinghouse was an outstandingly weak spot, losing 5¼ points. Johns Manville, Sears Roebuck, United Carbon, Columbia Carbon, Zenith Radio and Du Pont were other big losers.

Abbott Laboratories Builds New Research Building

Abbott Laboratories, manufacturer of pharmaceutical, biological, and chemical products, yesterday announced completion of a new four story research building adjacent to its general offices in North Chicago. The new building, which contains 53,000 square feet of floor space, will house a number of specialized research laboratories and a 20,000 volume library.

Demand Cash on Exports to Japan, China

The undeclared war in China has caused nearly all Chicago companies exporting to China and Japan to demand cash payment in advance, according to a survey of twenty-nine concerns completed yesterday by THE TRIBUNE in coöperation with the Chicago Association of Credit Men. The analysis also showed that more concerns were making shipments to China last week than on Aug. 26, when a similar survey of the same firms was made.

Nearly all companies reporting expressed concern over the Japanese financial situation, although three weeks ago only four said they were alarmed. Six additional companies have put Japan on a cash basis since Aug. 26.

Fear Japan's Finances.

Alarm over the Japanese financial situation appears to be based on two main factors: loss by Japan of her substantial import and export markets with China, and the heavy drain on Japanese resources required for her Chinese invasion.

Sixteen companies have put China on a cash basis, compared with only three on Aug. 26, when the majority were selling on documents against payment, which is equivalent to a C. O. D. transaction in the domestic market. China's credit base has naturally been impaired by her military expenses and by her position as an invaded nation. Three concerns last week, however, were still granting Chinese importers the documents against payment basis, and one was taking some orders on open account.

Six Firms Hold Shipments.

Last week six companies reporting were holding all shipments to both China and Japan, compared with only one three weeks ago. Of the remaining twenty-three, only seven concerns were holding shipments to China, compared with nineteen on Aug. 26, and five firms had stopped shipping to Japan, an increase of three over the August figures.

Many companies that were reluctant three weeks ago to ship to China because they feared that Hongkong warehouses could not handle the increased trafic diverted from inaccessible Shanghai have lately been reassured by cable reports that Hongkong warehousing and reshipment have kept pace with imports. As a result 12 firms have resumed shipments to Hongkong.

Marine Insurance Advanced.

Since Aug. 26 marine insurance rates to Hongkong have advanced slightly. All goods on the war supplies group now bear top rates of 20 to 21 per cent of cargo value. Insurance rates to Shanghai make shipments there prohibitive.

Several companies with Shanghai branches reported that they have had difficulty in communicating with their agents there, and consequently business through this channel is at a standstill. They expressed concern for their property interests in the Shanghai vicinity.

ILLINOIS CITIES REPORT BUILDING GAIN IN AUGUST

Both Number and Cost of Projects Increase.

BY AL CHASE.

Building operations in 113 Illinois cities registered increases both in number and cost of projects during August as compared with the same month last year. All types of construction also showed an improvement over the preceding month of July.

This was disclosed yesterday in the monthly summary of building issued by the division of statistics and research of the Illinois department of labor.

Value Shows Sharp Rise.

Last month there were 2,532 projects, costing $7,589,914, compared with 2,329, with a value of $5,233,381, for the same month last year. This was a gain of 8.7 per cent in number and 45 per cent in value. In July, 1937, there were 2,400 permits, valued at $5,723,006.

Home building also increased during August as compared with the same month last year and the preceding month of July, 1937. Permits were issued for 405 residential buildings costing $2,271,738 during August, compared with 359, costing $2,080,802, during the same month last year. During July, 1937, permits for 373 dwellings, costing $2,328,345, were issued.

Home Building Increases.

Home building throughout the state during the eight months of 1937 showed a large increase over the same period last year. So far this year permits were issued for residential projects providing for 3,340 families, compared with 2,173 families last year during the same period.

The single family dwelling still leads all other types of residential building. There were permits issued for 3,113 homes for one family, compared with 99 two flat buildings and 128 multi-family projects.

CORN PLUNGES 8 CENTS; GRAIN 'CORNER' EASED

Short Sellers Given Chance to Cover.

Corn fell 8 cents a bushel yesterday, the maximum decline permitted in one day on the Chicago Board of Trade. September corn closed at $1.04¾. The break occurred on a small volume of business. Brokers estimated after the close of the market that there remained an open interest of about 10,000,000 bushels in September corn which must be closed out before the end of the month.

The Cargill Grain company, the biggest holder of September corn, continued to offer corn to short sellers who have been unable to obtain grain to make deliveries. Small traders who were short the market were believed to have covered their sales.

Big "Shorts" Hold Out.

Brokers said, however, that the big short sellers are still trying desperately to avoid the losses which they would take by buying in at the present time.

Notice was given shortly before the close of the market of the delivery of 291,000 bushels of corn against September contracts. This served to accentuate the price decline, but does not materially change the market situation, brokers said. The big short interest remains outstanding and must be closed out.

Announcement also was made that 150,000 bushels of Texas corn had been purchased for shipment to Chicago. This grain is expected to arrive within the next week in time for delivery against September contracts. An additional 101,000 bushels of South African corn, received in Chicago on Friday, also is expected to be delivered.

Officials Watch Market.

Both the officials of the exchange and representatives of the commodity exchange administration kept close watch on market developments yesterday. Washington dispatches reported that the federal officials would make an investigation if there was any evidence of manipulation.

Commission brokers tightened up on margin requirements of customers in September corn. Many houses were asking customers to post margins of 30 cents a bushel no matter whether their positions in the market were long or short. Some houses refused to accept orders in September corn except where the transaction represented operations against cash grain.

Open Interest Reduced.

The open interest in corn was reduced 2,374,000 bushels by Friday market operations, according to figures released yesterday by the commodity exchange administration. This left a total open interest at the beginning of yesterday's session of 11,068,000 bushels. Yesterday's transactions, on which figures will be available Monday, were estimated to be considerably less than Friday's total.

Brokers yesterday predicted that additional deliveries of cash grain will be made tomorrow in an effort to force down the price of the September delivery. This would enable the shorts to get out of the market with less loss. Most of the big shorts are

NEW BOOK

"AMERICA FACES ITS GREATEST BUSINESS DEPRESSION"

By William J. Baxter

MONTHS IN PREPARATION, this outstanding 50,000-word book is now available. "NO PUNCHES PULLED." Those who have seen the first copies are unanimously agreed that it will be one of the most talked of books of the year.

To a world still gullible enough to believe that government officials can successfully control markets and business, it shows with indisputable evidence that rapidly moving world forces, far beyond their control, govern the present situation. The international situation was never more serious.

For the investor, industrialist, merchant and financial executive, it relates how this nation, prepared for an inflation boom, has made American business so vulnerable that it now faces the most serious crisis in its history, with widespread commercial failures inevitable.

What political changes are certain in the deflation creeping upon the country. Why business and investment policies must be radically changed to meet the new conditions. The author of this book LOOKS FACTS IN THE FACE and gives fearless answers to questions of vital import to EVERYONE.

NORTH. INDIANA PUBLIC SERVICE EARNINGS RISE

Abitibi Power Reports Improvement.

Northern Indiana Public Service company and Abitibi Power and Paper company yesterday reported larger earnings in August and the first eight months of this year than in the corresponding 1936 periods.

August net income of Northern Indiana Public Service rose to $161,340, or 72 cents a share on the combined 7 per cent, 6 per cent, and 5½ per cent shares, against $157,912, or 71 cents on the combined shares, in the same month last year. Net income for the first eight months of this year was $1,398,380, equal to $6.29 on the combined preferred, compared with $895,257, or $4.02 a share, a year ago.

Earns Half Million in August.

G. T. Clarkson, receiver and manager for Abitibi Power and Paper company, reported that the concern earned $500,688 in August before bond interest, compared with $217,782 on the same basis in the 1936 month. Profit for the first eight months was $3,121,299 before bond interest and taxes, against $1,230,467 in the corresponding months a year ago.

Interstate Department Stores, Inc., reported a decline in profit for the six months ended July 31 to $268,508, equal to 60 cents a share on 301,378 common shares, from $309,310, or $1.01 a share on 219,592 shares, in the same 1936 period. The concern operates stores in eight eastern and middle-western states, including Illinois.

International Radio Gains.

International Radio corporation and subsidiaries earned $180,401, or 96 cents a common share, in the year ended July 31, against $85,102, or 45 cents a share, in the preceding year.

Harris-Seybold-Potte company and subsidiaries, manufacturers of printing presses, reported profit for the fiscal year ended June 30 was $420,852, equal after preferred dividends, to $2.48 a share on the common stock. This compared with profit of $525,895, or $3.87 a share, in the preceding year.

A. F. Harris, chairman of the board, said that profits of the company were affected adversely this year by expenses resulting from development of new products. Shipments during the year, he said, were the second largest in the history of the company, exceeded only by the 1929 total.

PRICES AFFORD WIDE MARGIN TO CATTLE FEEDERS

Steers More than Double Original Cost.

Cattlemen in recent sales of corn fed steers at Chicago have been paid the largest margin in history over the cost of feeders a year ago.

Cattle that cost farmers an average of $6.25 per hundred pounds going into the feedlots last year, averaged $14 as fat steers on the market during the first eighteen days of this month, a gain of $7.75 over the initial cost. A margin of $12.50 was reported last week on highly finished steers, which are acutely scarce and relatively higher than other live stock.

The September steer average last year at $9.15 indicated a gain of $1.65 over the preceding year's feeder price. Two years ago cattlemen were paid $6.70 more than they gave for feeders, due to the abnormally low cost of replacement stock in the summer and fall of 1934.

Margin Small in 1933.

In 1933 the margin was about the lowest on record at 85 cents. The gain during the war years, 1914 to 1918 inclusive, ranged from $1.80 to $7.65.

The following compilation indicates what farmers paid for replacement cattle in the summer and fall and what they obtained for slaughter stock in September of the following year:

Corn Fed Steers Advance.

The sharp rise which has been in progress in the market for corn fed steers for some time continued last week. The top rose to $19.10, the highest mark since January, 1920, and the second highest on record for September. The bulk of steers and yearlings late in the week sold at $10 to $17.50, mostly 25 to 50 cents above a week ago. Cows and hefers closed 35 to 50 cents higher and calves showed a gain of $1 to $1.50.

Sensational gains were scored in most other live stock during the week. Final lamb quotations were $1 to $1.35 higher than a week ago, with top grades at $12, a new eight year high for September. Old mutton sheep and yearling wethers advanced 50 cents to $1.

Hogs and pork soared to new highs for the month early in the week, but slipped back some later. Live hogs finished mostly 40 to 50 cents higher than a week ago, although the six day average at $11.70 showed 85 cents gain, due to the high level prevailing the first three days. Pork loins closed $3 to $4 per hundred pounds higher for the week.

COTTON HOLDS IN NARROW RANGE; STORM FEARED

Cotton prices held within narrow limits yesterday, trade and foreign buying offsetting hedging pressure. Prospects of a tropical storm striking the gulf states tended to cause professional operators to go slow on the selling side of the market. Closing trades on futures on the Chicago Board of Trade were unchanged to .05 cent higher. Other markets were .01 cent lower to .01 cent a pound higher.

Spot cotton closed unchanged with New Orleans, 8.85 cents; New York, 9.05 cents, and Galveston and Houston at 8.60 cents a pound. Prices follow:

BIG UTILITY SUED FOR $42,000,000 ON FRAUD CHARGE

Columbia Gas Diluted Product, Says Attorney.

Columbus, O., Sept. 18.—(AP)—Fraudulent dilution of gas distributed to 700,000 Ohio consumers was charged today in a $42,000,000 damage suit against the Columbia Gas and Electric corporation and four subsidiaries operating in the state. Two other utilities and fourteen officers of the defendant organizations were named in the action, which asked Common Pleas court to enjoin an alleged "unlawful conspiracy" to dilute gas by injecting into natural gas noncombustible gases which cause customers' meters to run faster.

Charges Nine Years' Dilution.

John L. Davies, Columbus city attorney, who brought the suit as an individual gas consumer, charged that dilution had been practiced for the last nine years without knowledge of the state utilities commission. He contended that the alleged dilution had cost gas consumers $14,000,000. He asked treble damages against the companies under the utilities commission law. The $42,000,000, if collected, would be refunded to consumers.

The action came in the midst of a state-wide rate hearing before the utilities commission involving Columbia's Ohio subsidiaries. These affiliate companies handle the major part of gas distributed in the state.

E. M. Tharp, general manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas company, attributed the suit to "politics." Tharp was one of the individuals named in the suit. The Ohio Fuel, Northwestern Ohio Natural Gas company, the Cincinnati Gas and Electric company, and the Dayton Power and Light company are the subsidiaries made defendants.

Other Utilities Named.

The other utilities named were the Columbia Oil and Gasoline corporation of Wilmington, Del., and the Preston Oil company of Columbus, which is owned by Columbia Oil. The suit described these companies as "component parts" of Columbia Gas, but not subsidiaries.

Davies' petition described three of the individual defendants, Philip C. Gossler of New York City, chairman of the board of Columbia Gas; Edward Reynolds Jr. of New York City, president of the company, and Charles A. Munroe [formerly vice president of Peoples Gas company, Chicago] of Norwich, Conn., president of Columbia Oil, as "a triumvirate who in utter and callous disregard of the sovereignty of the state of Ohio have directed and perpetrated the frauds hereinafter complained of."

RAILS TRAFIC IN GRAIN RUNS BELOW YEAR AGO

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—(AP)—The Association of American Railroads, watching the nation's harvests roll to market, learned today that car loadings of grain and grain products were below those of 1936.

Association spokesmen said two factors may account for the drop—the crops hauled by motor carriers and grain stored by farmers for possible higher prices.

The association tabulated 1,223,602 carloads of grain and grain products hauled to market in the first 36 weeks of 1937, as against 1,287,201 for the same period in 1936. Car loadings of agricultural products, the association said, have been dropping five-tenths of 1 per cent yearly since 1932. Those products probably will account for 8.8 per cent of all tonnage carried this year, it was said.

Argentine Wheat Acreage About Same as Year Ago

New York, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Farmers in Argentina have planted 17,586,000 acres of wheat, approximately the same as last year and about 2 per cent below the average for the last five years, the Argentine bureau of rural statistics reported today.

Discounting Loans.

Individual banks loan money to trade, industry and agriculture by discounting notes. Suppose a borrower wants $1,000. He supplies collateral to back the loan. He wants the money for six months and the interest rate is 1½ per cent annually.

The bank will deduct from the $1,000 the interest, which for six months is one-half of 1½ per cent yearly rate, or ¾ per cent. On $1,000 this interest amounts to $7.50, so that the borrower would receive only $992.50, although he will owe the bank $1,000 at the maturity date six months later.

The bank finds that it needs money for other loans and so it uses the borrower's collateral to borrow from the federal reserve bank. It rediscounts the collateral with the reserve bank at, say 1 per cent. Thus, the individual bank makes ½ per cent profit on the loan.

Tomorrow: The Rediscount Rate.

CORN PLUNGES 8 CENTS; GRAIN 'CORNER' EASED

Short Sellers Given Chance to Cover.

said to have sold on the future market when corn was selling below a dollar a bushel.

It is doubtful, however, that the short position can be closed out without big losses to many traders. Cargill brokers yesterday were willing to sell corn to shorts but they would not sell after the market dropped.

Associates of Daniel C. Rice, who has been mentioned as one of the big shorts in the market, yesterday asserted that reports of Rice's position are "pure conjecture." A direct denial that Rice is "short" was not made.

Some brokers believed that the big short traders had sold more corn yesterday in the hope of breaking the market. Confirmation was lacking.

The action of September corn overshadowed other market developments. Prices of other grains were lower.

Prices On September Deliveries.

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Year ago.
Wheat	$1.03⅜	$1.04½	$1.13⅛
Corn	.62¾	.63	.95⅝
Oats	.30⅜	.30⅝	.43
Rye	.78⅝	.79¼	.80⅝
Soy beans	.95⅝	.95½	.....

The decline in September corn influenced the wheat market. The September wheat delivery advanced in the early trading, but then fell back to close ⅝ cent a bushel lower. September rye fell a corresponding amount.

A substantial quantity of American wheat was reported to have been sold yesterday by exporters. The size of the sales was not learned. Canadian export shipments also were said to have been substantial. German interests were said to have purchased 300,000 bushels of American wheat yesterday and an additional amount of American rye.

MINNESOTA FIRM WILL PAY MORE ON ITS SHARES

The Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing company yesterday declared an interim dividend of 60 cents on its capital stock. On July 1 the company paid 50 cents.

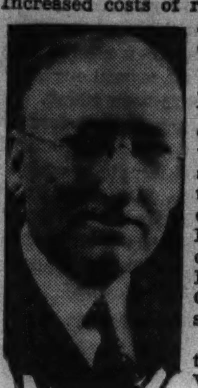
INCREASED COSTS TERMED THREAT TO RAILS' CREDIT

Income Is Lower Despite Heavier Trafic.



Ralph Budd.

Denver, Col., Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Increased costs of railroad operation are making serious inroads on earnings and present a danger that sources of capital necessary to keep the plant abreast of the times may be dried up, Ralph Budd, president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad, said here today.

Speaking before the Burlington Veterans association, Budd said the railroad industry may be likened to a three legged stool, represented by patrons, employés, and investors. Fair dealing by all three is essential for permanent success, he said, but failure of any one of the three legs will bring disaster.

Budd said that freight trafic of his company in the year ended Sept. 1 was 9 per cent larger than in the preceding 12 months. Passenger business for the period showed a gain of 18 per cent.

Trafic Larger, Income Less.

"But the larger volume of business, due to lower rates and increased costs of operation, has been handled without a corresponding gain in net railway operating income," he said. "Increased costs of materials, wages, and taxes have all contributed to mounting operating expenses. The larger volume of trafic is actually yielding less income than the smaller total did a year before."

"Management has more than one side to consider. It is not in a dual position, but has three obligations. The first is to the public, because our business is one which must rely wholly on general and voluntary patronage, for the shipping and traveling public pays the bills. We must see that charges are not prohibitive and that the service is the best that can be provided. Failure in this regard would be reflected in loss of trafic, which would have an immediate unfavorable effect on us all.

Obligations to Others.

"Then we have the obligation to employés, to see that their working conditions are well maintained, that wages are sufficiently high to attract capable help in competition with other lines of industry, and that our employés work as safely as possible.

"We have also the obligation to the owners of the railroad because it is good ethics to meet financial obligations incurred when capital is invested in the plant which serves the public and gives us employment, and because it is necessary to do so in order to maintain credit which will encourage investors to let us use their money."

BALTIMORE-OHIO RAILWAY SHOWS LOSS FOR JULY

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad yesterday reported loss of $365,233 in July, compared with net income of $160,459 in the same month last year. Loss for the first seven months of 1937 was $353,477, against loss of $1,820,819 in the corresponding 1936 period.

July net income of the Louisville and Nashville declined to $569,821 from $736,416 in the same 1936 month. Net income for the first seven months of this year was $4,464,911, or $3.82 a common share, against $4,040,434, or $3.45 a share, in the same period last year.

USE OF CHECKS SHOWS LARGE BUSINESS GAIN

Increase from Year Ago Is Small, However.

Business activity in the middle west increased sharply during the week ended Sept. 15, banking statistics indicated yesterday. The comparison with the preceding week is not accurate, however, as the earlier period contained one less business day due to the Labor day holiday. Compared with last year the latest week showed a small gain.

The volume of check transactions—debits to individual deposit account—in the seventh federal reserve district totaled $1,346,157,000 in the week ended Sept. 15 compares with $936,836,000 a week earlier, and $1,270,596,000 in the corresponding 1936 period.

Report Covers 162 Banks.

The report covered withdrawals on 162 banks in 41 leading cities of the area, which includes most of Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Indiana, and Michigan.

Debits in Chicago totaled $770,679,000, compared with $553,300,000 in the preceding week. For the first time in several months, however, a decline was shown from the figure of a year ago. The total for the 1936 week was $776,784,000.

Detroit reported the volume of checks was $225,229,000, compared with $145,697,000 in the preceding week and $206,059,000 in the 1936 period.

Business activity throughout the nation also increased during the week, but a loss was shown from last year. Check withdrawals in the twelve federal reserve districts totaled $9,450,586,000, compared with $6,473,186,000 in the preceding week and $9,776,520,000 a year ago.

Bank Clearings Rise.

A sharp increase also was shown in bank clearings in Chicago during the week ended yesterday. The Chicago Clearing House association reported volume of $376,300,000, against $270,500,000 in the preceding week and $314,500,000 in the same period a year ago. Clearing by days follow:

	Clearings.	Balances.
Monday	$ 55,500,000	$ 5,700,000
Tuesday	63,700,000	6,900,000
Wednesday	66,800,000	10,400,000
Thursday	61,800,000	6,600,000
Friday	68,000,000	3,700,000
Saturday	60,500,000	4,000,000
Total for week	$376,300,000	$ 37,300,000
Corres. last year	314,500,000	33,600,000

WARNS U. S. RULE WILL STIFFEN IF COAL LAW FAILS

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Sept. 18.—(AP)—A warning to the coal industry that it "will be placed under more rigid governmental regulation than it is now experiencing" if the present laws fails becouse of operators' failure to coöperate, came today from Chairman Charles F. Hosford Jr. of the national bituminous coal commission.

Hosford forecast before members of the West Virginia Bar asociation at their final convention session that the coal industry never would return to "the days of so-called free and unrestricted competition."

Because of Ill Health Will Sell 2/3 Interest In Plant!

Yes, it has been a real money maker. Profit has been as high as $50,000 annually besides large salaries paid to executives. Profit this year will be about $15,000 plus $10,000 for executive salaries. There has been no effort made to get business for some years because two of the owners have been in poor health. Factory space 16,000 square feet. Business of tool making, dies, stamping machines and production for other plants. Several patents go with the sale. This is a REAL opportunity—$35,000 buys two-third interest. Write

NASH TO MAKE STRONG BID FOR 1938 BUSINESS

Production of New Cars Starts Tomorrow.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Lake Geneva, Wis., Sept. 18.—Its manufacturing plants ready to swing into heavy production Monday on its 1938 line of automobiles, the Nash Motors division of Nash-Kelvinator corporation will enter the new selling period with a new and forceful sales program which is expected to make the company one of the strongest of the independent automobile manufacturers, George W. Mason, president, said here today at a preview of the new line.

George W. Mason.

Mason, with Charles W. Nash, chairman of the board and one of the veterans of the automobile industry, reported that the new organization created by the merger of Nash Motors and Kelvinator corporation, electrical refrigerator manufacturer, earlier this year, is now working smoothly.

Set Up Definite Program.

"Naturally, it took us some time to merge the two companies," Mason said, "but this has been accomplished and we are now ready to go forward with our program. We are not just going to put the 1938 cars on the market—we have set up a definite program which we are sure will move them.

"There yet remain a few places where we can combine certain activities of the two former companies so that we can receive the greatest return from the merger, but such consolidations will not cause any material changes in the number employed at our Wisconsin plants."

Discussing the possible tightening of instalment payment terms, Mason said that although he favored any move in the interest of sound economics, he did not wish to see anything done that may slow up business.

Mason Takes Charge.

At a dinner given in connection with the preview, held in the Lake Geneva Country club, Nash said that he had turned over the active direction of the company which he had headed for many years to Mason.

Since the two companies were consolidated, the arrangement of the the automobile plants at Kenosha, Racine and Milwaukee have been improved, officials said, so that there are no "back tracks" in the assembly lines. By Oct. 1, it is expected that 9,500 persons will be employed at the three plants in Wisconsin.

"Legal" and "Excess" Reserves.

Several persons have asked how it is that the "excess" reserves of commercial banks are reduced by action of the federal reserve board in "legal" reserve requirements.

Legal reserves consist of funds which commercial banks that are members of the federal reserve system are required to pledge with the federal reserve banks as security for their own [member banks'] deposits.

The funds so pledged were regarded as a safety valve or buffer against inordinate credit expansion. The percentages were considered insufficient, however, and the banking act of 1935 gave the federal reserve board authority to change the percentages. The board could raise the legal reserve requirements to as much as double the former percentages.

* * *

Granting of this power was considered necessary because of the big influx of funds from abroad. Even before this flow of European capital into the United States, banks had large "excess" reserves—that is, reserves in excess of the "legal" reserves.

"Excess" reserves simply are idle cash in the hands of the banks. At one time in 1936 these idle but employable funds reached the unprecedentedly high level of more than 3 billion dollars. They constituted a distinct inflationary threat because banks naturally try to get as much income as possible by loaning or investing their idle cash.

The 3 billions of excess reserves formed the basis for a potential credit expansion which might generate an abortive boom and lead to another collapse later on. Furthermore, they represented in large part capital here from abroad for temporary haven and subject to withdrawal at any time. If these funds were permitted to form the base for additional bank credit expansion, withdrawal later on would cause a drastic shrinkage of the credit structure and cause depression.

* * *

Consequently, the reserve board last year began sponging up this idle cash by use of its new authority to raise legal reserve requirements. In a series of three moves it doubled requirements. The 3 billions of excess reserves were cut to tbauot 700 millions.

The important point of this action is that legal reserves are sterile—they must lie idle in vaults or on the books of the reserve banks. They are not available for loans and investment which would expand the credit structure.

The threat of an inflationary expansion of bank credit, however, has not been permanently removed. The reserve board has the authority at any time to reverse itself and reduce the amount of required reserves.

TRANSIT REVENUES LOWER.

Transit revenues in the week ended Sept. 11 showed a slight decrease from the same week last year. The Transit Journal's revenue indicator stood at 98.21, a drop of 1.79% from the like 1936 week; in the previous week the indicator was at 98.54.

NEW MODEL CARS PUT ON MARKET BY STUDEBAKER

Style Altered, Engineering Innovations Made.

(Picture in adjoining column.)

The Studebaker corporation placed its 1938 models on the market yesterday. The style has been altered in a number of ways and several engineering innovations have been added.

Horizontal chrome bars form a rounded grille of a new shape, and of the same shape are headlamps faired into broad fenders. The hood is of one piece and there are no louvres. A widened windshield has been further tilted. A chrome stripe has replaced the usually painted belt line.

Cars Are More Roomy.

Inside the car, with its maximum width increased six inches, additional front seat space has been obtained by adopting a vacuum powered gear shift. This device is operated by finger tips on a knob the size of a ping-pong ball on a five inch level mounted on the instrument panel. Foot room has been expanded by turning the transmission on its side, almost eliminating the familiar tunnel or kickup construction on floor boards.

The balance has been bettered by advancing the engine several inches in the chassis to reduce sway on bumpy roads.

Other Refinements Made.

Refinements have been made on the engines, steering apparatus, front axle assembly, frame, and other functional parts, including a 16 per cent increase in the friction surface of the brake linings.

The 1938 models consist of the President with 110 horse power eight cylinder engine on 122 inch wheelbase, a Commander and a lower priced Studebaker six, both with a 90 horse power six cylinder engine on 116.5 inch wheelbase. Each of the three lines is offered in a coupe, a club sedan, a cruising sedan, and a convertible sedan.

BONDS DECLINE IN LIGHT TRADE; U. S. LOANS MIXED

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Lack of nearby support for a broad list of secondary and convertible corporation bonds forced prices in those issues sharply lower in light trading during the two hour period today on the New York Stock exchange. The movement which carried numerous loans to new low marks for the year and longer took place on only a meager sales volume, reflecting the thinness of the market rather than any severe selling pressure.

Total transactions in all bonds during the abbreviated session amounted to $3,357,600, compared with $5,479,500 on the preceding Saturday.

The turnover of only $126,650 in treasury issues was the smallest in more than a month, and compared with sales of $371,500 on Saturday a week ago. Closing quotations showed gains of 1-32 to 5-32 point, and declines of 1-32 to 4-32 point, with the movements about evenly divided.

Declines among the secondary railroad bonds ranged from major fractions to more than three points and forced the price average for that group down 0.35 point on the day.

Most losses in the industrial list were confined to small fractions. Utilities were subjected to a little heavier selling and lost a trifle more, but the declines in both groups were modest.

LETTERS

[Letters of not more than 200 words addressed to the Financial Editor will be printed in these columns from time to time.]

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 12.—When lodge No. 424, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, presented to the public a picture of the wage controversy in behalf of the "thousands of railroad workers" it did so with the same selfishness which has been peculiar to this craft. Trainmen have always overestimated their importance in the railroad setup.

It is conceded that the present wage rate is not excessive, but neither is it penurious. Just why it should require two and three times as much money for a train or engine man to live as it does a trackman is something for the public to picture, unless it knows from experience, as the writer does, what comprises a trainman's expenses away from home. Here's an example.

A train stops for coal and water. This is their cue to eat. They will eat twenty times a day if convenient. A trainman orders a T-bone steak—75 cents. [Where does he get his appetite?] He tenders a $5 bill in payment; gets his change and plays the quarter in a slot machine, winning 50 cents. Not satisfied with this, he continues playing until his winnings as well as his $4.25 in change are all in the machine. Five dollars for a meal. And then there is not one in a thousand who does not play poker all night, or the horses. If they were to get a 50 per cent increase they would still be complaining and broke before pay day.

Their argument for a raise is usually "responsibilities." They have none. As for their book of rules, any person of average intelligence can master that in a few hours.

A conductor told a track foreman: "Sure, we'll get our 20 per cent raise. They'll lay off you fellows to make it up." And that's the dirty, rotten truth. A raise at any price. Starve the lowest paid man. Bankrupt the railroads. Maintenance of way men received 5 cents an hour increase, but are we kicking? Emphatically, no.

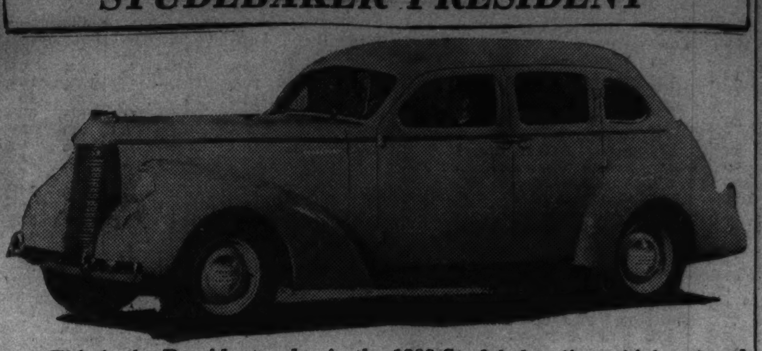
MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

STUDEBAKER PRESIDENT



This is the President sedan in the 1938 Studebaker line which entered the market yesterday. Note the new front design and the widened and further tilted windshield. For further details, read story in today's financial section.

VOICE OF TRAFIC

STREAMLINED HIGHWAYS.

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 14.—You have hit the nail on the head—our modern concrete highways present the contrast between the most scientifically constructed slab and no modern thought at all in connection with the design of culvert headwalls, handrails on the bridges, etc.

Streamlining is the modern trend in transportation and there is no place where this could be practiced with better results, both as to safety and appearance, than in the building of our highways. A streamlined highway would have within the right of way no vertical concrete obstacles such as a culvert headwall or bridge handrail, which make for the immovable object which brings sudden death to the unfortunate motorist whose only mistake has been to get off the slab a foot or two.

I have asked many highway engineers if there is any good reason why all headwalls and bridge rails could not be streamlined so as to deflect rather than stop the vehicle having contact with it. They say this could be done as easily and cheaply as constructing the present type appurtenance which in many cases is nothing more than a death trap to catch the unlucky motorist.

This would amount to building the culvert headwalls flush with the road shoulder and changing the design on bridge rails to something like a high curbing [but not so high that the passengers cannot see the waterway beneath] which flare out at each end of the bridge.

PARKING ABUSES.

Chicago, Sept. 16.—I use the bus, and in order to see whether one is approaching I am obliged to step into the street on account of parked automobiles. Too, when coming home after dark, parked cars are a menace to safety, since they might conceal a prowler. And, too, if I, an adult, cannot tell whether it is safe to cross a street, what about the children?

In other words, why not make the streets safe for pedestrians by enforcing the laws—which I assume exist—which do not permit all night parking. And, if there is no law about parking 50 feet from a street intersection, make one. Why not?

J. E. HANFORD.

OAKLEY BOULEVARD PARKING.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—I happen to be one of the many who use Oakley boulevard driving back and forth from work daily. I notice signs on the posts "No parking from 7 to 9 a. m. and from 4:30 to 7 p. m.," but evidently the people living on the boulevard do not belive in signs. Going home in the evening you will find parking along the street, slowing up trafic considerably especially near the intersections of Madison street, Lake street, and Augusta boulevard, which also leads to accidents.

BIDS TO OPEN ON VIADUCT OVER BELT RAILROAD

Roosevelt Road Work to Start Before Jan. 1.

The Illinois highway department announced last week that bids will be received this fall on a contract to build a viaduct for Roosevelt road over the Belt railroad in Broadview. Construction probably will be started before Jan. 1 and it will take at least a year to complete the job.

This is one of the busiest grade crossings in the metropolitan area. It is without gates or flashing red signals. Funds for the construction have been available since July 1, 1935. The cost, to approximate $300,000, will be financed with federal money.

Crossing Inadequately Guarded.

The development of the project has experienced one delay after another. In the meanwhile, efforts to better the safeguards at the grade crossing have been countered with the argument that construction of the separation would start too soon to warant the expense of gates or flashing wigwags.

Until construction is started, 6,500 automobiles, including trucks and buses, and an average of 103 trains, not including switching, are daily exposed to collision at the inadequately guarded crossing.

Original plans were for a subway for Roosevelt road under the tracks. The consent of abutting property owners was obtained on this basis. The United States bureau of public roads approved the specifications. Then the geological survey explored and found an underground river at the site, prohibiting this design.

Property Owners Object.

The design was changed to provide a highway viaduct. Abutting property owners objected. Ramps were added to the plans to meet objections. This required more right of way. With each change in plans, blue prints had to be sent to Washington for approval. And each change of plans reopened negotiations with abutting property owners over questions of damages.

As the project now stands, a contract is to be awarded for the main viaduct only, for which there is available right of way. This will serve Roosevelt road trafic. At the same time, condemnation proceedings are to be started to acquire right of way for the ramps.

NORTHWEST SIDE RESIDENTS URGE ELEVATED DRIVE

Petitioners Recognize Life Saving Value.

BY HAL FOUST.

Approximately 2,000 residents of the northwest side have signed a petition for construction of an elevated highway in their direction from the loop. The petitions are directed to Gov. Horner, Mayor Kelly and the Cook county board. They are being circulated by the northwest area council of the Chicago Motor club and by Ald. William J. Cowhey [41st].

"All of the local civic organizations in our neighborhood are unanimously in support of elevated highway proposals," said John H. Kerr, chairman of the area council. "We recognize that this is the only hope for any material reduction in the automobile accident toll and the only hope of relieving Chicago from its tremendous economic loss due to the delays in surface street travel."

It's Not a Mere Theory.

The life saving value of elevated highways is palpable. An analysis of Chicago's street fatalities shows that 98 per cent of them are caused by accidents physically impossible on an elevated highway. The operation of Manhattan's upper level express drive has demonstrated that this safety factor is not mere theory.

The economic value of elevated highway design has not received as much attention because it is less dramatic. It is, however, a vital factor in any practical consideration of the project.

Dr. Miller McClintock of the Harvard university bureau of trafic research, in his report to the council trafic committee in 1933 on a two year study of Chicago's street transportation, made some calculations on the cost of surface street delays in this city where he found the average overall speed of motor vehicles to approximate 20 miles an hour. His summary on this point reads as follows:

"A mile of surface route operating at an average overall speed of twenty miles an hour, or at a rate of three minutes per mile, and carrying a daily trafic of 50,000 vehicles requires the expenditure of 150,000 vehicle minutes per twenty-four hour day.

Cuts Vehicle Minutes in Half.

"A mile of limited way [elevated] operating at an average overall speed of forty miles an hour, or at a rate of 1.5 minutes per mile, and carrying a daily trafic of 50,000 vehicles requires the expenditure of 75,000 vehicle minutes.

"The daily time saving of the limited way as compared with the surface route is 75,000 minutes, or a money saving to operators of $937.50 per day computed at a rate of 1.25 cents per minute. On the basis of 365 days, the annual saving is $342,187.50 which may be capitalized at five per cent to give a total of $6,843,750 as the capital expediture justified per mile for limited way construction over and above that required for surface route construction."

In the published report, there are italics for the phrase "over and above that required for surface street construction." Another chapter of the report finds that elevated highways actually can be built for 15.5 per cent of the cost of equal trafic capacity obtained by surface street widening.

Evaluated at $16,250,000 Yearly.

With a system of 160 miles of elevated highway, estimated to cost $100,000,000, it was calculated that the elimination of delays could be evaluated at $16,250,000 a year.

The reduced operating costs of the automobiles were mentioned but they were not included in the foregoing calculations.

"The total cost of motor vehicle operation," reads the McClintock report, "is based upon two sets of cost factors, the first of which may be designated as mileage costs, that is, those resulting directly from movement of the vehicle; and, secondly, those which may be designated as time costs, that is, those which result from the ownership of the vehicles and which form an overhead whether or not the vehicle is in movement.

"Under mileage costs are to be found the items of fuel, lubricants, tires, maintenance, and 67 per cent of depreciation. Under time costs are to be found 33 per cent of the depreciation, drivers' wages, garage, license, interest, taxes, insurance and supervision. [The items for driver's wages and supervision would apply to passenger automobiles in commercial service and it has been found that a third of passenger car operation in cities is on commercial errands.]

Computes Total Operating Costs.

Johannesson in his text, Highway Economics, computes the total motor vehicle operating costs, including both mileage and time costs, as 7.5 cents per mile for pleasure cars and 11.12 cents per mile for passenger cars commercially operated.

"In computing the per minute cost of delay, however, conservatism requires the use of only those cost items which may be classified under time costs. It is true that when a vehicle is delayed in trafic, the motor generally continues to run, consuming gasoline and oil, and that certain other operating costs continue. Since these factors cannot be determined accurately, they are omitted and the delay cost herein is based entirely on the time costs."

From the foregoing statement, it may be seen that the annual saving to the motorists of $342,187.50 per mile of elevated highway is probably an understatement. Any taxicab driver could testify that in addition to saving time he is also saving gasoline, tires, brakes, and possible accident damages when using one of the outer drives [Chicago's closest approach to an elevated highway design] in preference to a more typical street with its frequent stops and starts for lights, for cross trafic, for parking interference and for pedestrians.

NEWS AND VIEWS

A post-vacation checkup of motor cars is recommended by W. J. Gerwe, Chicago executive of the Socony-Vacuum Oil company, to offset the effects of hard summer driving. Mobiloil engineers point out that the engine will need internal flushing to remove a season's accumulation of dust. Lights and batteries should be conditioned for hard starting and for night driving during the approaching cold weather with its shorter days. Bodies may need tightening and breaks may need adjustment.

Russell Lesher, Chicago zone manager for the Olds Motor works, announced yesterday that six hundred dealers and salesmen left Chicago last night on special trains for Detroit, where they will pick up new 1938 Oldsmobiles and drive them back to Chicago. These cars will be on display in Chicagoland showrooms beginning tomorrow.

Dodge Shows 1938 Line at Meeting of Dealers

An advance showing of the 1938 Dodge automobile line was made at meeting yesterday of dealers, sales executives, and service managers in the Stevens hotel. Sales and service plans of the company were outlined to the dealers.

Express Trafic in July 5.26 Per Cent Above 1936

New York, Sept. 18.—(AP)—Express trafic in July increased 5.26 per cent over that for the similar period of 1936, the Railway Express agency reported today. An estimated total of 9,757,902 shipments was moved, nearly 500,000 more than in July last year.

PARKS PREPARE FOR RECORD WINTER

MAJ. JOHN LYNCH AT 90 REVIEWS LIFE OF ACTION

Soldier and Lawyer, He Serves U. S.

BY FRANK EDWARDS.

Maj. John R. Lynch. [Moffett Photo.]

The grand old man of Chicago's Negro citizenry, Maj. John R. Lynch, 4028 South Parkway, who knew all the Presidents and Vice Presidents from Grant to Taft and who can rattle off their names without a falter, was 90 years old on Friday, Sept. 10. The Citizens Civic and Economic Welfare council of Chicago gave a dinner for him that evening at the Wabash Avenue Y. M. C. A., and he will tell you with a quiet smile and an emphatic shake of the head that he had a "splendid" time.

Maj. Lynch, who overcame obvious obstacles to see and take part in more of the pageant of American history than most living men, and who is listed in Who's Who and "The Negro in the Political Classics of the American Government," was born Sept. 10, 1847, on a plantation near Vidalia, Concordia parish, Louisiana.

Avid Reader as Boy.

When he was a child his parents moved to Natchez, Miss., and there he attended evening schools and received instruction from private tutors. With the same hunger for knowledge that burned in the lean Illinoisan who was later to become his and his people's idol, he read all the good literature on which he could lay his hands.

At the outbreak of the civil war he was still too young to be a soldier, but later, after Grant captured Vicksburg and then pushed on to take Natchez, he served for a few months as a cook for an Illinois regiment of the Union army. His sharpest memory of that period, however, is of the news of Lincoln's assassination.

"There was great grief," he said softly, reverently. "We idolized him."

Then Maj. Lynch took up photography [then daguerreotype] and continued to read and study in his spare time. He recalls that once, after finishing a piece of fiction, "Adventures of a Boy," he asked himself sharply what he had gained. He has not read a line of fiction since. The study of law drew his concentrated attention, however, and he mastered parliamentary procedure.

Enters State Assembly.

In 1869 Gov. Adelbert Ames appointed the young Negro justice of the peace for Adams county, Miss., a position which he held until the fall of that year, when he was elected to the state house of representatives. He served from 1869 to 1871 and became known as the best informed parliamentarian in the house. As a result he was reëlected, and during his second term he served as the first Negro speaker of the Mississippi house of representatives.

According to Maj. Lynch, there was political and racial harmony until the financial panic of 1873 drove all white southerners back into the Democratic party and reduced the Republican party there to a nonenity.

Elected to Congress.

Maj. Lynch's next step in public life was his election as a Republican to the United States house of representatives, where he served in the 43d and 44th congresses from March 4, 1873, to March 3, 1877.

During this period he took an active part on behalf of the civil rights bill, which was passed in 1875, and was present to vote the admittance of Colorado into the Union in 1876. He later was elected to the 47th congress and served in the house from April 29, 1882, to March 3, 1883.

Maj. Lynch then returned to his Mississippi plantation and served for several years as state Republican chairman and member of the Republican national committee. He was delegate to the Republican national conventions of 1872, 1880, 1884, 1892, 1900, and 1904, the last of which nominated Theodore Roosevelt.

Open Mind on Parties.

At the 1884 convention in Chicago, which nominated James G. Blaine, he was elected temporary chairman. He will tell you very definitly, however, that he is the Teddy Roosevelt kind of a Republican.

Under President Harrison Maj. Lynch served as fourth auditor of the treasury for the navy department from 1889 to 1893. Then he resumed his study of law and was admitted to the Mississippi bar in 1896.

He returned to Washington, D. C., in 1897, was admitted to the bar by reciprocity and practiced until the outbreak of the Spanish-American war in 1898. President McKinley then appointed him a major and paymaster of volunteers, and he served three years in Cuba and two years in the Philippines during and after the war.

His Status Upheld.

Maj. Lynch recalls that once during the war, when he was paying off

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

A LITTLE computation reveals that the staf members of the Englewood Y. M. C. A. have come a total of more than 4,000 miles from their home cities to serve in Southtown. The winner is Louis Henderson, director of older boys' activities, who comes from Miami, Fla., 1,500 miles away. Only 1,000 miles from home is Bob Williams, rifle range director, who hails from Denison, Tex. From New Virginia, Ia., 450 miles distant, comes Miss Altabel Leachman, assistant women's and girls' secretary. Youngstown, O., 400 miles away, is the home town of Ed Ackerman, assistant boys' secretary. Three hundred and fifty miles from home are Miss Mary E. Finney, women's secretary, of Galion, O., and Al Beckett, in charge of younger boys, of Cleveland.

Lewis Zwissler, 6656 Parnell avenue, has left for Rutgers college, New Brunswick, N. J., where he will be an assistant instructor and work for his master's degree. He is a graduate of Armour Institute of Technology and has been associated with the Chicago Motor club for the last four years.

AMONG the south side resident artists who are represented in the Chicago Society of Etchers' exhibit, which opened yesterday in the clubwoman's bureau at Mandel Brothers, are Howard Brown, 4319 Ellis avenue; Mrs. Francis F. Dodge, 1640 East 50th street; Miss Helen Forman, 1155 East 62d street; Mrs. Bertha Jacques, 4316 Greenwood avenue, and Miss Beatrice Levy, 1504 East 57th street, who has just returned from Mexico.

One of the south side's well known clubwomen, Miss Mayme V. Sims, drama and radio chairman of the Woodshore Woman's club, will move her school of speech from the loop to 1442 East 55th street, where it will open today. Mrs. Ralph Merriam of the Hyde Park Travel club will serve on the faculty. Other south siders who will teach in the school are Miss Marguerite Penshorn, drama; Miss Alice Tuller, music; Mlle. Eugenia Marie Legault, French, and Mrs. Alice E. Humphrey, voice.

"THIS will show them" read the modest note which accompanied the 52 inch muskie which Judge Michael Kasper, 11346 Longwood drive, sent home, packed in ice, from his cabin in the north woods. It was intended for some of his Beverly Hills neighbors who of late have had a tendency to yawn at his tales of fishing prowess. The muskie was the largest taken out of Crooked lake in the Lac de Flambeau region this year.

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Curtiss, who reside with their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Leavell, 6606 University avenue, celebrated their 61st wedding anniversary last Monday. They have lived in Chicago since before the Columbian Exposition.

James A. Clarke, 6250 South Mozart street, past grand knight of Englewood council, was recently elected secretary of the Chicago chapter of the Knights of Columbus. The chapter is composed of 64 councils with a membership of 40,000.

MRS. JOHN E. QUINN, 4940 East End avenue, gave a shower, luncheon, and bridge party yesterday at the South Shore Country club for Miss Irene Geary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Geary, 5006 Ellis avenue. Miss Geary will be married to Frank J. McAdams Jr. on Sept. 29 at the Log Cabin chapel, at the University of Notre Dame.

Orian N. Wing, 6962 Clyde avenue, who this fall begins his 16th year as principal of the Central Y. M. C. A. day high school and his third year as head of the evening high school, will be given the title of dean of the high schools.

ST. AUGUSTINE'S WOMEN TO HOLD COOKING CLASSES

Officers of the St. Augustine Altar and Rosary society have arranged for a community food show and cooking classes to be held Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday in the parish auditorium, 50th and Laflin streets.

Awards will be given at each class and on the last day a cook stove will be presented to some member in attendance.

Officers who will be in charge are Mrs. Arthur Schmitz, 5431 Hermitage avenue, president; Mrs. Michael Schwab, 5352 South Laflin street, vice president; Mrs. Catherine Kuhn, 5001 South Bishop street, second vice president; Mrs. Mary Reinert, 1210 West 51st street, treasurer; Miss Anna Mang, 5232 South Laflin street, recording secretary, and Miss Mayme Thelen, 5216 South Loomis street, financial secretary.

Streets in 9th and 19th Wards to Be Resurfaced

According to a recent announcement by the commissioner of public works, several streets in the 9th and 19th wards will be resurfaced, including 115th street, Emerald avenue to Wallace street; State street, 99th to 113th streets; State street, 83d to 99th streets; 99th street, Winchester to South Park avenues; 107th street, Halsted street to Western avenue, and 115th street, Halsted street to Ashland avenue.

Cowgirls to Aid '49er Frolic of Perez K. of C.

A bunch of boys will be whooping it up in the old Perez clubhouse, 6710 South May street, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings, during "The Days of '49" carnival to be conducted by Perez council, Knights of Columbus. The clubhouse will be disguised as an authentic old California town during the gold rush, and there will be counterfeit money aplenty for faro and roulette. Cowgirls, who have donned the title for the evening, will be added decoration. Two of them already outfitted for the event are (left to right) Miss Virginia McGinn, 1709 West 81st street, and Miss Lillian Johnson, 1711 West 80th street.

SOUTHWEST SIDE TO MAP FETE FOR KEDZIE VIADUCT

Meeting Tomorrow to Plan Oct. 3 Event.

A public meeting will be held tomorrow evening by southwest side clubs and improvement organizations in the Marquette park fieldhouse, 67th street and Kedzie avenue, to make plans for the opening ceremony of the new Kedzie avenue bridge over the tracks of the Belt railway at 75th street.

Originally scheduled to be completed Sept. 1, the finishing work on the 2,100 foot viaduct was held up by bad weather, and the curbing and sidewalks will not be laid until next week. The bridge will be open to trafic Oct. 3, according to the present schedule announced by Ald. John E. Egan [13th].

Double Ribbon Ceremony.

Members of the Kedzie bridge celebration committee have arranged for a double ribbon cutting ceremony, preceded by a parade and an entertainment at the north end of the bridge. Ald. Egan will cut the ribbon at that end, which is in his ward, and a representative of Evergreen Park or Blue Island will officiate at the south end.

The right of way for the Kedzie viaduct was purchased by the county highway department from the gas tax funds at a cost of about $90,000, and the construction was under the supervision of the state highway department. It was made possible by a federal grant of $250,000, and has been under construction for a year.

Oct. 3 Program.

The program for Oct. 3 will include a parade, participated in by local organizations, and the distribution of awards for the best floats and costumes. William A. Canavan, chairman of the southwest transportation committee, will act as master of ceremonies, assisted by Mrs. Grace Stevesson of the Chicago Lawn Woman's club, Mrs. Anton Abramic, 3307 West 63d street; Mrs. Benedict Aron, 3236 West 66th place; Mrs. Alfred La-Barge, 6825 South Campbell avenue; William Bergell, 6739 South Rockwell street; Fred Halvorsen, 3145 West 63d street, and John Dunne of Evergreen Park.

CARNIVAL THIS WEEK TO WELCOME PASTOR TO ST. CECELIA PARISH

The Rev. Norbert O'Connell.

An outdoor carnival, sponsored by the parishoners of St. Cecilia's church, 4516 South Wells street, as a formal welcome to their new pastor the Rev. Norbert E. O'Connell, will be held all this week through next Sunday in Princeton avenue, north of 47th street. A special reunion of former members of the congregation has been planned by the committee of arrangements, and each evening there will be entertainment. Father O'Connell, who is acting as general chairman, will be assisted by the Rev. Vincent J. Cloos, the Rev. Vincent J. Tyrrell, and the Rev. William Doran.

ZURIS ALL-STARS AGAIN WIN WOLFF SOFTBALL AWARD

For the second successive year, the Judge Zuris All-Stars softball team has carried off the Jack Wolff trophy and first place medals in the Bridgeport branch competition of the Chicago Boys Softball tournament.

The championship required meeting such teams as the Alderman Connellys, St. George C. Y. O., Hamburgs Athletic association Play Boys, Anchor Inn, Lustig's Store, Gabby's, Rogues, Russells and Bamby Boosters.

SCHOOLS GRANT ABSENCE LEAVES TO 12 TEACHERS

Furloughs of 2 Others Are Extended.

Twelve public school teachers recently were granted sabbatical leaves by the board of education, which also extended the leaves of absence of two other teachers. All of the teachers plan to travel or study during their absences from school.

Teachers whose leaves will begin tomorrow are Kathryn Humphreys of Lloyd elementary school, who was given five and one-half months' furlough, and Emma Chamberlain of Hayt elementary and Gertrude Gilman of Flower High school, each of whom was granted nine and one-half months.

Two Get 9¼ Month Leaves.

Nine and one-quarter month leaves were granted to Margaret L. Hayes of Roosevelt High school and Eva B. Dalley of Lake View High school, both effective Sept. 27.

Six teachers were given leaves of absence of nine months each, starting Oct. 4. They are Stacia H. Fischer of Tilden Technical High school, Ruth E. Hopewell of Hyde Park high, Violette G. Nagle of Senn high, Lawrence F. Peterson of Calumet high, and Frieda W. Grawe of Joyce Kilmer elementary.

Mildred M. Dugan of Armour elementary was granted six months' leave to take effect on Nov. 1. A five months' absence by Agnes P. Conerty of the Washington elementary school, starting on Sept. 6, also was approved by the board.

Two Leaves Extended.

Additional leaves were granted to Georgiana F. Buddendorff of the Kozminski elementary school, who was given five months besides the five she was originally granted, and Bessie J. Gartland of the Ogden elementary school, whose six months' leave was extended by another four months.

CATECHUMEN CLASSES IN CHICAGO HEIGHTS HOLD REUNION TODAY

The Rev. A. A. Brauer

St. Paul's Lutheran church of Chicago Heights will hold a reunion today of 10 catechumen classes, numbering 250 members, under the auspices of the pastor, the Rev. A. A. Brauer. The service will begin at 10:30 o'clock this morning and a banquet will be served at 6 o'clock this evening in the school auditorium by the St. Paul's Walther league.

The guest speaker of the evening will be the Rev. Paul J. Roeder, pastor of the Messiah Evangelical Lutheran church, Chicago Heights, and music will be furnished by the church's 35 piece orchestra under the direction of George E. Merker.

Officers of the Walther league for the ensuing year will be Mr. Merker, president; Miss Lucille A. Merker, secretary, and Arthur H. Brauer, treasurer.

ENGLEWOOD "Y" POLICE SCHOOL TO OPEN TUESDAY

Classes in juvenile police work will begin Tuesday at the Englewood Y. M. C. A., 6545 South Union avenue, under the direction of Capt. William A. Rogers, director of the adult division, and will be limited to fifty students.

Men and women over 17 years of age are eligible to attend the courses which will include fingerprinting, photography, handwriting analysis, blood chemistry, parliamentary procedure, anatomical measurements and Red Cross work.

Own Paralysis Spurs Chemist to Find a Cure

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

Anton A. Kriz.

This is a young story. It is the tale of a neighborhood boy who wants to be a Marconi, a Curie, and a Thomas Edison, all rolled into one. And he may.

Anton Kriz, 6713 South Laflin street, 22 years old, is a quiet young man who plays with test tubes and thin wires, and who makes his living as a food chemist. That much he won from a childhood handicapped by infantile paralysis.

Although only a cadet in the research field, Anton is even now the scientist of the quiet air and intense absorption. He is in his little, rather complete laboratory on the second floor of his home, every hour when he is not at school in Woodrow Wilson Junior college or at work in the food factory where he is an assistant chemist. Here he has found a salt, resembling radium, which may capture the attention of the medical world, and here, too, he has worked out a hypothesis that may further divide the spectrum.

Another Ben Franklin.

The childhood of Anton would be good biography for that of any famous scientist. At 3 years he helped his lawyer-inventor father in a laboratory and at 4 he sent up his first kite, strung with fine wires to meet an approaching storm. Although only a baby he guessed what would happen, and, as he says now, he wanted to see how it felt to receive static electricity through his body. The shock of it made him reel but he knew suddenly of all the unknown power to be investigated. When he was 6 years old his father died, leaving many unfinished experiments. The tragedy of it crystallized Anton's ambition.

The disease, which is now abroad in the city, caught up his probing young thoughts and speculations and twisted them for a time. Those things that happened then are vague for Anton now. But he remembers his first experiment with a spark coil at the age of 10, and the construction of his first crystal radio set at that time.

Trains His Hands.

The paralysis had affected his hands, but to give them keenness for future work, he took up baseball with the boys on the corner lot. The same concentration he brings to his workshop, he turned on pitching a ball with accuracy and deftness. The result was a "southpaw" which earned him his letter in junior college and a tryout with the Columbus club of the American association.

With those same trained hands, which only of late, he says, have gained their full sensitivity, he has built so delicate an amateur radio receiver set that he has picked up messages and codes from every continent and every country in the world except China. In recognition of it he belongs to a limited club of licensed radio operators and will soon receive his own license.

Another exclusive club, of which he is the founder, is the Amateur Academy of Science which has an enrollment of six members who have proved their ability by lecturing before the others on some scientific subject and then defended their thesis from a barrage of questions. All are interested in some particular phase of science and hope to lecture before the real academies of science in Paris and Berlin.

Delves Into Medicine.

Some time ago while experimenting with a chemical combination which he believes is of medical value, an explosion occurred which endangered the sight of the boy scientist. He waited until strength returned to his eyes, bought a pair of glasses and, not discouraged, began anew to mix uranium oxide and hydrogen chloride to safe proportions. He derived a salt which penetrates lead, and is near radium. "All chemicals which penetrate lead are of medical value," he says, "and I hope to get a concentrated uranium chloride which will cure cancer."

On the wall of the tiny laboratory, which is papered modernistically with five pointed stars, hangs a graph of the spectrum which is one of Anton's sources of speculation.

A Solitary Worker.

A typical Sunday for him starts at 7 o'clock mass in the morning after which he comes home and works in his laboratory until 10 o'clock in the evening. During school semesters he works until 4 and 5 o'clock in the morning. It is not only experiments that keep him closeted from the rest of his family. Perhaps it is one of his short stories which he likes to write for relaxation or the study of the Egyptian language, which he has taken up in the last few years. Often it is mathematics, or law which he culls from his father's books "just to be able to be a good citizen." More frequently it is astronomy. Some day he hopes to be able to afford an observatory. The equipment for a telescope is now in his room but space prevents the erection of it.

In six years, if all goes as planned he will be a doctor of science. "Then I will know," he can laugh now "why I was sick as a child. Perhaps if I had had more strength of body I wouldn't have had to concentrate on my mind. I guess the old law of compensation is always at work."

EXPECT 70,000 TO ENTER SOUTH SIDE ACTIVITIES

Crafts and Athletics to Be Stressed.

BY HAROLD SMITH.

Nearly 70,000 Chicagoans of all ages from the south and southwest sides are expected to register within the next few weeks in the park district's winter classes in artcrafts, handicrafts and music and drama. Additional thousands will participate in the fall and winter program of play and exercise.

This announcement was made by V. K. Brown, chief of recreation for the park district, who with his 194 staf associates last week rang down the curtain on the summer schedule and undertook the formidable task of launching the new season's program.

Brown estimated that more than 69,000 south and southwest siders will take advantage of the various park classes this winter. He based his estimate on an expected 15 per cent increase over last year's enrollment, which totaled more than 60,000.

Plan Four Day Demonstration.

Undismayed by the indicated increase, Brown and his staf are planning by a new means to invite more Chicagoans to use the parks' free facilities. This will be accomplished through a demonstration to be held in the Hotel Sherman from Oct. 11 to 15.

With the aid of women's groups and civic organizations the park district recreation workers will show some of the new activities that have been undertaken. While such demonstrations have previously been held in some of the fieldhouses, this year will be its first trial on a city-wide scale, Brown said.

"We want to reach every one we can with our program," the director declared. "Chicago's leisure time program is a big one, and it gets bigger as the work week grows shorter. In 1936 our attendances and individual uses of our facilities totaled 51,242,971, and this year's totals will be greater, for our horizon is always pushing outward.

New Problems in Leisure.

"Recreational needs change rapidly. We used to be concerned with the idle hour. Now it's the idle half day. But a surplus of leisure time is not an unmixed evil. For example, new sports records are being set constantly because athletes have more time to perfect their technique."

One of the park district's new activities is its industrial recreation service. Six park instructors work with the personnel stafs of large corporations to work out interesting play programs for employés. This new service was born of a demand created by the forty hour week.

The parks' play program as a whole follows the old pattern, but its details are changed sufficiently to catch and hold interest. As in other years, both young people and adults are welcomed to the various tournaments, the special clubs, and the many classes. They are invited to use the parks' machinery for pursuing their hobbies, paying only for materials consumed, which the park district furnishes at cost.

Budget of $1,300,000.

Nine men and women share with Mr. Brown the responsibility of keeping the play program interesting without overstepping the departmental budget of $1,300,000 a year, of which leadership takes about $400,000.

Walter Roy is Brown's chief assistant. V. F. Hernlund is supervisor of physical activities and R. V. Pierce is supervisor of general activities. Hernlund's aids are: Dorothea Nelson, director of the loop industrial program; F. G. Roach, director of boys' physical activities, and Ailene Kiest, girls' physical director. Assistants to Pierce are: Alice Beyer, director of artcraft; Fabian Kardes, director of handicrafts, and W. J. Higgins, director of drama and music.

While there will be few innovations in the athletic program that is about to get underway, the endeavor will be toward a greater participation than ever before, Hernlund said.

Plan Indoor Sports.

Athletic activities that are ending for the summer include baseball, archery, tennis, horseshoes, softball, and swimming. Those in the immediate offing include rugby, football, speedball, soccer, and gymnasium classes. Later there will be indoor sports such as basketball, volleyball, table tennis, swimming, archery, and track, and outdoor sports like skiing, skating, tobogganing, and snowshoeing. Instructors last week began attending seminars on the winter program.

Miss Beyer announced that her artcraft program will change but little with its move indoors. She expects about 45,000 women and children monthly to take part in her schedule of activities.

Most important of these are the home crafts, Miss Beyer said. Most of her charges enroll for instruction in sewing, knitting, corcheting, weaving, quilting, and rugmaking. Many, however, will attend classes in pottery making, lapidary work, toymaking, and the making and operation of puppets and marionettes.

MAJ. JOHN LYNCH AT 90 REVIEWS A LIFE OF ACTION

Soldier and Legislator, He Serves U. S.

soldiers in Florida, a Texas regiment refused to accept the money from his because of his color. He told them politely but firmly that it was his duty. The colonel of the regiment then told him to give way in the interests of harmony, but Maj. Lynch replied that he was not in the army to give way but to perform his duty. They still would not take the money.

The question went to President McKinley, who immediately backed up Maj. Lynch and declared that the officers of the regiment had laid themselves open to court martial. When a fellow officer asked Maj. Lynch if he still intended to pay off the regiment, the latter said:

"Yes, I'll pay them if I lose my life doing it. I have to discharge my duty."

All the soldiers but one took the money, and took it in good humor.

Still Active in Law.

After the war President McKinley appointed Maj. Lynch a paymaster in the regular army with the rank of captain. In 1906 he was promoted to major and in 1911 he was retired on pension. The next year he moved to Chicago and was admitted to the bar by reciprocity.

"Too young to be inactive," as he puts it, Maj. Lynch still conducts his law practice in the neat basement office of his home.

"I no longer take an active part in politics, for I have no future aspirations that way," he laughingly explains. "My interests are my law practice and my friends, although I do vote at every election. In local elections I believe in voting for or against the individual and in national elections for or against parties."

Twenty-seven years ago Maj. Lynch married his second wife, the present Mrs. Cora E. Lynch. At the time he told her he thought he would live five years more. Now his goal is 100.

DISTRICT 25 P.-T. TO HAVE ANNUAL RALLY THURSDAY

Chairmen to Confer at Thoburn Church.

Although school days have been belated this year for children there is no vacation extension for mothers in parent-teacher work. District 25 of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers will hold its fourth annual conference Thursday at the Thoburn Methodist Episcopal church, 64th and Paulina streets, with registration at 9:45 o'clock in the morning.

The theme for the day will be, "Lift Up a Standard for the People." Mrs. C. B. Smith, district director, will call the morning session to order at 10 o'clock, after which the Rev. John H. De Lacey, pastor of the Thoburn church, will welcome the assembly. On the morning program will be a panel discussion of "Our Objects, Why We Must Cleave to Them, and How." Participants in the discussion will be Mrs. Edwin G. Nichols, third state vice president; Mrs. H. W. Kibler, sixth state vice president; Mrs. Raymond A. Miller, state juvenile protection chairman; Mrs. Harry Mulberry, state library chairman; the Rev. Vern A. Blair, and Mrs. Thomas B. Stephenson, a member of the state board.

The high school division will assemble in the afternoon at 1:15 o'clock Dr. Franklin R. Fitch of the Illinois Social Hygiene league will speak on "Significance of the Venereal Disease Campaign." Otis Keeler, assistant superintendent of public instruction, will tell of "The High School Situation in Illinois," and Jack Kornfeld will conduct a student forum.

The elementary division meeting at the Thoburn church will hear a symposium on "The P.-T. A. at Work" by Mrs. Clark L. Reed, Mrs. W. R. Kerr, and Mrs. C. B. Smith. Round table talks will begin at 2 o'clock for departmental chairmen, conducted by Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Thomas B. Stephenson, state chairman; Mrs. Aaron Levy, state treasurer, and Mrs. George R. Ives, state secretary.

Judge Fred G. Bale of Westerville, O., will speak at a joint meeting of the Sutherland and Vanderpoel P.-T. A.'s, Friday evening in the Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. His topic will be "Design for Living."

◆

Sixteen reservations have been made by the Eberhart P.-T. A. for the all day conference of District 25 to be held Thursday at the Thoburn Methodist Episcopal church, 64th and Paulina streets.

◆

The O'Toole P.-T. A. will tour a fur company at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon. Mrs. Clarence Weber, ways and means chairman, will be in charge.

◆

"Character Building Through Education" has been chosen by the Burroughs P.-T. A. as its theme for the year. Officers and chairmen are Mrs. Jack Flynn, president; Mrs. Joseph Sheldon, vice president; Mrs. James Slattery, second vice president; Miss Margaret O'Brien, third vice president and principal of the school; Mrs. Walter Kranson, secretary; Mrs. Frank Kolinski, treasurer; Mrs. James Rose and Mrs. Frank Koeppler, ways and means; Mrs. Irving V. Markham, publicity and summer roundup, and Mrs. Harvey Struck, homemaking.

Others are: Mrs. A. A. Keates, publications and National Parent-Teacher magazine; Mrs. James Ivers, student aid; Mrs. K. T. Woods, school education; Mrs. R. R. Bamford, hospitality; Mrs. C. A. Wiedeman, humane education; Mrs. R. V. Booten, recreation and leisure time; Mrs. Kranson, parent education; Mrs. C. C. Bruce, health and safety; Mrs. Arthur Mock, radio; Mrs. James Slattery, juvenile protection and visual education; Mrs. William Ahlgrim, music; Mrs. Frank Koeppler, Mrs. James Rose, Mrs. Frank Kolinski, Mrs. A. A. Keates, and Mrs. Joseph Sheldon, budget and finance, and Mrs. Sheldon, membership.

PARKS PREPARE RECORD WINTER CLASS SCHEDULE

Expect 70,000 to Use South Side Facilities.

attention this winter, Miss Beyer said. The pottery classes will benefit from a newly installed indoor pottery kiln at Hamilton park.

More than 10,000 men and boys each month will participate in handicraft activities under Mr. Kardes, he estimated. Such hobbies and recreation as sailing and archery will continue for a time to hold the outdoor stage. With the freezeup will come ice boating, and much time and labor will be spent on the making of sailboats, iceboats, gliders, and model yachts and airplanes.

An important new activity in Kardes' field is represented by the new but precocious rainbow fleet of sailing dinghys. This fleet consists of ten-foot vessels made in park fieldhouses, the owners of which are being trained by park instructors in every phase of their operation. Twelve parks already have rainbow boats.

The "rainbow" fleet is so-called because its various divisions are distinguished by the color of the sails used.

New Musical Group.

A new idea in music that is being developed by Higgins and his staf is the encouragement of a continuation of high school training in this line. This winter Higgins will organize bands of musicians who have not previously kept up playing skill learned in high school.

This is the outgrowth of an experiment tried on the west side last year, which indicated that young men and women musicians are eager to keep in practice if given the opportunity. The park staf also will try a similar experiment in vocal work as soon as the proper instructors are found.

As in previous years, the winter program will include classes in choral and orchestral music. In dramatics instruction will reach all age groups from tiny children to little theater players.

Fifteen parks with fieldhouses are on the southwest side. These include: Armour Square, at 33d street and Shields avenue; Cornell Square, at 51st and Wood streets; Davis Square, at 45th street and Marshfield avenue; Fernwood, at 10438 South Lowe avenue; Fuller, at 45th street and Princeton avenue; Gage, at 55th street and Western avenue; Hamilton, at 72d street and Normal boulevard, and Mark White Square, at 29th and Halsted streets.

Others In District.

South Side Aleph Zadek Aleph to Hold Banquet

South Side chapter, No. 64, Aleph Zadek Aleph, will close its summer program this evening with a banquet at the South Shore temple, 7215 Jeffery avenue, in honor of the chapter's 10th anniversary. Judge Jacob Braude, honorary adviser, will speak.

THIRD DISTRICT WOMEN TO HOLD PICNIC ON FRIDAY

Orland Park Club Will Act as Hostess.

With autumn for their setting, the club women of the third congressional district of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs will picnic for the last time this year next Friday at McGinnis slough, 143d street in Orland park. They will be guests of the Orland Park Woman's club, of which Mrs. Edgar Graves is president.

An old fashioned box luncheon will be served by the hostess club, the proceeds of which will be used to maintain the new Orland Park Public library. Other features on the program, which has been arranged by Mrs. George Ward of Palos Park, district conservation chairman, include a talk by Ransom Kennicott, former chief of the forest preserves of Cook county; a demonstration by a government agent on the banding of migratory waterfowl, and a brief history of McGinnis slough as a bird sanctuary by Mrs. Ward.

Third District.

Three department chairmen, American home, law observance, and public welfare, will hold individual meetings this week to discuss the outlines of the state departments. Club public welfare chairmen and representatives will meet Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. A. M. Duller, 1624 West 107th street, district public welfare chairman.

Mrs. Harold F. Wood, district American home chairman, will meet with club chairman and representatives Tuesday afternoon in her home, 11039 South Irving avenue.

The meeting of the law observance chairmen will be held Wednesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. F. J. Nichols, 12722 Elm street, Blue Island, district law observance chairman.

Neighborhood Woman's Club.

The Garden Circle will meet at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home of Mrs. Clair Magee, 8549 South Peoria street. Mrs. Magee is treasurer of the club.

Homewood Woman's Club.

BEVERLY HILLS JUNIORS TO GIVE BENEFIT BRIDGE

Party Tomorrow to Aid Club Charities.

When young women played euchre fifty years ago, thimbles and embroidery hoops were most likely to be the awards. Today the highest score at contract bridge qualifies the player for a round trip ticket to Detroit by plane. This will be one of the awards given at the annual bridge party of the Beverly Hills Junior Woman's club, tomorrow evening, in the Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive.

The proceeds of the party, which is sponsored by the ways and means committee, will be divided among the club's philanthropies, the Oak Forest home, the Red Cross, the Park Ridge school for girls, the Gompers elementary school for crippled children, and private charity. Members of the committee of arrangements are Mrs. James Mason, chairman; Mrs. J. S. Stokoe, Miss Sophie Lender, Miss Mildred Herrod, Mrs. C. W. Upton, Mrs. Clifford Sounders, and Miss Helen Dargan.

Blue Island Junior Woman's Club.

Mrs. James McCord, charter member, has been elected president of the club. She will be assisted by Miss Dorothy Dohrman, vice president; Miss Phyllis Frasor, second vice president; Miss Dorothy Jauchzer, recording secretary; Mrs. Howard Alsip, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Harry Anderson, treasurer, and Miss Kathryn Stoll, parliamentarian. Mrs. McCord also will be one of the district, delegates, as will Mrs. William Snyder. Miss Marie Dean and Mrs. Roy Janson will be alternates and Miss Helen Stoll and Miss Catherine McCord will be junior league sponsors.

Department chairmen are: Miss Margaret Groskopf, literature; Mrs. Norman Beasley, drama; Miss Ella Schreiber, art; Mrs. Earl Jorgensen, music chairman, and Miss Mildred Joens; co-chairman; Miss Margaret Hilt, community chairman, and Mrs. Richard Seyfarth, co-chairman; Mrs. Lowell Fraser, American home; Miss Elaine Brethauer, American citizenship; Miss Marjorie Nagel, international relations; Mrs. Ervin Madlung, Indian welfare; Mrs. Andrew Mahle, education; Miss Blossom Rankin, motion pictures, and Mrs. C. C. Den Herder, press and publicity.

BROADCAST FOOD FOR THOUGHT? USE SUGAR COATING!

Lessons Should Entertain as Well as Inform.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Chicago has been experimenting the past week with radio as a substitute for the classroom for its 325,000 elementary school pupils, due to the prevalence of infantile paralysis which has kept all schools closed. The experiment has served anew to focus attention on the kilocycles as a medium of education.

With the advent of broadcasting some 15 years ago there were prognosticators who expected radio to supplant the textbook—and even the teacher. But the clearer eyed prophets envisioned no such revolution in education. They saw in the microphone merely a supplementary educational tool. A decade and a half has established the truth of their view. It has become increasingly more apparent that the most that radio can do in the teaching rôle is to stimulate thinking and to inspire further study.

One of the complaints that has been made often the past week, as teachers attempted to carry instruction into the home, was that they proceeded too swiftly. Specific directions for procedure could not be jotted down. A broadcast is, after all, a fleeting matter. A text book may be read and reread as often as necessary to absorb a given item.

Disciplined in School Room.

Broadcasts, in a sense, assume that all minds are of equal comprehension potentiality. In the classroom the teacher can drill and concentrate on pupils who fail to grasp the subject the first time. Also, in the classroom the teacher relies on more than voice to put over what she has to say. There are facial expressions, gestures, and general demeanor, all of which help to hold the attention and interest. Also in a school room the youngsters are disciplined; they are under the direct command of the teacher. On the radio any other distraction, more attractive for the moment, may lure the listeners away.

Radio is essentially an entertainment medium. Thus any one proposing to broadcast food for thought ought always to remember to make it as palatable as possible. If education by radio is to reach its full effectiveness it must conform to the best practices of show business. Information, if it is to have wide public acceptance, ought to be sugar coated.

Thus the station which put on Carveth Wells, the famed explorer and globe trotter, during a dinner hour lesson broadcast talking about elephants he had stalked in India and Africa, probably made more of a hit with third and fourth graders than if it had insisted on drills in the multiplication tables.

Probably the University Broadcasting council, in which several universities and broadcasting stations cooperate in Chicago, has been so successful because it has realized the necessity of making its presentations sprightly, informal, and for the most part entertaining. While they have been illuminating they have also kept full of color.

Entertaining While Informative.

The University of Chicago Round Table, for instance, though primarily an educational program, has been kept so informal, so spontaneous, even though usually dealing with serious matters, that most listeners have come to regard it at least as much entertaining as informative.

In the Titans of Science series stories of the lives and accomplishments of the great of science were put over with greater effectiveness by presenting them in dramatic form.

Walter Damrosch's Musical Appreciation hour, which has entertained as well as instructed a decade of youth, has probably enriched the nation, musically speaking, as much as any other single factor. Today more than 40,000 American schools are radio equipped and a substantial portion of these arrange to tune in the Damrosch programs regularly every season.

Keep Entertainment Uppermost.

There are numerous other programs which, while in the main informative, never fail to keep the entertainment theme uppermost. Such programs as Cavalcade of America, The Singing Lady, the Junior Nurses Corps, Wilderness Road, the new Zenith Foundation series on telepathic experiments, the Science in the News series are just a few that come to mind at the moment.

At any rate educational broadcasts year by year are becoming more palatable. And it's a good thing. For this fact we have such persons to thank for as Dr. James Rowland Angell, former president of Yale, who gets $25,000 a year for his ideas at NBC, and Allen Miller, Myrtle Stahl, and Judith Waller, who work in the local vineyards for somewhat less, but probably just as wisely!

WELCOMED TO NEW SHOW

Les Tremayne (right) and Barbara Luddy, headliners of NBC's First Nighter, welcome Cal Tinney to local radio circles. Tinney, rural comedian, is to be the headliner of the new Vanity Fair series starting at 7:30 tomorrow night over WLS-NBC. Tinney was a guest on First Nighter a week ago.

Lynn Chalmers, Lon Saxon on "Symphony in Rhythm"

Lynn Chalmers, red haired songstress, and Lon Saxon will be the soloists with Harold Stokes and the W-G-N dance orchestra on the 30 minute W-G-N and Mutual network show "Symphony in Rhythm" at 7:30 Tuesday night. Miss Chalmers will sing "If You Should Ever Leave" and "In a Little Carolina Town," and Saxon's solos will be "Can I Forget You" and "Don't Ever Change."

Germany Today Subject of N. U. Reviewing Stand

The condition of Germany, financially and politically, will be discussed on the Northwestern university reviewing stand at 10 a. m. today over W-G-N and a Mutual network. Prof. Tracey E. Strevey and Prof. Ernest Lauer, both of Northwestern's department of history, will be the speakers on the program which is regularly broadcast by the University Broadcasting council.

FAMOUS JURY TRIALS BACK ON MBS TOMORROW

W-G-N to Serve as Outlet for Dramatic Series.

"Famous Jury Trials," dramatic reenactment of America's major court room stories, returns to the air from 9 to 9:45 p. m. tomorrow over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system.

"Famous Jury Trials" owes much of its popularity with listeners to the persistence of authors Martin H. Young and Sam Baker to make each case authentic and legally correct. Young, a New York trial lawyer, first prepares each broadcast as he would an actual brief for a court trial. Legal loopholes are thus averted. Then Baker whips the "brief" into broadcast routine, deleting the routine testimonies and highlighting the incriminating evidence and clues.

Music, drama and comedy feature the presentations from W-G-N's audience studio this week with "Curtain Time," presenting a new mystery show written especially for the broadcast at 9:30 on Friday evening. The show, written by Samson Horn, is titled "The Amazing Case of the Man with the Red Beard," and will star a cast of six headed by Reese Taylor as Crandall Hawks, noted criminologist. Blair Walliser will produce the show and Henry Weber's orchestra will provide incidental music.

Tomorrow night at 9:30 Henry Weber will present Attilio Baggiore, tenor, and Opal Craven, soprano, as soloists on the Pageant of Melody program with the concert orchestra and octet. Mr. Baggiore will sing "I Hear You Calling Me," by Marshall, and "Colleen o' Mine," by Strickland. Miss Craven's selections will be "I'll See You Again," from "Bittersweet," and themes from Rodgers' "Connecticut Yankee," with Mr. Baggiore and the octet.

MAGIC KEY TO SHOW USES OF RADIO IN SAFETY

An Atlantic liner on the high seas, four of the major air lines of the United States and four in Europe, the police system of Boston and the police and fire fighting systems of Trenton, N. J., an amateur rewarded for heroism in disaster, and the gigantic "air cop" system at the Cleveland, O., airport will be utilized when the Magic Key of RCA presents a demonstration of the world-wide use of radio in the protection of life in everyday affairs at 1 p. m. today over WENR.

The "ham" to be heard will be Willard O. Conrad of Elmhurst, Ill., who stood at his transmitter for 72 hours doing relief work during the devastating Ohio river floods of last January.

Next will be a demonstration of the use of short wave radio by the police department of Boston, Mass., with two way transmission.

From police use of radio on the ground the program will switch to Cleveland, where its use in the air will be described. Listeners will hear Clarence T. Talpo, a so-called "air cop."

Then the Magic Key will hop to the bridge of the giant liner Queen Mary, at sea off Nantucket. John B. Kennedy, who will conduct all of the switches and interviews, will speak to Capt. Robert B. Irving and A. H. Farman, the ship's radio officer. During the interview the story of how radio is used to assist in the safe navigation of ships will be told even as one of the largest ships afloat brings her passengers New Yorkward.

The climax of the air radio spectacle will be a flashing trip over half the world via short wave radio as airliners carry passengers hither and yon to the far corners of the earth.

Jan Peerce Soloist Today on Music Hall Broadcast

The 70-piece Music Hall Symphony orchestra, conducted by Erno Rapee, will return to the air at 11:30 a. m. today over WENR. Jan Peerce, tenor, will be soloist. Symphony No. 1 by the contemporary Russian composer, Shostakovitch, will be played as the opening number. Peerce will sing two selections.

RADIATORS NEED NO LONGER TAKE VALUABLE SPACE

SmallerHeating Units May Be Placed in Walls.

Learn how to save fuel and keep the house warmer. Read the booklet, "Let's Keep Warm—For Less Money," by Louise Bargelt, Tribune home builders' editor. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

Radiators of late have been enjoying not only a change of face but of position as well.

As we look around us, in some of the new homes as well as the modernized ones, we see that they have not only been subjected to rigorous reducing diets, and have dropped literal pounds in the slenderizing process, but often have been routed from sight. They have taken to the walls, and in complete concealment behind attractive grilles perform their allotted tasks under the new name of convector.

Very modern these convectors, and a new trend in radiator heating. The baby's bathroom in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Bard, Winnetka, has one of these sturdy units behind an attractive grille; the living room in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Cigan, Oak Park, has the unit hidden in the wall beneath a window, and in the living room in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Monninger, 6090 Kirkwood avenue, the unit is concealed below the built-in bookcases.

Bulky Radiators Out.

Our approaching fall of 1937 is acquainting us with the fact that radiators of today are quite a distance removed from their bulky and ponderous selves of twenty years ago, those days when they stood high, wide, and arrogant, insisting on abundant space for themselves, no matter how small the room might be.

They have grown definitly slimmer and been spurred on to greater vim and zest with their smaller waterways and narrower columns. Where they are not recessed or concealed you will likely find them artistically painted or handsomely housed in cabinets all their own.

Rooms look larger, of course, where radiation is concealed in the walls, and since these units have lost much of their old time height and bulk, and are even made in midget sizes to fit a wide variety of spaces, it is no difficult matter at all to tuck them away in the wall.

Nor does one have to wait till a new house is built to enjoy this recessed or concealed radiation. If one has an already built house it is quite possible to recess or to conceal the heating units in the wall or out from the wall a little, flush with the window sill.

Four Ways of Change.

With an already built house which has a hot water, steam, vapor, or vacuum heating system one can modernize the existing radiators in several different ways:

1. Replace old radiators by units with slimmer tubes, or by midget types which occupy comparatively little space.
2. Inclose existing radiators in attractive cabinets and add some humidity to rooms at the same time.
3. Substitute convectors for radiators and recess in walls behind efficient grilles of plaster or metal.
4. Substitute convectors for radiators and conceal completely in walls behind modern grilles or panels.

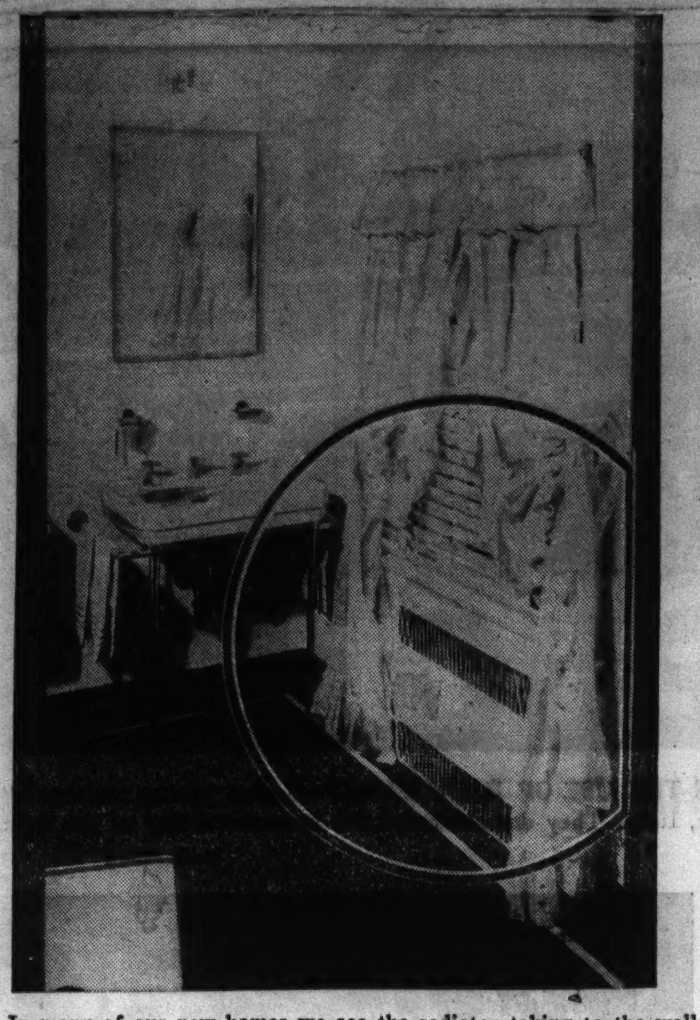
These new convector units, designed for concealment in walls, are manufactured in a variety of sizes. By cutting into the wall as far back as the sheathing, space is obtained to accommodate the unit, as well as the insulation, which should be placed between outside wall and heating unit.

To meet the cold, "where it comes in," the convector, when it is possible, is placed under a window. In this case, with the insulation behind it, it can project out from the wall somewhat, so as to be flush with the window apron.

Front Is Part of Wall.

These convectors are units designed to give off heat both by radiation and convection, hence their name. The front panel, which becomes a part of the wall, is an active heating unit and radiates warmth directly into the lower or the occupied part of the room.

CONCEALING THE RADIATOR



In many of our new homes we see the radiator taking to the wall, as in this residence of Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Bard, Winnetka. Here the baby's bath is shown, with space saving convector unit, concealed behind an attractive grille.

FORT SHERIDAN PRIVATES NAMED TO R. O. T. C. STAF

Orders have been received from Washington naming Private Harry W. C. Beilfuss and Private Gilbert E. Zahrn to two of the three vacant posts as military instructors in the Chicago high schools, it was announced last week by Col. W. F. Morrison, officer in charge of the R. O. T. C.

The third opening appeared recently when Private Eugene N. Axtell, instructor at Marshall High school, was discharged from the army after serving his term of enlistment. Previously Sergt. Wilbur L. Peshia and Private Edmond Synoradzki, instructors at Harper and Austin, had been discharged.

Schools will not be assigned to the new men until the third appointment has been received from the war department, Col. Morrison said. It is expected within a few days.

Private Beilfuss will come to his new post from battery A, 61st coast artillery, Fort Sheridan, and Private Zahrn from battery E, 61st coast artillery.

Taking advantage of the extra time provided by the postponement of the opening of school, Col. Morrison and his staf conducted a "refresher" school for the military instructors at the R. O. T. C. storehouse, 107 South Morgan street, several days last week.

Speeches on administration and training were given by Col. Morrison, Major William B. Weston, Major John H. Ringe, Major Joseph L. Lambert, and Capt. Richard H. Darrell.

SOUTHTOWNERS' CLUB TO HOLD SEPTEMBER SWING BALL SATURDAY

The Southowners' Social club will hold a "September Swing" ball Saturday evening at the Hayes hotel, 6345 South University avenue, under the chairmanship of Miss Lauretta Madia, 220 West 31st street, and Miss Mamie De Somer, 3033 South Wells street, assistant chairman. Others on the committee of arrangements are Robert Fitzgerald, 5640 South Elizabeth street, president; Karl Mewing, 6151 South Champlain avenue, vice president; Gene Polley, 5643 South Spaulding avenue, secretary; Vernon Pauly, 707 East 61st street, treasurer, and Miss Marguerite Mascolino, 7548 South Prairie avenue.

Miss Lauretta Madia.

Warlike Spirit Spreads Over Europe Tense with Nationalism—Italy and Germany Strengthen Fascist Bonds

YOUNG FASCISTI LEARN THE USE OF BABY TANKS—Italian youths undergoing military training at Camp Roma, Italy. They demonstrated the maneuverability of the light tanks during maneuvers. [Acme Photo.]

SPANISH ENVOY—Fernando de Los Rios, Spanish ambassador, arriving at White House. He refused to discuss his conference with President Roosevelt but said it pertained to the war in Spain.

POPULARIZING AVIATION IN FRANCE—Its eyes on the Fascist nations, France is building its air force. Here an aviator leaves the plane with two parachutes in meet held at Vincennes under auspices of French air ministry.

Veterinarians Crusade against Hit-or-Miss Dog Feeding

THIN, UNDERWEIGHT LISTLESS

Condition illustrated by Luhrs

Treated by
*Dr. C. L. M______.

"This unfortunate Doberman pup commented Dr M...... "was a victim of its owner's lack of knowledge of dog feeding Malnutrition was the real cause of its listless, run-down condition, as it is in 9 cases out of 10." Dr. M...... like many other leading veterinarians, is today actively crusading against hit or miss feeding of dogs, and especially against nutritionally deficient dog rations. (Two cans a day of Pard, Swift's canine tested feeding formula now suffice to keep this big Doberman in the pink of condition. See photo at right.)

PARD..SWIFT'S CANINE-TESTED FEEDING FORMULA

YOU COULD NOT LIVE on a cave-man's diet... and the same principle applies to your dog. His digestive system and basic food needs are the same as his wild ancestors... but his greatly changed way of life demands a delicate readjustment of his diet.

Unless you are an expert on nutrition, the safest thing is to feed your dog Pard, Swift's canine-tested feeding formula. Pard has been proved through exclusive feeding to 4 consecutive generations of fine dogs. In Pard, fresh beef meat food products are combined with seven other fine ingredients, including vitamins and minerals, according to a special formula. Put your dog on this practical, tested ration now. Swift & Company, Chicago.

This old hand at housework could tell you something about
CHICAGO FAUCETS

SHE'S JUST a mild, sweet lady, is mother, but when it comes to household appliances she has definite opinions. You could learn from her the day-by-day operating advantages of Chicago Faucets. She could tell you that they are so dependable you just take them for granted; that they hold the flow at exactly the volume you want; that they shut off positively without after drip; that spouts swing easily but without play or wobble; and as for freedom from trouble... "Why, mercy sakes! I never knew one to get out of kilter."

Your Plumber will gladly show you Chicago Faucets for every type of service. Or, see downtown display, 213 N. LaSalle St.—sidewalk level. Phone BELmont 0300 for name of nearest dealer.

EXTRA MARGIN OF SAFETY MOTOR OIL!

BE OIL-WISE! USE PENNZOIL

Blowout protected tires, shatterproof glass, and now an extra margin of safety for your motor, too — Pennzoil motor oil!

This oil keeps your motor running smoother, prevents the troubles caused by oil failure.

Double refined from selected Pennsylvania crudes to make it tough — then washed with a solvent that removes sludge-forming impurities, Pennzoil lasts longer, lubricates better, and costs less per mile.

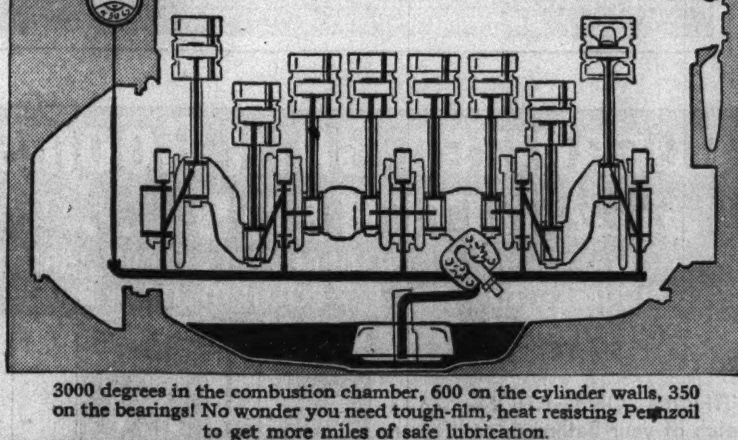
A clot of sludge in an oil line can damage your motor. Pennzoil resists sludge 30 to 60 times longer than usual... one reason why it gives you an extra margin of safety.



3000 degrees in the combustion chamber, 600 on the cylinder walls, 350 on the bearings! No wonder you need tough-film, heat resisting Pennzoil to get more miles of safe lubrication.

Oil failure helps fill junk yards like this. High speeds, heat and close fitting parts of modern cars advise wise motorists to use Pennzoil and keep their new cars new.

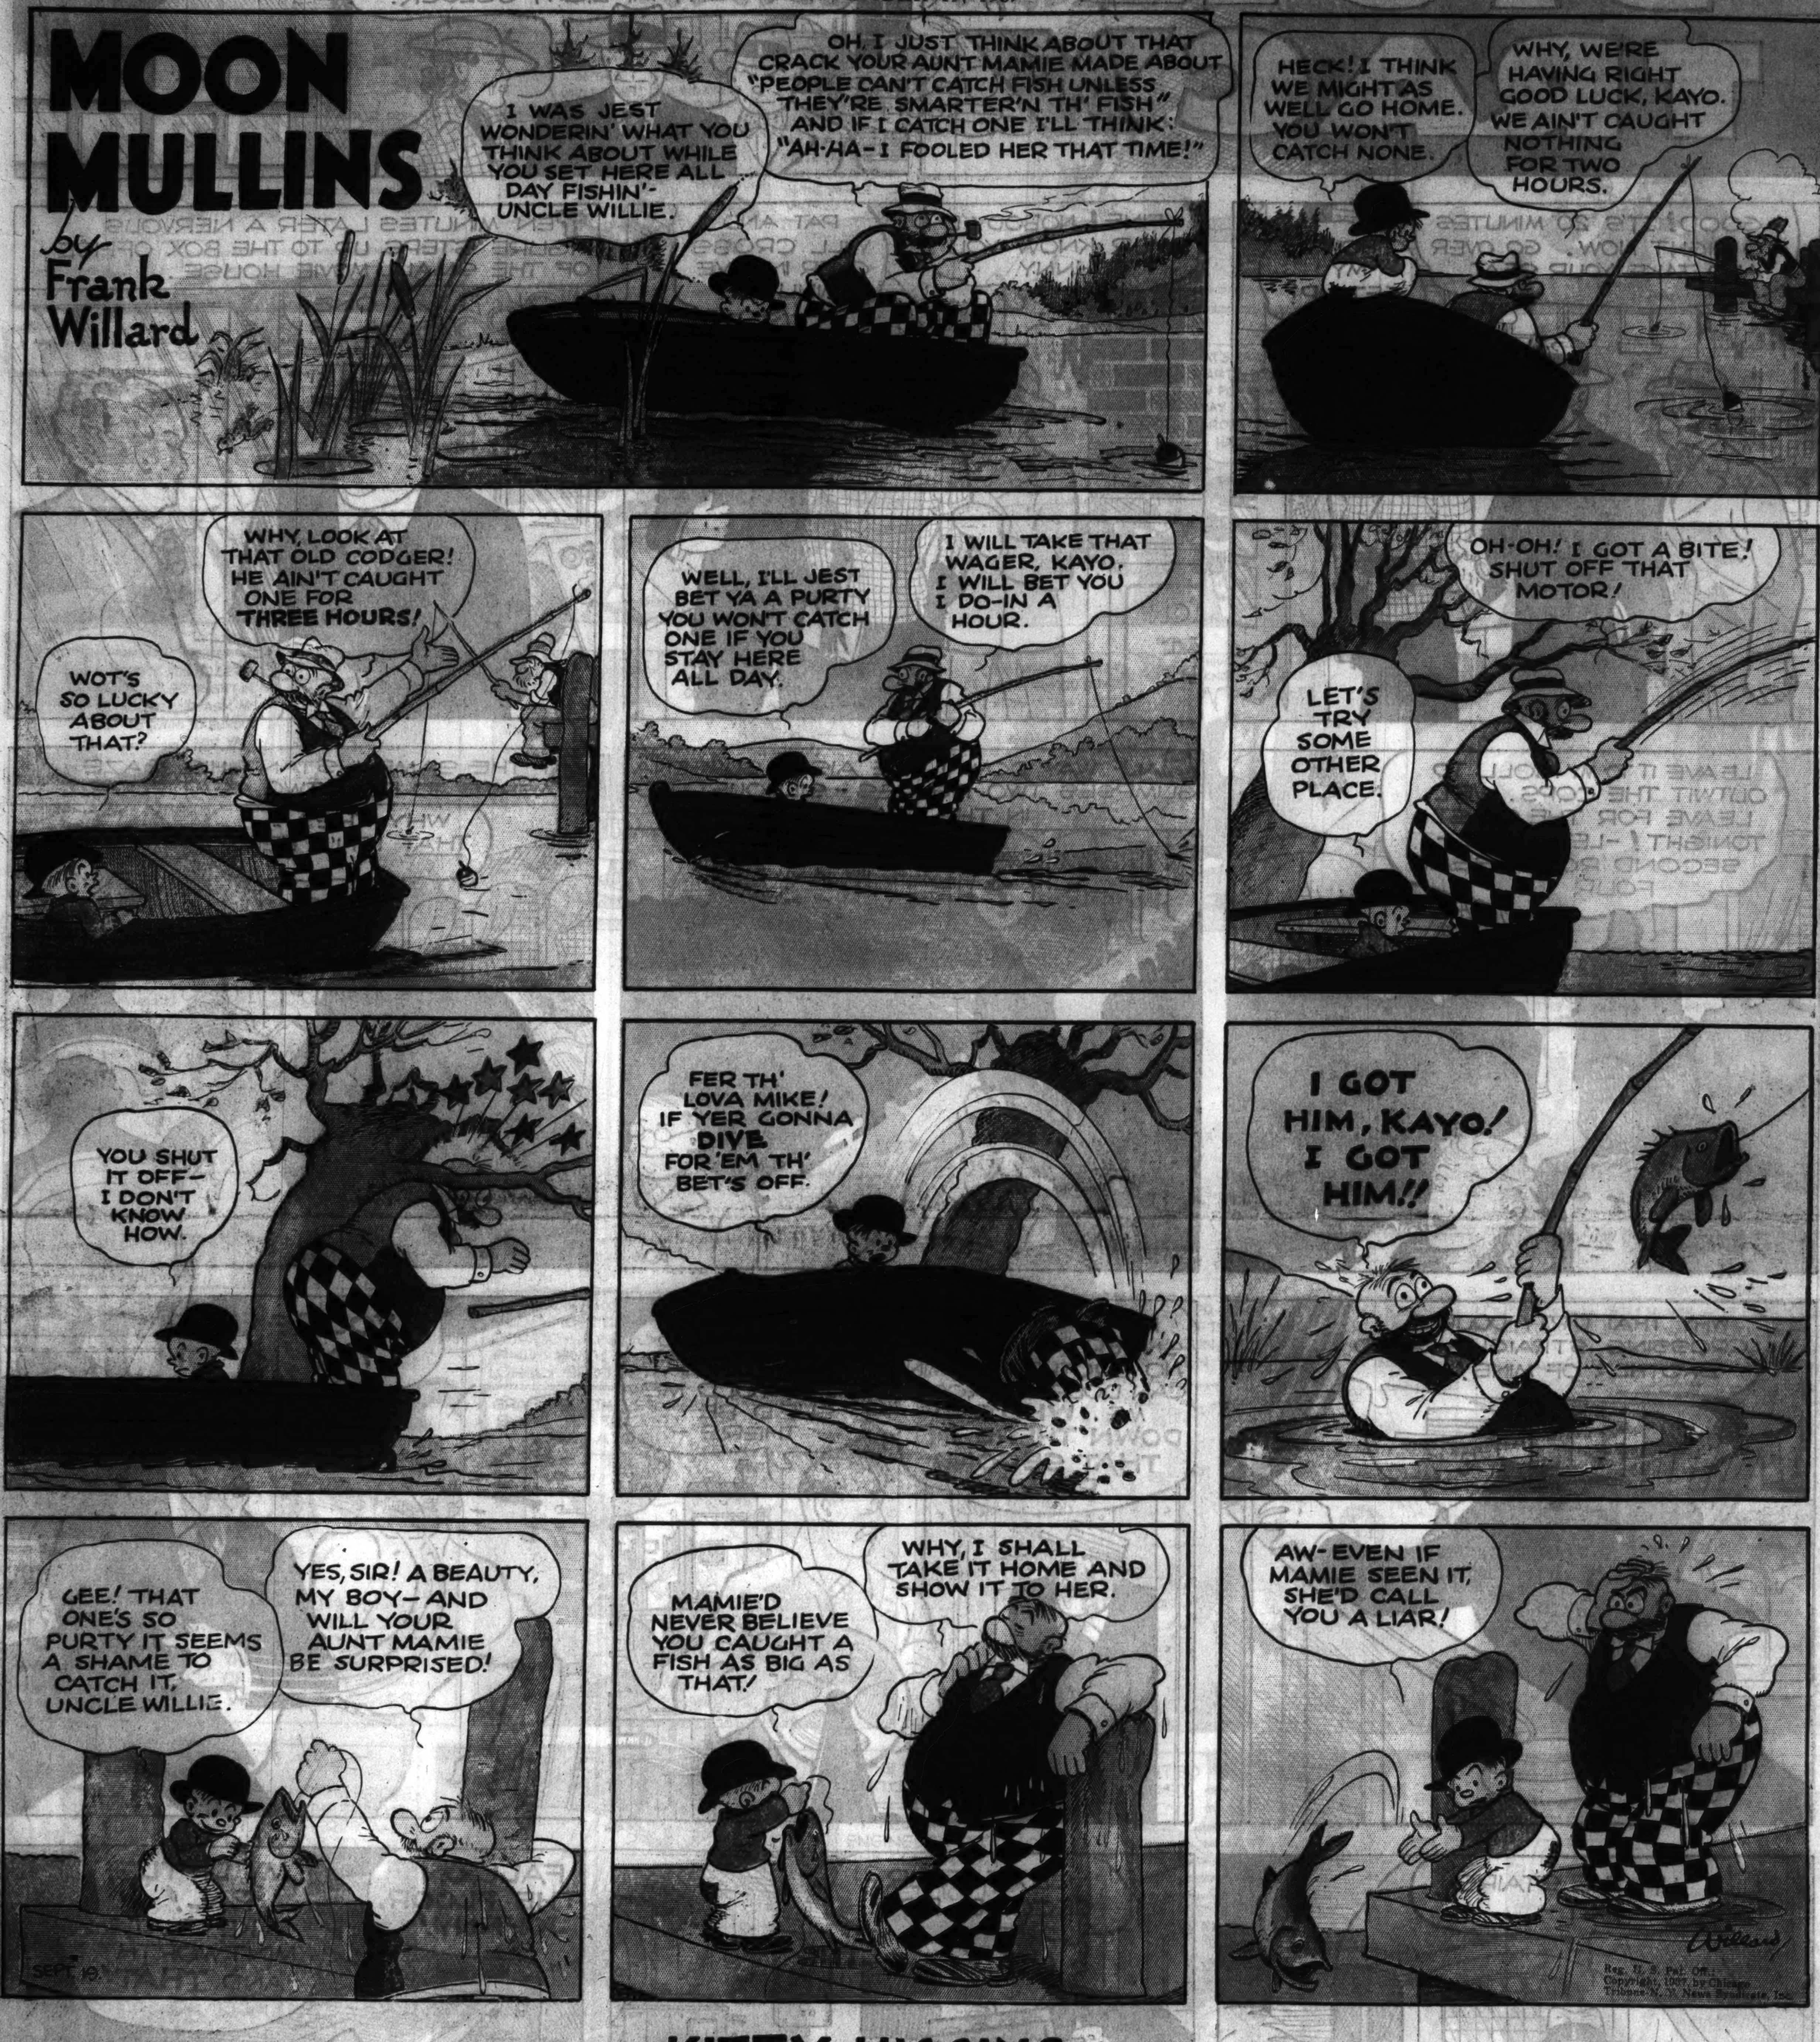
MOON MULLINS

by Frank Willard



I WAS JEST WONDERIN' WHAT YOU THINK ABOUT WHILE YOU SET HERE ALL DAY FISHIN'- UNCLE WILLIE.
OH, I JUST THINK ABOUT THAT CRACK YOUR AUNT MAMIE MADE ABOUT "PEOPLE CAN'T CATCH FISH UNLESS THEY'RE SMARTER'N TH' FISH" AND IF I CATCH ONE I'LL THINK: "AH-HA- I FOOLED HER THAT TIME!"
HECK! I THINK WE MIGHT AS WELL GO HOME. YOU WON'T CATCH NONE.
WHY, WE'RE HAVING RIGHT GOOD LUCK, KAYO. WE AIN'T CAUGHT NOTHING FOR TWO HOURS.
WHY, LOOK AT THAT OLD CODGER! HE AIN'T CAUGHT ONE FOR THREE HOURS!
WOT'S SO LUCKY ABOUT THAT?
WELL, I'LL JEST BET YA A PURTY YOU WON'T CATCH ONE IF YOU STAY HERE ALL DAY.
I WILL TAKE THAT WAGER, KAYO. I WILL BET YOU I DO-IN A HOUR.
OH-OH! I GOT A BITE! SHUT OFF THAT MOTOR!
LET'S TRY SOME OTHER PLACE.
YOU SHUT IT OFF- I DON'T KNOW HOW.
FER TH' LOVA MIKE! IF YER GONNA DIVE FOR 'EM TH' BET'S OFF.
I GOT HIM, KAYO! I GOT HIM!!
GEE! THAT ONE'S SO PURTY IT SEEMS A SHAME TO CATCH IT, UNCLE WILLIE.
YES, SIR! A BEAUTY, MY BOY- AND WILL YOUR AUNT MAMIE BE SURPRISED!
MAMIE'D NEVER BELIEVE YOU CAUGHT A FISH AS BIG AS THAT!
WHY, I SHALL TAKE IT HOME AND SHOW IT TO HER.
AW- EVEN IF MAMIE SEEN IT, SHE'D CALL YOU A LIAR!

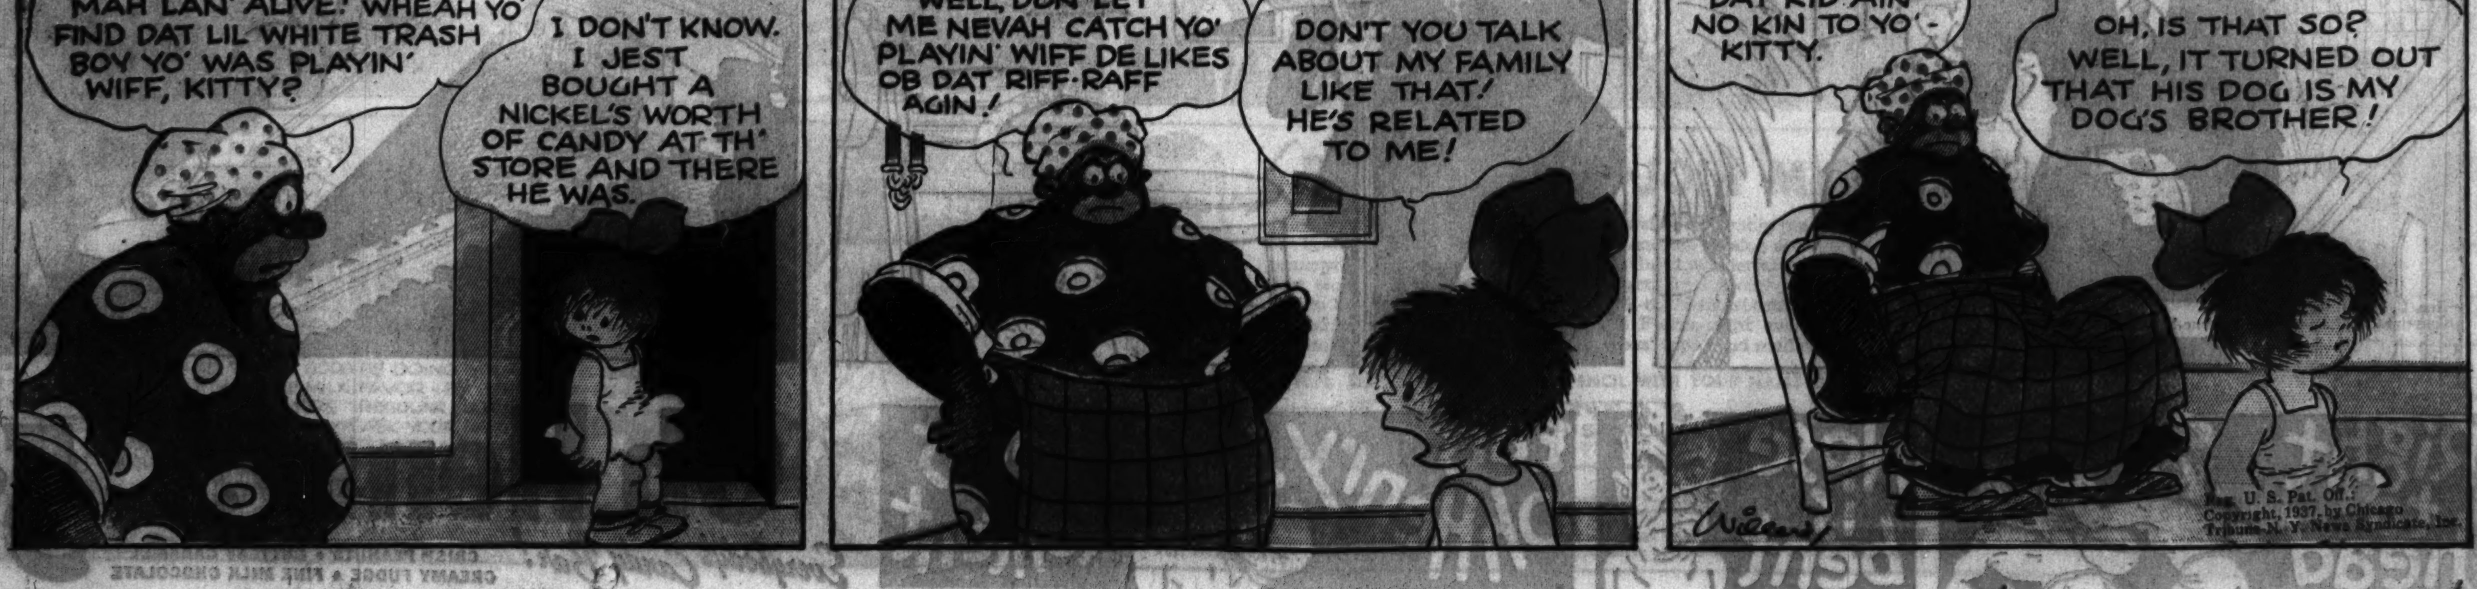
KITTY HIGGINS



MAH LAN' ALIVE! WHEAH YO' FIND DAT LIL WHITE TRASH BOY YO' WAS PLAYIN' WIFF, KITTY?
I DON'T KNOW. I JEST BOUGHT A NICKEL'S WORTH OF CANDY AT TH' STORE AND THERE HE WAS.
WELL, DON' LET ME NEVAH CATCH YO' PLAYIN' WIFF DE LIKES OB DAT RIFF-RAFF AGIN!
DON'T YOU TALK ABOUT MY FAMILY LIKE THAT! HE'S RELATED TO ME!
DAT KID AIN' NO KIN TO YO'- KITTY.
OH, IS THAT SO? WELL, IT TURNED OUT THAT HIS DOG IS MY DOG'S BROTHER!

DICK TRACY
SCENE: ACROSS THE STREET FROM THE BROADCIRCLE THEATER
I DID LIKE YOU SAID. I TOLD SUPEENA'S BROTHER TO TELL SUPEENA I'D BE SITTING IN SEAT FOUR OF THE SECOND ROW TONIGHT AT EIGHT O'CLOCK.
GOOD! IT'S 20 MINUTES TO EIGHT NOW. GO OVER AND TAKE YOUR SEAT.
HOW'S MY GET-UP?
FINE! NOBODY'D EVER KNOW YOU JOHNNY.
PAT AND I WILL CROSS OVER IN FIVE MINUTES
TEN MINUTES LATER A NERVOUS FIGURE STEPS UP TO THE BOX OFFICE OF THE SMALL MOVIE HOUSE.
ONE!
LEAVE IT TO MY MOLL TO OUTWIT THE COPS. WE'LL LEAVE FOR THE COAST TONIGHT! -LET'S SEE - SECOND ROW - SEAT FOUR HALF WAY DOWN THE AISLE, SUPEENA GLIMPSES TWO FIGURES - SILHOUETTED IN THE REAR...
WHY THE --- THAT ISN'T HER!
WHY THAT DIRTY DOUBLE CROSSING, STRAIGHT-LACED BROTHER OF MINE!
LISTEN-YOU CAN SNEER AT ME - BUT NO BROTHER OF MINE CAN DOUBLE-CROSS ME. WHO'S DOWN THERE IN THAT SECOND ROW?
THAT'S YOUR SWEETHEART- SHE TOLD ME SHE'D BE THERE - YOU'RE LYIN'!
UP THE STAIRS, PAT - SEAT FOUR- SECOND ROW-
FALL ON THE FLOOR, JOHNNY!
MY LITTLE PAL! TAKE THAT, MINTWORTH -AND THAT!
BANG

MY POP IS THE GREATEST GUY IN THE WORLD, I BETCHA!!
YOUR POP IS? WHAT ABOUT MY POP?
MY POP COULD LICK ANYBODY IN THIS WHOLE TOWN!
GET OUT! MY POP COULD LICK ANYBODY IN THE WHOLE COUNTRY!
MY POP COULD DO BETTER'N THAT! HE CAN LICK ANYBODY IN THE WHOLE WORLD!!
I'LL BETCHA YOUR POP COULDN'T CLIMB MOUNTAINS LIKE MY POP CAN!!
OH NO? WELL, HE CAN CLIMB THE HIGHEST MOUNTAIN IN THE WORLD!!
OH YEAH? WELL, WHY DOESN'T HE DO IT NOW, THEN??
BECAUSE IT'S TOO EASY FOR HIM, AND THERE ISN'T ANYTHING HIGHER IN THE WORLD TO CLIMB!!
WELL, MY POP CAN RUN FASTER THAN ANY MAN LIVIN'!!
SO CAN MINE! BET YOUR POP CAN'T DO THAT, PERRY!!
SURE, HE NOT ONLY RUNS FAST- BUT HE CAN ALSO RUN FURTHER THAN ANY MAN IN THE WORLD!
SHUCKS, MY POP CAN RUN ALL THE WAY AROUND THE WORLD WITHOUT STOPPING EVEN ONCE!!
OHO! LISTEN TO HIM! NOW HE'S BEGINNING TO BRAG!!
HE CAN'T RUN ALL THE WAY AROUND THE WORLD! WHAT DOES HE DO WHEN HE COMES TO AN OCEAN?
THAT'S EASY! THEN HE STARTS TO SWIM!! MY POP CAN SWIM 'WAY ACROSS TO EUROPE WITHOUT HALF TRYIN'!!
YAH! NOW WE KNOW YOU'RE KIDDIN'!! NO MAN CAN DO THAT!!
YOU GET HIM TO DO IT RIGHT NOW, AND WE'LL BELIEVE YA!!
ALL RIGHT! YOU FELLERS WAIT! I'LL GO RIGHT IN TH' HOUSE AND ASK MY POP TO SWIM TO EUROPE FOR YA!!
NOW WHERE DID PA GO? HE WAS SETTIN' THERE ONLY A MINUTE AGO!!
SEPT. 19-37
PA! WHAT IN HEAVEN'S NAME ARE YOU DOING HIDIN' IN THIS CLOSET?
SH-H-HHH! DON'T LET THEM KIDS KNOW I'M HERE—
I DON'T WANT TO HAVE TO SWIM TO EUROPE!!

BUCK JONES
GRAPE-NUTS FLAKES PRESENT BUCK JONES- FIGHTING COWBOY OF THE RANGE-FAMOUS STAR OF UNIVERSAL'S GREAT WESTERN MOVIES
A SCRAWNY KID A FEW MONTHS AGO-LITTLE BILLY IS GETTING TO BE A REGULAR HE-MAN COWBOY AT BUCK JONES' RANCH. TONIGHT FINDS BUCK AND BILLY IN PERIL AT A LONELY SPOT NEAR THE RAILROAD JUNCTION
GRAB FOR THE STARS, BUCK - WE TRICKED YA INTO A TRAP!
THERE'S A LOAD OF GOLD ON THE EXPRESS. WE'RE AIMIN' TO STOP THE TRAIN AT THE JUNCTION AND PLANT THE ROBBERY ON YOU
I'LL RIDE HIS WHITE HORSE, SILVER- THE ENGINEER'LL THINK I'M BUCK. SHIFTY, YOU HANG ON TO BUCK'S HAT AND GUN AND DROP 'EM NEAR THE TRAIN WHEN WE MAKE OUR GETAWAY
TAKE IT EASY WALKIN' BACK, BUCK - WE'LL BE SEEIN' YA IN JAIL
OH, BUCK- WHAT'LL WE DO?
BILLY, WE GOT ONE CHANCE. FOLLOW ME QUICK - THOSE CROOKS DIDN'T SEE THAT HAND CAR
LOOK! LOOK, BUCK, THE EXPRESS!
IT'S TOO LATE TO FLAG IT, BILLY. I'LL JUMP FOR THE TRAIN AT THE BRIDGE. YOU RUN UP THE TRACKS- GET THE SHERIFF AND HURRY 'IM TO THE JUNCTION
AT THE JUNCTION THE CROOKS STOP THE TRAIN
I TIED UP THE ENGINEER - GIT THE GOLD AND LIGHT OUT O' HERE QUICK
NOT SO FAST, BOYS
SOCK
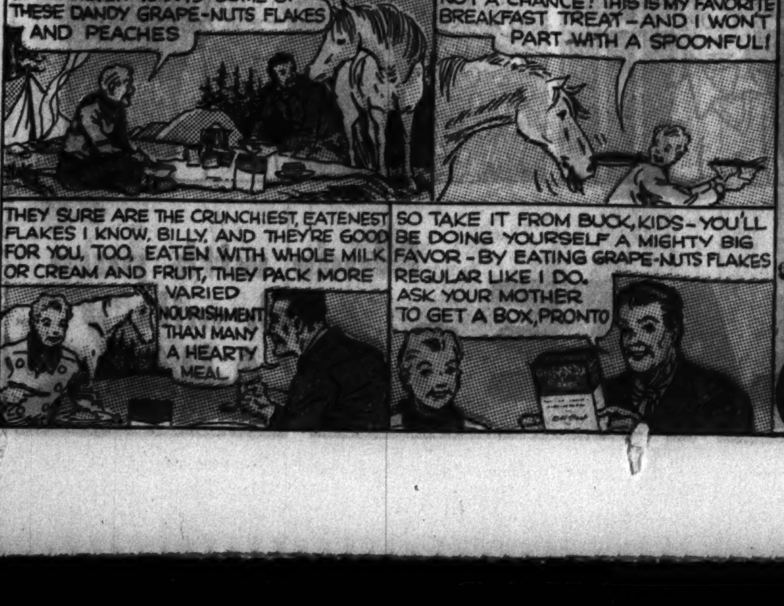
BANG!
IT'S BUCK JONES!
GREAT WORK, BUCK. THAT'S THE END OF ANOTHER THREE CROOKS
BUCK ALWAYS WINS. I'D GIVE A MILLION IF I ONLY HAD HIS NERVE
JUST REMEMBER THAT NERVE CALLS FOR PLENTY O' ENERGY, BILLY, AND EATIN' THE RIGHT KIND O' FOOD IS ONE WAY TO HELP YOU GET IT. SO PITCH INTO THESE GRAPE-NUTS FLAKES, KID- THEY'RE THE RIGHTEST KIND O' FOOD I KNOW



LOOK! SILVER WANTS SOME OF THESE DANDY GRAPE-NUTS FLAKES AND PEACHES
NOT A CHANCE! THIS IS MY FAVORITE BREAKFAST TREAT—AND I WON'T PART WITH A SPOONFUL!
THEY SURE ARE THE CRUNCHIEST, EATENEST FLAKES I KNOW, BILLY, AND THEY'RE GOOD FOR YOU, TOO, EATEN WITH WHOLE MILK OR CREAM AND FRUIT, THEY PACK MORE VARIED NOURISHMENT THAN MANY A HEARTY MEAL
SO TAKE IT FROM BUCK, KIDS - YOU'LL BE DOING YOURSELF A MIGHTY BIG FAVOR - BY EATING GRAPE-NUTS FLAKES REGULAR LIKE I DO. ASK YOUR MOTHER TO GET A BOX, PRONTO

Little Orphan Annie
HEIGH HO! ANOTHER WEEK FINDS ANNIE STILL WELL AND CHIPPER, MORE THAN CAN BE SAID FOR THE UNFORTUNATE CHAP WHO LOOSED A CORNICE TO FALL AND CRUSH HER, WHILE HE STOOD IN A RUNNING NOOSE ATTACHED TO SAID CORNICE - BUT THAT'S LIFE - LET'S SEE WHAT MR. BLABBLE WILL PULL FROM HIS BAG OF TRICKS TO-DAY -
MAYBE YOU DON'T BELIEVE IN GOBLINS, LIKE WHAT I DO - YOU AIN'T MET NONE - BUT I SAY THAT KID HAS A CHARMED LIFE!
CECIL, YOU'RE CRAZY - CHARMED LIFE, EH? SIMPLY BECAUSE I CAN FIND ONLY FOOLS TO DO MY BIDDING -
FIRST, THOSE HOODLUMS DO A FINAL WITH THEIR CAR - THEN I WOULDN'T EVEN TRY TO GUESS WHAT REALLY HAPPENED TO THOSE TWO BUMS IN THAT HOUSE A WEEK AGO - AND THEN OUR DUMB FRIEND WHO TIES HIMSELF TO A FALLING CORNICE!
CHARMED LIFE EH? WELL, SEE IF THAT CHARM YOU THINK SHE HAS IS STRONGER THAN THE FORCE OF GRAVITY - NOTHING LESS THAN A PARACHUTE COULD SAVE HER TONIGHT -
OH, ANNIE - I JUST REMEMBER - I LEFT THE BATHING SUITS UP ON THE ROOF TO DRY - WONDER IF YOU'D RUN UP AND BRING THEM DOWN -
SURE - I'LL BE GLAD TO -
OH, BOY - THAT WAS EASY - HOPE OLD BLABBLE'S MAN IS ALL SET UP THERE - HE SHOULD BE --- IT'S THE TIME AGREED ON, TO THE MINUTE -
GEE, IT'S SWELL UP HERE, TO-NIGHT - JUST LOOK AT THOSE STARS - CAN ALMOST TOUCH 'EM - WOW - I'D HATE TO FALL OFF O' HERE - THERE'S AN IRON FENCE DOWN BELOW, AND ---
W-O-Y-E-E-E-E-E-O-O-O-O
GEE! IT WAS AS IF I WAS PULLED DOWN AND ASIDE - DIDN'T HEAR A THING - NO WARNIN' - I FEEL STINGEY TOO, AND SORT O' DIZZY -
BR-R-R-R---
HARK! WHAT WAS THAT? ON THE ROOF - RUNNING - THEN A SCREAM, AND A THUD - NELSON - SOME ONE FELL --- NONSENSE - ONLY KIDS PLAYING IN THE STREET, PROBABLY -
"MAMA!" "MAMA!" THERE WAS A MAN UP THERE --- HE --

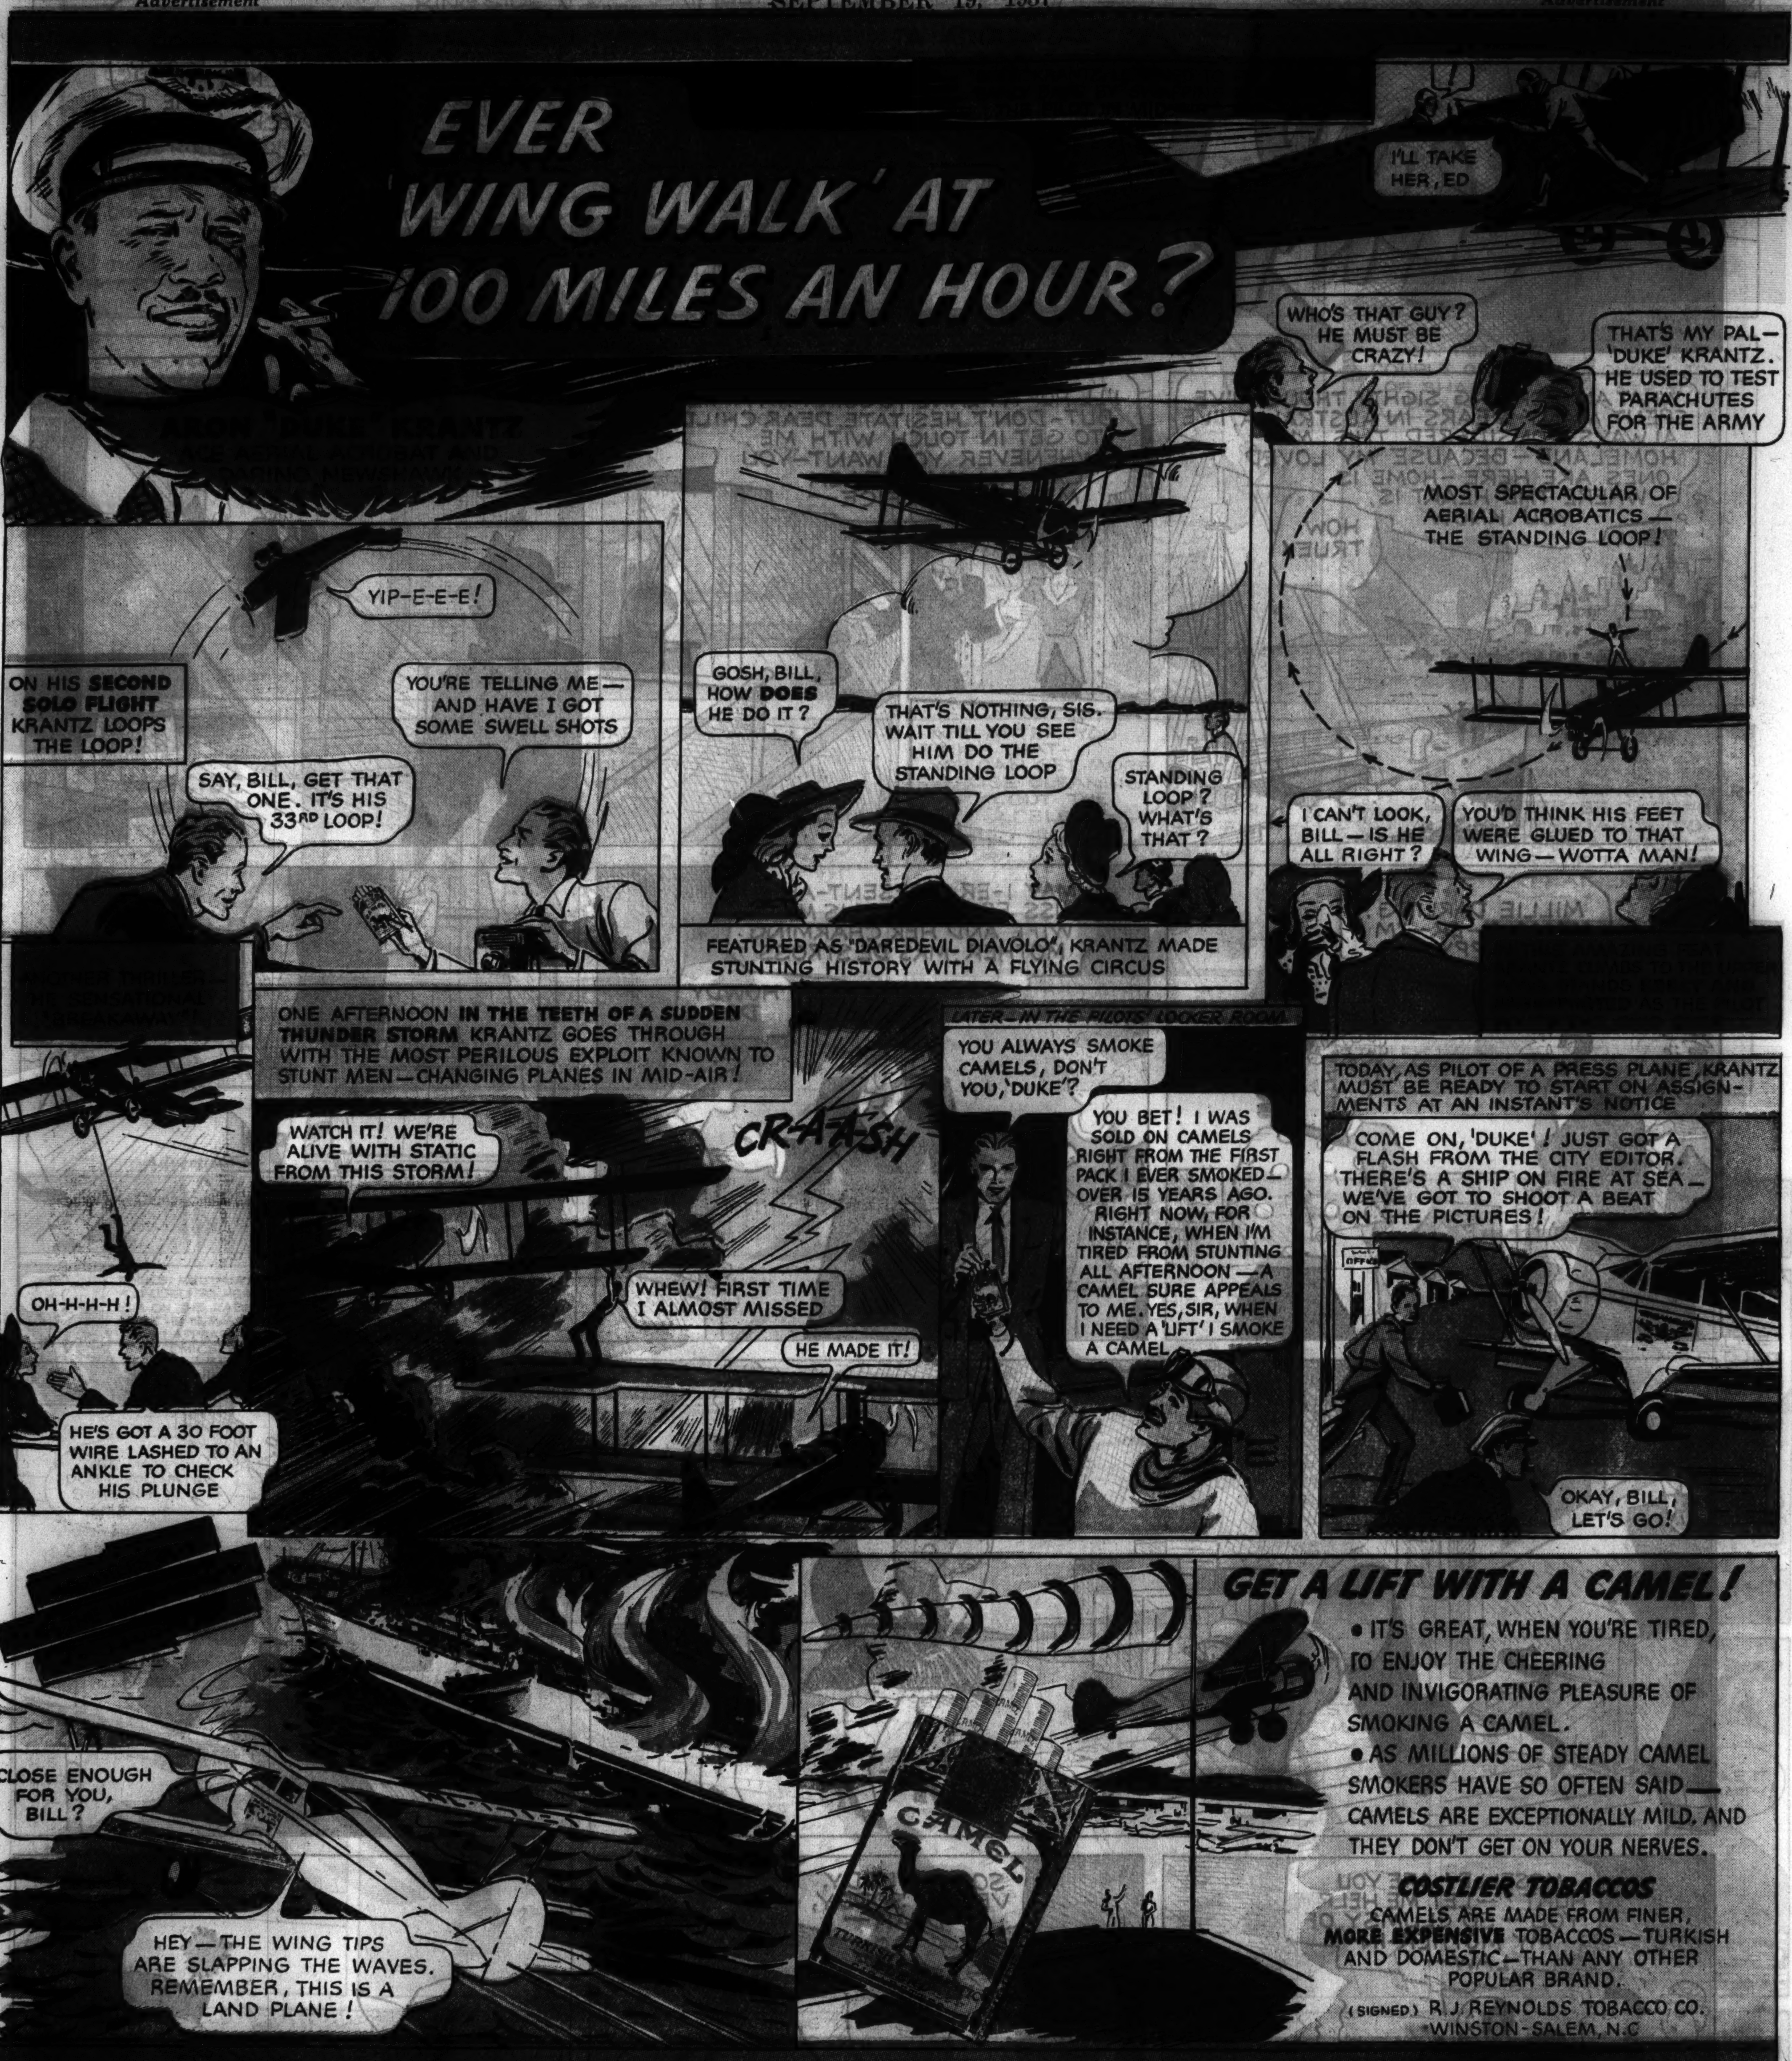
EVER 'WING WALK' AT 100 MILES AN HOUR?



I'LL TAKE HER, ED
WHO'S THAT GUY? HE MUST BE CRAZY!
THAT'S MY PAL—'DUKE' KRANTZ. HE USED TO TEST PARACHUTES FOR THE ARMY
YIP-E-E-E!
ON HIS SECOND SOLO FLIGHT KRANTZ LOOPS THE LOOP!
YOU'RE TELLING ME—AND HAVE I GOT SOME SWELL SHOTS
SAY, BILL, GET THAT ONE. IT'S HIS 33RD LOOP!
GOSH, BILL, HOW DOES HE DO IT?
THAT'S NOTHING, SIS. WAIT TILL YOU SEE HIM DO THE STANDING LOOP
STANDING LOOP? WHAT'S THAT?
FEATURED AS 'DAREDEVIL DIAVOLO', KRANTZ MADE STUNTING HISTORY WITH A FLYING CIRCUS
MOST SPECTACULAR OF AERIAL ACROBATICS — THE STANDING LOOP!
I CAN'T LOOK, BILL—IS HE ALL RIGHT?
YOU'D THINK HIS FEET WERE GLUED TO THAT WING—WOTTA MAN!
OH-H-H-H!
HE'S GOT A 30 FOOT WIRE LASHED TO AN ANKLE TO CHECK HIS PLUNGE
ONE AFTERNOON IN THE TEETH OF A SUDDEN THUNDER STORM KRANTZ GOES THROUGH WITH THE MOST PERILOUS EXPLOIT KNOWN TO STUNT MEN—CHANGING PLANES IN MID-AIR!
WATCH IT! WE'RE ALIVE WITH STATIC FROM THIS STORM!
CR-A-A-SH
WHEW! FIRST TIME I ALMOST MISSED
HE MADE IT!
LATER—IN THE PILOTS' LOCKER ROOM
YOU ALWAYS SMOKE CAMELS, DON'T YOU, 'DUKE'?
YOU BET! I WAS SOLD ON CAMELS RIGHT FROM THE FIRST PACK I EVER SMOKED—OVER 15 YEARS AGO. RIGHT NOW, FOR INSTANCE, WHEN I'M TIRED FROM STUNTING ALL AFTERNOON—A CAMEL SURE APPEALS TO ME. YES, SIR, WHEN I NEED A 'LIFT' I SMOKE A CAMEL
TODAY, AS PILOT OF A PRESS PLANE, KRANTZ MUST BE READY TO START ON ASSIGNMENTS AT AN INSTANT'S NOTICE
COME ON, 'DUKE'! JUST GOT A FLASH FROM THE CITY EDITOR. THERE'S A SHIP ON FIRE AT SEA—WE'VE GOT TO SHOOT A BEAT ON THE PICTURES!
OKAY, BILL, LET'S GO!
CLOSE ENOUGH FOR YOU, BILL?
HEY—THE WING TIPS ARE SLAPPING THE WAVES. REMEMBER, THIS IS A LAND PLANE!

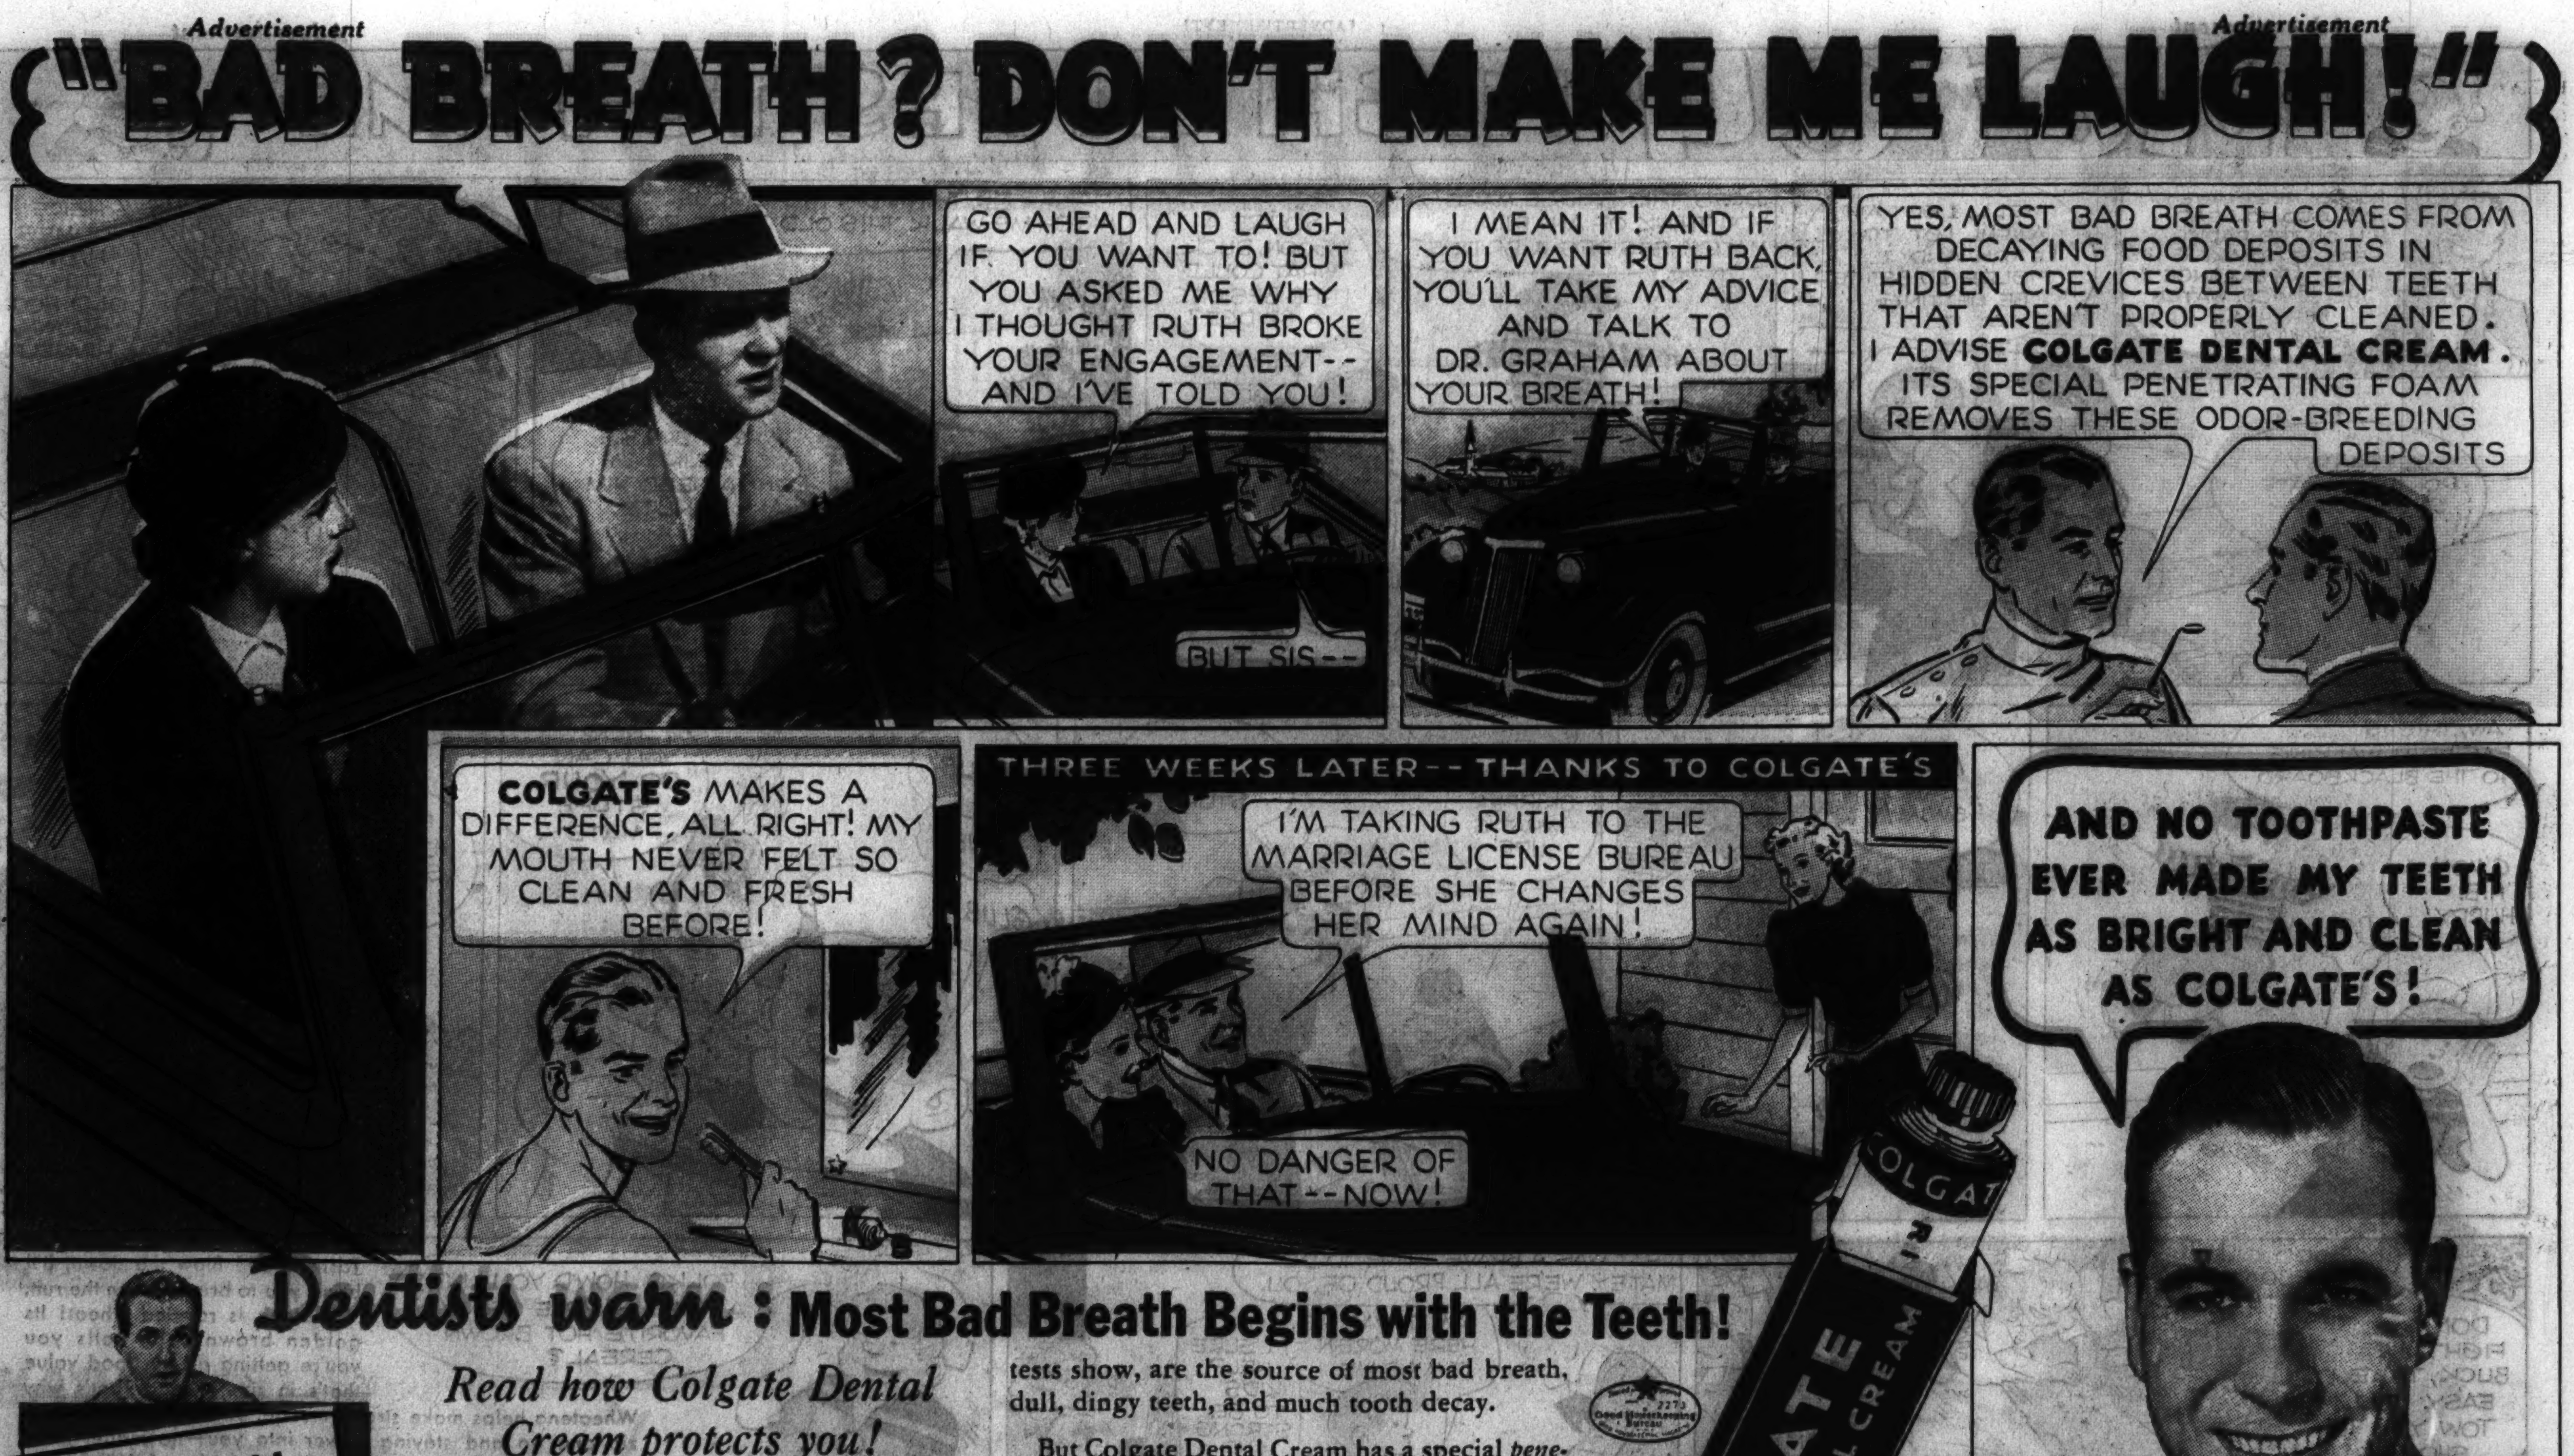
"BAD BREATH? DON'T MAKE ME LAUGH!"



GO AHEAD AND LAUGH IF YOU WANT TO! BUT YOU ASKED ME WHY I THOUGHT RUTH BROKE YOUR ENGAGEMENT-- AND I'VE TOLD YOU!
BUT SIS--
I MEAN IT! AND IF YOU WANT RUTH BACK, YOU'LL TAKE MY ADVICE AND TALK TO DR. GRAHAM ABOUT YOUR BREATH!
YES, MOST BAD BREATH COMES FROM DECAYING FOOD DEPOSITS IN HIDDEN CREVICES BETWEEN TEETH THAT AREN'T PROPERLY CLEANED. I ADVISE COLGATE DENTAL CREAM. ITS SPECIAL PENETRATING FOAM REMOVES THESE ODOR-BREEDING DEPOSITS
COLGATE'S MAKES A DIFFERENCE, ALL RIGHT! MY MOUTH NEVER FELT SO CLEAN AND FRESH BEFORE!
THREE WEEKS LATER--THANKS TO COLGATE'S
I'M TAKING RUTH TO THE MARRIAGE LICENSE BUREAU BEFORE SHE CHANGES HER MIND AGAIN!
NO DANGER OF THAT--NOW!
AND NO TOOTHPASTE EVER MADE MY TEETH AS BRIGHT AND CLEAN AS COLGATE'S!
COLGATE
COLGATE RIBBON DENTAL CREAM
Now—NO BAD BREATH behind his SPARKLING SMILE!

Dentists warn: Most Bad Breath Begins with the Teeth!

Read how Colgate Dental Cream protects you!

76% OF ALL PEOPLE OVER THE AGE OF 17 HAVE BAD BREATH!

TESTS among 2,152 men and women (of all ages and from all walks of life) indicate that 76% of all people over the age of 17 have bad breath! Tests also show that most bad breath comes from improperly cleaned teeth!

Ordinary cleansing methods, which merely polish the exposed surfaces of your teeth, fail to remove the decaying food deposits in hidden crevices between your teeth. And these deposits, tests show, are the source of most bad breath, dull, dingy teeth, and much tooth decay.

But Colgate Dental Cream has a special penetrating foam which gets into every tiny crevice—emulsifying and washing away those food and acid deposits that cause bad breath.

At the same time, Colgate's soft, safe polishing agent gently yet thoroughly cleans and brightens enamel—makes your teeth sparkle!

So brush your teeth, gums, tongue with Colgate's at least twice daily and have cleaner, brighter teeth—sweeter, purer breath!

CANARY OWNERS DEMAND INQUIRY

Complain Their Pets Are Losing Song

CHARLIE CHIRP

Noted Canary Detective, assigned to uncover mystery of the lost song notes.

Numerous complaints by canary owners that their pets have been losing their song, are being investigated by Charlie Chirp, the famous Canary Detective, by order of the Canary Police Commissioner. Impartial report will be made and a quick solution is expected.

Case of the Missing Notes
Report by Charlie Chirp

Visited home of owner — noted poor condition of bird. Significant — Found no biscuit on cage wires.

Very significant — Investigated seed in cup. Suspicions confirmed by inspecting cheap, inferior brand in pantry.

Solution — Bird only half-fed on unbalanced diet of ordinary seed, and no Biscuit with Yeast. Song will return when owners switch to French's

detective

WARNING . . . are you sure your Canary isn't half-starved, too?

Beware of faulty diets that ruin health and song. Play safe! Change to French's—the balanced diet that originated in one of the world's great Aviary-Laboratories.

Remember, if your canary isn't getting the nourishment Nature put into French's Bird Biscuit, he's only half-fed! It's like robbing the cream from your bottle of milk!

French's Bird Seed and Biscuit containing Yeast supplies your canary a complete mixture of clean, wholesome seeds—plus the amazing health advantages of yeast which tones the canary's system; encourages appetite and digestion; supplies vitamins that prolong life and helps to combat colds. The yeast is in the Bird Biscuit.

Free

A French's Bird Biscuit in every package of French's Bird Seed.

Canaries need hard, sharp Gravel to help them grind their food. French's Bird Gravel is hard, sharp quartz—sterilized for health.

by LOY BYRNES
ALL STREAKY'S RECENT LETTERS TO JEANIE HAVE BEEN RETURNED TO HIM, UNOPENED. HE FINALLY GETS A NOTE FROM HER EXPLAINING HOW SHE SAW HIM ON A PARK BENCH WITH A STRANGE GIRL (DORIS DAWSON) THAT ALL IS OVER BETWEEN THEM, AND TO PLEASE NOT WRITE HER ANY MORE GOOD GRAVY! SO THAT'S WHY MY LETTERS KEPT COMING BACK! HOW COULD JEANIE THINK SUCH A THING OF ME. WHY DIDN'T SHE LET ME EXPLAIN?
I'LL HAVE TO MAKE JEANIE UNDERSTAND, SOMEHOW, THAT DORIS WAS JUST A GOOD FRIEND—BUT I'LL HAVE TO STOP SEEING DORIS TOO. I WON'T GO TO MY FAVORITE PARK BENCH ANY MORE—
GOSH! THAT MEANS I'LL HAVE TO LEAVE MIKE'S PLACE TOO. DORIS KNOWS I STAY THERE!
STREAKY, UPSET BY JEANIE'S LETTER, DOESN'T NOTICE THAT SOMEONE HAS BEEN IN DURING HIS ABSENCE AND TIDIED UP THE CABIN
GOSH, JEANIE—HOW COULD YOU THINK THERE'D EVER BE ANYONE BUT YOU?
STREAKY LEAVES A NOTE FOR MIKE
DEAR MIKE—I'M SORRY I HAVE TO DO THIS—ESPECIALLY AFTER YOU'VE BEEN SO KIND TO ME—SOME DAY I'LL EXPLAIN WHY I DID IT—UNTIL THEN—GOOD BY—STREAKY

"Lonesome" Bill Finds Auntie Knows Best

BILL HAD A CAR_HE HAD A BOAT A FINE NEW HAT_A BRAND NEW COAT
HIS RICHES WON HIM AN EARLY DATE BUT AFTER ONE VISIT HE GOT THE GATE
NOW BILLY'S AUNT GOT VERY SORE BECAUSE "B.O." MADE BILL A BORE
SHE TOLD HIM PLAIN ABOUT LIFEBUOY "YOU'LL FIND IT STOPS 'B.O.', MY BOY"
"JUST USE THIS SOAP AND YOU WILL FIND GIRLS CAN BE FRIENDLY, SWEET AND KIND!"
BILL HEEDED AUNTIE'S GOOD ADVICE FELT LIKE A PRINCE_SO CLEAN AND NICE
NOW BILLY BOY HAS LOTS OF GIRLS_ HE'S ALWAYS IN GAY SOCIAL WHIRLS
YOUR SKIN IS FINE AND SMOOTH AND CLEAR
I ALWAYS USE MY LIFEBUOY, DEAR
LIFEBUOY HEALTH SOAP

BRIGHT GAL! And there are millions like her—girls who depend on Lifebuoy to remove the daily accumulation of impurities from their pores . . . And how Lifebuoy helps clear and freshen their skins—gives them that smooth, "little girl" look that the Bills and Johns and Harrys fall head-over-heels for.

Lifebuoy contains a special purifying ingredient not in other well-known soaps. This precious ingredient in the lather that helps stop "B. O." makes Lifebuoy extra-mild—over 20% milder than many leading "beauty" and "baby soaps."

Get the Lifebuoy habit—now! For bath as well as for complexion! Remember Lifebuoy keeps you immaculately clean, free from "B.O." . . . Keeps your body sweet and fresh.

THE NEW 1937 RINSO IS MORE MARVELOUS THAN EVER IN WASHERS
GRACE, I TOOK YOUR ADVICE ABOUT RINSO AND TRIED IT —IT'S GRAND
I KNEW YOU'D LOVE ITS RICH SUDS
LOOK—MY CLOTHES ARE AT LEAST 5 SHADES WHITER THAN WHEN I USED ORDINARY SOAPS
THE COLORS ARE BRIGHT AND GAY, TOO. NO WONDER THE MAKERS OF 33 FAMOUS WASHERS RECOMMEND RINSO
RINSO'S MORE ECONOMICAL, TOO, THAN OTHER SOAPS I'VE USED—BECAUSE A LITTLE GOES SO FAR WOMEN EVERYWHERE SAY THE NEW 1937 RINSO GIVES 25 TO 50% MORE SUDS THAN THE OLD
RINSO IS WONDERFULLY KIND TO MY HANDS —DOESN'T REDDEN THEM A BIT
YES, AND YOU CAN'T BEAT IT FOR DISHES, EITHER. IT SAYS 'SCAT' TO GREASE

No washer? Soak clothes whiter, brighter this way

FOR the woman without a washer the New 1937 Rinso is truly a blessing. Its richer, livelier suds—so thick and long-lasting even in hardest water—take all the drudgery out of washday. All you have to do is to soak your clothes in the Rinso suds—for 10 minutes—an hour—or overnight if you wish. Quickly and safely Rinso's active suds loosen the dirt—soak clothes at least 5 shades whiter than ordinary soaps could get them. Colors come out brighter, too.

Clothes last longer

With Rinso you don't have to scrub or boil the clothes. That makes them last 2 or 3 times longer. You'll like Rinso for washing dishes, sinks and all cleaning. It saves so much time and work. And the New Rinso is easy as ever on the hands. Get the BIG package.

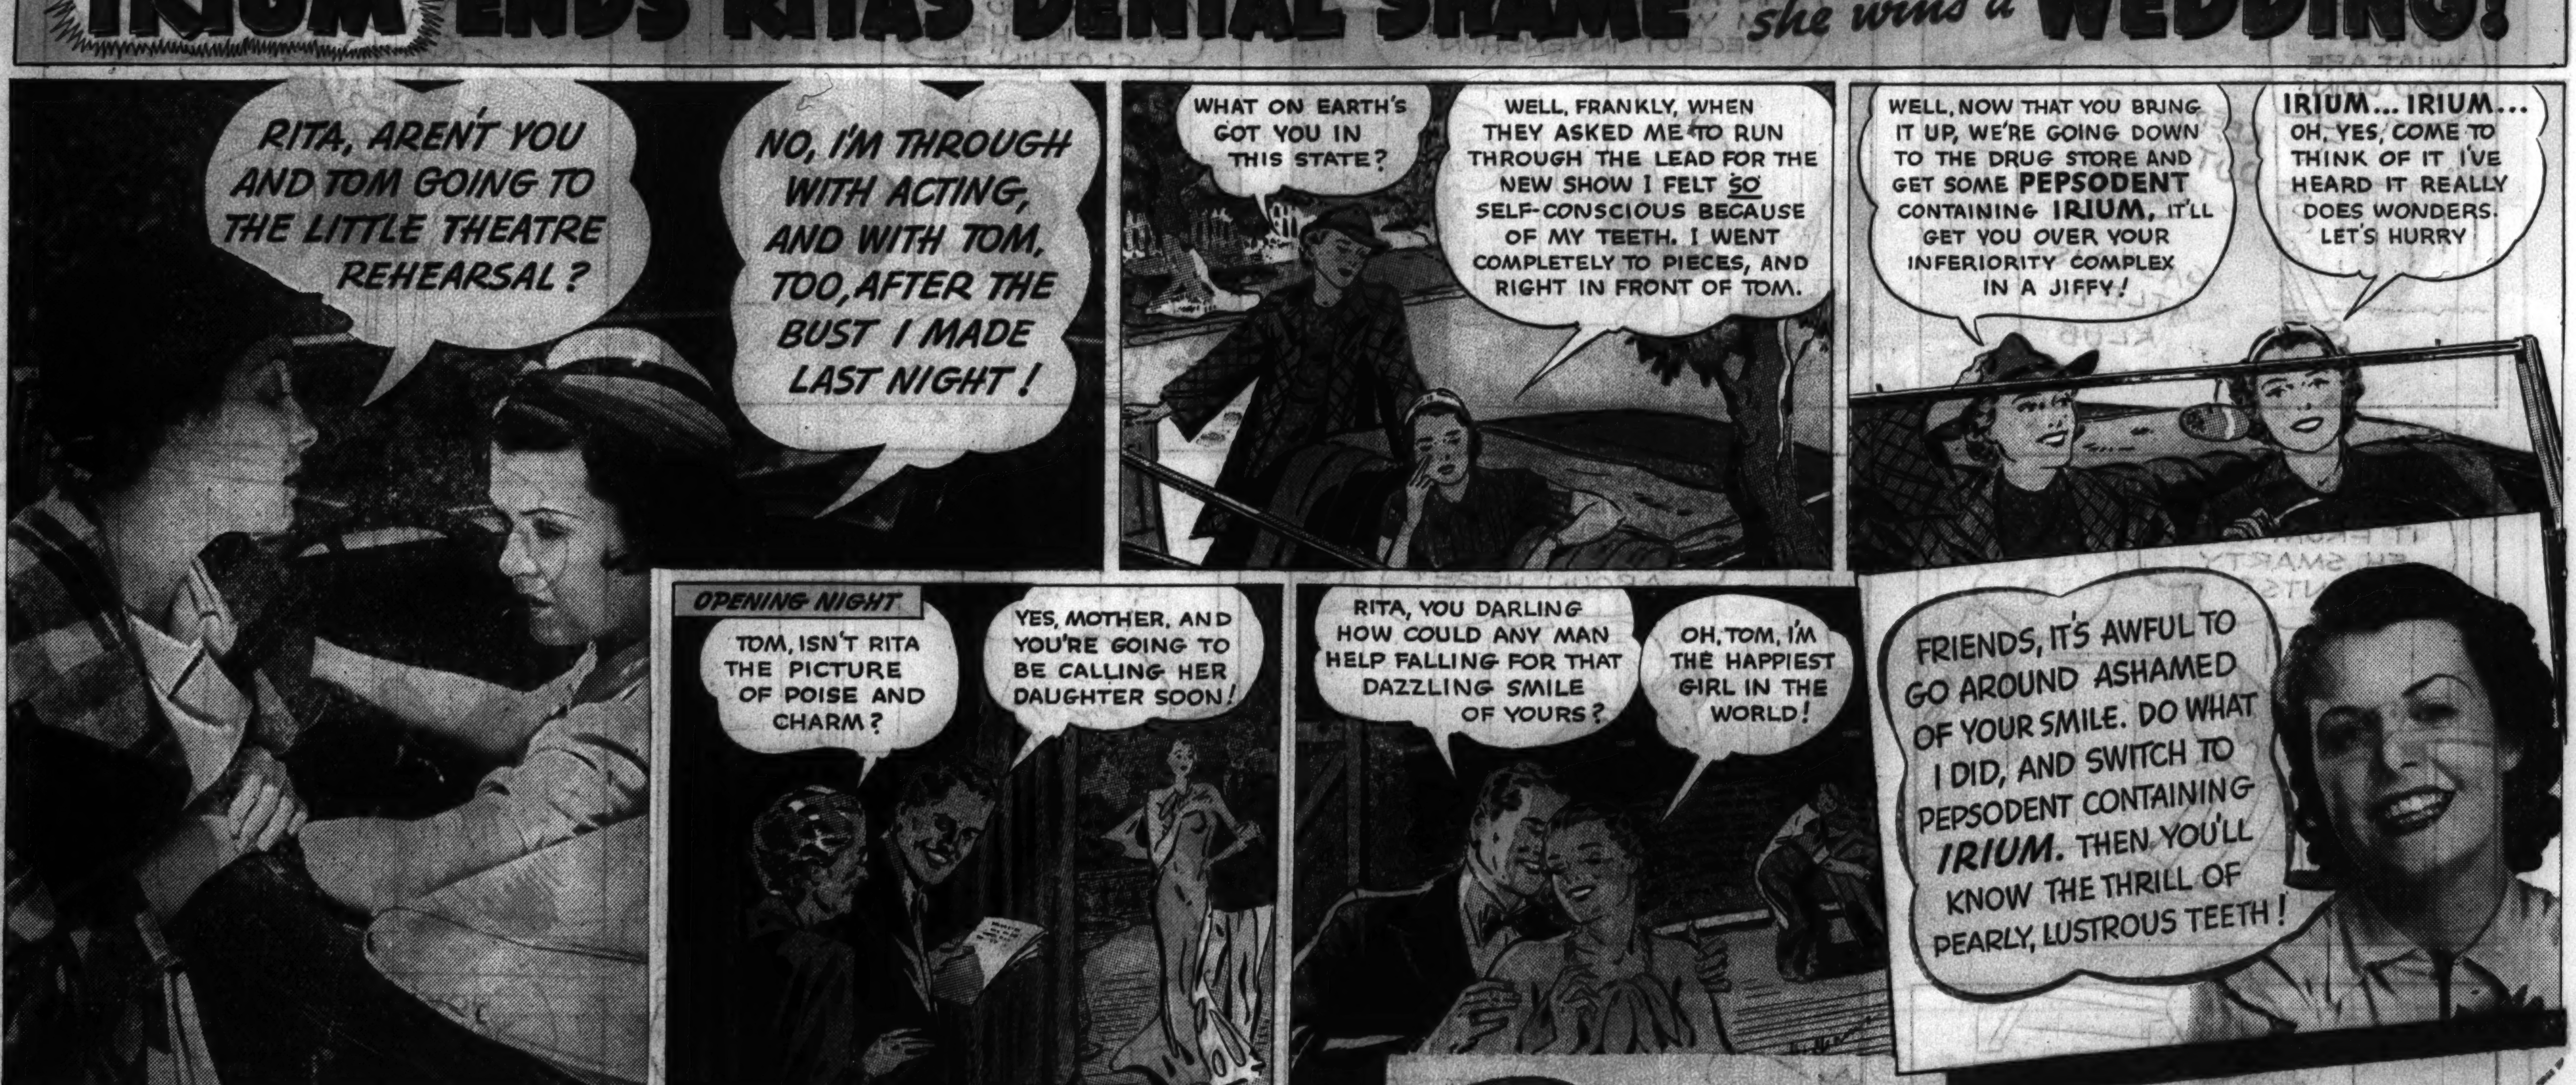
IRIUM ENDS RITA'S DENTAL SHAME ...and so she wins a WEDDING!



RITA, AREN'T YOU AND TOM GOING TO THE LITTLE THEATRE REHEARSAL?
NO, I'M THROUGH WITH ACTING, AND WITH TOM, TOO, AFTER THE BUST I MADE LAST NIGHT!
WHAT ON EARTH'S GOT YOU IN THIS STATE?
WELL, FRANKLY, WHEN THEY ASKED ME TO RUN THROUGH THE LEAD FOR THE NEW SHOW I FELT SO SELF-CONSCIOUS BECAUSE OF MY TEETH. I WENT COMPLETELY TO PIECES, AND RIGHT IN FRONT OF TOM.
WELL, NOW THAT YOU BRING IT UP, WE'RE GOING DOWN TO THE DRUG STORE AND GET SOME PEPSODENT CONTAINING IRIUM, IT'LL GET YOU OVER YOUR INFERIORITY COMPLEX IN A JIFFY!
IRIUM... IRIUM... OH, YES, COME TO THINK OF IT I'VE HEARD IT REALLY DOES WONDERS. LET'S HURRY
OPENING NIGHT
TOM, ISN'T RITA THE PICTURE OF POISE AND CHARM?
YES, MOTHER, AND YOU'RE GOING TO BE CALLING HER DAUGHTER SOON!
RITA, YOU DARLING HOW COULD ANY MAN HELP FALLING FOR THAT DAZZLING SMILE OF YOURS?
OH, TOM, I'M THE HAPPIEST GIRL IN THE WORLD!
FRIENDS, IT'S AWFUL TO GO AROUND ASHAMED OF YOUR SMILE. DO WHAT I DID, AND SWITCH TO PEPSODENT CONTAINING IRIUM. THEN YOU'LL KNOW THE THRILL OF PEARLY, LUSTROUS TEETH!

Win new Luster on Teeth with either Pepsodent Powder or Pepsodent Paste . . . both contain IRIUM!

• What a thrill! To see your teeth gleam and glisten as never before. That's exactly what you may expect when you discard that old-fashioned dentifrice and change to Pepsodent containing IRIUM—thrilling new luster discovery.

Use this new discovery twice a day and you'll bid goodbye to dull, coated, surface-stained enamel. Already people by the millions have bought Pepsodent containing IRIUM. Remember IRIUM is in both Pepsodent Tooth Paste and Pepsodent Tooth Powder—but in Pepsodent alone of all dentifrices!

Pepsodent containing IRIUM is Safe! Contains NO GRIT, NO PUMICE. It speedily loosens surface-stains, then gently washes them away . . . revealing natural pearly luster in record time. And it leaves your mouth refreshed, tingling clean. Try it at OUR EXPENSE and see for yourself! See how quickly Pepsodent containing IRIUM gets your teeth far brighter. See how Pepsodent shows up any other dentifrice you've ever used—BAR NONE!

Mail the coupon for a FREE 7-day supply. Do it now—before you forget. Check whether you want Pepsodent Tooth Paste or Pepsodent Tooth Powder. Both contain remarkable, patented IRIUM.

OH, DADDY.... MOTHER SAID YOU WOULD BUILD ME A PLAYHOUSE!
TEAR INTO 'EM, BOYS!
WHAT! ME BUILD A PLAYHOUSE? I SHOULD SAY NOT! I'M DEAD TIRED!
WHY... WHY... LEN! I DON'T UNDERSTAND!
OH, YOU WOULDN'T!
YOU NEVER SHOW ME ANY CONSIDERATION! YOU KNOW I NEED REST. I HAVEN'T BEEN SLEEPING WELL LATELY.... BUT WHAT DO YOU CARE?
I WORK HARD ALL DAY... LIE AWAKE ALL NIGHT.... AND ALL YOU DO IS THINK UP MORE WORK FOR ME!
I'M SORRY YOU CAN'T SLEEP... BUT IT'S YOUR OWN FAULT! IF YOU'D DO AS THE DOCTOR SAID YOU'D NOT ONLY SLEEP BETTER, BUT YOU'D BE A WHOLE LOT EASIER TO LIVE WITH!
HE TOLD YOU COFFEE NERVES WAS CAUSING YOUR SLEEPLESSNESS! WHY DON'T YOU QUIT COFFEE AND DRINK POSTUM INSTEAD FOR 30 DAYS, AS HE SUGGESTED?
OH, ALL RIGHT... I WILL!
BEAT IT, MEN.... WE'RE LICKED! POSTUM ALWAYS DRIVES US OUT!
SAY... THIS POSTUM TASTES DELICIOUS! WHAT A FLAVOR... WISH I HAD SWITCHED TO POSTUM A LONG TIME AGO!
30 DAYS LATER
SINCE HE GOT RID OF HIS SLEEPLESSNESS, HE'S BEEN A NEW MAN!
YOU SAID IT! SWITCHING TO POSTUM SURE DID THE TRICK FOR HIM!
YOUR MONEY BACK... IF SWITCHING TO POSTUM DOESN'T HELP YOU!
DON'T BE A GLOOM. DRINK POSTUM!

IF YOU are one of those who cannot safely drink coffee . . . try Postum's 30-day test. Buy a can of Postum and drink it instead of coffee for a full month.

If . . . at the end of the next 30 days . . . you do not feel better, return the top of the Postum container to General Foods, Battle Creek, Mich.; we will cheerfully refund full purchase price, plus postage! (If you live in Canada, address General Foods, Ltd., Cobourg, Ont.) Postum, you see, contains no caffein. It is simply whole wheat and bran, roasted and slightly sweetened. Postum comes in two forms . . . Postum Cereal, the kind you boil or percolate . . . and Instant Postum, made instantly in the cup. Either way, it is economical, easy to make and delicious. You may miss coffee at first, but after 30 days, you'll love Postum for its own rich, full-bodied flavor.

Postum is a product of General Foods.

Aunt Jenny SWEETENS THE Sourest Man in Town!
HERE COMES TOM FISHER WITH THE MILK AND LOOKIN' SOUR ENOUGH TO CURDLE IT POOR MAN, HIS STOMACH MUST BE ACTIN' UP AGAIN! IT'S MABEL'S COOKIN' ...I'VE TRIED TO GET HER TO DO DIFFERENT BUT...
TOM, YOU OUGHT TO SEE DOC ALLEN 'BOUT THAT INDIGESTION OF YOURS
IT'S KILLIN' ME, AUNT JENNY. ME AND MABEL ARE GOIN' 'ROUND TO THE DOC'S TONIGHT..
NOW REMEMBER, TOM, NO MORE PASTRY UNLESS IT'S Spry PASTRY
NO MORE FRIED FOODS UNLESS THEY'RE FRIED IN Spry
SAKES ALIVE, DOCTOR. THAT'S THE VERY THING AUNT JENNY'S BEEN AT ME TO USE – Spry, THE NEW ALL-VEGETABLE SHORTENING
A WEEK LATER
DID TOM TELL YOU? I'M USIN' Spry FOR ALL MY BAKING AND FRYING NOW. I'M IN TO GET THE 3-LB. CAN
SO YOU LIKE Spry?
LIKE IT—WHY I'VE NEVER SEEN ANY OTHER SHORTENIN' SO CREAMY! Spry MIXES IN HALF THE TIME, GIVES THE LIGHTEST CAKES, THE FLAKIEST, BEST-TASTIN' PASTRY....
LAST NIGHT I FRIED A BATCH OF FRITTERS IN Spry AND THERE WASN'T A MITE OF SMOKE. TOM HAD THREE HELPIN'S AND NOT A PEEP OUT OF HIM AFTER ABOUT INDIGESTION
TOM A CHANGED MAN NOW!
TOM, YOU SOUND MIGHTY HAPPY THESE DAYS
I SURE AM! FEELIN' GREAT AND LIVIN' LIKE A LORD. SAY, AUNT JENNY, DID YOU PUT DOC ALLEN UP TO TELLIN' MABEL TO USE Spry?
TOM, ASK ME NO QUESTIONS AND I'LL TELL YOU NO LIES ANYHOW, MABEL'S ONE SWELL COOK, NOW! SAY, YOU OUGHT TO TASTE HER PEACH MERINGUE CAKE. MADE ONE YESTERDAY FOR HER SISTER'S BIRTHDAY AND...

Better-tastin' meals and better for you when you bake and fry with Spry

"THAT'S one of the nice things about usin' Spry. You enjoy your meals a heap more at the time. And you can take a second helpin' without sufferin' for it after. Why, foods fried in Spry are so crispy and light a child can eat 'em. Pastry made with Spry is as wholesome as plain bread. And my, but it's tender and flaky. You see, Spry isn't like any other shortenin'. It's new—all new!

"And creamier—say, there just isn't any comparison. When you're mixin' a cake you'll find Spry just melts into your other ingredients. You get the grandest, fluffiest cake batter in no time. And the lightest, best-tastin' cake. You'd think you'd used the most expensive shortenin'. In fact, lots of folks say they like Spry cakes better! You just see if you don't, too.

"And remember this, you don't need to keep Spry in the refrigerator. It stays fresh right on the pantry shelf. Get Spry."

TOM RAVED SO 'BOUT MABEL'S PEACH MERINGUE CAKE I THOUGHT YOU'D LIKE THE RECEIPT. DON'T TAKE LONG TO MIX AND Spry GIVES SUCH LIGHT, VELVETY CAKES. THIS TASTES EVEN BETTER'N IT LOOKS!

Try this novel PEACH MERINGUE CAKE

½ cup Spry
¼ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon vanilla
⅛ teaspoon almond extract
½ cup sugar
4 egg yolks, unbeaten
1⅓ cups sifted cake flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
⅓ cup milk
4 egg whites
Dash of salt
1 cup sugar
10 to 12 fresh peaches, pared and sliced (sweetened, if desired)

Combine Spry, salt and flavoring extracts, and blend. Add sugar gradually and cream until light and fluffy. Takes no time with triple-creamed Spry. It's so much creamier! Add egg yolks, one at a time, beating very thoroughly after each addition. Sift flour and baking powder together 3 times. Add small amounts of flour to creamed mixture, alternately with milk, beating after each addition until smooth. Pour batter into two deep 8-inch layer pans greased with Spry.

To make meringue, beat egg whites until stiff, add salt, and then beat in sugar gradually. Spread meringue on batter, peaking the tops. Bake in slow oven (325° F.) 45 minutes, or until meringue is firm. Simply delicious—but remember only Spry can give perfect results in this recipe! When cool, put layers together with sliced peaches and decorate top with sliced peaches. Garnish with cherries.

(All measurements in this recipe are level)

MARINELLO

SEPTEMBER 19, 1937.

AN OPEN LETTER TO AMBITIOUS GIRLS:

The foremost, most successful school offering a complete course in Beauty Culture is the famous Marinello System of Beauty Culture [National School of Cosmeticians, Inc.], at 108 N. State-street, Chicago, with branch schools in New York, London, Paris, and in twenty-two other cities in the U. S. This is the only school licensed to teach the well known Zotos Machineless Permanent Wave.

Ambitious statements and flowery promises have often misled the most cautious. There is no need to exaggerate the advantages, position preference, and prestige of Marinello training. Judge the possibilities of your future success by the past accomplishments of this world-wide institution that has trained more than 55,000 women.

Day or evening classes at Marinello must necessarily be limited and present low tuition rates cannot be guaranteed beyond this month. It will pay you to visit our School tomorrow and talk with our dean, L. A. Perraud. If you cannot do this, write or phone State 5057 for the National Descriptive Manual. Enroll now for the semester.

HIGH GRADE MEN—
THIS IS, I BELIEVE,
THE BIGGEST MONEY MAKING
AND THE BIGGEST SELLING
SPECIALTY IN TEN YEARS.

This is the Thrifty Three Electric Stove. It is a fine quality, fully guaranteed, big capacity electric cooking stove which retails for only $35.00. Special insulated oven retails $5.00 extra. Large metal cabinet $19.50 extra.

This stove bakes and cooks a complete meal for any number up to 15 people. Has new and different application of heating element and new and different switch arrangement from any other electric stove ever manufactured.

It usually costs from $85.00 to $100.00 or more for special wiring to connect an old style electric stove. This stove can be plugged in a regular floor plug electric socket.

This electric stove uses only one-fourth the current used by many electric stoves. It has three large burners holding more utensils than many high priced gas or electric stoves with four burners. It has a standard guarantee for two years instead of one year as most electric stoves and most electrical equipment carry. We challenge the world to produce any stove that will duplicate the cooking performance of this electric stove at double the price.

The Thrifty Three Electric Stove means the utmost in economy, convenience as well as fine cooking. With this stove cooking utensils are not burned or blackened. Kitchens remain immaculately clean—no smoke or greasy spot. In most places it is cheaper to use the Thrifty Three Electric Stove than to cook with gas. Millions of homes have recently been wired and serviced with electricity where gas for cooking is not available. Tens of thousands of other homes have installed electric stoves, costing up to $100.00 or more for special wiring and costing in addition from $150.00 to as high as $600.00 for electric cooking stoves on account of their superior cooking qualities.

The manufacturer is a man who has been one of the leaders in America in developing, manufacturing and selling high grade cooking equipment. He started as a door-to-door salesman. Built up a company with an annual business of over $17,000,000, sold out his interest for a fortune. He considers the Thrifty Three Electric Stove offers the greatest sales and profit making possibilities of anything in a similar field he has ever known.

The Thrifty Three Electric Stove will be sold to distributors who in turn sell it direct to the home. The profits allowed these distributors are far greater than profits usually allowed to dealers. The sale of 1,000 of these stoves will make a distributor commissions of over twenty thousand dollars.

We require only the sale of one stove per day per average sized county. A county containing large cities will carry a proportionately larger quota. We expect to secure immediate distribution throughout the United States and are offering representatives the fairest, biggest money making opportunity we have seen in specialty selling for many years in order to secure big volume quick nation-wide distribution.

We expect to deal only with men of proven ability and sales production men who have been highly successful in other lines and who are ready and willing and able to make big earnings at this time. Interviews will be by appointment only. Telephone Franklin 6197 or write or wire for an appointment before calling. Give enough information about yourself to justify an interview and address Sales Manager, Entire Fourth Floor, 215 North Michigan-avenue, Chicago, Ill.

MEN

If you live on the South Side or South Side suburbs, let me start you in a profitable business of your own backed up by our prosperous company.

I have been on this territory exactly 8 weeks and have already set 20 men up in business for themselves, and still have 20 opportunities left on the south side of Chicago.

I am in control of this territory of a business unique in character, merchandising an electrical unit that has no competition, for which there is an ever increasing demand.

If in a personal interview you can satisfy me that you are honest, reliable, and trustworthy, and really have a desire to succeed, willing to study, and are teachable, you may be the very man I am looking for.

Our business is very profitable; many of our associates are earning as much as $50 on a percentage basis in a single day, and after they become experienced handling our business, receive a sizable monthly income; not regulated by the seasons, as ours is a year around business.

Selling experience not necessary, for if you are selected you are thoroughly trained at no expense to you; some of our most successful associates never sold anything before joining us.

We stand all expense of your business, such as rent, light, heat, telephone, help, etc., and in addition to giving you merchandise on open accounts, carry all of your time payment paper.

You do not invest one cent with us. We finance everything.

Our business is depression-proof, as same has increased every month of the last 7 years with 1937 our busiest year. We have thousands of satisfied customers in the territory and are considered one of the country's outstanding organizations. There are no strings connected with this offer, and if you can meet the above requirements you will be granted a personal, confidential interview which will quickly determine our mutual interests.

Apply Monday, 1:30 p. m., no other time. No interviews after 1:45. Suite 400, Maryland Bldg., 841 E. 63d-st. [one block East of Cottage Grove]. Ask for Mr. Baldwin.

SALARY
COMMISSION

Established organization operating in the middle west plans to open series of outlets within the next few months for major electric unit distribution.

The few men who meet our qualifications will direct these outlets on a salary and bonus basis.

MEN.

If you really knew what this business has meant to other men, you would not pass up this ad as "just another one of those propositions." If you do, you are in all probability missing what, to a great many men, has been the opportunity of a lifetime. No matter what your present income is, no matter what your position in life, you ought to be sincere in your desire to improve it, to increase your income to properly provide for your family and give them the better things in life and to get into a permanent business of your own.

We have such an opportunity for you right now. Men in this business from all walks of life are big earners right here in Chicago and nearby towns. When they learn this profitable business thoroughly, their incomes range around $3,000, $4,000, $6,000, $7,500 and more per year, yet they had no previous experience in this kind of work.

Our product is rapidly approaching in this country the complete dominance of the market it has already secured in other countries, with five European and American factories continuously busy supplying our electrical unit. 1937 is our eighth consecutive record sales year.

Beginners may have to get along temporarily on $125 to $200 per month, but large commissions are available. However, you are placed on the same basis of compensation as the others and make no investment or deposit of any kind. If you are selected for this opportunity, you will be given complete training at our factory branch at no expense to you. We will teach you this business, help you to real and permanent success, and will not ask you to make any investment.

This opportunity is open to you NOW because of the ever increasing demand for our product. If you are between the ages of 25 and 50, are willing to work and study conscientiously to secure the success and large earnings possible in this business this opportunity concerns you.

We are sincere in offering it to you, and you will find that 20 minutes spent in an interview with us will be the most valuable 20 minutes you ever invested. For a personal interview, apply Monday, Sept. 20 at 10:30 a. m., or 2:30 p. m., at 20 E. Jackson-blvd., R. 604, Chicago.

MEN—
STEADY AND PERMANENT WORK.

We need 6 men at once. Men selected will be trained in our factory branch and put to work immediately in permanent positions, full time at good pay. Married men over 26 preferred as these positions are responsible in our merchandising and sales departments. We require no deposit or investment, but you must be reputable and be able to carry out details after being taught. Our methods are so unusual that training is required and applicants must be able to get along on $25 to $40 a week while learning. Later, as you master this work, your pay will be materially increased. Previous experience with electrical units unnecessary because our methods must be learned by every one starting with us. Applicants must be willing to work hard and study for higher incomes. Apply Suite 240, 3 W. Madison-street, Oak Park, Monday, Sept. 20, from 10:30 a. m. to 11 a. m. only. Ask for Mr. Larsen.

TO MEN OF AMBITION

I shall interview for the head of an important business, men who are keenly interested and who can qualify and who are backed by at least 5 years of business or trade experience. They must be neat in appearance and capable of real work, because this is more of a job to start with than a position. The pay is good and it will increase with the right man.

This is a very unique electrical unit—and we are looking for commission merchants to put on a dealer basis, not mere salesmen. Ask for Mr. Hogan.

Apply New Lawrence Hotel, 1020 Lawrence-avenue, between 10:30 and 12, Monday, September 20th.

HELP WANTED—MEN.

Salesmen.

EXECUTIVE SALESMAN.

WHO WE ARE:

A nationally known Chicago corporation, well rated, established 1904. Business: Specialized advertising and sales promotion for dairies, laundries, dry cleaners, bakeries, ice companies, and all other route selling organizations. Among our accounts, General Baking Co., and Borden's Dairy, National Dairy, Brunswick Laundry, and hundreds of other well known companies throughout the United States and Canada. A liberal commission and bonus with fully protected territory. A substantial group of our men are consistently earning large monthly incomes. A thorough field training is given.

WHAT WE WANT:

4 above average salesmen with wide experience in he sale of advertising, sales promotion or equipment that is sold on the idea of the profits it will return to the purchaser on his investment. In other words, men who can sell and have sold ideas are preferred to those who sell staples. The men must be between 30 and 50 years of age. They should have an automobile, be above average in intelligence, have selling ability, and imagination. They must be looking for a permanent connection, not a short time, high pressure deal.

Territories are: Illinois, Michigan, West Penna., and Texas.

If you are interested and can meet our requirements reply at once, giving age, past experience, previous earnings, territorial preference, and phone number. Interview will then be arranged.

ADDRESS P E 392, TRIBUNE.

If You Are Ambitious,
If You Want to Make Money,
If You Will Work Hard,

Then we have a real opportunity for you selling a product for the kitchen that 90% of the housewives buy on sight. Live leads furnished. No tiresome house-to-house canvassing. Highest cash commissions paid in advance. All equipment necessary, furnished without 1 cent of deposit. Real 100% cooperation. Finest opportunity for promotion, as we are expanding nationally and need leaders. Must have automobile.

Call 2 p. m. sharp Monday. See product demonstrated, light lunch served immediately after demonstration.

2 P. M. SHARP.
2714 W. 36TH-PLACE, CHICAGO.

MANAGERIAL TIMBER.

We want 2 men over 27 of managerial timber, to start as salesmen through Home Appliance Depts. in 3 of our stores. We want ambitious men, willing to apply themselves sufficiently to prove they are above average, and capable of handling other men. In addition to good personality and character, car is necessary; percentage and bonus to start.

Apply Employment Dept., 10 a. m., Monday only, at the following stores:

WIEBOLDT'S,

THE TRUE STORY

WONDER LAKE

NATURE'S BEAUTY SPOT
4 Miles from McHenry, Ill.

A Group of
WELL KNOWN
CHICAGO
SPORTSMEN

Bought practically ALL 12 miles of shoreline around this magnificent wooded Spring-fed, Sand Bottomed Lake just 50 miles northwest of Chicago. Then they:

[1] Stocked this lake with 5,000,000 Bass and Pike and prohibited fishing for 3 years so the fish could grow and breed under ideal conditions. [Fishing officially opened at Wonder Lake September, 1934.]

[2] Seaside 60 acres as a permanent pheasant cover and hunting grounds for owners.

[3] Made the lake STRICTLY PRIVATE, so only owners could fish or hunt.

[4] Refused to sell property further than 1¼ to 2 blocks from the water.

[5] Set side great big sand beaches with piers every ¼ mile so there would always BE MORE than ample beach facilities for children, grown-ups, and boat landings.

[6] Priced the property so low that every one—even ordinary wage earners, could afford a country home.

[7] Arranged financing terms on homes so low that the yearly cost is less than a season's rental for a cottage elsewhere.

[8] Absolutely prohibited Dance Halls, Roadhouses, Hotels, Boarding Houses, etc.

[9] Made it an exlusive GENTILE community.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Bob Becker

A Swan Fight

September 18, 1937.

THE quiet that has pervaded the swan pond on the experimental farm was broken this week when several things happened in the bird colony. It isn't surprising when the big water birds require attention, because, bird for bird and pound for pound, the swans seem to be capable of more trouble than any other group of feathered residents on the farm. Lately the white swan group has deposed a king and crowned a new one.

Until this internal disturbance upset the routine of the pond, a cob [or male swan]—two pens [females] and a younger cob with his mate and cygnet lived together on one pond. The older cob was the king of the colony. When anybody approached the pond it was the veteran cob who acted as policeman and came forward to defend the place from invasion. If he took a notion to fight the other cob he was able to give him a good whipping.

But this spring the younger bird and his mate raised a little one. It was the only white cygnet on the pond. The presence of this little one gave the younger cob a new sense of importance. He took over the duties of policing the place. It didn't take him long to turn the tables on the older bird by giving him an occasional trouncing.

He Becomes a Bully.

Finally this younger cob became so aggressive and so self-confident that he was inclined to bully the rest of the birds. So the boys decided to give the cob, his mate, and the cygnet the whole pond in order to keep peace in the swan group. Now they have one pond all to themselves. The older cob and his pals have been moved to another location.

Not to be outdone by the late nesting turkeys and guinea hens, one of the swans also started to build a nest this week. But after scraping together some straw and other material she gave up the idea. . . . This was fortunate, because the bird didn't have a chance to incubate eggs and raise young birds at this season of the year.

A fussy little white bantam hen is strutting around near one of the farm houses with just about as cute a family of chicks as can be found on the whole farm. They are California quail that she raised and now is looking after. The hen and her chicks have the run of the farm and nothing seems to bother them. Even the dogs owned by the farm families do not molest the hen and the quail, which move around constantly to pick up insects and other food in the vegetation.

Although this little hen doesn't know it, she won't have that family of quail much longer. They are so large that they are about ready to break family ties and continue on their own.

First Squash Pie.

The first squash pie of the season to reach the table of one of the farm families meant good-by to one big squash that we saw on the vine a few days ago. The flockmaster showed us two thriving squash vines near his house last week. Both were growing top-notch specimens of that vegetable. One was ripe enough this week to be used. So squash pie was on the menu.

One of the farm kitchens was busy this week with a second instalment of the wild plum crop. About three-fourths of a bushel was picked. Most of the plums are being used to make wine. But a generous supply was put into the cooking pots and turned into delicious wild plum jelly.

The thornapple crop [fruit of the red haw trees] is getting redder every day. Several of the farm wives are watching the small but juicy apples on the trees and waiting for the first frost, because they are going to cook a lot of them for jelly. Most of the haw trees are loaded with these little red apples, which are good to eat just as they are picked.

MR. P. OWED $17,000 TO BONDHOLDERS who wanted "every cent or nothing." We could lend only $10,000 and after 4 weeks got them to accept. After all, 60% cash NOW is better than to "hold the bag" for 2-3 years.—Mr. P. had tried hard, but was unable to settle, while we succeeded because of cash in hand to help persuade. May we serve you, too? FHA 20 years, 5% loans up to 80%; four other plans; our own, bank and insurance funds. Also construction loans and purchases financed; homes, apartments, stores. 24 hour replies. MILWAUKEE-WESTERN MORTGAGE CO., 1954 N. Western [at Milwaukee]. Bru. 6200.

Unusual Opportunity

Lend me $10,750 at 8%, well secured. I will immediately give you $12,500 worth of property outright as a bonus for making loan, plus repaying your loan at rate of $200 monthly and interest. I own apt. bldg. appraised by R. F. C. at $92,500, subject only to $55,000 R. F. C. loan. My equity is $37,500. I will give you 1-3 of equity outright as bonus and will pledge other 2-3 of equity to you as security. Bldg. produces annual gross income of $26,400; annual net $17,241. Address N D 364, Tribune.

Child Should Have Freedom to Attain Full Development

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1937: By Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate.]

IF we mothers would just put our standards of perfection for our children way up on the top shelf where we can't reach them it would help us a lot in managing them and certainly relieve much of the tension that arises from straining at what is so often an impossible goal.

In a desire to have our child get along well in this world and also to be liked we set up standards that are often quite abstract, that are not related to the growing child in the world of everyday.

Sometimes these aims don't take definite form in our minds but exist just the same; sometimes they are actually formulated in words, as I find them so often in my correspondence. So many parents want their children to be always well mannered, always respectful to grownups, always neat, always clean, always obedient, always willing to do chores and run errands, always interested in what they think of as the higher things and always liked by teachers, other grownups, and playmates.

You may think this is an exaggerated statement, but it really is not. We spend a tremendous amount of energy trying to make our children fit our own grownup civilized ideals of what a little lady or a little gentleman, a womanly girl and a manly boy should be.

• • •

There are, of course, the eternal verities; we all want our children to be fine in every important way and to acquire an attitude and manner toward other people that will make life happier and pleasanter for them. But we must work for these things, not by constantly pressing a child into our pattern at every step of the way, but by following along just a little behind him as from babyhood and little childhood he slowly learns to know the world about him, to accommodate himself to it, and to gain experience and knowledge from it.

There are reasons due to his concentration, curiosity, inexperience, and continual activity why a child cannot always be obedient, polite, willing to drop what he is doing, accede instantly to every demand made upon him, and always quiet down for the convenience of his grownups.

The growing child, absorbed in play and self-activity, spurred by curiosity and expressing himself in noise and bodily freedom, needs a great deal of latitude. His minor lapses need to be overlooked. He needs responsiveness and interest from his family and an intelligent freedom which will surely lead him to independence and full development.

I am writing all this because I have so many letters from parents who, in their efforts to make their vital growing child into a little model child, are constantly suffering—so disciplining and frustrating the natural reachings out of their boy or girl that friction and behavior difficulties are inevitable.

• • •

It is from personal observation and experience that I write the above. I have proved to my own satisfaction that in this way our little son or daughter can grow into the fine, self-disciplined, intelligent, happy, poised, and socially adjusted youth or girl that we all desire in our heart of hearts.

What I have been saying only means that from the beginning we can guide our child in such a way that his personality, even though new, has fulfilment all along the way. For even the baby of a year has definite needs and desires which must be satisfied so that he can move along to his next step of development, with different needs and desires, which in their turn must be gratified.

It is all a fascinating process, and if you can lend yourself to it with interest and enthusiasm and good sense you and your baby (and later you and your boy or girl) can have a simply grand, interesting life together.

I'd like to let you read a letter that came in a few days ago which ties up with what I have been saying. The aspect of it which is personal to me and my column I cannot very well change without leaving out most of the letter, which follows:

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: Since before the birth of our 15 month old baby girl I have followed your enlightening column daily, each evening discussing your views and advice with my husband. We both heartily agree with your idea of making it possible for a child to develop as naturally, and happily, as possible. We find you a most practical person and appreciate your warm understanding and sound advice.

"As to the success with which we have met, up to date, in the rearing of our child I can say that our baby is unspoiled, sweet tempered, contented, healthy mentally as well as physically. She eats well, sleeps well, cries only for a definite reason. She shows lively interest in her surroundings, is gentle rather than destructive; already shows signs of generosity

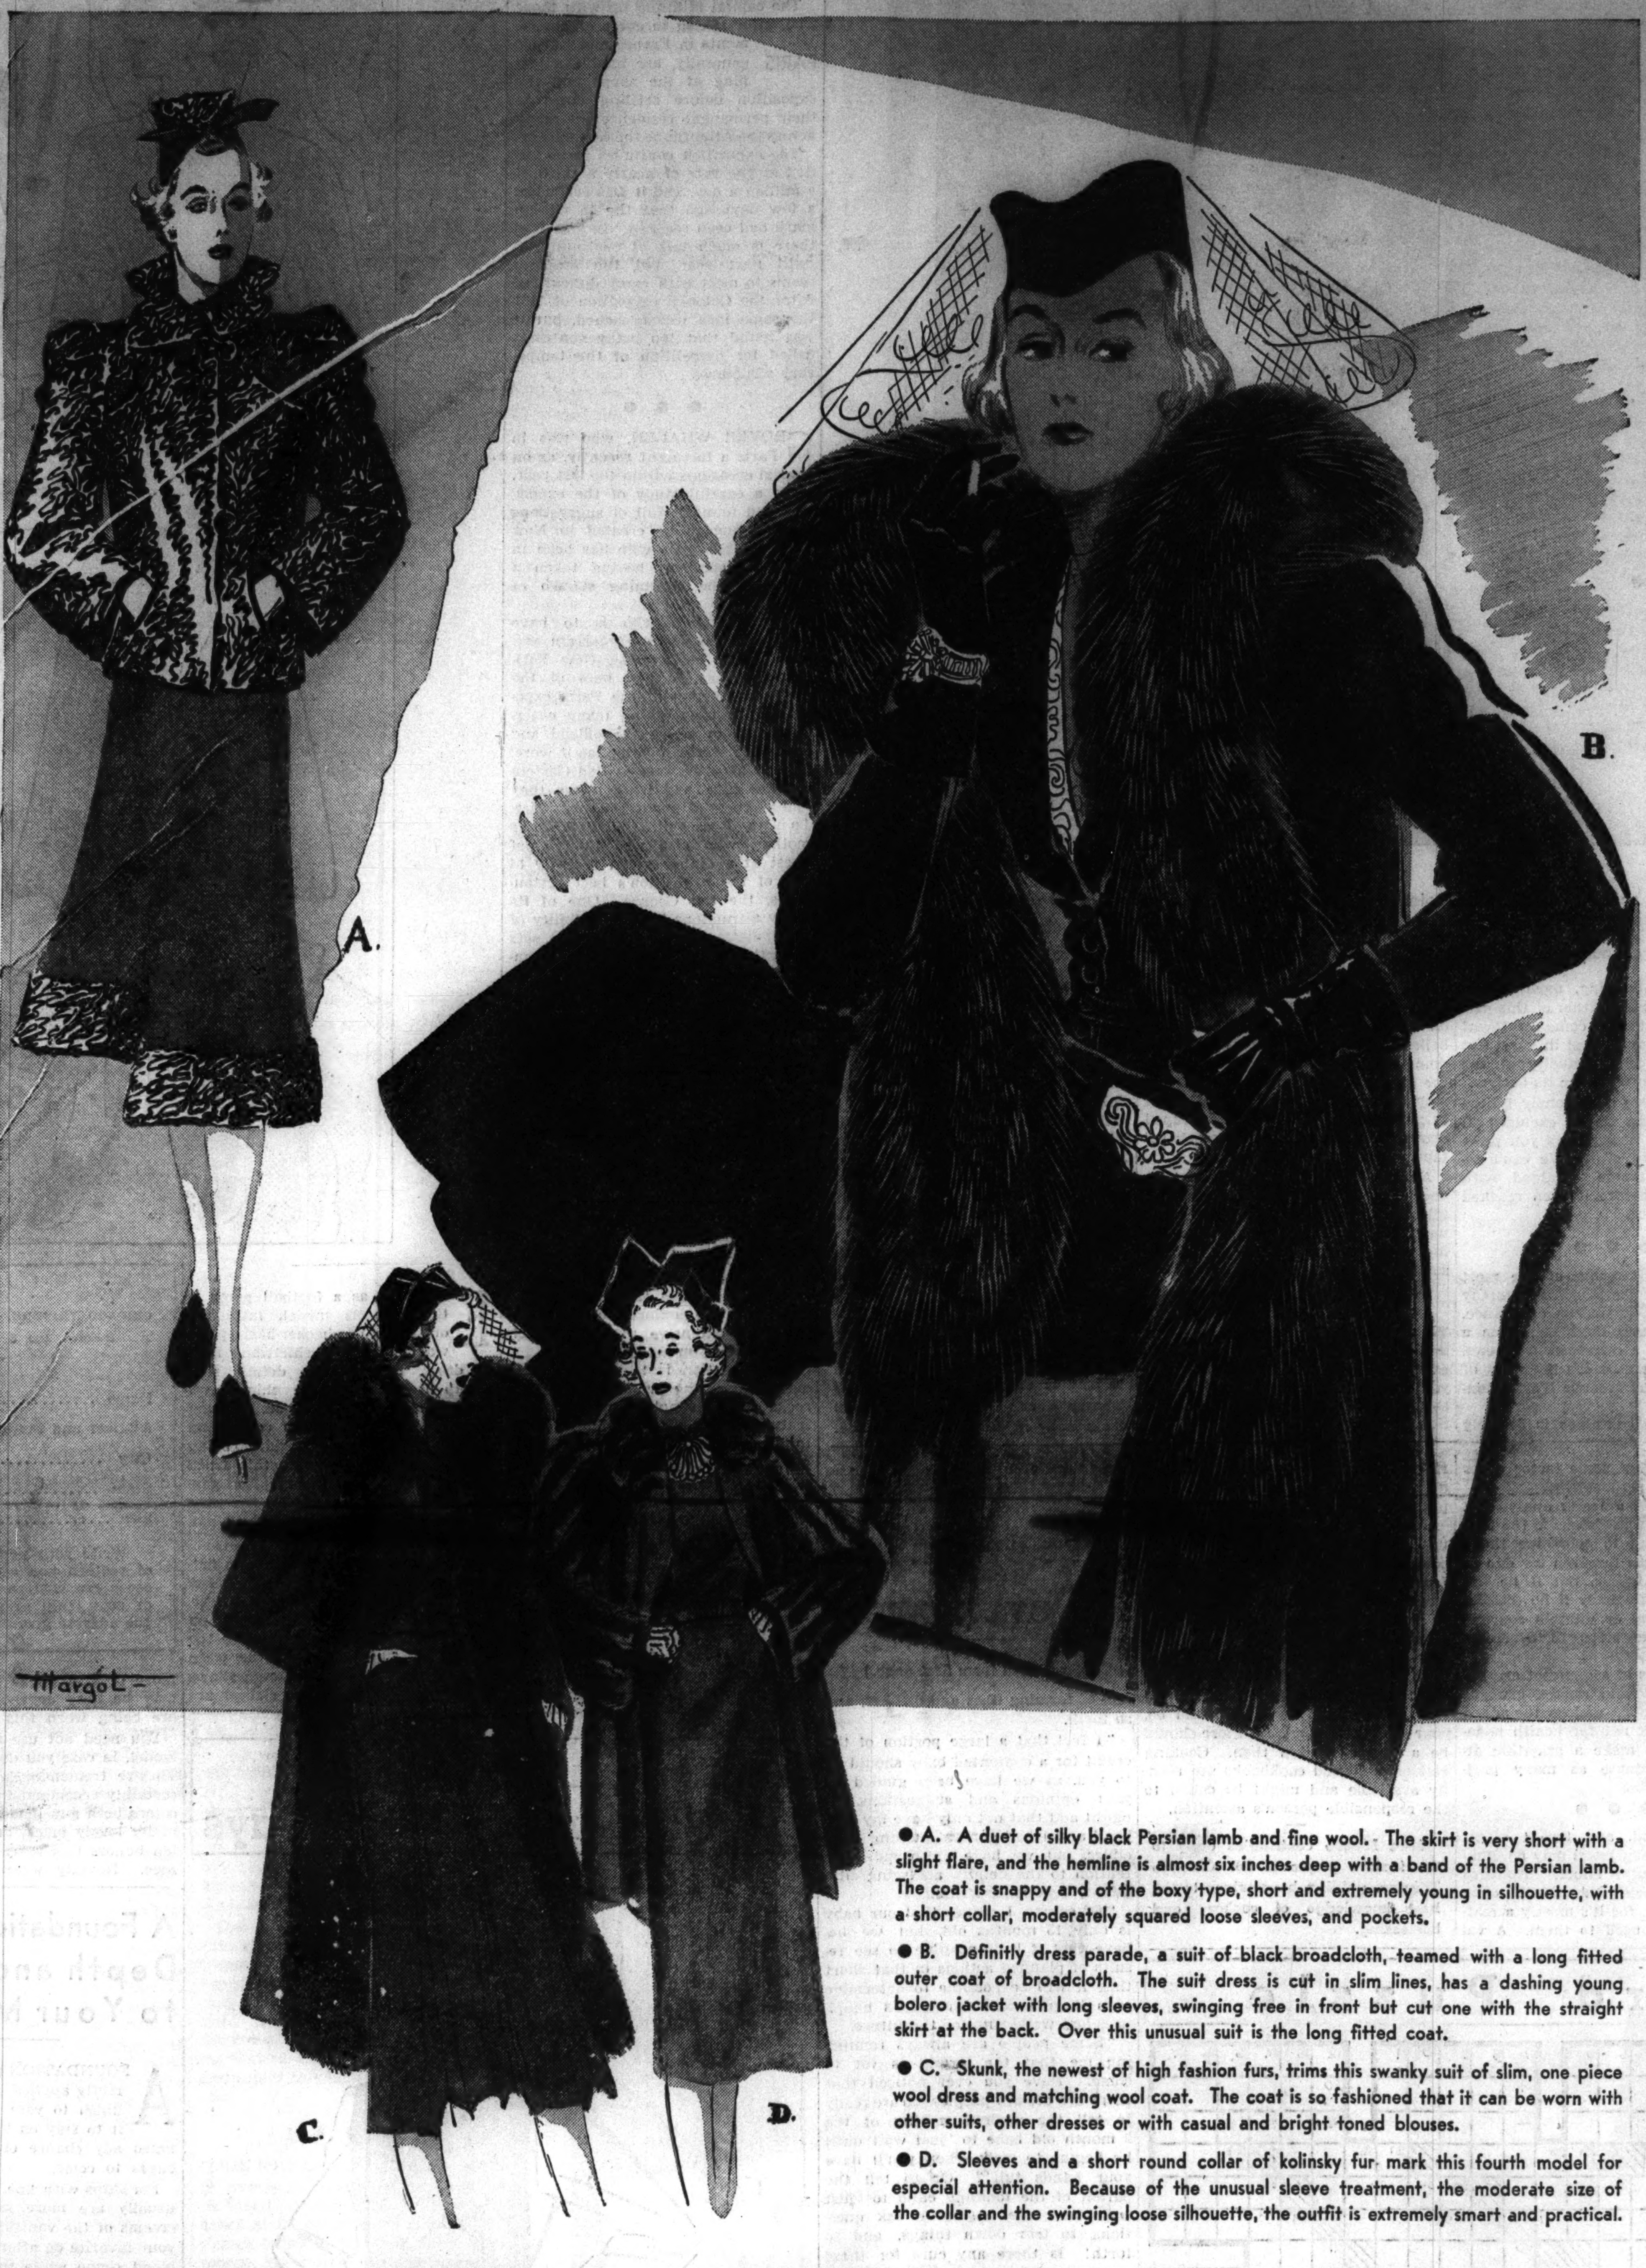
DESIGNED TO BE MYSTERIOUSLY FEMININE



● A. A duet of silky black Persian lamb and fine wool. The skirt is very short with a slight flare, and the hemline is almost six inches deep with a band of the Persian lamb. The coat is snappy and of the boxy type, short and extremely young in silhouette, with a short collar, moderately squared loose sleeves, and pockets.

● B. Definitly dress parade, a suit of black broadcloth, teamed with a long fitted outer coat of broadcloth. The suit dress is cut in slim lines, has a dashing young bolero jacket with long sleeves, swinging free in front but cut one with the straight skirt at the back. Over this unusual suit is the long fitted coat.

● C. Skunk, the newest of high fashion furs, trims this swanky suit of slim, one piece wool dress and matching wool coat. The coat is so fashioned that it can be worn with other suits, other dresses or with casual and bright toned blouses.

● D. Sleeves and a short round collar of kolinsky fur mark this fourth model for especial attention. Because of the unusual sleeve treatment, the moderate size of the collar and the swinging loose silhouette, the outfit is extremely smart and practical.

Ensembles Rank as Top Interest for Winter Wardrobes

By Rhea Seeger.

OUT of all the bewildering possibilities in outfits designed for winter wardrobes, ensembles rate top interest. Not just the usual dress and coat, or suit and coat combines, but the newest sophisticated get-togethers, shrieking with fine detail, a smooth French finesse of color contrast, a rich fur trim and streamlines that promise dramatics for every personality. Fine fabrics, rich furs, gleaming satins and distinctive additions of embroidery, or glittering insets of brocade or metal thread work, combine to make these costumes the very important clothes they look and prove to be.

Black takes the first spotlight, but dramatic colors and color combines insidiously steal black's popularity almost while you watch. Slim, distinguished ensembles that can be worn anywhere and everywhere; each model different, each duet of underdress and outer coat, a matched or contrasted brilliant example of what expert designers can contrive for appreciative shoppers of the unusual.

• • •

Fur applied, attached or festooned by skilful fingers that do this fur trickery with a startling genius for the spectacular, make the most exciting ensembles, flat silky fur bands used in scrolls, like braid, are finds for the large figures, while a perfect frenzy of fox swirls, loops and even bows decoratively enhance the pencil slim, sheath twosomes for the very tall or lissome.

It's a season of unadulterated femininity, no more suits cut like the stern masculine tailleurs of a few season's back if you yern to be idealized, to be mysterious even in street clothes. See the passing show costumes—really the suits and three-piece outfits of yesteryear gone grande dame with eye-filling emphasis.

Suedelike wools, soft feathery wools with a silky thread gleaming in the weaves, broadcloths and a very roughish mixture are what you'll find. Lovely moiréd furs like caraculs, flat bands of Persian, plenty of glistening bands of marten, kolinsky, and beaver together with the fluffier fox furs, are the high fashion accents for these beautifully designed costumes.

• • •

Such a costume is keyed for any kind of wardrobe. Around such an outfit can be assembled the unusual and most practical of wardrobes whether you operate on a large or modest clothes allowance. Knowingly changing hats and accessories remake and change the original outfit, so that a striking new costume can be evolved every time you dress. Accessories dress them up or down—gloves, a matching muff, a tiny scrap of a hat with a fluttering two yard length of veil, big hunks of gold costume jewelry, slave bracelets, and even unusual earrings, add to or subtract from the eye value of the costume. Coat linings are no longer just the utilitarian dark satins or silks . . . these new clothes feature the unusual, the exotic stripes of taffeta, the splendor of two-tone taffeta, satins embroidered with motifs in silver or gold thread. One new coat has the upper half lined in contrasting satin and the lower half in the same color of taffeta. Plaid wools line spectator sports and street coats, plaid silks and corded effects the more dress parade. Lustrous black broadcloth is contrasted with the dusty gleam of silver in most unexpected details; everything is alluringly feminine, the best looking loot we've had in years.

Four distinguished outfits have been sketched . . . costume, ensembles or what you will, all designed for the flattery of the new feminine streamlines, fur trimmed, decorative models beautifully designed and ready for immediate wear.

Pile Carpets, Rugs in Wood Tones and Browns Much Used

BROWNS and wood tones, now the most popular colors in American loomed, wool pile carpets and rugs, possess a great advantage in home decoration in that they may be used as the basis for so many different color schemes. This is important because during the life of a rug it is possible to change the appearance of the room completely by altering wall and ceiling colors, draperies and furniture coverings. A wide choice of colors may be used with these carpet tones.

Red carpet and rug tones, including burgundy and rusts, bring life and vigor to the room. They are less adaptable to a wide range of color schemes than some of the other more neutral colors, but extremely valuable in the decorative picture.

For bright, sunny rooms, blue and green wool pile floor coverings are particularly suitable. Blue is a favorite decorator color of growing importance in the wool pile floor covering picture.

Reproductions of rich old Persian designs produced in American loomed wool pile fabrics have decreased so far as number of patterns is concerned, but appear in immeasurably better designs which copy faithfully the colors and designs of the priceless fabrics.

Federation Is to Review Its Achievements

By Betty Browning.

IT will be twenty years ago next May that several women leaders, feeling the need of a central organization to coördinate the activities of Chicago clubs toward the betterment of their city, united to form the Chicago Federation of Women's Clubs.

Next Friday, at the Palmer House, that body, since expanded to the Chicago and Cook County Federation of Women's Organizations, will review the achievements of the last nineteen seasons at a jubilee luncheon inaugurating the federation's 20th season and, at the same time, celebrating Chicago's charter jubilee.

• • •

Mrs. Henry W. Hardy, Mrs. Edward S. Bailey, and Mrs. Martin Kent Northam, the three women who were first to sign the federation's charter, are to outline the history and accomplishments of the organization, and representatives of other important bodies likewise will discuss the work of their respective groups.

Among these guest speakers will be Mrs. Edward J. Lehman, president of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs; John McKinlay, president of Chicago's charter jubilee; Judge John P. McGoorty of the Superior court, chairman of the "Light of Ages" charter jubilee religious festival to be presented in October; and Mrs. Charles S. Clark, president of the Conference of Club Presidents and Program Chairmen.

• • •

Also included among the speakers will be Elmer Stevens, director of Retail Dry Goods Organizations; Miss Elsa C. Beck, former president of the Women's Bar Association of Illinois; Mrs. John Van Wakeman, president of the Cook County Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. George V. McIntyre, president of the Big Sisters, and public guardian of Cook county; and Rankin H. Roberts of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

Mrs. Walter H. Hermsdorf is the present head of the federation, which comprises more than 80 organizations representing approximately 50,000 women. Numbered among these are religious and foreign groups of contrasting types, civic, cultural, welfare, and business organizations.

The federation itself is nonpolitical and nonsectarian, like the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, with which it is affiliated. Meetings are in the form of an open forum for the presentation of current topics, and are held monthly at headquarters of the federation, 209 South State street.

Chicago leaders of the Women of the Moose will go to Rockford this week for the state conference taking place Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. Mrs. Bernard Corrigan, senior regent of the Chicago chapter; Mrs. Robert A. Roth, Mrs. E. Schuld, Mrs. William D. Camp, Mrs. Harry Groat, Mrs. Edward C. Schak, Mrs. George Bigotti, and Mrs. Ernest L. Hawes are among those who will have a prominent rôle in the proceedings of the meeting.

• • •

Of interest to business women who are members of the Methodist Episcopal church will be the annual Chicago regional conference of the Wesleyan Service guild from 2:30 until 8 o'clock today at the Stevens hotel. This missionary organization for business women of the denomination will hear talks by Mrs. Glen Lawrence of the Chicago Commons; Miss Mary Herrick, teacher of social science at Du Sable High school; Miss Ethel Davis, industrial secretary of the Y. W. C. A., and others.

Miss Lena Knapp of the department of leadership of the International Council of Religious Education will preside at the meeting. Mrs.

Chippendale Art in "French Taste" Shows a Revival

THE revival of the French period styles along with the continued importance of the English 18th century furniture designs has resulted in an increased interest in Chippendale furniture "in the French taste"—the phrase used by Chippendale himself in referring to the pieces made by him that showed French influences.

The French styles made a wide appeal to the weathy classes on the continent and in England about 1750 when Chippendale was at the height of his career, and he drew on them extensively in designing elaborate furniture for some of the great English houses.

Chippendale developed an Anglicized version of the rococo style so important in France during the middle of the 18th century and introduced into the somewhat serious atmosphere of the English home a rather charming frivolous touch.

Fashion Notes

● Plaids the size of a horse blanket pattern make the newest wool top coats to wear with monotone dresses or suits. Swatches of both materials are combined to make swathed high turbans to wear with the outfit, and big hand carved pieces of costume jewelry, buttons and buckle are accents.

● Taffeta linings make the smartest long coats to wear with dress parade clothes of velvet or dull crepe or imported Rodier thin wools. Braid outlines pockets and cuffs and collars when the trim isn't fur.

● Striped wool waistcoats are worn with country tweed ensembles of thin wool dress and colorful roughish tweed topcoats. As an alternative see the stunning short sleeved blouses or waistcoats of suede. One gold colored affair is scalloped around the curved edges, the sleeves and down the front closing. Others come in jade green and ruby red.

● For fall weather nothing is better than the short fur jackets that are now on the market. They can be had in all of the newest furs and styles, and look charming over the new clothes.

Varied Factors Account for Food Aversions

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune.]

DOES an individual dislike a certain food solely because the flavor is disagreeable to him?

Offhand, one might be inclined to answer in the affirmative, but reflection might indicate that other factors have a much greater influence than flavor.

To test my own belief that flavor plays a very minor part in determining food dislikes, I sought casual evidence from a number of friends and acquaintances. What foods, I asked, did they dearly despise, and for what reasons, as nearly as they could tell. The results were interesting.

• • •

"I WON'T eat raisins because they remind me of dead flies." The woman who gave that answer said that her avoidance of raisins dated from early childhood when some thoughtless grownup jokingly referred to the "bugs" she was eating in an oatmeal and raisin cookie. Other persons seem to have had similar experiences, I found, men as well as women.

"Childhood experience has led to a widespread dislike for other foods, my informal survey would indicate One of these is oatmeal.

"Mother made us eat oatmeal for breakfast every morning when we were youngsters. She said it was good for us. So we all hated it, and have hated it ever since," was the report which I got in substance from three or four individuals.

"Spinach is so mushy and has such a sickish color that I loathe the sight of it," a young woman reported, wrinkling her nose in distaste. Since spinach, properly cooked, is far from mushy and has a bright green color, one might suspect that this girl had been served a poorly cooked vegetable.

• • •

CABBAGE and sauerkraut "smell so awful" that one woman wouldn't have them in the house. Custard is "so slippery" that a certain man had only one word for it, the famous old Indian expression, "Ugh!" A girl of my acquaintance had nothing but wry faces to show her feelings about macaroni, spaghetti and noodles, which she termed "pasty."

I was surprised to find that one person even nursed a grudge against that old American favorite dish, baked beans. "They have such a mealy consistency," she complained.

"I ate liver once when I was sick and although I was very fond of it up until then, I can't stand it any more," a man declared. Another masculine aversion was for the avocado pear, which he found "soft and slimy."

In general I found that food dislikes were based on one or more of the following factors: A texture or consistency difficult to eat or disagreeable to feel in the mouth; an unpleasant or strong odor; an unappealing color; or a psychological influence of some kind, particularly a hangover from childhood.

• • •

AMONG other unpopular foods reported to me were parsnips, turnips, beets, mush, mushrooms, oysters, eggplant, limburger cheese, and hominy. It is easy to see why most of these were included, although mention of beets was somewhat surprising. The complainant thought that beets were a bit "hard." Texture, again.

Well, what of all this? Why should we bother to analyze the reasons for food dislikes, and what difference does it make that some factor other than flavor is responsible?

I believe that a frank analysis of reasons for food aversions is the first step in learning to overcome them. A person may be forgiven for one or two food avoidances, but if he has many, and particularly if he dislikes valuable mineral or vitamin sources, he should take steps to overcome them.

The pleasures of a gourmet are unknown to one who nurses grudges against many foods, and for the added joy in living, if not for health benefits, he should make a scientific attempt to eliminate as many prejudices as possible.

• • •

TRY the food, and try it often. Childhood psychoses may be eliminated by mental effort. Textures and consistencies shouldn't offer much difficulty, for it's mostly a matter of getting used to them. A variety of textures is desirable from digestive and gastronomical viewpoints.

The cook is chiefly responsible for unpleasant odors and unappealing colors in food. Usually both result from overcooking. If there were more good cooks, there would be fewer food aversions. If you eat out, choose restaurants which pride themselves upon well cooked food, even if it means spending more money than customary. If you eat at home, and the cooking isn't what it should be, your situation is bad, but there should be a way out, even then. Cooking classes and good cookbooks are readily available and might be called to the responsible person's attention.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

[Tribune Studio Photo.]

A special for the sophisticated lady, a brand new, subtle sophisticated perfume just off the French boats. Its container is the sensation of the season and the scent itself is divinely smooth. It takes its name from a shade of magenta pink we'll be wearing.

THE most exciting, most daring perfume presentation of this decade has at last come to town! Since we saw it first in Paris last spring we've been virtually at the nail biting point awaiting its arrival.

Unless you live on a lonely hilltop and your reading matter excludes all magazines and newspapers you probably have heard of it. We can't remember a perfume heralded with more acclaim before it even reached America's shores.

• • •

THIS is the offering of the most spectacular, the most newsworthy of all the fashion queens of France. When she creates anything, from a new button to a burnoose, it's news, not so much because it's the work of her fine hand as because it's fashionwise.

Her perfume container is divinely giddy. No woman could resist it. The bottle is a dressmaker form, modeled on Mae West's form, too, if we can believe all we hear. It is set in a dome of Bohemian crystal etched at the base in a white lacy design. The stopper is a sweet, silly cluster of bright little glass flowers. Draped about the form-bottle is seamstress' tape. Very surrealist, you see.

And the whole container dramatizes one color from which the perfume takes its name, a gay, gorgeous magenta pink that we'll soon be seeing in gloves, gowns, and gay accessories.

• • •

IF we seem to be raving a lot about the product we really think it's excusable. You'll rave yourself when you see it in the shops, as you will this week. It's that kind of a sensation.

And the perfume is sensational too. Naturally, with all the build-up of sophistication and surrealism, you'll be expecting a pretty exotic scent. You'll be fooled. It's sophisticated, yes, but subtle and terribly, terribly gay. Any woman could wear it with dash. It's a blend of heavenly fragrances, all airy and mysterious and bright.

You're going to like this, lady. And you'll die of despair if you can't flaunt one of these Paris bottles on your dressing table!

Children Need Freedom for Development and of forming likes and dislikes, and so forth.

"I feel that a large portion of the credit for a contented baby should go to you, as we have been guided by your opinions and suggestions. I might add that not only have my husband and I had general guiding principles, but we have given much attention to the details, analyzing situations, reactions, stimuli.

"Of course, I realize that our baby is only 15 months old, but we believe that if it is possible to see results of planned actions in that short time it will be possible to determine to a large extent our child's happiness and well-being for the future.

"Some people are always reminding me that the 'worst is yet to come.' Have you ever noticed that there are always people who are ready to tell the anxious mother of the 2 month old babe to 'just wait until he begins to walk—then you'll have your hands full'? Or to tell the parent of the toddling child to 'just wait until she begins to ask questions, to tear down things,' and so forth! Is there any cure for these people except showing them that you find raising a child an interesting and a soluble problem?

"But before I ramble on to a greater extent I shall bring this intended letter of appreciation to a close and extend our best wishes to you in your fine work.

"Gratefully yours,

IF you need convincing, perhaps this letter will do it—will clinch my more general effort in the first part of this article to sell you this way of rearing your children. Not only does it mean a sustained interest for you over all the years, but it bears such fine fruit in the personality and character of your child. He is tremendously the gainer by it all.

It is surprising to any one who has not experienced it how children blossom in the presence of responsive and truly interested grownups. I have always said that if you watch you can tell which children have this kind of parents.

The writer of this letter asked for two booklets, "How to Gain Obedience" and the "Litany for Parents." They are both fundamentally helpful and can be obtained upon request. For the first enclose a 3 cent stamped, self-addressed envelope. For the second postage only. Address Mrs. Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

"Last Fling" Is Spirit in Paris Circles

By May Birkhead.

PARIS The capital is filling up with those who, after taking in cures or amusements in France and Europe generally, are having a last fling at the shops and the exposition before settling down to their permanent residences or going across the Atlantic, as the case may be.

The exposition continues to be visited at the rate of nearly a third of a million a day, and it was remarked a few days ago that the 15 million mark had been reached. In any case, there is much talk of continuing it until next year, but the proposal seems to meet with many difficulties. After the Colonial exposition of 1931 the same idea was broached, but it was found that too many contracts called for demolition of the temporary structures.

• • •

GROVER WHALEN, who was in Paris a fortnight recently, as on several occasions within the last year, made a careful study of the exposition and found it full of suggestions for the one to be created in New York in 1939. His wife has been in Paris all summer, having taken a house in the charming suburb of Neuilly.

Pierre Cartier, who is to have charge of the Franco-American section of the forthcoming New York exposition, as he had here of the American section at the Paris exposition, has been giving many entertainments in which the official and exposition worlds overlap, as it were. He and his wife were at Bad Gastein for the cure, and while there they had as guest of honor at dinner Mrs. James Roosevelt, the President's mother, who also was their chief guest at a dinner given recently at one of the exposition's best restaurants, the Roi George. One of its many attractions is the possibility of manipulating the keyboard that sets in motion the marvelous colored fountains.

• • •

EDWARD TUCK, who now is 95 and long has been the doyen of the American colony in France, was assistant American delegate to the Paris exposition of 1889. Mr. Tuck, who stills keeps his apartment in the Champs-Elysées, spends much of his time at his Monte Carlo residence.

Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick, who is installed at the George V., has been visiting the exposition with a purpose—to inspect and receive suggestions from all the novelties in building and house furnishing and decoration—this because she recently has bought, on the peninsula of Cap d'Antibes, an extensive property which will be ideal on which to build.

Her intention is to create a villa overlooking the wild, picturesque rocks and to supply it with modern features such as a swimming pool, to be constructed of unbreakable glass, and other things which will equal and perhaps surpass her Palm Beach villa in Florida. Mrs. Jacob Baur, who was with Mrs. Chadwick for a week, sailed for home on the Normandie.

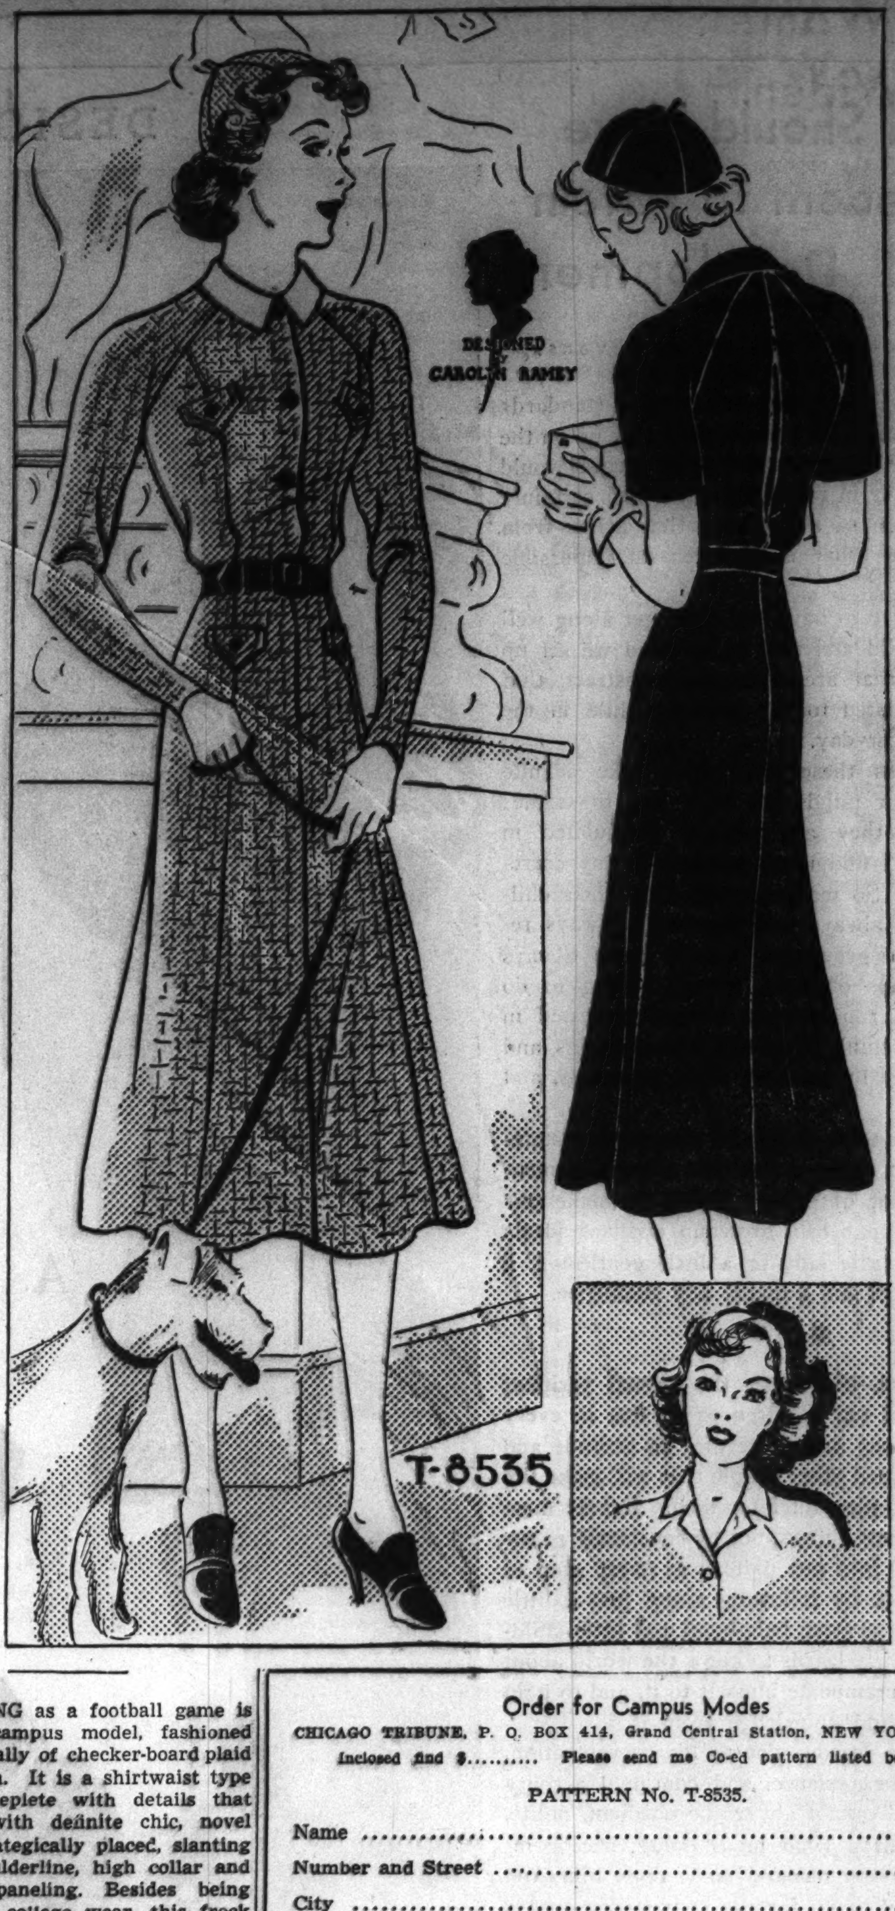
Campus Modes by a Co-ed



EXCITING as a football game is this campus model, fashioned originally of checker-board plaid woolen. It is a shirtwaist type of dress, replete with details that stamp it with definite chic, novel pockets strategically placed, slanting raglan shoulderline, high collar and ingenious paneling. Besides being "tops" for college wear, this frock is perfect for business and for general daytime occasions in the city. The matching calot, or "dinky" hat, is included in the pattern.

The slim princess silhouette is flattering to slender figures. This is the type of dress that is easy to wear. It is styled comfortably, with an "action" plait in the back above the waistline. The collar may be worn up or down. The little sketch shows you what we mean! The sleeves are more or less up to you, too. They may be long or short. Both types are being worn this season.

You need not use a plaid for this model, in case you don't favor plaids. They're tremendously smart and we certainly recommend them, but plain colors, both gay shades and the perennially lovely black, are sharing fashion honors this year. All woolens are nice. Novelty weaves hold an important place in the style limelight, but cashmere and flannel, as well as jersey, are favorites, too.

It's the simplest thing in the world to make this dress, in spite of the fact that it appears intricate. Take our word for it and make the smartest tailored dress you've had in a long time.

Style No. T-8535 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years.

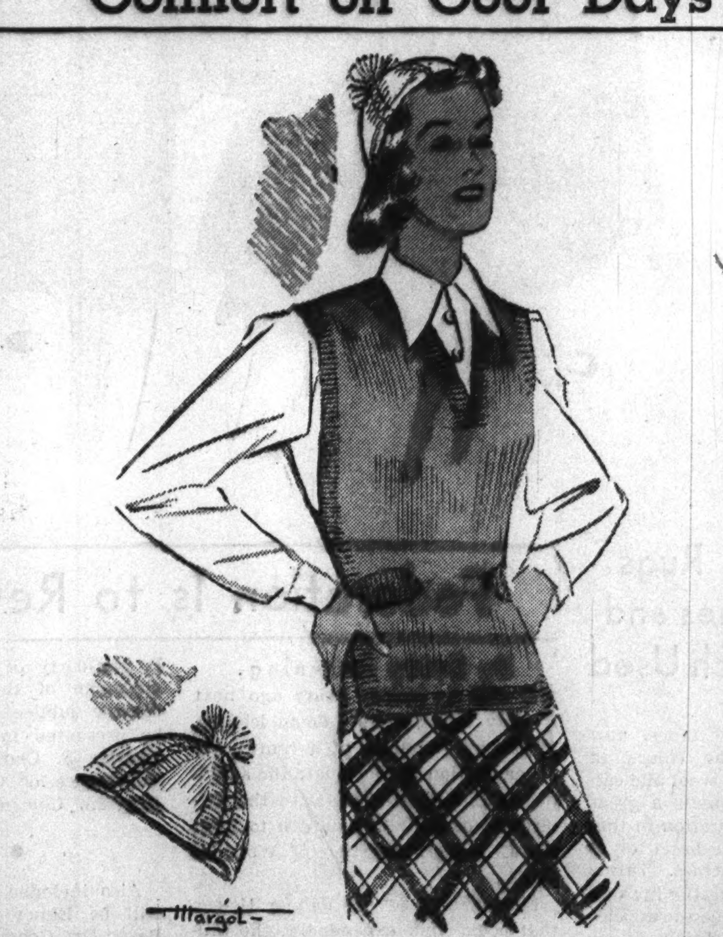
Knitted Jerkin Will Add Comfort on Cool Days



By Jean Macdonald.

CONSPICUOUS among those present in the feminine wardrobe for college is the hand knitted jerkin. All styles and shades are seen on the campus worn over a sweater and plaid plaited skirt. The jerkins are in contrast to the sweater and skirt but have a matching skull cap. They are grand for these early fall days when it is too warm for the suède jacket and it is ideal worn under a short suède coat for added warmth when the snow begins to fly. The lipstick red jerkin illustrated today is made long in the back and short in the front with a belt of garter stitch around the back and fastening at each side of the front. The band of garter stitch around the bottom, up the sides, and around the V neck is the only trimming. The back is shaped with two darts providing the smart fitted line which is so popular in the hand knitted models for fall and winter. Yarn of the Scotch fingering variety is an ideal choice for this over blouse although cashmere, angora floss, and stocking worsted may be substituted. This new type of garment is one of the easiest knitting jobs presented this fall. It takes no time to make and requires a minimum amount of yarn.

HOW TO ORDER

If you wish instructions for knitting the knitted jerkin ensemble illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Jean Macdonald, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago. Be sure to send name and address with your letter.

It is necessary that the following measurements be included:

A Foundation Gives Depth and Finish to Your Makeup

A FOUNDATION preparation, correctly applied, gives depth and finish to your makeup, causes it to stay on longer and eliminates any chance of harsh, obvious edges to color.

For skins with fine textures, lotions usually are more satisfactory than creams of the vanishing variety. Pat your favorite on after cleansing, then blend rouge while the lotion still is moist or slightly oily.

According to an article in a reputable cosmetic magazine, foundations afford a greater protection to the skin under weathering conditions and are especially helpful in preventing chapping and windburn.

Many manufacturers have slightly tinted their foundations so that they will blend more readily with the color of the skin.

Always remember that the perfect makeup never makes you look made up at all. Get rouge on smoothly and evenly, and do use it sparingly. If powder is pressed on lavishly, then brush lightly to remove the excess.

Says Paris Is Losing to New York in Fashions

PARIS is losing to New York its reputation as the world fashion center, according to Hendrik A. Both of Rotterdam, Holland. He says there is a great demand in Europe for American dresses, and that Hollywood has a definite influence on women's styles in Europe.

Latest Parisian Winter Muffs Are Deceitful!

NEW winter muffs shown in Paris collections are practicing mild deceits. One takes the form of two loops attached at the front of a gray lamb jacket. When the wearer's fingers are cold or nervous she slips them into the loops, joining them together in a sausage muff of elegant proportions. Another muff is formed by rolling up the loose front panel of a three-quarter coat, revealing a leopard facing.

Finance Forum for Women Is to Widen Field

WITH the opening of its third season this week the Women's Finance forum will reach out into new fields in its avowed purpose to educate women in the handling of money. An evening program especially designed for business and professional women will be given at 7 o'clock Thursday at the Hotel Sherman following a dinner at 6 o'clock.

Thursday morning a different program, planned for the benefit of housewives and others who would not find it convenient to attend the evening meeting, will be given at the hotel. It is this morning session, to be repeated throughout the season on the same day as the monthly evening sessions, that is an innovation this year.

Mrs. Lorraine L. Blair.

The schedule of speakers announced for the season indicates that the forum, headed by Mrs. Lorraine L. Blair, will maintain its policy of presenting distinguished speakers on various aspects of finance.

E. Jay Comer, formerly head analyst for the federal securities and exchange commission, will speak at the first meeting Thursday evening on "What the Government Wants to Know About Securities." Another innovation this season is a committee of representative women who will alternate in presiding at the evening sessions. Miss Frances Shepler, metropolitan finance secretary of the Chicago Y. W. C. A., will preside Thursday.

• • •

AT THE morning session at 10:30 o'clock Austin J. Lindstrom, vice president of the First National bank, will speak on "Functions of a Large Bank." Mrs. Frank B. Staely, former American home chairman of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs, will conduct these morning sessions which are sponsored by a committee of representative club women.

Other speakers scheduled for the evening sessions include: Oct. 28, Earl Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association and vice president of the American farm bureau, "Cost of Living Affected by Agriculture"; Nov. 18, Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency, "Cost of Living Affected by Taxes"; Dec. 16, Victor Olander, secretary and treasurer of the Illinois Federation of Labor, "Cost of Living Affected by Labor."

Others to appear are: Jan. 27, Thaddeus Benson, president of the Chicago Stock exchange, "Current Trends in Stocks and Bonds"; Feb. 24, Charles J. Zimmerman, general agent of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company, and secretary of the National Life Underwriters' association, "Current Trends in Insurance"; March 24, Peter Bokowski, examiner of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Mortgage company, "Current Trends in Real Estate." A final program April 21 will be announced later.

FRIDAY the Newberry Center league will begin another season with its annual tea for new members, sustaining members, and others interested in its work in behalf of the settlement house. The party will be held at the home of Mrs. Gene Heywood, 1500 Forest avenue, Evanston.

Arlington Smith, head resident of Newberry center, will speak of the settlement's work, and Helen Hedges will sing. Mrs. Harold O. Barnes of Kenilworth is president of the league. Other officers include Mrs. Henry M. Bacon, vice president; Mrs. Frank Stellner, recording secretary; Mrs. Fred Schroeder, corresponding secretary. Mrs. D. J. Mills heads the hospitality committee.

A fall rally tomorrow will preface the annual bundle campaign of the woman's auxiliary of the Chicago Christian Industrial league. The campaign opens Thursday to continue through the following Thursday, and clothing, furniture, books, and other articles collected will be given to the unemployed men who live at the home maintained by the league at 847 West Monroe street. The auxiliary has its own clubrooms at this address, and it is here that the rally will be held. Mrs. F. C. Koos is president, and other officers are Mrs. Margaret West, first vice president; Mrs. Harry S. Lee, second vice president; Miss Hazel D. Maxwell, secretary; Mrs. Elmer L. Noll, treasurer, and Miss H. Grace Newman, executive secretary.

Mrs. John B. Bremner.

Troop committees of the Girl Scouts of the Chicago archdiocese will hold a benefit card party Wednesday evening in the Red Lacquer room of the Palmer house under the auspices of the Council of Catholic Women. Proceeds will be used to help defray the expenses of the annual retreat given at the Convent of the Sacred Heart at Lake Forest. Mrs. John B. Bremner, chairman of Catholic relations of the Girl Scouts, is chairman of the party.

One of the four card parties given annually as benefits by the Hull House Woman's club will be held Wednesday afternoon at the Midwest Athletic club, Madison street and Hamlin avenue. Mrs. Lauretta Di Cosola is chairman. Proceeds will be given to the United Charities and other philanthropies to which the club contributes.

More Colors Used in Bathroom Than in the Kitchen

THE bathroom outshines the kitchen in color, according to a survey by the bureau of standards and the National Retail Dry Goods association.

The analysis shows it requires seven colors to meet ordinary demands for bathroom decorations, while six serve for most kitchens.

Chicagoans in Beverly Enjoy Fall Weather

A most alluring time of the year is that now being enjoyed by the Chicago sojourners along the Massachusetts north shore. In another week the hills will resound to the echo of the hunting horn as the Myopia Hunt club begins its series of hunt programs which will continue until after Thanksgiving, when the snow covers the ground.

BEVERLY, MASS.

Gordon Prince of Wenham, well known to Chicago visitors, is again master of the Myopia hounds, and larger fields than for several seasons are expected to participate in the run. The runs through the north shore are the most picturesque and have a real appeal. Many follow in motor cars and the colorful picture is a feature of the autumn mornings.

Mrs. Joseph Leiter of Chicago plans to be at Edgewater house, Beverly Farms, until well into October. As usual, she will pass most of the winter in Washington.

Col. Edward Mandell House, advisor to the late President Wilson, and who has had an interesting career in world affairs, closed Seawold, his summer home in West Manchester, this week and has returned to his New York home. Col. House is well known to Chicago sojourners on the north shore. He has not enjoyed his usual vigorous good health this summer but has recovered and plans to spend much of the winter in New York.

William Phillips, ambassador to Italy, is at his home in North Beverly on a leave of absence. He plans to remain for a few weeks.

Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr. of Chicago is planning to be at her Ipswich home, Castle Hill, through the month. Her estate is one of the most attractive in that section.

The C. Groverman Ellises have closed their Gloucester summer home and have returned to Chicago for the winter. The A. Arthur Leonards of the Gloucester colony also have returned to their Chicago home.

CAMAY
THE SOAP OF BEAUTIFUL WOMEN
CAMAY

"Camay really made my skin Satiny and Soft"

SAYS THIS PRETTY MASSACHUSETTS BRIDE

PLYMOUTH, MASS.

It's wonderful that just using Camay regularly made my complexion so satiny and fine! Nothing could make me change now to any other beauty care!

Sincerely,
(Signed) RUTH F. BEATTIE
(Mrs. Richard Irwin Beattie)

June 24, 1937

IT'S a wise girl who knows there's no charm so priceless as the charm of clear, soft skin! And it's a wiser girl who's learned how to have and keep this charm.

"I went through a period of trying every beauty care there is," says winsome Mrs. Beattie. "And finally I tried Camay. From then on it was easy to decide that Camay was the soap for me!"

It's been easy for many a girl like Mrs. Beattie to decide on Camay, for Camay really brings results! No soap has the same velvety-smooth lather Camay has, rich with beauty bubbles that thoroughly cleanse your skin. Down to the pores these beauty bubbles go, to whisk out every bit of dirt and grime, to get skin clean.

No soap on the market today is gentler than Camay, or kinder to your skin. Tests were made against other leading beauty soaps, on every type of skin. Again and again Camay came out the winner—a definitely, provably milder beauty soap! You'll find gentle Camay is good even for delicate skin.

And there's no leading beauty soap that's better than Camay, yet Camay is most reasonable in price. Why don't you buy half a dozen cakes today? Begin to use it regularly. You want to have a skin that's lovely to look at—softly clear and smooth!

Fashion Parade of Furniture on This Week

Does your dinette appear smaller than it really is? How to select furniture, wall coverings, rugs, and cabinets in order to give greater utility and a more pleasing appearance is told in the booklet, "Making the Most of the Dinette," by Edith Weigle, Tribune furniture stylist. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 2 cents. Postpaid, 3 cents.

By Edith Weigle.

HOME furnishings go on fashion parade this week, the country over, when stores celebrate National Furniture week, Sept. 23-Oct. 2. All the large Chicago furniture and department stores are arranging special displays, and next Sunday THE TRIBUNE will run an entire page of furniture in color and will have other special features on rugs, draperies and all the articles that go to make your home more comfortable and more beautiful.

Among hundreds of model rooms on display will be several that solve the problem of how to furnish the small dining room or the dinette.

In the days of our grandmothers when dining rooms were large, high-ceilinged, and spacious with large windows and larger doors, the problem of furniture was not an acute one. Without any difficulty such an interior would hold a huge sideboard or buffet, a china cabinet, side tables for serving, and perhaps a gigantic screen to hide the pantry door, as well as the dining table and chairs.

Today the story is quite different. In thousands of homes the problem is one of furnishing adequately space that, as an elderly spinster put it, "is hardly big enough to turn around in." Instead of a large dining room we are confronted with a tiny one, or with a dinette which is little more than an alcove off the living room, or a cubby-hole next to the kitchen.

• • •

HOW to furnish it and still achieve a feeling of serenity and space is the question. It's not so difficult if a few clever decoration tricks are allowed to work their miracles. First of all, you can increase the apparent size of the room by having the walls painted a light, delicate color, and by all means have the finish flat, not glossy. Pale green [and blue-green or gray-green are the popular tones this season], or pale yellow, or chalk blue, or light peach, or silver gray are all suitable colors to use.

Next, have the woodwork match the walls, and have the doors painted to match, as well. This helps increase the feeling of space in the room.

Third, use a wall to wall carpeting, or a plain, solid color rug. Pattern on the floor will tend to attract attention to it, and it will then cease to be a background.

Fourth, keep the window treatment simple. Fussy, tied-back or ruffled draperies make the room "busy," while simple, straight-to-the-floor ones of printed linen, or of chintz, or of one of the lovely, pastel colored, texture weave mohairs will bring beauty to your color scheme.

Venetian blinds can be used, instead of glass curtains. Or you can use sheer, diaphanous, floor length curtains and no blinds or draperies. If you do use the curtains, alone, catch them back.

• • •

NOW, about furniture. All good furniture shops and department stores are showing chairs, tables, sideboards, etc., especially designed for the small dining room or dinette. Perhaps you may prefer a table that may be pushed against the wall when not in use. In this case, choose one of the handsome, drop-leaf mahogany or walnut types. And with it use chairs that are not bulky. Ones of the Duncan Phyfe lyre-back style are excellent, as are simple, ladder-back Chippendale, or the Sheraton chairs with the square backs and the straight, delicate spindles or splats.

Conservative modern furniture in a blond wood is another excellent choice for the small dining room. You'll find the chairs are sturdy but do not take up much space, and the side pieces such as cabinets and china cupboards come in units and you can have as many or as few as the need dictates.

Chairs of Strap Metal Develop Genuine Style

CHAIRS of strap metal, which are inexpensive, and until this year were not very interesting, have blossomed out with new colors and new upholstery. Maroon and white are combined in some of them. There is one with a maroon-colored frame and fabric, wooden arms lackered white, and white crossbars in the back cushion. Strap steel is very springy, and most of the chairs are built so as to have a natural bounce.

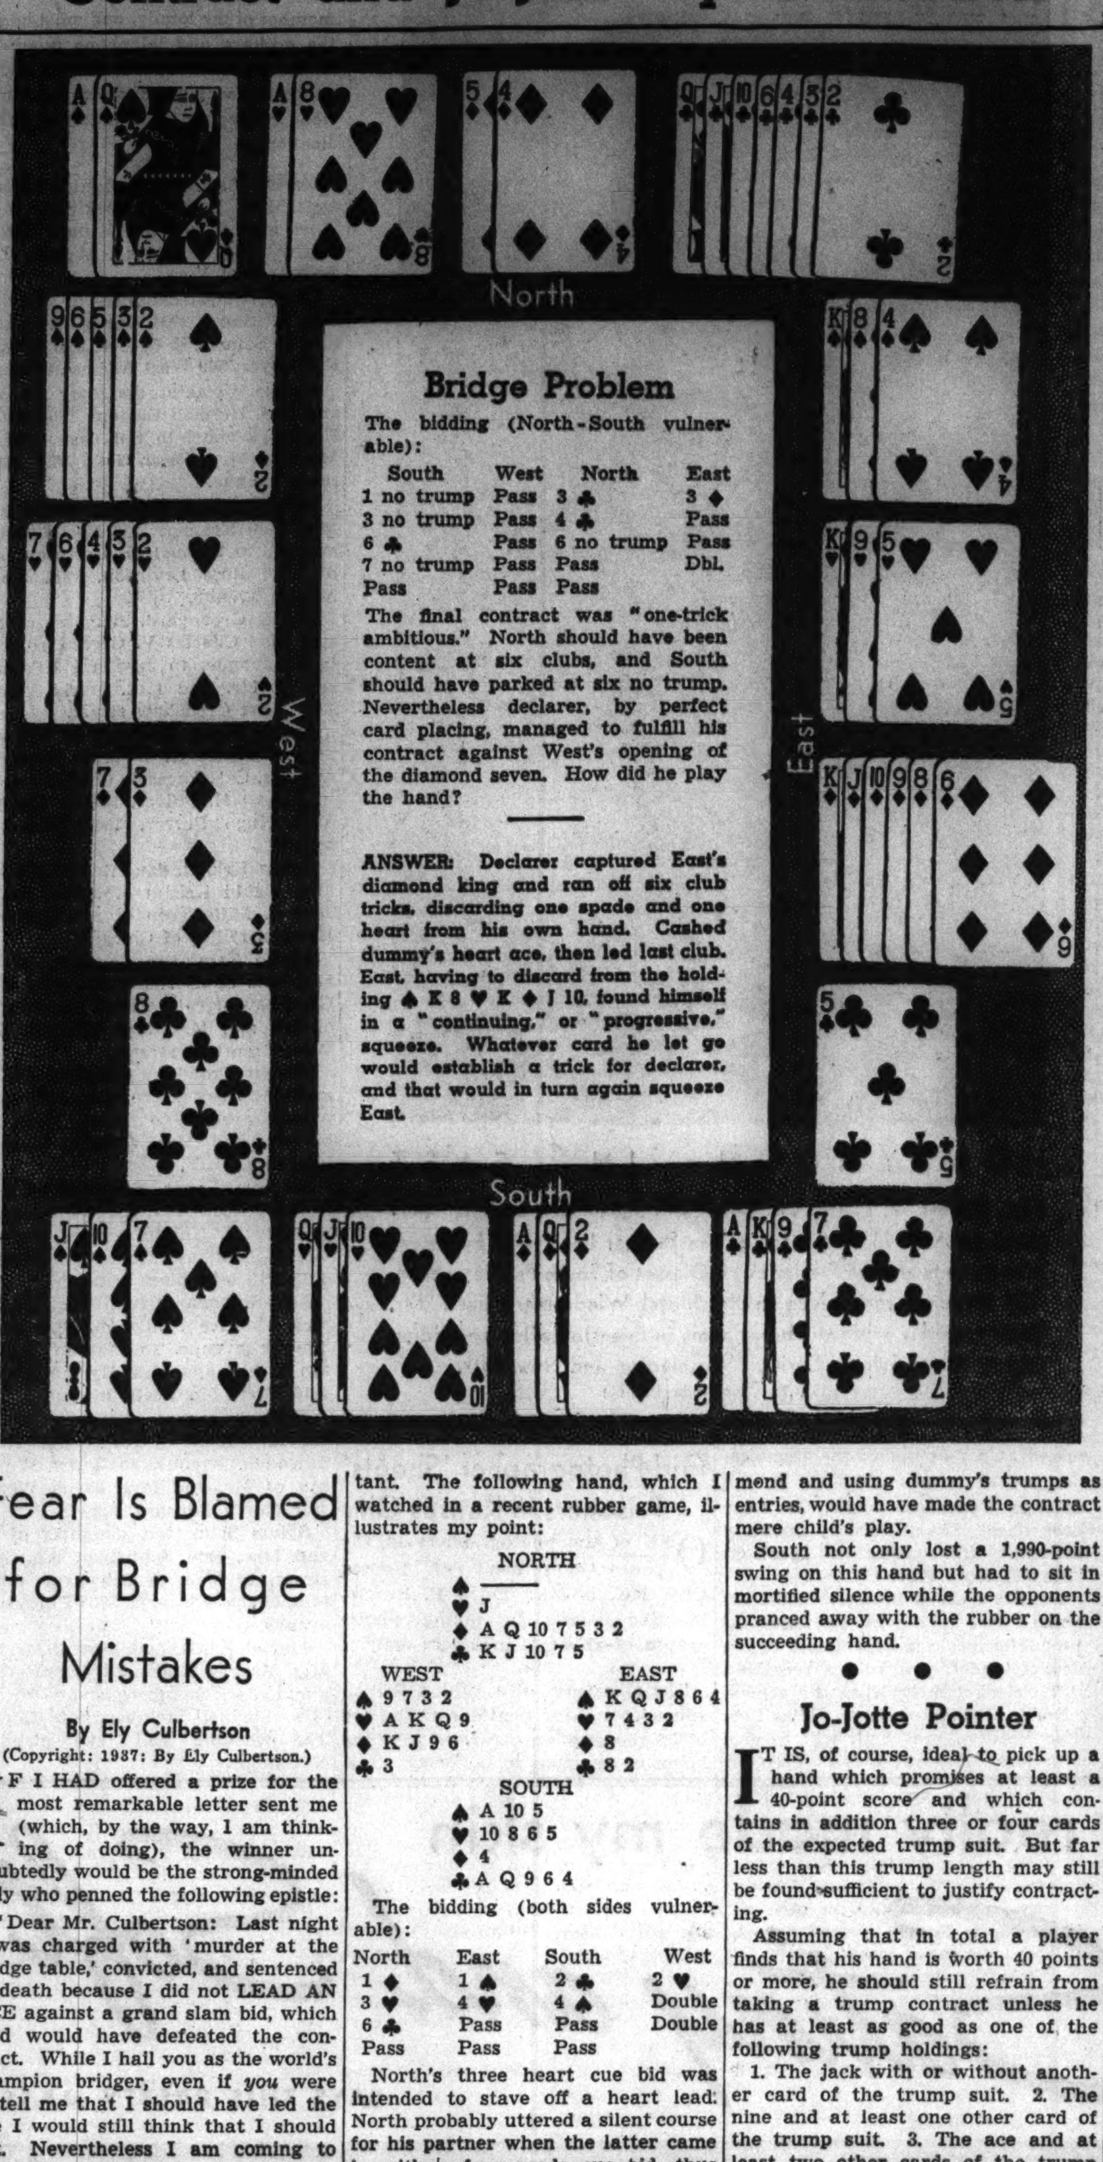
Contract and Jo-Jotte by Culbertson



Bridge Problem

The bidding (North-South vulnerable):

South	West	North	East
1 no trump	Pass	3 ♣	3 ♦
3 no trump	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
6 ♣	Pass	6 no trump	Pass
7 no trump	Pass	Pass	Dbl.
Pass	Pass	Pass

The final contract was "one-trick ambitious." North should have been content at six clubs, and South should have parked at six no trump. Nevertheless declarer, by perfect card placing, managed to fulfill his contract against West's opening of the diamond seven. How did he play the hand?

ANSWER: Declarer captured East's diamond king and ran off six club tricks, discarding one spade and one heart from his own hand. Cashed dummy's heart ace, then led last club. East, having to discard from the holding ♠ K 8 ♥ K ♦ J 10, found himself in a "continuing," or "progressive," squeeze. Whatever card he let go would establish a trick for declarer, and that would in turn again squeeze East.

Fear Is Blamed for Bridge Mistakes

By Ely Culbertson

(Copyright: 1937: By Ely Culbertson.)

IF I HAD offered a prize for the most remarkable letter sent me (which, by the way, I am thinking of doing), the winner undoubtedly would be the strong-minded lady who penned the following epistle:

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: Last night I was charged with 'murder at the bridge table,' convicted, and sentenced to death because I did not LEAD AN ACE against a grand slam bid, which lead would have defeated the contract. While I hail you as the world's champion bridger, even if you were to tell me that I should have led the ace I would still think that I should not. Nevertheless I am coming to you for your criticism. I was West, and my hand was as follows:

♠ 9 7 2 ♥ 9 8 7 ♦ Q J 10 ♣ A 10 8 5

"The bidding went:

North	East	South	West
1 ♣	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
4 ♣	Pass	4 no trump	Pass
5 no trump	Pass	7 ♥	Dbl.
Pass	Pass	Pass

"As you will note, my partner and I passed all the way through until seven hearts were bid, whereupon I doubled.

"I did not lead the ace of clubs—from the bidding and the number of clubs in my hand, I was afraid that South was void in that suit and would trump my ace, making good the clubs in dummy; and by not leading the ace I hoped to make possibly two club tricks. I never like leading aces. However, in this instance the slam would have been defeated by the lead of the ace. Yours truly,

"V. C., Hattiesburg, Miss."

I read this letter three times, then shook my head in the manner of a prize fighter trying to recover from the last left hook. Dazedly I asked myself whether it was possible that Mrs. V. C. was the originator of that famous philosophical gem: "I'm glad I don't like spinach, because if I liked it I'd eat it, and I hate it!" As for her defiant warning that, no matter what I think of her failure to open the club ace, she'd go right on thinking she was right, I cannot resist telling the story of the lady golfer.

It seems that a gentleman golfer walked up to a ball lying on the fairway and was about to address it when a lady golfer's voice smote his ear as follows: "That's my ball!" very courteously the gentleman said: "O, no, madam, it's mine." To this the lady retorted: "How dare you! I tell you, it's mine!" This sprightly dialog went on for some time, until finally the gentleman leaned down, picked the ball up, and said: "Look, I can prove it's mine; here's my name on it." At this bit of purely circumstantial evidence the lady stamped her foot daintily and exclaimed: "Well, what I'd like to know is how your name got on my ball!"

I trust that I have commented appropriately on the technical aspect of the above-recorded letter.

And now for some bridge!

Fear is responsible for a large proportion of the mistakes that occur in the average game. Curiously enough, there is ground for fear in the play of many a contract. But the trouble is that almost always the player overlooks the substance and fears the shadow. In other words, contingencies that he should fear, and consequently guard against, go unnoticed while he quails at something unimportant. The following hand, which I watched in a recent rubber game, illustrates my point:

NORTH
♥ J
♦ A Q 10 7 5 3 2
♣ K J 10 7 5

WEST
♠ 9 7 3 2
♥ A K Q 9
♦ K J 9 6
♣ 3

EAST
♠ K Q J 8 6 4
♥ 7 4 3 2
♦ 8
♣ 8 2

SOUTH
♠ A 10 5
♥ 10 8 6 5
♦ 4
♣ A Q 9 6 4

The bidding (both sides vulnerable):

North	East	South	West
1 ♦	1 ♠	2 ♣	2 ♥
3 ♥	4 ♥	4 ♠	Double
6 ♣	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

North's three heart cue bid was intended to stave off a heart lead: North probably uttered a silent course for his partner when the latter came in with a four spade cue bid, thus making a spade lead unattractive for the opponents. As it happened, however, West should not have been in the position of leading at all; he should not have allowed the six club contract to stand. Far from doubling, he should have sacrificed at six spades. East's bidding had strongly suggested great spade and heart length, and from West's point of view there was no reason for feeling that six clubs could be defeated. Perhaps he reckoned on the assistance of South, the declarer.

The king of hearts was opened and followed by the queen. Dummy ruffed, and the adverse clubs were drawn. Now declarer bethought himself about establishing the diamond suit. He led to the ace and ruffed the deuce. When East showed out, the jig was up. Dummy had only two club entries left, and the diamond suit was still two tricks from establishment. South finally found himself with two losing tricks in hearts and bit the dust to the tune of a 500-point penalty.

I remember reflecting what a comedy of errors this had been. West should have lost substantially by his bad double. The contract, which would have returned almost 1,400 points, should have been made with ease, whereas a six spade sacrifice bid could have been punished only 500 points. Instead of that West had actually gained 1,000 points by his bad double—the 500 that he would have gone down plus the 500 that South threw him.

The cause for defeat was, I am sure, an unreasoning and utterly illogical fear on South's part that to begin establishment of the diamond suit before drawing trumps would risk an adverse ruff. The absurdity of such a fear should have been apparent. The play was in dummy at the second trick. Perhaps declarer feared that the ace, if led, would be ruffed, but if so he neglected to analyze what such a ruff would mean. Obviously it would mean that one defender held five diamonds, in which case drawing trumps would be equally futile, since that would preclude establishment of diamonds.

The elementary play of laying down dummy's diamond ace at the second trick, then ruffing a low diamond and using dummy's trumps as entries, would have made the contract mere child's play.

South not only lost a 1,990-point swing on this hand but had to sit in mortified silence while the opponents pranced away with the rubber on the succeeding hand.

• • •

Jo-Jotte Pointer

IT IS, of course, ideal to pick up a hand which promises at least a 40-point score and which contains in addition three or four cards of the expected trump suit. But far less than this trump length may still be found sufficient to justify contracting.

Assuming that in total a player finds that his hand is worth 40 points or more, he should still refrain from taking a trump contract unless he has at least as good as one of the following trump holdings:

1. The jack with or without another card of the trump suit. 2. The nine and at least one other card of the trump suit. 3. The ace and at least two other cards of the trump suit. 4. Any four-card trump holding.

Each Monday in The Daily Tribune Mr. Culbertson writes a bridge article especially for beginners. Articles for more advanced players on other days.

Today's Questions

Question: Is a jump response to a takeout double forcing?

Answer: No; it is strength-showing but not absolutely forcing.

♠ A Q 8 7 5 ♥ K 7 5 ♦ 9 7 ♣ 9 6 4

Answer: The proper response is three no trump.

Evergreen Hedges Are Coming Back Into Popularity

EVERGREEN hedge is gradually coming back into popularity, especially since its chief competitor, the California privet hedge, dies out frequently. The evergreen hedge, such as the American arbor vitae, is rarely hurt by the coldest winter. And by far the finest hedges are the ones that keep an even green color the year 'round.

Right now is a good time to plant an arbor vitae hedge They add very much to the beauty of any place and give the effect of a garden.

Norway spruce is another type of evergreen useful for a hedge. If sheared once a year they give a neat, decorative appearance and are of lasting value.

Simplicity Is the Keynote in Modern Home in Germany

BECAUSE too many modern rooms in Germany are becoming cluttered and stuffy, it is good to find something like the little week-end house which has been built at the Wannsee, a large lake between Berlin and Potsdam. This is modern in the denuded, Japanese way, but of course, not Japanese. The house is a single square room and porch with a flat top. Half of the building is made of white masonry, the other half, toward the porch, is walled with plate glass. This is mounted on metal frames which fold back so that one end of the house can be entirely open. Figured chintz curtains can be drawn over the glass.

The closed end of the living room has a large fireplace framed in brick, which can be used for cooking, and two closets. The floors are covered with natural straw matting and the walls painted the same color. Furniture consists of two studio divans, two low pine chests and two black-topped card tables with chromium plated chairs. Rough brown upholstery and bronze mantel ornaments relieve the room's severity. Fritz de Groot was the architect.

The Stamp Collector

By Richard McP. Cabeen

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning value. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Postage Stamps and Coin advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

IN 1897 Newfoundland issued a series of commemorative stamps to celebrate both the 400th anniversary of the discovery of the island by John Cabot, and the 60th year of the reign of Queen Victoria.

That John Cabot, or Zuan Cabote, as he was known in Venice, sailed from Bristol on May 2, 1497, in a vessel known as the Mathew, manned by eighteen men, is a lesson taught in every history of this country, but it never has definitly been proven that it was John and not Sebastian Cabot who made the trip, and it is equally uncertain whether the vessel reached Newfoundland or Labrador.

In fact, little is known of John Cabot, there being no record of his death nor of his burial place, and his likeness was never recorded for posterity. Cabot reached land on the western side of the Atlantic on June 24, supposedly touching at the northern extremity of Cape Breton Island, and after sailing along the coast for some distance, returned to Bristol where he anchored on Aug. 6. For the discovery of a new land Henry VII. presented this Cabot with the princely sum of five pounds sterling.

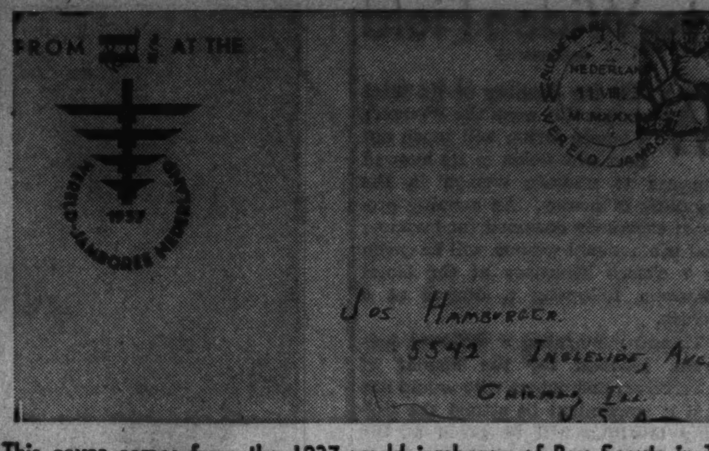
The stamps which were issued to commemorate this event were printed and no doubt designed by the American Bank Note company of New York. The 1 cent value is dedicated to Queen Victoria and pictures her in the 60th year of her reign. The 2 cent stamp shows a portrait of Sebastian Cabot, not John, as indicated by most cataloguers, and its designer cleverly dodged the issue by inscribing it simply "Cabot." This portrait is from a painting by Holbein which was burned in a great fire in Pittsburgh in 1845.

The 3 cent value shows a view of Cape Bonavista, "The Landfall of Cabot"; the 10 cent has a view of the Mathew, and the 60 cent a portrait of Henry VII. The remainder of the fourteen values show scenes of hunting, fishing, logging, mining, etc., with one picturing an iceberg and another the seal of the colony.

Within the last few months the philatelic press has carried stories of the startling discovery that the vessel shown on the 10 cent stamp as the Mathew is actually the Santa Maria, flagship of Columbus, being identical except perhaps for the flag, with the latter as shown on the 3 cent value of the Columbian issue. Since both sets of stamps were printed by the same engraving company it is likely that the Columbian die was pressed into service when no picture of the Mathew could be found.

Without any thought of minimizing the recent discovery, it may be stated that the sameness of the two vessels was common knowledge in 1897, and Philatelic Facts and Fallacies, in July of that year, facetiously disposes of the case with the following:

"After Columbus had returned from his first trip across the Atlantic he found his flagship a trifle worn out and disposed of it to a second hand ship dealer. This good man brought it up to England to have it overhauled, and after it was thoroughly refitted sold it to Cabot, who at that time was badly in need of something of the kind. Cabot after reaching Newfoundland, found it rather cold and unpleasant there and went down to New York, where a representative of the American Bank Note company took a snapshot of the Mathew with the latest Kodak. And that is the reason why Columbus' flagship on our own 3 cent green stamp and Cabot's Mathew on the new 10 cent Newfoundland are identically the same ships."



This cover comes from the 1937 world jamboree of Boy Scouts in The Netherlands. Both the stamp and the cancelation are commemorative of the event. The cover is shown through the kindness of Jos. Hamburger of Chicago.

The Territory commemorative series is gradually taking shape out of a haze of rumors. As previously announced the Hawaiian stamp will picture Kamehameha I. and the design will be taken from a statue which stands in Honolulu. It is expected that this stamp will be released early in October. The Porto Rican stamp will show a view of the harbor of San Juan, according to the Washington Times, and the stamp will be released on Nov. 8. An early confirmation of the design is expected.

The subject for the Alaska stamp seems to await a choice between a view of Mount McKinley, highest peak in that territory, and a painting depicting the negotiations for its purchase from Russia in 1867. The stamp for the Virgin Islands is tentatively slated to show a view of the harbor of Charlotte Amalie, the capital city. This name, which was dropped in favor of St. Thomas, was restored to the city early this year.

"Lost Covers," by Edna Turpin. [Random House, New York, $2.]

Philately plays a principal rôle in this story of Robin Allen's search for rare Confederate covers which he is sure exist and which he is equally sure will restore the financial independence of the Allens, if found. Through a year the search goes on until at last a rarity is located in a trunk in storage. This is sold with the assistance of August Dietz, confederate stamp authority, and prominent publisher of Richmond, Va. The volume contains 282 pages and is illustrated by Victor Perard. Each chapter is terminated with a facsimile of a confederate stamp.

Club Notes.

The next meeting of the Central Federation of Stamp Clubs will be held at Lawson Y. M. C. A., 30 West Chicago avenue, Sept. 30, at 8 p. m. In addition to the delegates from member clubs, all collectors are invited to attend, as the meeting will be featured by a debate conducted by a team from the Evanston Philatelic society. The subject, "Shall Gum Be Removed from Mint Stamps," is of interest to every collector.

In a closely contested election at the convention of the American Philatelic society in Detroit, Carter Glass Jr. of Lynchburg, Va., was elected president of the society for the ensuing two years. The margin of 20 votes was not altered by a recount which was demanded by the followers of Frederick W. Green, prominent Cleveland attorney.

Cachets and Covers.

Edward E. Bryan, R. C. D. No. 104, Box 304, Albany, Ore., will sponsor a cachet in connection with the national convention of postmasters at San Francisco. Send covers ready to go before Oct. 5, and include 1 cent forwarding fee for each cover. Additional covers will receive cachets in different colors.

A souvenir sheet picturing Postmaster General Farley will be issued by the Lewis and Clark Philatelic society of Albany, Ore., and full particulars may be had by addressing the society through its secretary.

Paris Style Openings Make Exciting News

[Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

By Bettina Bedwell.

SPECIAL to you from the Paris openings, brought by American buyers and importers, created and contrived with labor and inspiration by the Paris dressmakers, come the new styles. These clothes will make a new woman of you, a rich, dramatic, mysterious creature, for clothes-caution is gone with the wind and from now on we're out to slay, to surprise and to intrigue. If you dress to "get by" you'll be passing up the opportunity of a lifetime to be a walking excitement—a champagne stimulation in your world. Here are some of the ways and means given you by Paris to this end:

Molyneux makes you a present of slim, 1889 draped evening dresses, topped by flamboyant Boldini brimmed hats for night drama, and of slim, streamline black day dresses made exciting with gold and steel embroideries, or striped with mohair braid. Equally slim coats long or short, zippered invisibly shut, go over these day dresses. They're trimmed with heaps of fox or astrakhan.

Chanel gives you Directoire bolero jackets of white Asiatic sheep or inch-thick clipped feathers, short enough to show a corseted waistline and over wool frocks or suits. She offers glorious lamé or velvet evening gowns with low cut Medici corselet bodices and full, often gathered skirts, with impudent veil and cap headdresses.

• • •

SCHIAPARELLI makes you a present of the richest and grandest clothes in trim-line silhouette, trailing velvet restaurant evening frocks under magnificently embroidered velvet jackets with big skylarking brimmed hats or prim bonnets for your head to wear after dark. She hands you a knockout evening tweed jacket lined with brilliant pink moleskin over a skin-line metal brocade frock, and daytime short coats of fur in grand colors like deep red and glamorous blue with frocks in cloth to match, amongst about a million other new things.

Alix gives you square-looking, medium long capes of sleek water buffalo fur over chiffon wool jersey dresses draped with as much beauty as a sculptor of ancient Greece could achieve. Among many incredibly beautiful evening gowns she gives you one of Chartres cathedral blue velvet with a forty yard skirt having a knee deep hem of puffed rainbow colored velvet.

Mainbocher immortalizes the magnificent evening lights of the Paris exposition in evening gowns of black silk, velvet, tulle, encrusted with fireworks spangles, some worn over slips that are transparent from the knees and that make shapely legs demi-visible. He gives you women sweaters that are going to allow that severe garment a new lease on life, and he hands you perfect furless daytime coats with which you can utilize your separate furs. And he presents you with slender greyhound frocks of wool and silk to wear with them.

• • •

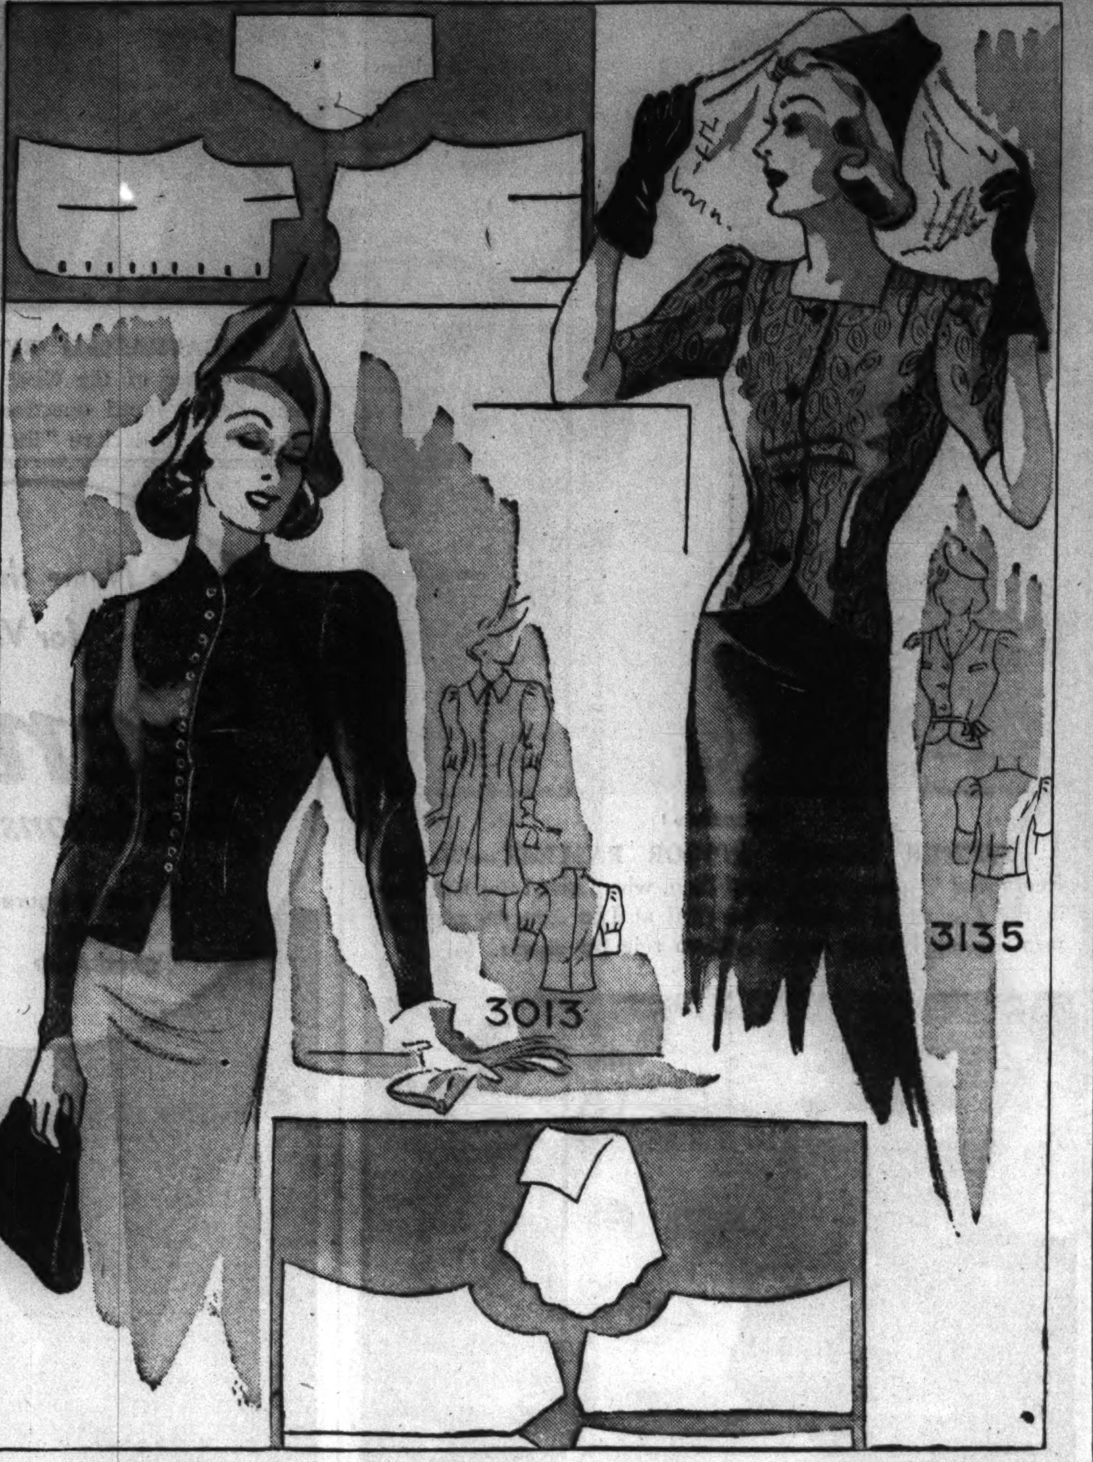
PAQUIN makes a vamp of you when you go to the cabaret or theater, with siren line dresses that you couldn't walk around in except for ruffles which release your lower legs, and which are placed up the side front of the skirt, and he hangs the coin necklaces of ouled nail dancing girls around bosoms done in spangles. His afternoon suits with fox trimmed fitted jackets which flare at one point around the hips, and with slim skirts, will give you the new dress-up daytime look.

Maggy Rouff presents to you afternoon coats and evening cloaks made entirely of wide, horizontally worked velvet or satin ribbon having rich fox fur collars and trimmings. Fur ribbon coats, too, she makes. She offers you flatteringly youthful draped daytime frocks in rich colors and materials with ribbon and rosette neckbands that give you an enticing and witty look.

Lucien Lelong makes you a present of a brand new evening dress that's streamline, low cut, and that has surprise giant ruching at the ankle length hem. He gives you loose red baby fox jackets over richly striped blazer jackets and tweed skirts that are knockout day clothes, among many other new exciting clothes.

Schiaparelli, the wit, sums up our winter silhouette as "scanty raiment," which is the most apt definition, for clothes are skin-line slender, and in the evening lots of skirts have to be split so that we can get around, but with this scantiness there is the richest, most befurred, embroidered, velveted and gold-clothed set of clothes that this world has seen since 'way before the world war. The styles are assured, insolently opulent, have-a-fling clothes.

Patterns by Clotilde



By Clotilde.

EVERYWHERE you go this autumn and winter you're going to see the blouse and skirt idea in full force. In office, classroom, cocktail lounge, at afternoon teas and informal dinners, at luncheon and bridge parties, the smartest women will be wearing the two-piece ensemble. All the latest fabrics take to these patterns. You may create the outfit in dressy materials or in the sturdiest of woolens. And there isn't a woman in the world who can't wear the blouse and skirt ensemble, because it suits any type of figure and is flattering to any age.

We're offering two models today. To top your favorite skirt select metal cloth, satin, velvet, or colorful crêpe, and either style of blouse will be perfect. One features a square neckline, short puffed sleeves, and a few buttons which proceed from the neckline to the hem of the blouse, which is cut on a curve.

The other blouse mode has a high, built-up neckline which dispenses with a collar. The buttons are placed closer together and the hemline is cut on the square. Both blouses have puffed shoulders.

There are other variations, of course. On blouse No. 3135 you may have a V neckline with a rolled collar, and you may wind a sash around the waist. Pattern No. 3013 provides for a tunic, a shirtwaist collar, and sleeves which extend to just below the elbow.

Don't forget woolens. Soft flannels and jerseys in gay shades are perfect toppers for dark woolen skirts or plaid ones. The ensemble created will do admirable duty in office or classroom.

Style No. 3013 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 2 yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 3135 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 32, 34, 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 1⅛ yards of 39 inch material.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

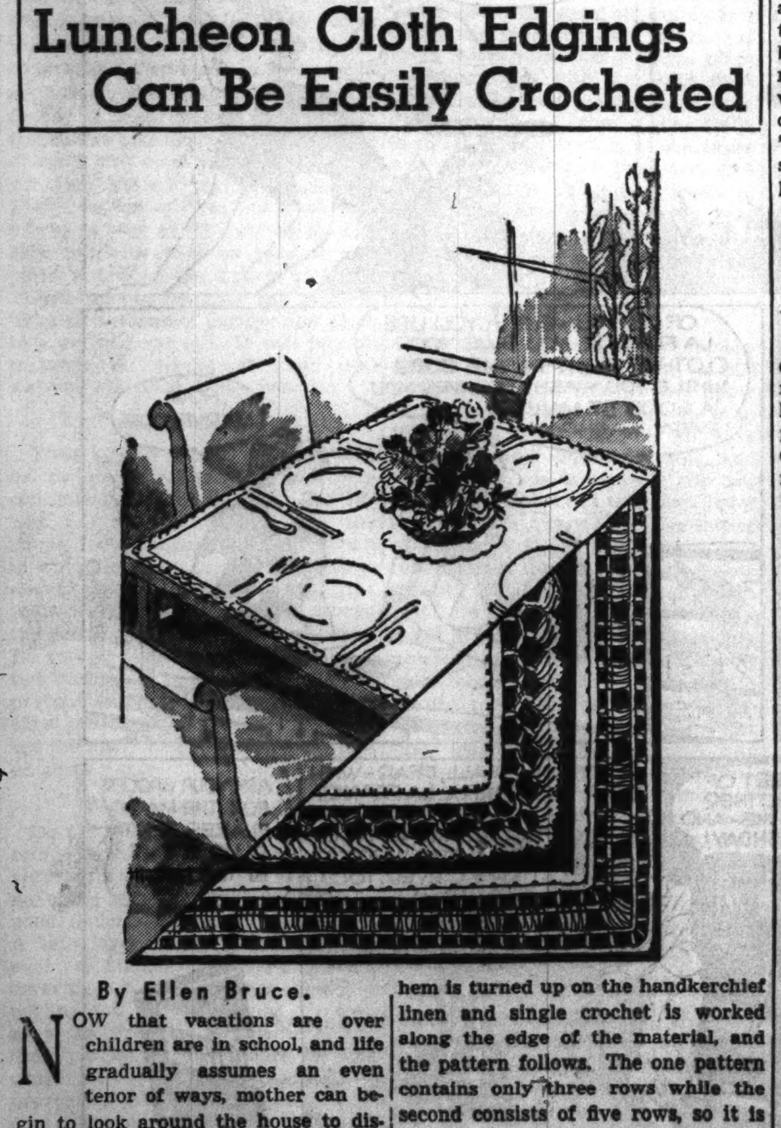
Luncheon Cloth Edgings Can Be Easily Crocheted



By Ellen Bruce.

NOW that vacations are over children are in school, and life gradually assumes an even tenor of ways, mother can begin to look around the house to discover what needs attention. Her bridge clubs are about to resume session and luncheons will be no small item for consideration. The table service that goes with the luncheon is also important, but not to be feared when one has a dainty white handkerchief linen cloth with a fine hand crochet edging to set off the beauty of the flatwear and china. The two edgings illustrated today are extremely simple to crochet. A narrow hem is turned up on the handkerchief linen and single crochet is worked along the edge of the material, and the pattern follows. The one pattern contains only three rows while the second consists of five rows, so it is easily seen that an edging for the bridge table cover may be made in no time.

If you wish instructions for crocheting the edgings for bridge table cover illustrated today, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to Ellen Bruce, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

Color Scheme of Wedding Up to Individual

How a wedding procession should enter the church is described authoritatively in the booklet, "Planning the Church Wedding," by Helen Bartlett, Tribune etiquet editor. Get a copy of this booklet if you are going to be married. On sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 3 cents. Postpaid, 5 cents.

By Helen Bartlett.

BRIDES of any season seem to be obsessed with the question of what to wear. And fall brides are no exception. Of course, all women seem to find that an eternal question. A wedding, however, is a very important event in the life of a girl and accounts for the extreme cases of nail biting over such questions as what color, what style, what material that are revealed to us.

About the most we can do is to suggest a few interesting color combinations and leave the rest to the bride. To the girls who expect us to put our finger on the exact style of dress, the material, and the most suitable color, we cannot be of much definite assistance. It is not possible, even with a little personal description of height, weight, color of hair and eyes of the individual, to conjure up a mental picture sufficiently accurate for us to pick out the exact wedding gown. Taste and personality and other individual qualities, with which we are not familiar, govern the selection quite as much as physical characteristics.

• • •

FOR the brides who have not definitly made up their minds on these momentous questions, my advice is to go shopping. You won't have to buy. Many of the larger stores have whole departments devoted exclusively to brides and bridal attendants. The smart current fashion magazines also suggest many ideas about color and style. If your own imagination doesn't seem to supply you with ideas that are attractive to you, go hunting for them through these other sources.

The fall colors are blue, green, brown, and red, as always. But varying shades and blends and combinations of these colors are invented each season to supply the ever insistent demand for that "something new."

May we present the following suggestions? If you don't care for these in their entirety, all you need is a tiny sparkle of imagination to arrive at the perfect combination to suit your requirements.

Let the bride wear white satin or velvet, and her bridesmaids wear fuchsia velvet dresses with wide silver kid belts, silver slippers, and large arm bouquets of white flowers. Among the very smartest fabrics for this fall and winter is Roman striped velvet. Let the attendants wear dresses of this material with hats and shoes to match the predominating color. Bouquets may be yellow chrysanthemums or asters. With this, the bride should wear egg shell or creamy velvet.

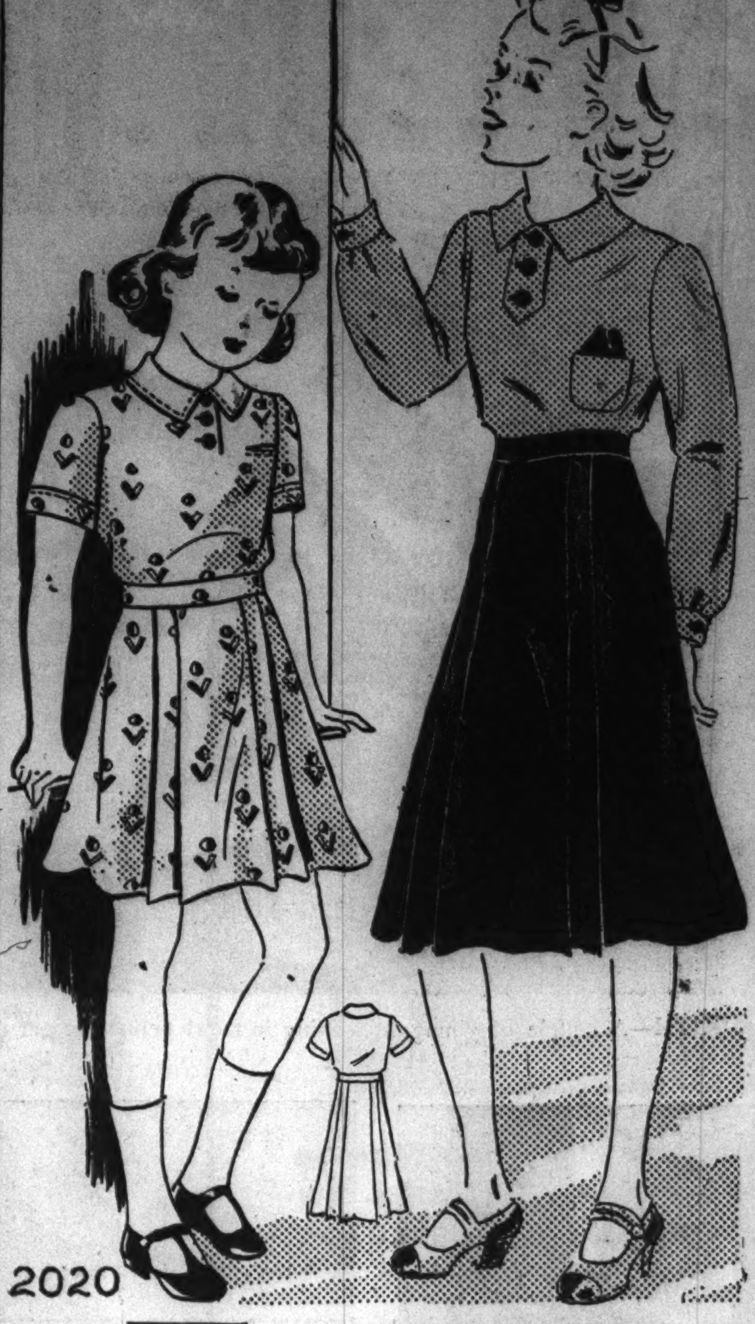
• • •

WE consider it advisable to keep the color scheme of the wedding party as uniform as possible. It is smarter than trying to introduce too many colors. With this in mind, I suggest the bride wear ivory satin and the bridesmaids tobacco brown chiffon accented with wide gold kid belts, gold kid slippers, and bouquets of yellow and brown chrysanthemums. This same idea can be worked out with dark leafy green.

Amber and royal blue form an interesting color combination, as do amethyst with canary or butter yellow.

Finally, there is the suggestion of the cream or ivory wedding, the bride to wear deep ivory and carry a white bouquet. The bridesmaids would wear a creamy beige which would be a little deeper in color than the bride's costume, these dresses to be accented with some bright bit of color, such as sashes and hat streamers of aquamarine, Kelly green, or salmon pink, the bouquet to carry out the same colors if possible.

Clotilde Children's Fashions



BUSINESS girls and co-eds are going in for the two piece sports ensemble in a big way. It is only natural, therefore, that younger girls of school age will find the blouse and skirt outfit indispensable for the fall and winter wardrobes. Patterned after the modes being worn by their adult sisters, is this ensemble for girls from 6 to 14.

The skirt fits snugly around the waist and has plaits in both front and back. It may be made of woolen in a different color from that of the blouse, it may be of the same shade, or it may be made of silk.

As to the blouses, variety reigns. Soft woolens in gay shades are, of course, topnotch this season. Extra toppers in broadcloth, gingham and silk are valuable additions to this wardrobe-in-itself. The blouse has a tailored shirtwaist collar, a buttoned closing and a pocket to grace the bodice. The sleeves may be either long or short.

Plaids are great favorites this season, and a grand idea would be to combine a plaid skirt with a woolen blouse in a shade to harmonize. If you like, fashion the entire outfit of one color silk or a dapper print. Another scheme is to use velveteen for the entire ensemble and to trim it with lingerie cuffs and collar.

Style No. 2020 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1¼ yards of 39 inch material for the blouse, with 1⅛ yards of 39 inch fabric for the skirt.

Garden Club of White Mts. Holds Meeting

WHITE MOUNTAINS, N. H.

Mrs. J. G. M. Glessner and Miss Emily Glessner attended on Tuesday the autumn meeting of the White Mountain Garden club at the home of its president, Mrs. John W. Guider of Washington, at Arden, Littleton, where there was a prefatory buffet luncheon. Mrs. Glessner is having splendid luck with her new experimental rose garden, and expects to develop a fine collection of hardy roses for this northern climate. A meeting of the Littleton hospital board, of which she is a member, recently was held at the Ledges, her Littleton home.

Mrs. A. Von Glahn and Mrs. Lean Henckhaus, Chicago, are spending a few days at the Mount Washington, Bretton Woods.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Dawson joined the Chicago colony at the Mountain View, Whitefield, on Monday. Others there are Mrs. Howell B. Erminger and Miss Bertha Erminger, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Miller, Miss Helen Wadsworth, Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Adams Lynde, Winnetka.

MRS. ROBERT MacDOUGAL, Chicago, who, with Mr. MacDougal, is at Peckett's on Sugar Hill for the autumn, was joined there by Mrs. J. P. Guyol, Concord, N. H., with whom she motored on Saturday to spend the week-end at Crawford Notch.

Mrs. Bessie Hudson Greene, Chicago, will conclude a summer's sojourn at Turner's Tavern, Bethlehem, this week.

W. B. Hough, Chicago, is at the Sunset Hill house, Sugar Hill, for autumn. Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Harrington, Chicago, are at MacKenzie's, Franconia.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Pellet, River Forest, are at the Mountain View house, Whitefield, for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Y. Ball and Miss Adelaide Ball, Winnetka, have arrived at Peckett's on Sugar Hill

Mrs. Frederick O'Brien and son of Chicago are prolonging their stay at Sunset Hill house, Sugar Hill.

• • •

MISS SALLY ANNA THOMAS, who visited her grandmother, Mrs. Alfred Dennis of Brooklyn, at her summer home on Sugar Hill for some weeks, has concluded her visit and returns this week to Chicago.

Mrs. Ernest Poole, wife of the novelist, who is at work on a new book, has gone to visit her mother, Mrs. John R. Winterbotham, at Chicago. Lady Lindsay, wife of the British ambassador, concluded her sojourn at Mrs. Winterbotham's cottage, Sugar Hill, last Wednesday, returning to Washington. The Poole family usually spends some time annually in Chicago.

William C. Madlener, with Dr. N. Reese, Chicago, arrived Monday at the Mount Washington, Bretton Woods.

Madonna Figurines Are Popular for Room Decoration

EXQUISITE, imported figurines of the madonna are now popular as decorative accessories for the living room. They come in a wide variety of sizes, colors, and styles. From Italy are the vividly toned porcelains in deep blues, reds, and greens, designed by Lenci. From Germany and Austria are the simpler, more naïve figures of terra cotta and crackled pottery. There are also some excellent bits of sculpture in wood, done by foreign artists.

The madonna and the madonna and child appear in all these wares.

HONESTLY, IT'S LIKE GETTING A NEW WASHING MACHINE FREE!
BETTY FINDS A WAY TO GET NEW-WASHER RESULTS IN HER OUT-OF-DATE MACHINE
THIS OLD WASHER MAKES ME FURIOUS! IT SIMPLY WON'T GET CLOTHES WHITE ANY MORE!
BUT LOOK-- I'VE FOUND A MARVELOUS NEW SOAP CALLED OXYDOL THAT WORKS LIKE MAGIC IN OLD WASHING MACHINES LIKE OURS!
BUT I'M USING A GRANULATED SOAP ALREADY! IT'S HARD ON COLORS BUT WITH MY OLD MACHINE I'VE GOT TO USE A STRONGER SOAP.
OH, THIS IS NEW, DARLING! IT'LL WASH 4 TO 5 SHADES WHITER THAN YOUR OLD SOAP AND IT'S SAFE AS CAN BE FOR COLORS. PROCTER AND GAMBLE MAKE IT!
...AND YOU SAY IT ACTUALLY MAKES WHITE CLOTHES COME 4 TO 5 SHADES WHITER?
THAT'S RIGHT! IT SOAKS OUT DIRT WHILE THE WASHER IS RUNNING. SO YOU GET DOUBLE ACTION WASH!
A LITTLE WHILE LATER
I CAN HARDLY BELIEVE MY EYES! CLOTHES SO WHITE THEY FAIRLY SPARKLE--AND IN JUST NO TIME AT ALL!
...AND DON'T WORRY ABOUT COLORS, EITHER --I'VE WASHED THIS PRINT DRESS SCORES OF TIMES AND SEE HOW BRIGHT AND FRESH IT IS!
LATER
SAY, HONEY, THESE SHIRTS ARE WHITE AS SNOW THIS TIME. THOUGHT YOU SAID WE NEEDED A NEW WASHER!
WE DID--UNTIL I DISCOVERED OXYDOL! BUT NOW WE CAN SAVE THE MONEY FOR THAT NEW CAR WE'VE BOTH BEEN WANTING!
OXYDOL
the NEW "NO-SCRUB—NO-BOIL" LAUNDRY SOAP THAT'S REALLY SAFE

NOW—CLOTHES 4 TO 5 SHADES WHITER

Whether Washer is Old or New

Trade Mark Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

● Now expect new things! See white clothes come 4 to 5 shades whiter in old machines or new! See washing time cut 25% to 40% in either machine or tub! For OXYDOL works on an utterly new principle.

Developed by the makers of gentle Ivory soap, OXYDOL cost over $1,000,000 to perfect. It is the result of a patented process to make soap far faster acting—an amazing new formula that makes mild, gentle soap 2 to 3 times whiter washing, yet "keeps it safe."

In tub washing, OXYDOL ends the back-breaking rubbing . . . soaks out dirt in 15 minutes. Even "grimiest" spots come clean with a quick rub between the fingers. Yet OXYDOL is safe for all washable colors. Even sheer cotton prints washed 100 consecutive times in OXYDOL suds, showed no perceptible sign of fading.

Accept FREE Trial

We give you the first package of OXYDOL free, to prove that these things are true. Simply send your name and address to OXYDOL, Dept. ST-2, Box 1153, Chicago, Illinois, and we'll see that you get a full-size package without cost. A penny postcard will do. Send postcard today. Or get OXYDOL from your own dealer! Procter & Gamble.

Thank Goodness

I MADE THAT "ARMHOLE ODOR" TEST IN TIME . . .

If you use a deodorant that does not stop perspiration, moisture is bound to collect on the armhole of your dress . . . and the warmth of your body brings out a stale "armhole odor" . . .

HOW can a man be romantically drawn to a girl who neglects that little hollow under her arm? You may say, "But I deodorize . . ." That is just why you especially should make the "armhole odor" test. When you take off your dress tonight, smell the fabric under the arm. You'll be shocked at that stale "armhole odor"! But THAT IS THE WAY YOU SMELL TO OTHERS.

Deodorants that do not check perspiration cannot give complete protection . . . Preparations that deodorize only are not enough! Only Liquid Odorono's scientific double action can keep your underarm both sweet and dry. Odorono harmlessly diverts the perspiration of that little underarm area to other body surfaces.

No underarm grease—no stains—no telltale odor . . . Protect your sweetness. Use Odorono regularly. In two strengths, Regular and Instant, at all toilet-goods counters.

Autumn Lures Large Crowd to Ephraim

EPHRAIM, WIS.

Although the vacation season is gradually growing to a close in Ehpraim, there have been a few recent additions to the colonists who will spend the fall weeks here. Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Lindsay Beaton arrived here last week after their marriage in Evanston, to occupy the summer home owned by the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lord, during their honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger S. Vail of Highland Park came last week-end to enjoy the brisk fall weather. Earlier in the week the former's mother, Mrs. H. S. Vail, and the Malcolm D. Vail family returned to their suburban homes. Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Irvin of Western Springs are guests this week with their daughter, Mrs. William J. Wilson. The Wilsons will remain in their Ephraim home until about Oct. 1.

Miss Janet Matter left the early part of the week to join her mother, Mrs. John Matter, in Winnetka, before returning to Wellesley for her junior year. Her brother Jack also went down to Winnetka this week. He will leave soon for the Lawrenceville school in New Jersey.

• • •

THE quaint little Episcopal church in Fish Creek was chosen by Miss Martha Maltman of New York City as the setting for her marriage on Friday of last week to Cyrus Perry of New York. Only immediate relatives and neighbors along cottage row attended the ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Maltman of Chicago, who have been cottage row summer residents in Fish Creek for many years. Following the wedding they returned to Chicago with James Maltman Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Allan Maltman, and Miss Elizabeth Maltman. Mr. and Mrs. Perry remained at Fish Creek for their honeymoon. They will return to New York the latter part of the month, where Mr. Perry is an assistant corporation counsel with the New York City law department.

Mrs. J. Chalkley Hambleton of Chicago and her daughters, Miss Jessica and Miss Elizabeth, who were guests at the wedding, expect to spend next September at their home here. Mrs. C. Frederick Childs of Lake Forest spent several days last week with her sisters, Mrs. Frederick Aldrich and Miss Madeline Newell, who are returning home this week-end after an entire season at the Thorp hotel. Mr. and Mrs. James Weber Linn will also go back to Chicago this week-end when the Thorp closes another season. Their daughter, Mrs. James W. Rogers, with her daughter, Mary Jane, and her son, Bernard III., will remain in one of the hotel cottages until Oct. 3.

• • •

LATE season guests at the Thorp include Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Beattie of Northwestern university, Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Welles, and Mrs. Franklin M. Callahan and her daughter, Ann, all of Evanston.

Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Apfelbach of Chicago have been visiting the George Apfelbachs of Chicago, who have a home at Fish Creek. Their friends, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas French, and their son, Hans, returned home this week-end after several weeks here.

Paris Frock for Autumn Combines Colors Artfully

No. 5206—The Paris pattern for this frock is available in sizes 14 and 16, and in 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement.

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—This Paris pattern, No. 5206, gives you a frock that will be chic all fall and winter. The dress has the best and newest points of the autumn fashions.

The original Paris model from which this is adapted combined black broadcloth with black silk crêpe, with a wide corselet girdle and hanky scarf of deep green violet. Black with green velvet is an outstanding fashionable color scheme.

For those of you who like to wear color rather than black this model may be made of dark red material with green, or of very deep blue with dark red, or rust girdle and scarf.

If you're inclined to be heavy around the waistline, the set-in girdle should be in the color of the dress, and not contrasting. The shape of the girdle will make you look slender if the color does not contrast.

This Week In the Garden

Monday, Sept. 20.

Changes planned in the hardy borders during the summer should be carried out soon. The early transplanted things will have ample time to become established before severe weather arrives. Get the orders in immediately to avoid delays. It is time to transplant peonies; give them plenty of space and good, rich soil; iris may yet be divided and transplanted. Plant madonna lilies, narcissi, and crocus as soon as they are obtainable. Buy tulips as soon as possible and plant a few of the newer varieties. Tulips are excellent for the rockery. Take up a plant of parsley and place in a pot of good soil. It will furnish material all winter if kept well watered and in a sunny window.

Tuesday, Sept. 21.

Trees can be transplanted as soon as the leaves fall and the work may continue until severe frost. Use the best soil around the plant for the young roots demand a good medium in which to start. Dig the holes large enough to easily accommodate the roots and tamp the soil firmly around the roots. Water well after planting. Be sure to stake newly planted trees two inches or more in diameter to prevent swaying by the wind before they are well established. Do not use too many trees in restricted areas or small yards.

Wednesday, Sept. 22.

Do not transplant late autumn flowering perennials, such as the hardy chrysanthemums. Get in plenty of mulching material. Corn stalks make good mulching material for pansies. A thin layer of straw may be used over the stalks, but never make the covering too heavy. Lay in plenty of potting soil. If stone chips are used as a top dressing for plants in the rock garden they will prevent the washing away of the soil and help to prevent heaving in springtime with the subsequent injury to the roots. Protect late blooming perennials from slight frost with a covering of cheesecloth placed on a frame. Many choice flowers may be had for a long period if this method is used.

Thursday, Sept. 23.

Dig gladioli when the tips of the leaves turn brown or burn. Use a spading fork and place the bulbs in the sun for a few hours to dry. Shake off the rough particles of soil and place the bulbs in an open box, after which they may stand all winter in a frostproof room without injury. If there is any indication of thrips place naphtha flakes with the bulbs as a control. The best method of storing apples, pears, and other similar fruits is to wrap each fruit in tissue paper and place in a box in a dry, cool cellar. Discard all bruised fruits to prevent rot. Seed may be saved from various plants but fresh seed is usually best. Some hybrids may not come true from seeds.

Friday, Sept. 24.

The lawn may be given an application of commercial plant food at this time. Use a 4-12-4 mixture and apply at the rate of four pounds to each 100 square feet. Chip up all bare spots, topdress with rich soil, and sow high grade lawn seed. Do not cut grass too short at this time, leave it at least 1½ inches long [two inches will be better] and it will be in fine condition for winter. It is a good time to work some food into the soil where bulbs are to grow. If the soil is heavy spade in some peatmoss or thoroughly decayed manure, but do not allow bulbs to come into direct contact with the material for it might induce disease. Grow a number of bulbs for they are among the showiest and easiest of all plants to grow. Narcissi, tulips, and hyacinths for forcing in pots should be planted now or as soon as they can be obtained. After potting, water well, cover the soil with a quarter inch of sand and cover with eight inches of soil. Mulch the surface before freezing weather and bring in the pots as wanted.

Saturday, Sept. 25.

Plan to sow some of the hardy annuals this fall for early and strong plants next spring. The calendula, bachelor's button, nigella annual poppy, petunia, and others may be grown in this way. Hard wood cuttings may be made of the ripened wood of many kinds of shrubs and fruits, such as the goldenbell, viburnum, weigela, bush honeysuckle, and others. They will root easily in the coldframe. Cover the frame with sash to avoid excessive evaporation and place in a shady spot.

Prepared in coöperation with the Garfield park conservatory.

England Still Debating Issue of Tinted Nails

IN ENGLAND—as once in America—the tinted fingernail controversy is raging. To tint, or not to tint, is the question. The women who have so far shown a tendency to copy their American sisters and lacker their nails say "Yes." Some men say "No."

Proponents of tinted nails point out, of course, that the practice was followed as long as 3,000 years ago by Chinese mandarins, who gilded their nails to show their exalted station in life. Indian potentates painted the nails of their elephants and of their favorite wives.

Cleopatra and the ladies of Egypt are said to have stained their toenails, and although the occupants of East Indian seraglios may not actually have applied paint to their toes, they certainly indulged in pedicures and used perfumed oils on their feet.

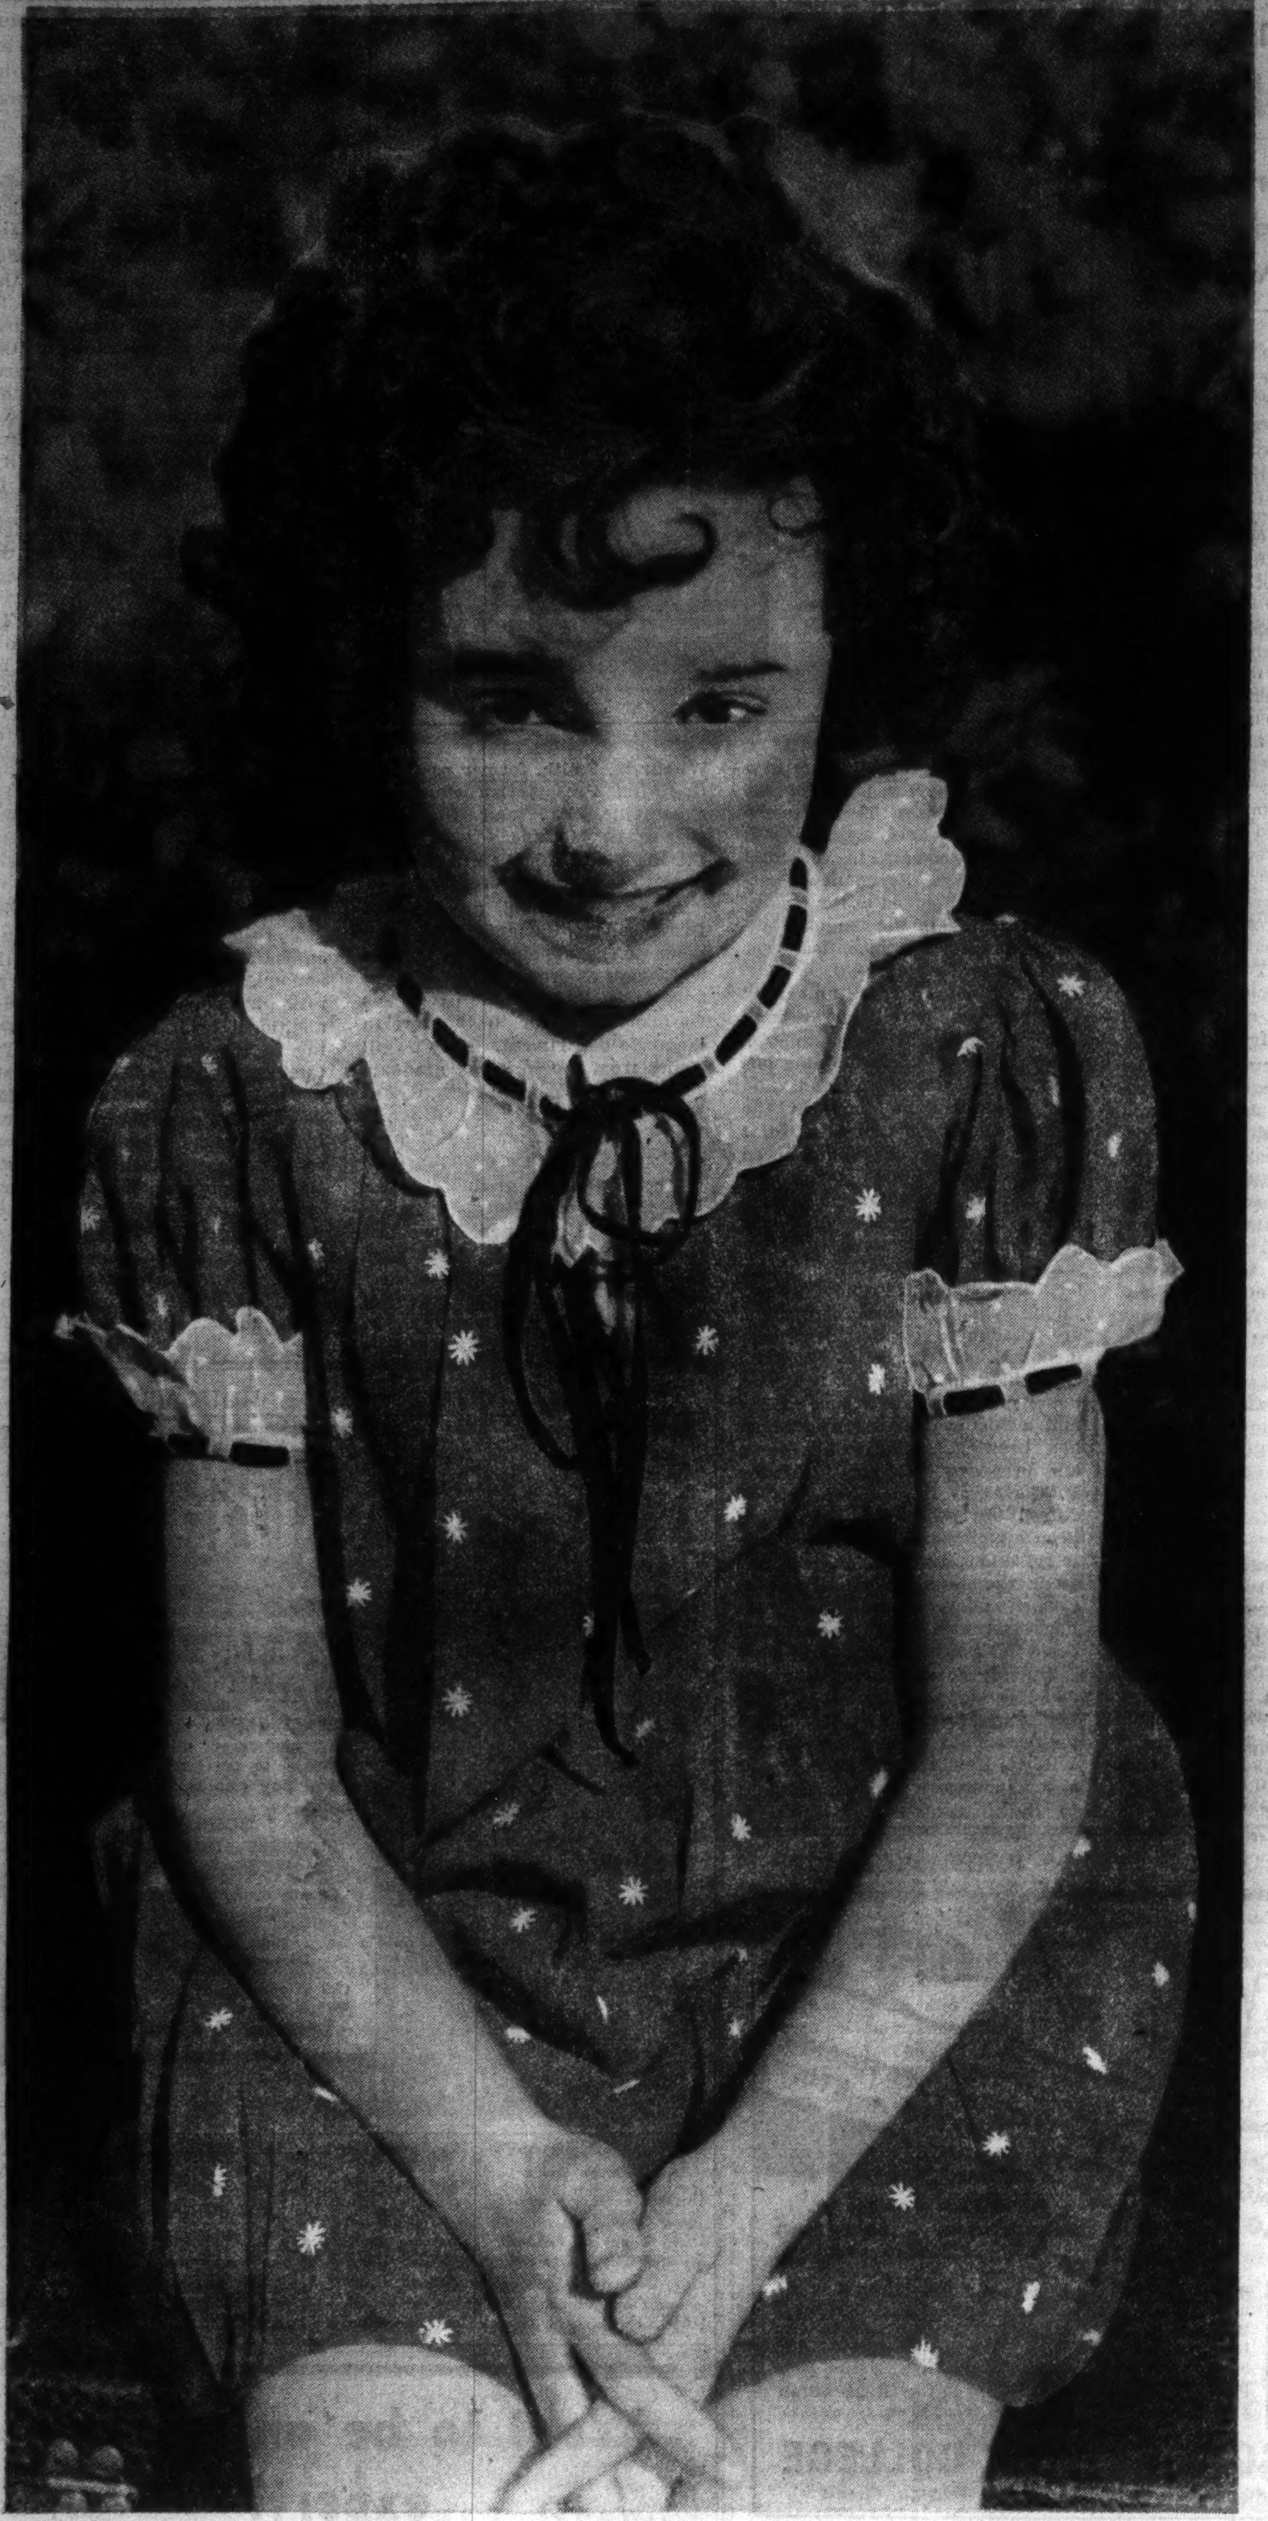
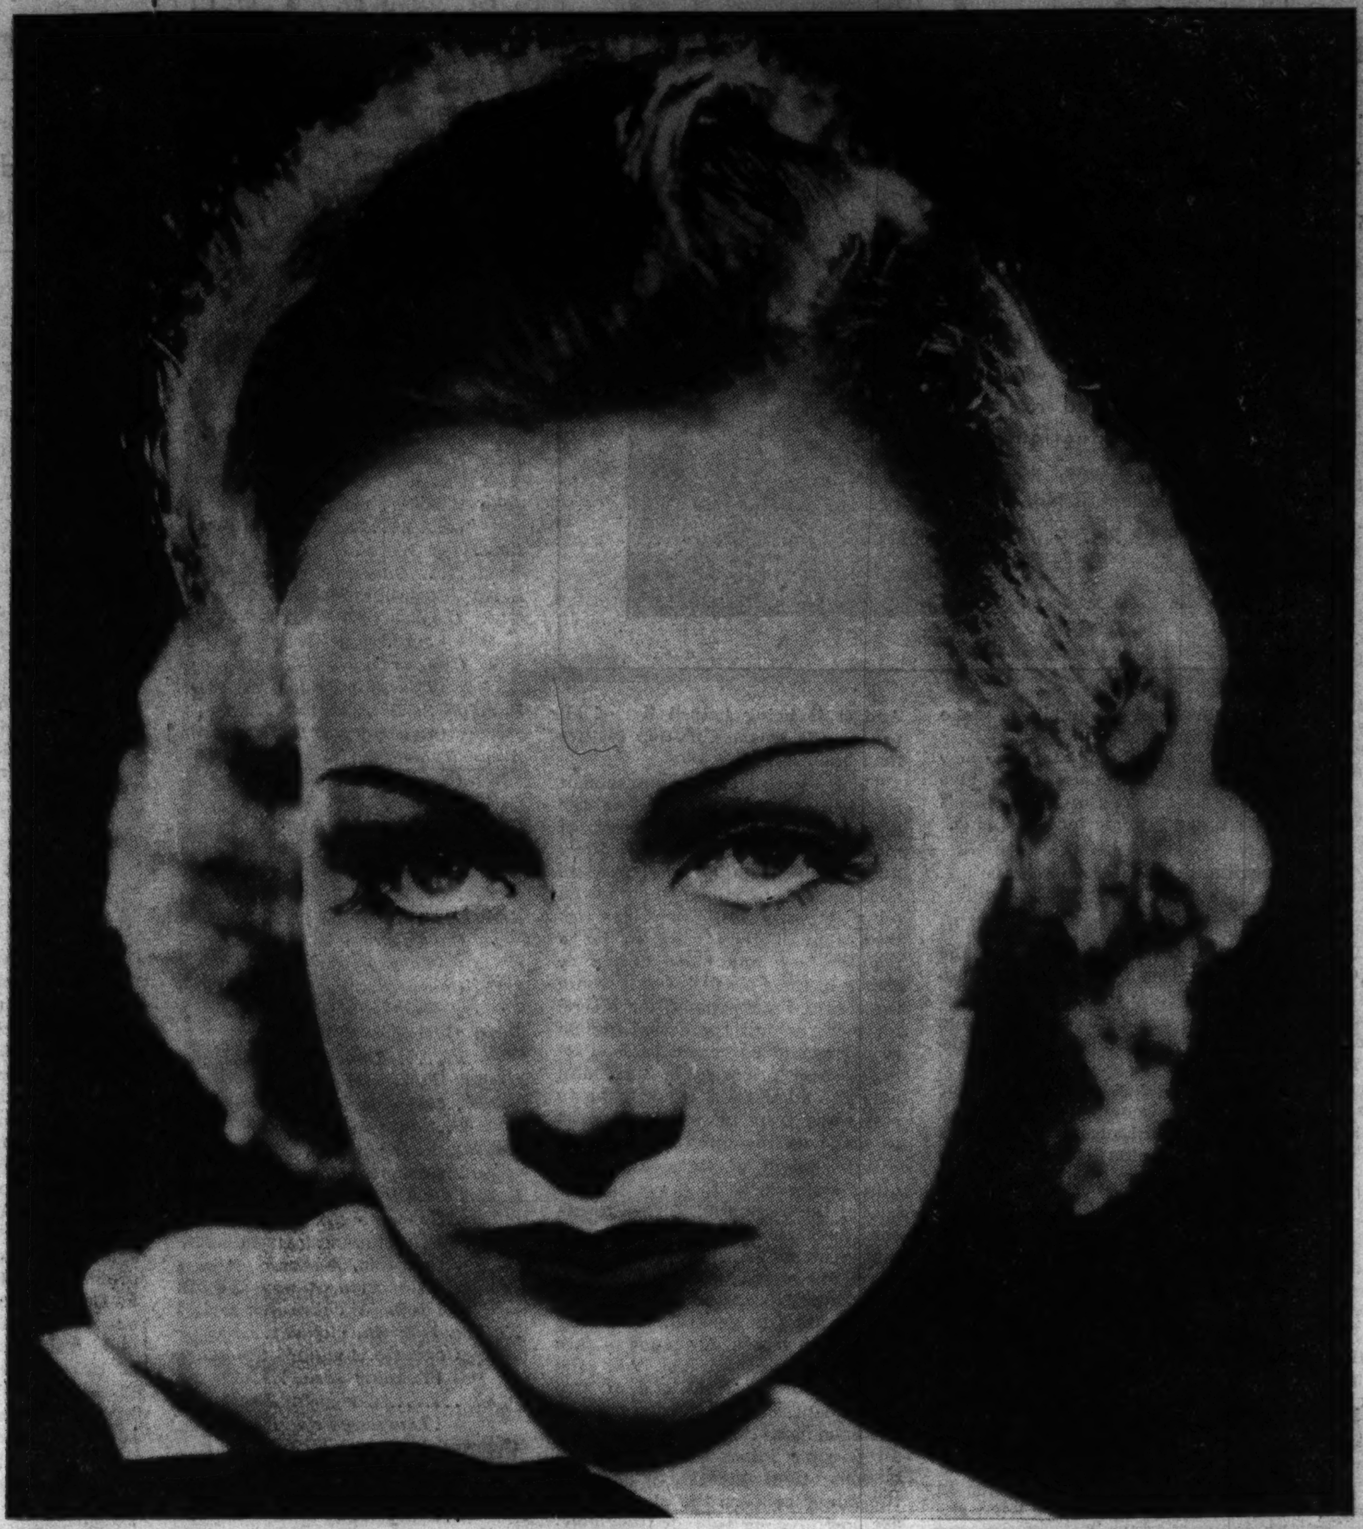
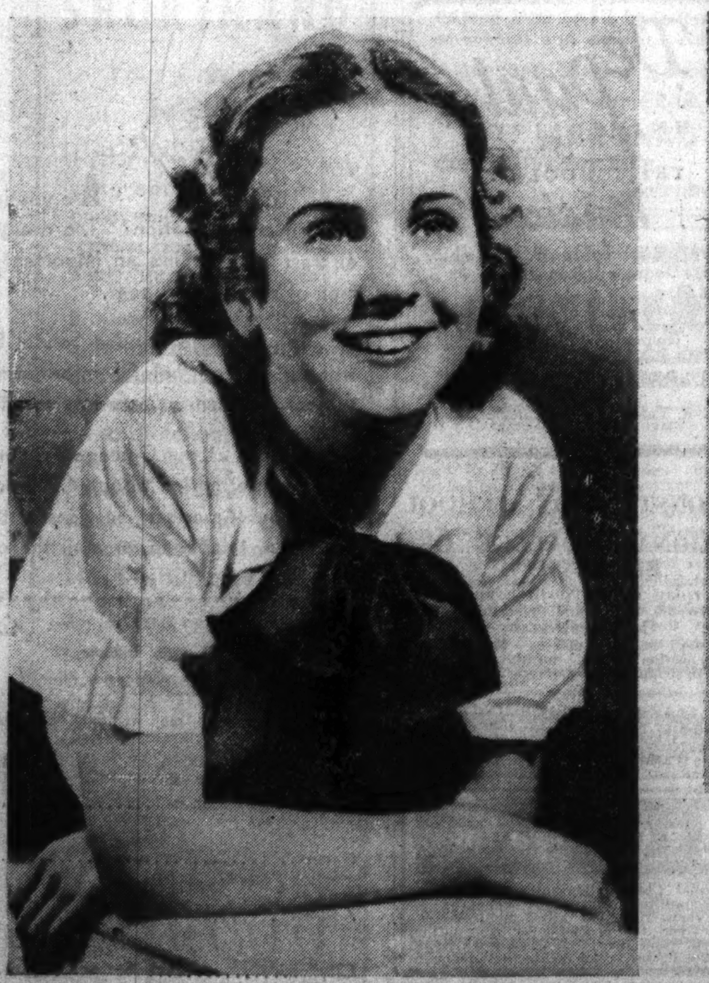
SEPTEMBER 19, 1937



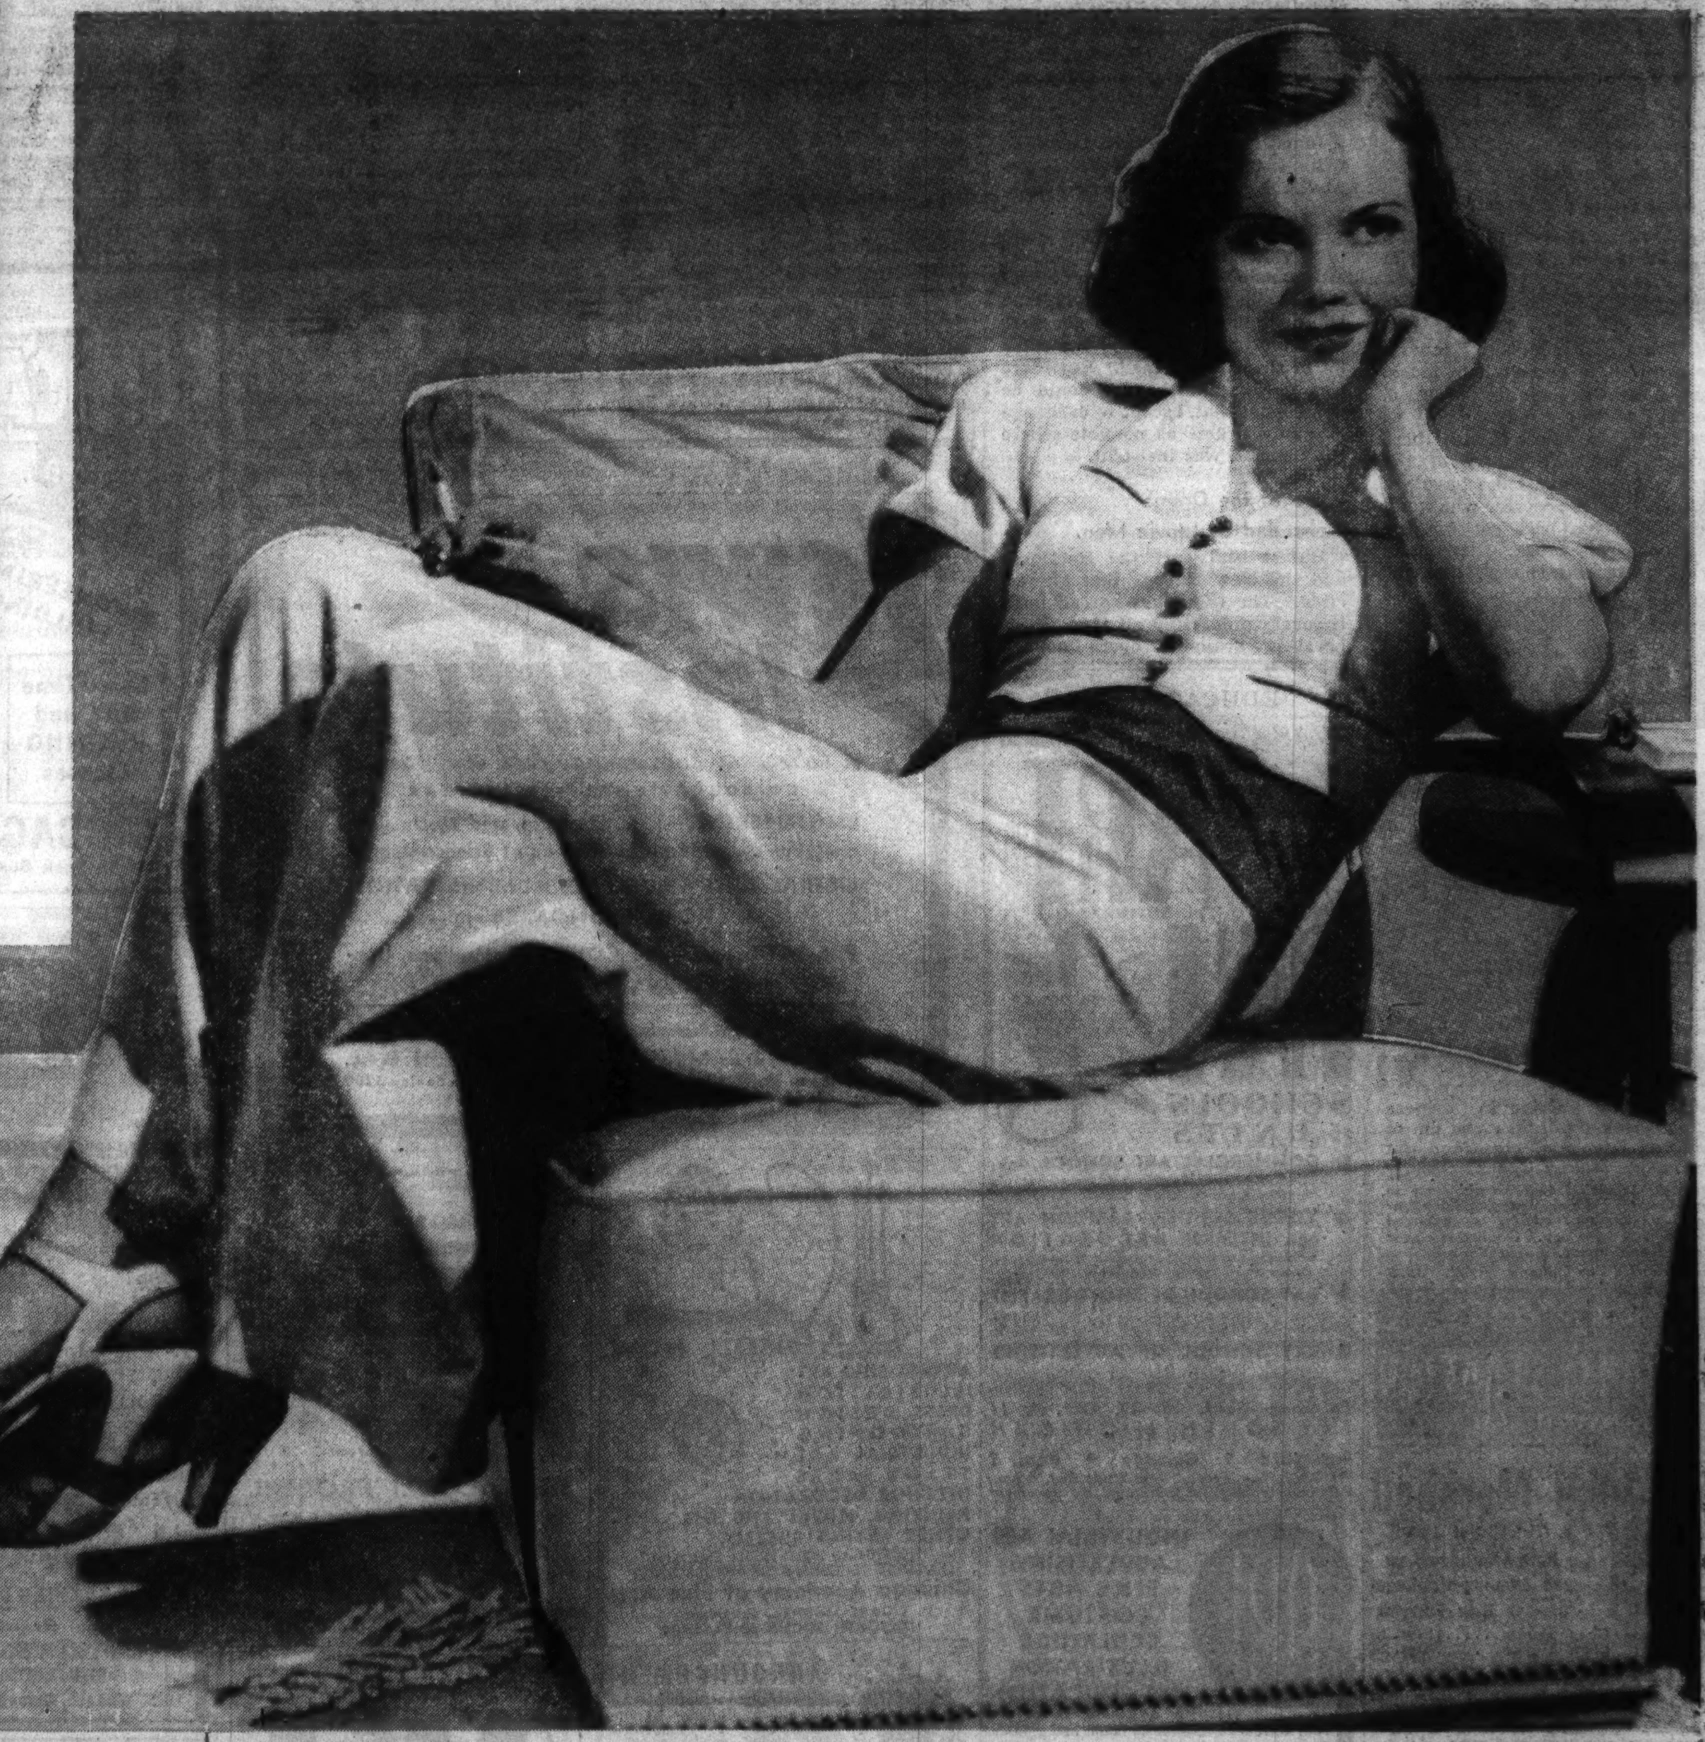


Left: This is Sigrid Gurie. She is a newcomer to our screens and we will watch her with interest in "The Adventures of Marco Polo," in which she plays the leading feminine role opposite Gary Cooper.

Above: Remember that cuddly little Cora Sue Collins, whom you saw in "Evelyn Prentice" with Myrna Loy and William Powell; in "The Dark Angel" with Fredric March and Merle Oberon, and in "The Magnificent Obsession" with Robert Taylor? Well—here's Cora Sue not exactly as a grownup lady—but heading that way.



Right: That youthful song bird, Deanna Durbin, is acting and lilting her way through the Palace's current feature, "100 Men and a Girl." Leopold Stokowski's orchestra is also much in evidence.



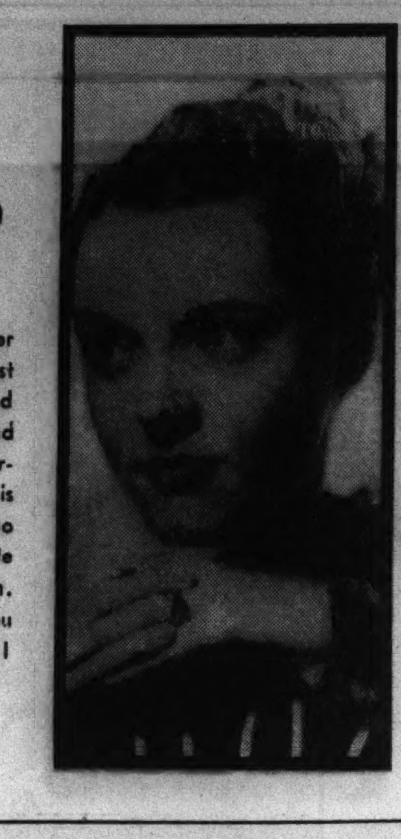
Jane Wyman is having her first featured role in "Mr. Dodd Takes the Air." She is seen with Kenny Baker of radio fame, who is also making his first noticeable screen bow in the film. Here's wishing the co-climbers success!

Henry Hull Leaps to Defense of His Profession

Actor Gives His Point of View in Story

Audiences and Critics Come In for Their Share of Criticism.

HAS A FEATURED ROLE



The Chicago theater is featuring "Lost Horizon," which had such a successful road show run at the Erlanger. Before you is Jane Wyman, who has a featured role in the production. Ronald Colman, you will recollect, is No. 1 male player.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—Last week the editor of a magazine called Cue invited Henry Hull to write a piece about audiences from the viewpoint of the actor. Henry did, and included a few carefully chosen words about critics, producers, and playgoers in general.

It isn't often that the player, being given opportunity to defend or explain, extol or analyze his profession, has anything to say. Becoming self-conscious, he sputters feebly for a few paragraphs and weakly retires. But not Mr. Hull. Being the son of a newspaper editor, and having been brought up in the atmosphere of both the theater and journalism, Henry knows what to do with a typewriter and a yawning column.

"It has been suggested that I vent a little spleen on the prevalence of the bad manners of 'first-nighters,'" writes Actor Hull. "Great day in the morning, did you ever participate in any mixed gathering, be the social barriers up or down, where there wasn't some underbred, overfed, or slightly soured guy whose sole purpose in being born wasn't simply to annoy his mother and whose prenatal mission had been successfully carried out through life? Bad manners are as universal as rose bugs and there is no spray short of chlorine that is an effective germicide."

Shortly thereafter Mr. Hull gets around to the actor. "An actor is—must be—a case of arrested development," says he. "No sane adult-minded man or woman with a sense of true self-appreciation would learn a lot of words some one else had written and try to make them sound like his own. I know politicians do it but they aren't quite human either. No well balanced grownup, unless he's slightly pickled, or a small town cutup, likes to 'dress up' in papa's hat and spats and tail coat, paint his face a sallow salmon color and cavort, disport or bestrew himself in front of an audience, take himself seriously and discuss his inner mature forces or unbroken line of communion. I venture to say this with all due respect for, and awe of, Mr. Stanislavsky."

Hull Feels the Critics Are His Natural Enemies.

By the time he gets to the critics Mr. Hull is riding free, his head in the air, and his nostrils spread.

"The critic, so the actor feels, is his natural enemy, like cat and dog, cobra and mongoose," reports the actor. "He doesn't help much. They're a strange and fearful breed, the critics. One can be as cozy as a termite in a pine log with these Olympian oracular gentry of the press when off duty, but I have yet to find a theater reporter who won't spreadeagle his best pal for the sake of a wise-crack. Personally speaking, having shared, like the just and unjust alike, in their rain of praise and blame, caps in the air and barbed sarcasm, I don't much care any more, provided the management has enough reserve bank roll to keep the play running long enough for the public to make up its own mind."

All of which should start the new season off quite smartly and give the drama sections of the women's clubs a dandy topic for discussion.

Legitimate Theater Due for Good Season in Provinces.

This, say the wiser showmen, is going to be the best season the legitimate theater has enjoyed outside New York the last ten years. And there are signs and portents that serve to confirm their predictions.

For example, when the seats for Helen Hayes' engagement in Hartford, Conn., in Laurence Housman's "Victoria Regina" were put on sale ten days ago they were all sold within five hours. And there were thirty-three hundred of them to start with.

It was expected that the beginning of Miss Hayes' tour in the most popular play she has had in many seasons would cause considerable excitement, but the Hartford crush surprised even Gilbert Miller, who is directing the tour. It was, he felt, a situation that called for action. Consequently he suggested a conference.

Miss Hayes, being a partner in the enterprise, was asked what she thought about it. According to the bookings she was to play but one night in Hartford and then move on to New Haven for two. New Haven was also sold out. Therefore the only chance of giving an extra performance in Hartford would be to start the season a day earlier than planned. Would Miss Hayes be willing to do that? Miss Hayes would.

As a result another 3,300 seats were sold and a new opening night scheduled for "Victoria Regina." This made second-nighters of all those expectant first-nighters who had been lucky enough to get seats for the original date, and it made a lot of them pretty mad. But there was nothing much that could be done about that, except to exchange as many tickets as possible where the demand was insistent.

Value of the Drama Conceded by Movie Men.

But it isn't only the Hartfords and the New Havens that are excited. The thing has spread until it covers practically all those cities boasting available opera houses. And it is being helped by, of all people, the smarter motion picture men themselves.

These short-sighted amusement merchants have been treating the legitimate theater as a sort of menace the last ten years. They have gobbled up all the theaters and refused to sublet them, even for a single night. Their idea has been that if they were to let a popular flesh and blood drama be shown in their town, not only would the contrast and competition be bad for pictures, but the actual loss in money would be considerable. Paying theater prices for a successful play the home folks would have to stay away from pictures for weeks to make up the difference.

But enough of them have had other experiences to prove the fallacy of this reasoning. Those towns that have entertained touring dramatic companies the last few years have discovered that every good play shown has stimulated interest in playgoing in general, which has helped the screen. A change of fare has heightened interest. And the profit resulting from one or two performances of the touring troupes has been more than enough to cover all possible losses suffered by the cinema. Consequently, in many of the minor centers, the picture men are now inviting bids for their playhouses for occasional visits from the traveling shows.

Even more substantial proof of the new interest is found in the sale of subscription seats in the larger centers. The New York Theater Guild, working coöperatively with the American Theater society, reports a doubling of the number of subscribers in Boston, an addition of five thousand new subscribers in Chicago, a gain of fifteen hundred in Washington, and twelve hundred in Pittsburgh.

New York, which dropped from a peak list of 30,000 Guild subscribers in 1927 to less than 20,000 a year ago, has again passed the 20,000 mark and will likely have 25,000 signed by the time the Guild's first play of the season is produced.

Comic Revival

BILLY WATSON, veteran of the burlesque show circuits, has revived his classic frolic, "The Beef Trust," and is now appearing at the Rialto theater. He specializes in chorus girls not over 21 years of age and under 250 pounds in weight. He is still active as a comedian. The principals in his troupe are Gertie Reade, Evelyn Brooks, John Barry, Milton Blakely, and Jack Ryan.

Colleges Due to Open with Big Enrollment

Campus Improvements Are Made and Faculties Have Had Additions.

By the Rev. John Evans.

WITH another educational year beginning tomorrow in the majority of schools and colleges, students will return to find campus improvements in some places, important additions to the faculty at others and everywhere an enrollment up to the capacity of the institution.

At the University of Notre Dame, Zahm hall, the new $300,000 residence hall, was completed just in time and with its opening the number of buildings on the campus is increased to fourteen. Three internationally famous mathematicians have been added to the faculty—Canon Georges LeMaitre from the University of Louvain, Dr. Kurt Godel from the University of Vienna and Prof. Emil Artin from the University of Hamburg.

To the college of arts and letters will come Matthew A. Fitzsimons from Oxford, and Switzerland will be represented by Dr. Waldemar Gurien of Lucerne. Of the 3,000 incoming students, nine hundred will matriculate as freshmen.

Lake Forest college starts the 81st year of its history as a coeducational liberal arts college and Herbert McComb Moore will deliver his presidential address on Thursday at the first sudent weekly assembly. Enrollment here shows considerable increase over last year with about 100 in the freshmen class. Among the nine new appointments to the faculty are John P. Kirby of Yale, assistant professor of English; Miss Louise F. Dodge of the University of Illinois, instructor in modern languages and Latin; George Adams of Harvard, associate professor of history, and W. Willis Turner of Brown university, assistant professor in economics.

During the past summer the Reid Memorial library stack room has been remodeled to provide for 60,000 volumes and two new dwelling houses for members of the faculty have been erected.

A capacity enrollment of 580 cadets will attend Culver Military academy this year. Included in the group will be about 40 post graduate and junior college students, 14 being members of the 1937 graduating class. Of the 314 cadets in the infantry battalion, 130 are new cadets; the cavalry troop of 136 members will have 39 new members, and the field artillery will have 49 newcomers in its total strength of 130. Seven new members have been added to the faculty and returning to the language department after his sabbatical year will be Merle S. Myers.

Officials of Wayne university anticipate an enrollment around 11,000. In view of this number a new wing to the main building has been added with PWA funds and four additional buildings in the vicinity have been rented. G. Flint Purdy, librarian, has announced that the United States government has recognized Wayne university library as qualified depository for government publications.

Appointments to three major faculty positions at Frances Shimer junior college, Mount Carroll, Ill., are announced by President Raymond B. Culver. Miss Beatrice Siedschlag of Randolph, Wis., an honor graduate of Lawrence college and a doctorate from Bryn Mawr has been named assistant dean and professor of history. Warren P. Cortelyou from the faculty of Alfred university, New York, has been appointed professor of chemistry, and Miss Cecilia M. Rudin from the English department of Cornell college, Mount Vernon, Ia., has been appointed to a similar position at Frances Shimer.

Student enrollment at the day and evening schools of the Moody Bible institute has exceeded all previous figures, according to Dr. Will H. Houghton, president, who also announces two new members to the institute's staf, the Rev. Wilbur M. Smith, former pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Coatesville, Pa., and the Rev. George S. McCune for 30 years president of Union Christian college, Pyeng Yang, Korea.

Thomas W. Nadal, president of Drury college, Springfield, Mo., announces the appointments of Don O. Cowgill as professor of sociology and Miss Paulene Hathaway as German instructor in the foreign language department. Mr. Cowgill comes from the sociology graduate department of the University of Pennsylvania and he will assist Prof. L. E. Meador, who is head of the social science department.

Miss Hathaway, graduate of the University of Georgia, taught French and German in Bessie Taft college, Forsyth, Ga., and then studied at the University of Freiburg as exchange student for 1934-'35, from her alma mater.

Northern Illinois State Teachers college, De Kalb, opens all classes tomorrow, which is a week later than usual. Norma Pearson, registrar, writes, "We have many students in the Chicago area and as there has been some confusion in regard to dates we should appreciate publication of this date."

• • •

A FEATURE of the celebration of Oberlin college, Ohio, next month of the centennial of co-education will be the dedication on the college campus of a memorial to the first four women admitted to a standard college course. In the fall of 1837 there were matriculated Caroline Mary Rudd of Huntington, Conn.; Mary Fletcher Kellogg of Jamestown, N. Y.; Elizabeth S. Prall of New York City, and Mary Hosford of Oberlin, O. Their names are recorded on a monolith bearing the inscription, "This Gateway Commemorates the Entrance of Women Into College Education."

The memorial, constructed of Indiana limestone, is a gateway to a modern outdoor theater erected between the Dudley Peter Allen memorial art building and the recently built auditorium. It is the gift of R. T. Miller Jr. of Chicago, an Oberlin graduate of the class of 1891, and designed by Chester B. Price of New York City.

• • •

DR. RAYMOND B. CULVER, president of Frances Shimer Junior college, Mount Carroll, Ill., announces that the Carnegie corporation has donated $1,500 to provide additional books for general reading in the Campbell library. The total enrollment at Shimer will be about 15 per cent higher than last year, according to figures published by the president's office, and among this number are about 60 girls from the Chicago area.

APPEARS IN "TOPPER"

Here's a late and, we thought, lovely photograph of Constance Bennett. Miss Bennett is currently appearing in "Topper" at the Roosevelt.

Geddes' Plans.

Norman Bel Geddes plans to stage Dawn Powell's play, "Red Dress." He is also working on a revue to be called "Sing Out The News."

Famous Names Will Mark the Coming Opera Season

Flagstad and Melchior Will Sing Together

Roberto Moranzoni and Henry Weber to Be The Chief Conductors.

By Cecil M. Smith.

WHEN the Chicago City Opera company opens its fall season at the Civic Opera house on Saturday evening, Oct. 30, it will be prepared to present to its public the most impressive roster of vocalists engaged for a Chicago opera season since the demise of the expensive Insull-directed Civic Opera company.

In the course of the seven week season some of the most celebrated operatic artists now active in America will appear. Kirsten Flagstad and Lauritz Melchior will join in "Tristan and Isolde," and both singers will portray other Wagnerian figures. Elisabeth Rethberg, Gertrud Wettergren, and Giovanni Martinelli will be heard together in the season's opening "Aïda," and separately in a number of other rôles.

Feodor Chaliapin will return to remind us of his past greatness in "Boris Godunoff." Lawrence Tibbett, Lily Pons, John Charles Thomas, Tito Schipa, Edith Mason, Lotte Lehmann, and a number of other established favorites will sing here again. Several interesting newcomers will make their debuts, among them Erna Sack, who sings higher than you think possible; Elen Dosia, Andre Burdino, and Eyvind Laholm.

Leo Blech Will Make Several Appearances.

Robert Moranzoni and Henry Weber are to be the chief conductors of the season. Leo Blech, veteran German conductor, famous for his interpretation of Italian operas, will make several appearances in the pit. Eugene Goossens, conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra, will conduct "Boris Godunoff," and Andre Kostelanetz of radio fame will direct at least one of Lily Pons' performances.

Such an impressive list of major participants is in itself a good augury for the popular and artistic success of the season. Certainly no performance in which Flagstad or Martinelli or Ezio Pinza sings, or which Roberto Moranzoni conducts, could be an utter artistic calamity.

Yet a mere list of artistic personnel is not a wholly satisfying affair. A great many good singers contributed to the 1936 season, and yet that season fell far short of success in many ways.

Why is nothing said at all in advance announcements of the 1937 season about improving the glaring deficiencies of operatic production which were so startlingly apparent in most of last season's performances?

What is to be done to improve the mise-en-scene and stage direction? What attention is being given to improving the lighting? Will the musical ensembles of orchestra, chorus, and principals be rehersed to a point at which, at least, they begin to understand each other's intentions?

Stage Performances Need Better Direction.

Quite without exception all of last season's performances cried aloud for the firm hand and live imagination of a first rate stage director. When presentable performances were given they were hand-me-downs of stage routine from standard répertoire productions of the old Civic Opera company, like "La Bohême," "Louise," and "La Traviata." In other instances even the old répertoire traditions seemed to have been forgotten, and uncouth performances like those of "Rigoletto," "Faust," "Lakme," and "Lohengrin" resulted.

The assertion is often made that opera is a dead art-form. When the standard operas come to be an increasingly moribund routine of annual repetition and the new or revived operas are staged so inadequately that their essential qualities cannot be understood, the assertion becomes absolute truth.

In contrast with so dull a mode of production, look at the scintillating success of the festival performances of Salzburg, where nothing is left to chance and where a year of study and planning precedes the production of each opera, whether it has been given at Salzburg before or not. Where is the creative imagination which, a decade and more ago, gave Chicago such challenging operatic staging—both in mounting and in stage direction—as the first versions of "Don Giovanni," "Der Rosenkavalier," "The Marriage of Figaro," "The Magic Flute," "The Juggler of Notre Dame," and Honegger's "Judith"?

Choisters, Supers Give Inadequate Performances.

In those days every individual on the stage, no matter how unimportant his place in the total scheme of things, had some definite contribution to make to the totality of the performance. Nowadays when I see the choristers and supers wandering listlessly about the stage like disgruntled hirelings, I could weep into my flowing beard for the bygone days when occurrences on the opera stage had zest and flair and point.

The stage of the Civic Opera house, it is said, has an electric mechanism unsurpassed by any in the world. In popular ballyhoo about the opera house much capital is made of the flexibility and variety permitted by the lighting system. Yet many of the productions on that very stage are evidently still lighted from archaic lighting charts dating well back into the days when the Civic Opera company was forced to content itself with the resources of the Auditorium theater. To cite only a single instance, the superb opening scene of "Otello," depicting a storm at sea, was a triumph of invisibility.

Public Representations Need Much Rehersal.

The Chicago City Opera company is gradually acquiring a national reputation as a musical institution with the unorthodox view that adequate public representations of operas can be given without much, or any, rehersal. While a skillful conductor often can conceal, most of the time the uncertainty existing in the spirits of performers who do not know each other's intentions, it is not fair to men of the caliber of Roberto Moranzoni and Henry Weber to expect them to undertake this concealment. It is the harsh truth that their reputations would be in better estate today if they had declined to associate themselves with unrehersed or underrehersed performances.

Before the season opens the opera company should make an unambiguous statement of its stand in these matters. Are the expensive stars of the lyric stage to be required once again to carry almost the full weight of every performance on their well-blistered shoulders? Or will they, for the first time in many seasons, profit from the coöperation of a well-directed ensemble, an intelligently lighted and dressed stage, and a surrounding musical performance rehersed down to the last detail?

EXPERT ON HARPSICHORD

Dorothy Lane is one of the four expert members of the Manuel and Williamson harpsichord ensemble, who are to open Northwestern university's "History and Enjoyment of Music" series at Thorne hall Sept. 22.

Play Contest

A COMPETITION for the best full length play of Jewish life, either a comedy or a drama, and written in either Yiddish or English, has been announced by the Artef Players and the Icor, a New York Jewish organization interested in cultural activity. The contest will close on Jan. 1 and prizes of $700 and $300 will be awarded to the manuscripts adjudged best and second best. The contest committee has its offices at at 247 West 48th street, New York City.

Ten Songs of ComposerNow on Recordings

Richard Crooks Renders Lovely Selections of Stephen Foster.

THE Victor company has honored a gifted American composer with the release of a Stephen Foster album in the Musical Masterpiece series. Ten of his songs have been selected. The recording is done by Richard Crooks, tenor, accompanied by piano, banjo or a choral group, according to the character and demands of each particular song.

Such Stephen Foster favorites as "Old Folks at Home," "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Oh Susanna," "Old Black Joe," and "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground" are here united within the covers of a single album with lesser known pieces like "Beautiful Dreamer," "I Dream of Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair," "Ah, May the Red Rose Live Alway," and "De Camptown Races." The performance is beautifully simple and sympathetic.

Stephen Foster Possessed Gift for Melody.

Stephen Foster possessed a remarkable gift for melody, and a sincere, softly emotional nature which is admirably mirrored in his music. He was not unaware of the pleasures of rude, sunburnt mirth. Witness his bubbling "Oh, Susanna," which has come to be a sort of theme song of the hardy, cheerful souls who opened America to civilization.

In another notable album the Boston Symphony orchestra, Serge Koussevitzky conducting, record the Overture-Fantasia, "Romeo and Juliet," of Tschaikowsky. It is hardly necessary to say that the delicacy of the instrumental colorings are skilfully preserved in the performance. This work fills five record sides. The sixth is given over to an altogether charming little piece by Sibelius, "Maiden with the Roses" from the suite "Swan-White." Among its other beauties it boasts a fascinatingly unconventional ending.

The fragrant little Sixth symphony of Sibelius is combined in one album with the same composer's D minor string quartet. The first bears the imprint of the Finnish National orchestra, Georg Schneevoigt conducting, the second of the Budapest String quartet.

Sibelius' Sternness Is Apparent in Sixth.

The Sibelius Sixth is a sort of northern "Pastoral," although it has less of softness and human gaiety than Beethoven's like numbered work. The Sibelius sternness is apparent in the rugged themes of the last movement, and, in lesser degree, in the more lyrical earlier portions of the work. The slow movement of the string quartet displays the genius of the great Finnish composer is its most tenderly expressive aspect.

A great piece of chamber music from the classical period has been recently recorded by this same Budapest quartet. It is the quartet in F major of Mozart, as rich in idea and as happy in expression as its composer's signature would lead one to expect.

Among the smaller Victor releases [and not included in albums] are the Bach F minor prelude and fugue, and the Beethoven cello sonata in C major, Opus 102, No. 1. The first appears in the Cailliet transcription and is recorded by the Philadelphia orchestra under Eugene Ormandy. The second enlists the artistry of Pablo Casals himself. The pianist is Mieczyslaw Horszowski.

HERE COMES THE BRIDE!

Here comes the bride—to your albums! That sweetly singing Jeanette MacDonald, who recently became Mrs. Gene Raymond. If you enjoyed her work in "Naughty Marietta" you may be glad to hear that the picture is having a second run at the State-Lake this week.

Stage in Java

PRESIDENT J. PH. VAN HASSELT of the Bond van Kunstkringen of Java has invited Katharine Cornell and her company to appear in Batavia, Sourabaya, Bandoeng, and Samarang if she makes her world tour next year. Miss Cornell will be the first foreign actress to visit Java with her own company of players and the first player to present Shakespeare in English in that country. The Bond van Kunstkringen is a non-profitmaking organization which has its own theaters where it gives concerts by famous musicians and produces plays acted by its own members. It also sponsors art exhibitions and occasional motion pictures. The society is supported by subscriptions from leading Dutch and foreign residents in Java, and is the center of the cultural life of the country.

Student Actor

OWENSBORO, KY., was the birthplace of Tom Ewell, who acts the catcher of the baseball team in "Brother Rat," comedy of student life at Virginia Military Institute. He entered the University of Wisconsin and became active in the Haresfoot club, devoted to amateur theatricals. One of his classmates, also a member of the club, was Don Ameche, a new movie favorite. Fredric March, also of the screen, was president of the same club in 1921.

Ewell secured his first professional engagement with the Park stock company in Madison, Wis., while he was a student. Then he joined the Al Jackson Tent Show troupe. At the end of the season an engagement followed with the Little theater in Nashville, Tenn.

He finally found a place for himself with a number of New York successes which include "Dead End," "Stage Door," "Tobacco Road," and "Brother Rat."

Notes of Music and Musicians

On Wednesday evening at 8, in Thorne hall, the late summer lethargy of Chicago's music will be disturbed by the first major event of the autumn season. The Manuel and Williamson harpsichord ensemble and four assisting vocal and instrumental soloists will present the first of eleven concerts in the series designated "The History and Enjoyment of Music."

This first program will be devoted to music by the Tudor composers, Henry Purcell, and various French, German, and Italian composers of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. Philip Manuel and Gavin Williamson, two of Chicago's most courageous musical adventurers into the realms of half-forgotten music, are the central figures in this unusual program. They will demonstrate that the harpsichord and its music, though ancient, continue to speak eloquently in these modern days. Assisting them will be Dorothy Lane and Dorothy Brown, harpsichordists; Hazel Meisterling, contralto; George Bishop, tenor; Leonard Sorkin and Milton Preves, violinists. Both Mr. Manuel and Mr. Williamson will lecture on "The Forerunners of Bach—Instrumental Music."

The eleven programs in this series promise to reveal many unusual musical riches both to the Northwestern students who enroll for course credit and to the wider public so diversified and economical a series is sure to attract.

The printer's devil got busy in last Sunday's schedule of the five low priced stellar piano recitals to be given in Orchestra hall by the Adult Education council. The correct date for the appearance of Walter Gieseking, who opens the series, is Oct. 19. Other dates are as follows: Dalies Frantz, Nov. 16; Florence Kirsch, Dec. 21; Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson, Jan. 19; Josef Hofmann's jubilee concert celebrating his fiftieth year as a concert pianist, March 15.

◆

The 1937-'38 season of Sunday afternoon symphony concerts by the Illinois Symphony orchestra at the Great Northern theater will begin on Oct. 10. The forty-week season will be divided into four ten-week periods, for each of which subscription tickets and coupon books may be obtained at money-saving prices. Albert Goldberg, state director of the Federal Music project, announces that the programs will contain many contemporary novelties and infrequently heard masterpieces, and will enlist a large number of soloists and guest conductors.

◆

The chorus choir of Central church, Orchestra hall, begins its seasonal activities this morning. William Hughes directs the choir, Archer Lambuth is organist, and Evan Evans is tenor soloist.

◆

Madeleine Carabo, young violinist who won over sixty contestants for a Juilliard school fellowship, will play Sept. 26 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Cohen, 266 Hazel avenue, Highland Park, under the auspices of the Highland Park Woman's club.

◆

The Seattle Symphony orchestra will sponsor a performance of George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess" next February—"for the first time, and probably for the last time," hopefully states the orchestra's press release.

◆

During these sleepy September days the attention of the musical public may be directed to the current motion picture at the Palace theater, "100 Men and a Girl," in which Leopold Stokowski conducts the Philadelphia orchestra in excerpts from Wagner, Mozart, Berlioz, Tschaikowsky, Verdi, and Liszt.

Character Roles Suited to Film Star

Elizabeth Patterson Is Noted for "Mother" Parts in Pictures.

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—[Special.]—Elizabeth Patterson is fast becoming a favorite character woman of the films. She flits from one rôle to another, and after recently completing her rôle as Randy Scott's mother and Irene Dunne's mother-in-law in "High, Wide, and Handsome," now is working in a picture with John Barrymore at the Paramount lot.

We went over to Paramount to have lunch and a bit of gossip with the lady, and wound up still talking in her dressing room four hours later. In the meantime we'd been joined by Stuart Walker, now a film director, formerly the producer of shows in Cincinnati, in which Lizzie, as her friends call her, played some years ago in her early dramatic career on the legitimate.

The two had many reminiscences to swap, chiefly concerning folks now in films who worked in their companies a few years back. When Elizabeth Patterson's name was in lights, with Richard Bennett's, in "The Solid South" there was a little girl getting her start in the company, with whom Miss Patterson struck up a friendship that still is close today. The little girl is Bette Davis. The show played Chicago at the time.

When Miss Patterson was playing in "Magnolia" in Chicago a critic gave a rather biting review in which she referred to the "pseudo southern accent of Miss Patterson and Martha Bryan-Allen, two of the players."

Elizabeth Patterson Was Born in Tennessee.

Miss Patterson was born and raised in Savannah, Tenn., and Miss Bryan-Allen, now wife of Robert Montgomery of films, was just four months away from her native Kentucky! "Every one in the company got a good laugh out of that. We always were delighted to find a critic wrong about something; goodness knows they found us wrong enough many times!" says Miss Patterson.

Miss Patterson had just been up to visit Bette Davis, who has been resting on a farm outside of Santa Barbara with her mother, and was speaking of the Davis hospitality. "I think her home is still the one place in the world where you visit and are asked quite casually to stay to dinner. No matter how many people there are, Bette's mother always seems to have enough food on hand to stretch it. It's amazing to find that nowadays," she says.

Miss Patterson knows a few things about hospitality. Prior to the civil war her family lived in Wayne and Hardin counties. Her mother was thirteen when the battle of Shiloh was fought eight miles from their home. Miss Patterson remembers her grandmother telling that in spite of raids, burnings, and losses to the family, she first wept when she saw her husband, Elizabeth's grandfather, eating with his fingers on his return from the war because all the silver had been stolen by soldiers.

"Marco Polo" Final Shots Are Being Taken.

The "Marco Polo" company at the Goldwyn studio is winding up three months of shooting on the huge spectacle which has cost a million and a half dollars in the making. As often is the case, first shots of the story are being made the last.

We watched Gary Cooper, as the young Venetian man about town, do a scene in which he is playing cards at the home of a beautiful young lady, only to be summoned by his father to come home. His servant and stooge, played by Ernest Truex, is rowing his gondola up and down all the likely streets, yelling for Marco; and as he arrives in front of Angela's house Angela tells him, yes, Marco is here, but doesn't want to be disturbed.

Summoned, Marco Polo comes to the window and obediently jumps out and into the gondola of the servant.

Gary was clothed in a heavy velvet costume, with fur trimmed velvet coat and high boots; and getting through the window wasn't so easy. He'd get to the window sill, and the trousers would stick. He did several of the funniest blow-ups one will ever see, laughed at himself, and stuck out his tongue in an amusing grimace. Director Mayo kept up a steady flow of wisecracks. "Print that take; I want the world to see it," he said. The cameraman reported trouble with the camera; it seems it was running backwards. "That's probably just what this picture needs to make it a sure hit," cracked Mayo.

Ann Graham, newly signed Georgia blonde, plays the rôle of the pretty girl. Before a repeat scene was to be made she complained that no one had combed her hair. Mayo yelled for the hairdresser to rush up, which she did. Then, clowning, he turned to Cooper and yelled, "Nobody's combed Gary's hair. For heaven's sake, will some one comb it for him?"

Cooper made a face; he announced, "Nobody combs my hair, no one but Cooper."

However, Mayo made the hairdresser come in and comb Gary's unruly brown locks for him. Gary hates having makeup men or hairdressers touch him, and ducks it whenever possible.

GOOD Morning!

"A treat!"

That's what those in the know assured me "100 Men and a Girl" had in store for me. They told the truth.

This picture is a rare blend of artistry and hokum that cannot fail to have universal appeal. It abounds in beautiful music, superfine acting, and is blessed with cunning direction, splendid mounting, and a piercingly human little story, rich with the humor that is akin to tears.

As for Deanna Durbin—what shall I say of her! "A child marvel" is not enough. Beauty, a lovely voice, remarkable poise she possesses certainly. But none of these is so startling as is the intelligence which shines through everything she does or says. Watching her, it's easy to take some stock in the theory of reincarnation; to wonder if possibly the little Durbin was not, in another era, a diplomat—or a fair adviser to a king.

Desperately John Cardwell has endeavored to obtain audience with Leopold Stokowski, object being to procure a place in the orchestra—and money with which to pay rent long overdue.

On the eve of being thrown out of their boarding house, Cardwell finds a woman's well filled purse on the sidewalk outside the opera house. . . . Unable to locate its owner, he uses part of the money it contains for the rent—telling his jubilant little daughter that at last he has a job and that the funds in hand are advance salary.

But Patricia finds out the truth. She also discovers to whom the purse belongs—a giddy and wealthy society woman, whose husband owns a radio station.

The lady's off-hand, unmeant promise to sponsor a symphony orchestra precipitates the rest of the picture's unexpected and engrossing incident. [I MUST not tell you any more of the story!]

The 100 men? Unemployed musicians, who become the symphony orchestra. . . . The girl? Patricia Cardwell, of course—and their determined guiding star.

Among the most memorable scenes is the one where Patricia startles Stokowski and his orchestra, rehersing Mozart's "Allelujah" in F major, by singing it with them from an upper box in the deserted opera house. Another episode that you won't forget is the one where, thrilled and compelled against his will, Stokowski directs, from the stairway of his home, a ragged, wistful-eyed, magnificently playing horde of men who have been smuggled into his fortress by Joan of Arc Patricia.

Magnificent portrayals are contributed by Stokowski and Adolphe Menjou. You could wring Alice Brady's neck as Mrs. Frost, but the world is full of women like her. And you'll get a lot of enjoyment from the work of Eugene Pallette and Mischa Auer.

A perfectly fascinating photoplay—"100 Men and a Girl"! I hope to see it again.

See you tomorrow.

"Cyrano" in Buenos Aires.

Buenos Aires, Argentina, which has winter when we have summer, opened its "fall" opera season on May 21 with a performance of Franco Alfano's "Cyrano de Bergerac." The work has never before been heard in the western hemisphere.

Gus Van Stars on Stage Bill at the Chicago

THE Chicago theater stage show has Gus Van as headliner, and a version of the new dance fad, the "Big Apple," as its production feature. The Evans ballet is back after a three week vacation. Also present are the European table tennis champions, Sandor Glancz and Laszlo Bellak.

The revue and radio team of Jesse Block and Eve Sully leads the current vaudeville program at the Palace theater. Also on the bill are the dance team of Cheyney and Fox; the dancing comedians, Chuck and Chuckles; Cappy Barra's Swing Harmonicas with Leon Lefell, and the "Variety Gambol," containing Estelle Hary, Nick Zano, Natalie Ortoso, Walter Hardy, Stanley Hardy, Olga Hladky and Johnny Bones.

A revenue called "Fall Frolics" forms the new stage bill at the State-Lake theater. Among its performers are Ben Yosts' "Varsity Co-eds"; the Robbins family in "Unusualities;" Troy and Lyne in "Legmania;" Verne Buck and the State-Lake ballet.

Theater Scarcity Is Problem of Stage Year in Chicago

Play Supply Greater than Rialto Space

Erlanger Opens Tonight with "The Women"; Lois Wilson Leads Cast

By Charles Collins.

THE third of Chicago's four theaters in regular use by the professional stage will open tonight for the new season. This, of course, is the Erlanger, offering a new company in "The Women," a play which still is in performance on Broadway by the original cast. The Chicago production has been carefully staged by Max Gordon with a keen eye for appropriate types, and practically every member of the cast has been given a workout at one time or another with the New York organization. The central rôle, a wife misled by the feline conduct of her Park avenue coterie, which Margalo Gillmore plays in New York, is here in the hands of Lois Wilson, a well known motion picture actress whose career in films has covered thirteen years.

The arrival of "The Women" leaves only the Grand Opera house unaccounted for among Chicago's active theaters. Its first offering probably will be a Broadway revue or an operetta, but definite announcement of its opening has been withheld. The harris theater seems to be almost permanently occupied by "You Can't Take It with You," and the Selwyn holds "Brother Rat" for a run of indefinite duration.

The number of shows which have been mentioned as prospects for the new Chicago season and are seeking bookings here indicates that these four theaters will not be able to take care of the supply. Occupancy of three other theaters—the Blackstone; the Great Northern, and the Princess—by the curious activities of the federal theater project has created a "bottle neck" in Chicago for professional stage productions.

The Studebaker appears to be hors concours because its control by a life insurance company prevents the usual bookings on a percentage sharing basis. The Civic theater should be useful in the emergency, for it is modern and attractive, but its location on Wacker drive is regarded by impresarios as almost on the frontier of civilization. A rescue of such former "legitimate" playhouses on Randolph as the Woods and the United Artists from their present movie control might be a solution to the problem. This has been dreamed of by certain stage executives, but the situation appears to be merely one of wishful thinking.

● ● ●

"Yes, My Darling Daughter," one of the long run plays of the last New York season and still in performance there, will figure on the subscription schedule of the American Theater society. A new company will be sent on tour, with Florence Reed and Lawrence Grossmith in the leading rôles. The Chicago engagement will begin early in November. The New York company will remain on Broadway until Christmas and will then tour in the east.

● ● ●

Oct. 17 will mark the 100th anniversary of the first theatrical performance in Chicago, which was given in the dining room of the Sauganash tavern by a group of professional actors wandering on the frontier. Cyrus E. Wilder, treasurer of the Blackstone theater, has called Mayor Kelly's attention to this historical date and has suggested that the week of Oct. 17 be designated as "Go to the Theater" week. City hall officials are considering the possibilities of this idea in relation to the civic centennial jubilee program.

● ● ●

Jane Cowl's next rôle will be Marie Antoinette in a play called "The Austrian Woman," written by Romney Brent and revised by herself and Reginald Lawrence. Max Gordon will be the producer and has scheduled its première for Washington, D. C., on Oct. 25. The drama deals with Marie Antoinette during the last years of her life.

● ● ●

Joan Bennett, the movie actress, will return to the stage to act in "Stage Door" on tour in the rôle originated by Margaret Sullavan. Her last activity in drama, so far as Broadway is concerned, was in "Jarnegan," with her father, Richard Bennett, as star, in the fall of 1928.

● ● ●

John Cecil Holm, who wrote the prodigiously successful farce-comedy called "Three Men on a Horse," with George Abbott providing the finishing touches, will soon be heard from again. He has completed a play which deals with the pulp paper magazine industry and calls it "Four Cents a Word." Cheryl Crawford, formerly on the executive staf of the Theater Guild, announces it as her first venture as an independent producer.

● ● ●

The appointment of George Kondolf, regional director in Chicago of the federal theater project since May, 1936, to a similar position in New York, will leave WPA theatrical activities here under the control of a board composed of Harry Minturn, E. Kendall Davis, Russell Spindler, and Esther W. Bilstead. New plays in preparation for WPA acting in Chicago this season are "The Straw," by Eugene O'Neill; "Prolog to Glory," by E. P. Conkle; "Ex-President," by Emmett Lavery; "Seventeen Days in August," by Frederick Schlick, and "West Winds Blowing," by Velma Carson.

● ● ●

Labor troubles are depriving Montreal of its occasional glimpses of the drama. The International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employés has forbidden its members to go to that city with touring companies in retaliation for refusal to recognize film operators of the same union there. This situation has caused a cancellation of the booking of "Tovarich" this week.

● ● ●

The subscription lists for the Theater Guild's approaching season in New York contain 20,000 customers, which is 10 per cent less than last year's total. The Guild's banner season in New York was that of 1926-'27, when it had about 30,000 subscribers. Subscribers to the Chicago season now total 11,696—an increase over last year, which had 7,900.

● ● ●

Adolf Gartner, stage director of "Monesh," drama in Yiddish now at the Great Northern theater under WPA auspices, operated a Yiddish theater in Chicago for many years. It was on Roosevelt road near Independence boulevard and was called the Independence. Genevieve Gartner, his wife, now appearing as Lilith in "Monesh," was the leading woman of his stock company.

● ● ●

Helen Hayes began her tour in "Victoria Regina" last Wednesday night in the Bushnell auditorium of Hartford, Conn. The hall's 3,300 tickets were all sold a week earlier and the single performance brought $6,500 into the box office.

● ● ●

The Rocky mountain or Jed Harris revival of Ibsen's "A Doll's House," with Ruth Gordon as Nora Helmer, will begin its tour in Toronto on Oct. 11 and is booked for a New York première in the holidays. Paul Lukas, the movie actor, has been engaged for the rôle of Dr. Frank.

● ● ●

John Hay Whitney, an occasional producer of plays in New York, who recently announced that he had abandoned the drama forever, appears to have forgotten his vow. He has secured the stage rights to "On Borrowed Time," the recently published novel by Lawrence Edward Watkin.

Brady's Plans

WILLIAM A. BRADY, veteran manager, has returned to New York after a summer in Hollywood with plans for the new season. He has three plays in mind and, if "proper casts are available," he may stage them. They are "The Invisible Silence," by Elmer Harris; "The Clock Ticks," by Paul Edgar Smith, and "Swan Song," by J. H. McDevitt.

Woman Director.

Maurice Evans' production of Shakespeare's "King Richard II." was directed by a woman, Miss Margaret Webster. An American by birth, she grew up in London and is imbued with the modern outlook upon the classics.

LEADS CAST OF 'THE WOMEN'

Lois Wilson has the leading role in "The Women," new at the Erlanger theater, appearing as the wife whose home is wrecked by gossiping "cats" of Park avenue, New York.

Wayne King Engaged for Empire Room

Eddy Duchin to Play in Aragon Ballroom; Savo Stars at 'Chez.'

WAYNE KING'S dance orchestra, nationally known and popular in Chicago through its year-long engagement at the Aragon ballroom, will come to the Empire room next Saturday night. His only preceding café engagement was at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, New York, where he spent two years. The floor show in the Empire room will remain unchanged, with the De Marros, Antonio and Renee, dance stars; Alexander Gray, baritone singer; Dolly Thon, specialty dancer; the Abbott ballet, and the Four Aristocrats.

On last Thursday evening Charles Gaylord and his orchestra replaced Dick Gasparre's organization. Gaylord will remain in the Empire room until Wayne King's arrival, after which his band will serve as "relief" on Monday nights.

● Eddy Duchin and his dance orchestra will play in the Aragon ballroom, Lawrence avenue near Broadway, tonight as a special attraction. This will be his first popular ballroom engagement in Chicago. Freddy Martin's orchestra will be co-featured on tonight's program, and the music will be played on the following schedule: Duchin's, 6 to 7:30 and 8:30 to 11; Martin's from 3 to 6, 7:30 to 8:30, and 11 to 12:30. . . . Ted Weems' band continues at the Trianon ballroom, on the south side. Today's program will run from 3 p. m. to 12:30 a. m. Another orchestra will coöperate with Weems in the afternoon and evening.

● Jimmy Savo, pantomimic comedian whose vein of humor resembles Charlie Chaplin's, has become co-star with Corinna Mura in the cabaret program at the Chez Paree. He replaces Paul Draper, the tap dancer, and comes to Chicago after a stay in Hollywood, where he completed an engagement with the new movie production, "Merry-Go-Round of 1938." A burlesque of the song, "River, Stay Away from My Door," is his principal number in this show.

Miss Mura specializes in Spanish and Latin American folk songs and dances to her own guitar accompaniment. She was trained as an operatic singer. Other performers are Paul Gerrits, roller skater and monologist; Billy and Beverley Bemis, brother and sister dancers; Barbara Parks, "blues" singer; Paul and Eva Reyes, rhumba and tango dancers, and the Chez Paree ballet girls. Henry Busse's band continues, with Maurie Stein as auxiliary.

● The open air amusement season at Riverview park will end tonight. The management reports that attendance has been larger than in any year since 1929. A new scheme of decoration and many new attractions are planned for next summer.

● Roger Pryor's orchestra continues in the Marine dining room of the Edgewater Beach hotel. Lannie Truesdell and Tommye Birch, singing girls, contribute popular songs. Collegian amateurs will be given opportunities to display their gifts on the Friday night bills. This feature of the program started last week, with Northwestern university contributing the talent. "Chuck" Apley, 1934, was master of ceremonies.

● Frankie Masters continues his activities as orchestra leader, master of ceremonies, and vocalist in the College inn. Jackie Heller, stage and radio tenor, is prominent in the bill, which also contains Donna Dae, singer and dancer; Coleman Clark and Bill Price, table tennis professionals; Myrus, a mind reader; Carl Marx, a clown, and the eight Frances Allis ballet girls.

● Fred Waring and his Pennsylvanians will continue their programs of dance music and cabaret entertainment in the Silver Forest of the Drake hotel for two more weeks. The glee club, formed when thirty-six musicians put down their instruments and break into song, is a striking feature on the bill. Other special performers are Priscilla Lane, prima donna; Ferne, a girl violinist; Betty Atkinson, dancer, and "Poley" McClintock, a frog voiced drummer. Waring himself leads the band, is master of ceremonies, and appears in a specialty with Miss Lane.

● Carlos Molina's Latin American orchestra remains in the Continental room of the Stevens hotel with a small but distinguished floor show. A team of male entertainers called Covert and Reed, with Dio Dati as pianist, joined the bill last week after seventeen weeks at the Rainbow grill in Rockefeller Center, New York. Their act is a blend of singing and comedy. The ballroom dancers, Marya and Martyn, have been reëngaged for another fortnight.

● The Walnut room of the Bismarck hotel has added Niles Garron and Edythe Bennett, a dance team, and Janis Williams, tap dancer, to its bill. Eddie Varzos' American gypsy orchestra continues, with the Walker trio, Lucio Garcia, Spanish singer, and José Bethancourt, marimba player,

● The Yar, Russian restaurant, reopened last week under the direction of Col. W. W. Yaschenko. Music is supplied by Sol Turner's Russian balalaika orchestra, said to be the only one in Chicago. Turner was for many years first violinist of the St. Louis Symphony orchestra. Other items of Russian entertainment are offered.

● The Club Alabam features Harriet Norris, singer and mistress of ceremonies. Others are Effie Burton, Rita Morgan, Micky Dunn, Ollie Bugby, Marian Moore, Carl Villani, and the Paramount trio, Dancing to three dance bands.

● The new Colosimo's bill presents Roscoe Ails, comedian, as master of ceremonies; Inga Borg, dancer, and Mlle. Zee-Zee, dancer. Others are Harriet Hutchins, Gladys Crane, Gaye Dixon, Ashley and Ware, the Monte Carlo singers, Betty Lewis, who appears with Ails; the Colosimo's ballet, and Nino Rinaldo's band. Next Sunday Henry Gendron's band will open at Colosimo's. He played last summer at Bouche's Villa Venice.

● The Hi-Hat club co-stars Armida, a Mexican girl from the films, and Willie Shore, young dancer and comedian. Armida does Spanish and Mexican songs and dances. Ginger Dulo, singer; the Dancing Ingénues, and Sid Lang's band complete the bill. Nan Blakstone and her original songs is a coming attraction.

● The Royale Frolics, closed this summer, will reopen Sept. 29. The revue will offer five or six acts in addition to a ballet of twenty-five girls and Mark Fisher's band.

● Juan Pineda's orchestra has established a long run record at the Monte Cristo café. Don Fulton also entertains with piano and vocal solos.

● The King's Jesters, with Marjorie Whitney, give the floor show entertainment in the Blue Fountain room of the La Salle hotel. This trio of musicians is composed of George Howard, Fritz Bastow, and John Ravenscroft.

● Joe Sanders will end his long engagement as music maestro at the Blackhawk restaurant early in October. His floor show will continue until his departure. On Tuesday nights the Californians, an instrumental quartet, relieve Sanders' musicians.

LONG RUN BAND LEADER

Henry Busse probably holds the record for long runs among dance band leaders in Chicago cabarets. He is the maestro at Chez Paree, where he has waved his baton for many months on several engagements.

Movie Lady Leads Cast of "The Women"

LOIS WILSON, who plays the leading rôle in "The Women" at the Erlanger theater, earned a reputation in the cinema with many creditable performances. This is the first time that she has appeared in person on a Chicago stage, or on a stage east of Los Angeles, with the exception of a short engagement in New York.

Before the advent of "talkies" Miss Wilson had scored in numerous silent pictures, including "The Covered Wagon," "Miss Lulu Bett," "What Every Woman Knows," "Manslaughter" and "Monsieur Beaucaire." She played opposite Thomas Meighan, Wallace Reid, Rudolph Valentino, Robert Warwick, and Bryant Washburn.

When the talkies were perfected, Miss Wilson decided stage experience was necessary. Edward Everett Horton and Henry Duffy were both producing plays on the Pacific coast and the next four years found her a member of either one or the other's companies. She was cast for the leading woman's rôle in practically all of the dramatic productions made by these managements.

Then she returned to the pictures and was seen in "Seed," "There's Always Tomorrow," "Bright Eyes," with Shirley Temple, and many others.

Last September Miss Wilson joined the caravan of movie players wending its way eastward. She secured the principal part in a play called "Farewell Summer," which lasted only a week. Last May she was chosen for the Chicago cast of "The Women."

Miss Wilson was born in Pittsburgh but was taken to Birmingham, Ala., by her parents when she was only a few months old. She was educated in Birmingham but interrupted her college course in its freshman year.

Stage Letter Box

To the dramatic editor:

CHICAGO, Sept. 14.—In your Sunday column having to do with the impending engagement of "The Women," you mention the late Clyde Fitch's piece called "Girls," and imply that it was "manless"; that is, a play without masculine characters. There were at least two such characters in the comedy, acted by Charles Cherry and Herbert Standing, actors far from inconsequential in the casting offices of that day.

First of easily remembered plays without feminine characters was "The New Sin," given in September of 1912 in Powers theater, now extinct. It was so far from the taste of Chicago playgoers that a portion of each night's audience, purchasing tickets without knowledge of the design of the play, would, upon learning that there were no women in the cast, reappear at the box office at the end of Act I and ask for the return of their money. It was in this play that the late O. P. Heggie made his American début.

Another all-men play was "Wings Over Europe," brought to Chicago in the season of 1929-'30 by the Theater Guild of New York. Maurice Browne, pioneer of the little theater movement, had a hand in writing "Wings Over Europe," which owed its success well nigh entirely to persons and organizations avowedly pacifist. "Hell Freezes Over," which also was lacking in rôles for women, has been discussed as a possibility for the Federal theater in Chicago.

FREDERICK DONAGHEY.

Mountain Climbing Drama.

Guthrie McClintic is said to be interested in "The Ascent of F 6," a current London hit. The Theater guild and Norman Bel Geddes are also giving this play more than casual attention. It deals with mountain climbing in the Himalayas.

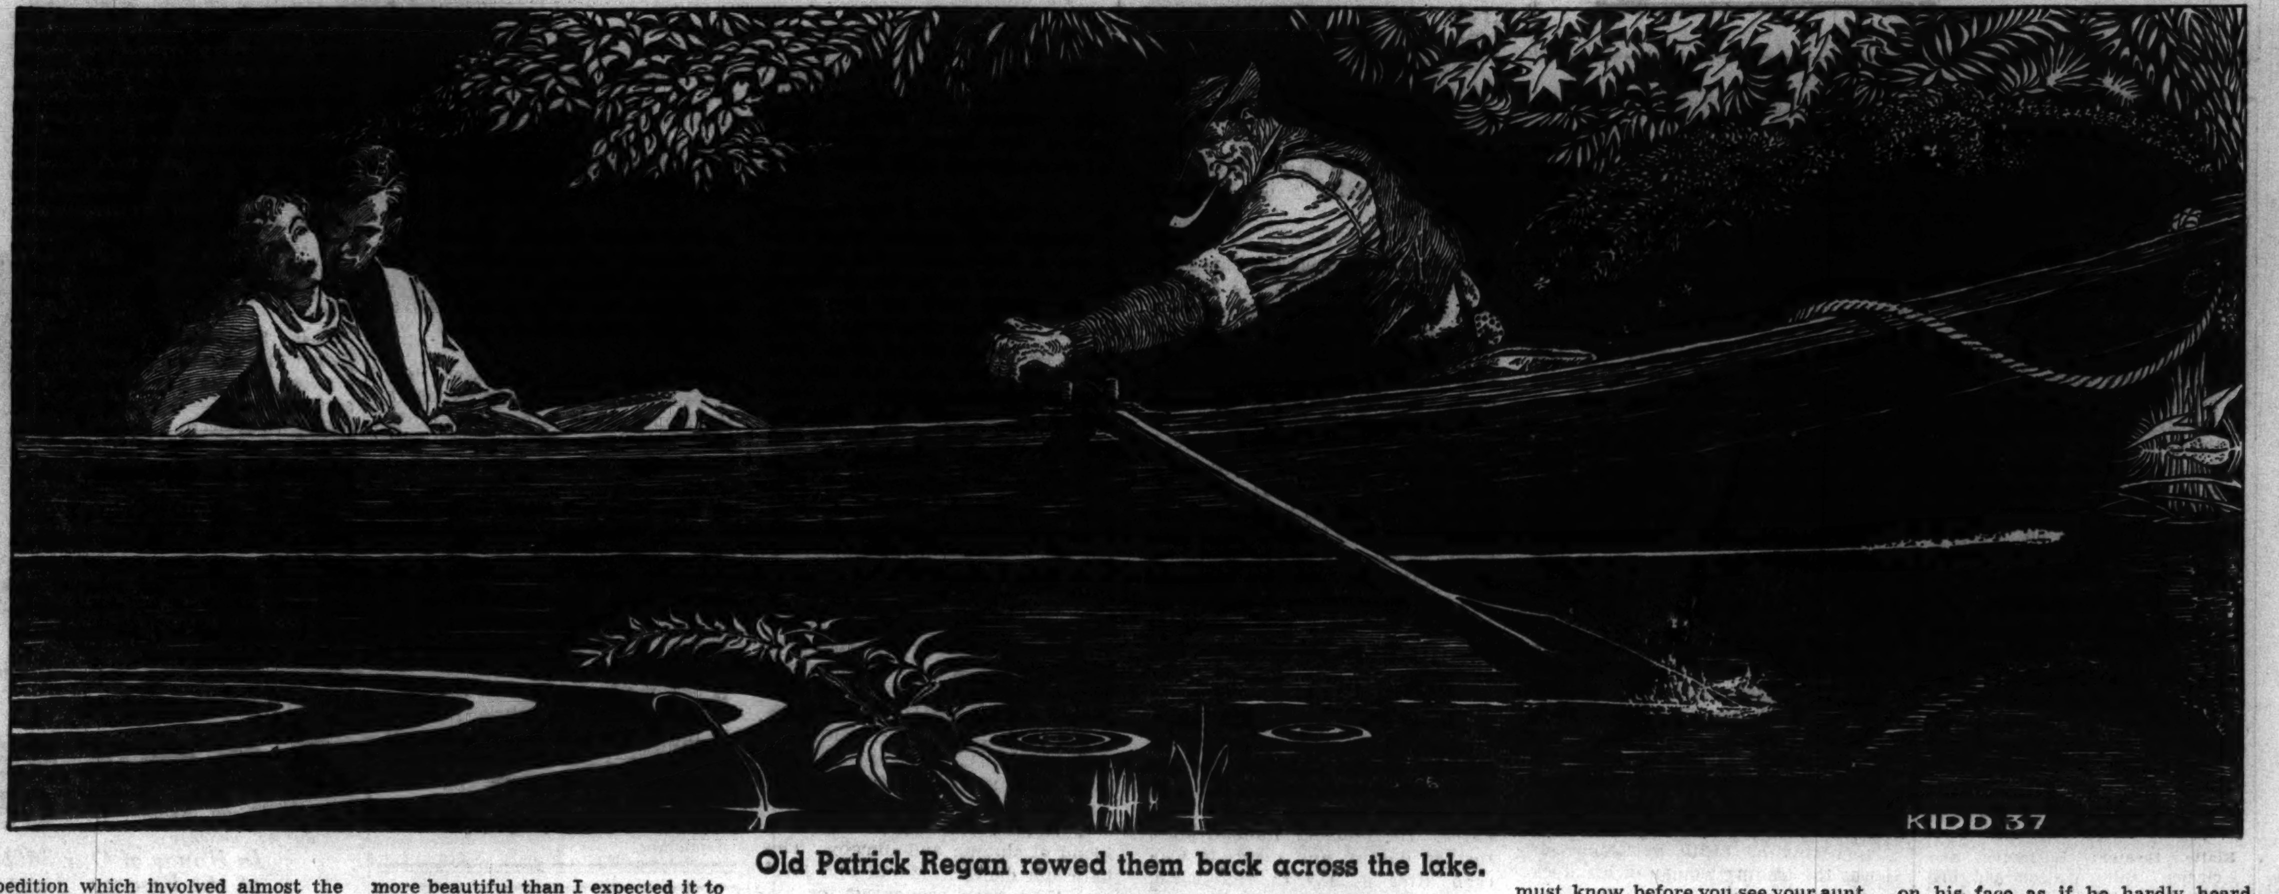
The Fortune of Bridget Malone

By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes

It Is a Greatly Troubled Bridget Who Ponders Her Course Toward Kevin; and Then Comes Col. Desmond, Who Cites the Example of Queen Victoria



Old Patrick Regan rowed them back across the lake.

CONCLUSION

(Copyright: 1937: By Mrs. Belloc Lowndes.)

BRIDGET pulled up two chairs and sat down on one of them, for she was shaking all over. The contents of the letter she held in her hand were nothing to her. She had come to hate her money and all that her money stood for, and she told herself with passionate energy that nothing would induce her to marry the kind of young landowner of whom she had seen all too much till Kevin's intervention had given them all a rest from the presence of strangers. In the last few minutes she had made up her mind what she meant to do, but she did not intend to tell Mrs. O'Donnell a word of it till Kevin had left the castle.

"No, my dear, I don't think I will sit down now, for I'm in a hurry. I only want to know what you would like me to write back to this letter."

"I think the best thing would be just to say I'm willing to agree to whatever he thinks best. I know he was a great friend of Mr. Leary, and he is said to be the cleverest lawyer in New York."

"Then that's settled!" cried Mrs. O'Donnell cheerily. Then her voice altered and became graver. "There's another thing I want to ask you, Bridget. You know Kathy O'Brien, my goddaughter? As I expect to be going away soon, for three weeks to a month, I wonder whether you would like to have her here, to stay with you?"

She looked dubiously at the girl of whose face she could see nothing except the firm chin and the, though small, determined mouth. "I don't feel like leaving you entirely alone here. Not that you'd be dull, for you'd be besieged by people from far and near. In fact, Kathy would be a protection to you——"

"Are you going away soon?" Bridget could not keep the surprise she felt out of her voice, and the question was uttered in such a tone of pain and desolation that the older woman felt touched.

She came over and put her arms around the girl's shoulders. "I didn't mean to tell you yet, and please say nothing to Kevin about it, but the truth is——" And then wistfully she asked, "Can't you guess what I'm going to tell you?"

Poor Bridget! She was far too absorbed in herself even to try to think what her guardian meant by that cryptic question. "I'm afraid I'm very stupid, but I can't guess at all."

"Shane Desmond has asked me to marry him and, though perhaps you'll think me an old fool, I have said 'yes, I will.' We've been great friends for over twenty years and, though we have not seen much of one another, for I was tied here and he had a job in Paris, we have written to each other, well, I should say," she smiled tremulously, "hundreds of letters. In fact, as I told him only yesterday, I miss his letters now very much."

• • •

BRIDGET remained silent, and Kathleen O'Donnell felt just a little hurt. She had thought the girl would overwhelm her with warm congratulations, but instead of that Bridget Malone at last said hesitantly, "I suppose you and Col. Desmond will live here at Mount Clare?"

"For a good deal of the year, yes, and, of course, you'll live with us till you marry, as I hope you will do some day, dear child. I think you know," she concluded warmly, "how very fond Shane is of you."

The girl's lip quivered. "He is always very kind," she murmured.

"The only thing that makes me unhappy," went on the older woman, "is the thought of breaking this news to Kevin. He's such a queer mixture, sometimes so tender and kind, sometimes so harsh and hard." Bridget nodded, and her guardian went on: "I needn't tell you, for I am sure you are too clever not to have known it all along, that there was a time when I hoped you and Kevin would fall in love with one another and make a match of it."

There issued from Bridget's lips a strange sound. Was it what is called a giggle, or something like a whimper, signifying that Bridget was amazed at the suggestion? It was probably a giggle, for "Forgive me, dear child, perhaps I ought not to have said that, but after all it was natural that I should feel like that, and I suppose equally natural that neither of you should care for the other."

In a voice which she tried to make sound bright and happy the girl exclaimed, "It would have been very unnatural for us to fall in love! As it is we are very good friends, and that's nice for me, for before I met Kevin I had hardly ever spoken to a man."

Mrs. O'Donnell laughed. "I wouldn't say so to him, but I can say to you that I shan't envy the woman who comes to own him, as they say hereabouts. However, he's only once been in love, and he took it so badly that maybe it has cured him forever of that fell disease."

She walked across to the window. "Why, there they are," she cried in an amused tone. "Men have no patience at all, at all! I expect Shane will tell me I've been away an hour, and as for Kevin, he looks impatient, too. He said something about going for a ride with you in the cool of the evening."

"Will you tell him," said Bridget quietly, "that I've got a lot of letters to write for the American mail?"

And this was true. Since she had overheard that quick interchange of words from behind the screen in the ladies' drawing room it was as if everything in life had altered for Bridget Malone. The thought of seeing either Col. Desmond or Kevin O'Donnell brought with it a sharp sense of anguish, and yet what was she to do?

She sought and found the only answer possible to one of so proud and sensitive a nature as herself. She made up her mind to behave during the next three days as if everything was absolutely usual. And she succeeded in hiding completely what she felt from her guardian and Shane Desmond. But she was not so successful with Kevin. He sensed something was wrong, and it made him very uneasy.

At breakfast on the day before the young man was going to leave Ireland for London she acquiesced cheerfully when Mrs. O'Donnell, glancing at her nephew, observed, "Wouldn't this be the very day for you to be taking Bridget over to Glendalough? It's a marvelous drive over the hills, and if you have the luck to find old Patrick Regan to row you over the lake then it's plenty of laughter you both will get!"

Kevin turned eagerly to the girl, and he was glad indeed to see she was smiling at him brightly. He felt delighted with his aunt's suggestion, for the thought of an expedition which involved almost the whole day alone with Bridget Malone was agreeable and even exciting. Meanwhile Bridget's guardian also turned to her: "You're sure you'd like a really long drive? Or would you prefer to potter about as usual? I'm afraid you've had but a dull time lately, but that's not my fault, for Kevin was determined to have a quiet ten days before going away."

Bridget said frankly, and, O, how glad she was that as to this she need neither lie outright nor pretend: "I have always longed to go to Glendalough. It was once described to me by an Irish nun as the most beautiful place in the world!"

"And I don't think she was far wrong," exclaimed Col. Desmond. He had just come into the dining room and so heard Bridget's reply to Kathleen O'Donnell's question. "I suppose you know that Glendalough means the Glen of the Two Lakes, and that it is one of the few places left in this country where the fairies are seen by mortal men?"

Mrs. O'Donnell followed Bridget up to her room. "You must put on the oldest of your coats and skirts, and good stout boots or shoes, especially if you're likely to be made to do any climbing by Kevin. I'll also see that he takes two stout, pointed sticks."

She lingered awhile, as if she couldn't quite make up her mind as to what she wanted to say, and then, "I wonder, Bridget, if you would take an opportunity, either going to Glendalough, or on your way home, to tell my nephew I'm going to be married? It would be very good of you, dear, for I do so shrink from doing so. Somehow I think he would take the news better from you than from me. Will you oblige me by doing that?"

• • •

BRIDGET said, "Yes, indeed, I will," and that although the thought of breaking such a thing to Kevin was inexpressibly painful to her. Still she told herself that that might make it easier for her to say something she had made up her mind to tell the young man before they parted on the morrow.

An hour later the two had started off in the roadster, taking with them two packets of what the housekeeper called "cookies," a thermos bottle full of iced water, and a small flask filled with whisky.

Although hardly aware of it themselves, they were both glad to get away from Mount Clare today, Bridget especially so because she knew what Kevin did not know; that was how enchanted the two left behind must be feeling at being sure for once of a dual solitude for many hours.

On and on they sped over high hills and smiling plains, sometimes finding a splendid stretch of roadway, and then branching off because Kevin wanted to show his companion something curious or unusual. When this happened he had to drive carefully, and even slowly, as in those narrow byways they never knew what there might be around the corner.

Bridget was very silent, for her mind was full of her guardian's secret, and at last she decided to tell him the news after they had seen the valley of the two lakes.

Ere long the young man exclaimed, "Shut your eyes; when I say now, look to your left, down and down and down, and you'll see Glendalough and tell yourself, or I shall feel very disappointed, that your Irish nun was right!"

The motor began to roll along very, very slowly, and getting closer and closer to the edge of what seemed indeed to Bridget the top of the world. And then, when he said now, the girl opened her eyes and cried out, "Why, Kevin, it's even more beautiful than I expected it to be! I don't wonder that the fairies have made it their home!"

"The fairies and the saints just own it together," and the young man smiled. "I read the other day in the best book written on Ireland for many a long day that the bell for mass rang down there each morning when the Danish Vikings were driving up their boats on the beaches of England!"

Bridget gazed down and down and down, as he had told her to do, at the dark valley where shone the two deep lakes which form gleaming patches in the somber hollow.

Gradually her eyes became fixed on the seven deserted ruined chapels embowered in the yew trees which are a singular feature of Glendalough, for they grow nowhere near there.

At last they reached the level ground by one of the lakes, and as he helped her out of the car Kevin exclaimed, "Of course you know that it was here my patron saint found the solitude he was determined to find? He was a prince of the reigning House of Leinster, and he is said to have looked about a good deal before he discovered the Valley of the Two Lakes."

"Wasn't he in love with a beautiful girl called Kathleen?"

"Well, no, you've got the story wrong. Kathleen was in love with Kevin, but he was not in love with her, and she pursued him here. Indeed, if you look half way up the mountain opposite you'll find the place where he took refuge from her!"

"Do you mean over there?" and she looked with astonishment at what looked like the sheer face of a cliff.

"Aye, that's the place, and thousands make their way to there each year; indeed, we must be thankful there's no pilgrimage here today." Then under his breath he muttered, "Why, here's Aunt Kathleen's old Patrick Regan!"

Bridget looked at the boatman, who seemed to have come from nowhere, with some curiosity. As he came close up to them the boatman in question said, "And is it the Saint's Bed you'll be wanting to visit this fine day?" And then, without waiting for an answer, "It's not a minute I'll be before I get the boat out."

After his boat was in the water old Patrick waved the young man aside and gallantly helped the girl step into his boat. "I'm far more careful of you than Saint Kevin was of his young lady," he observed.

"But d'you believe it can be true," asked Bridget, and for the first time for three days she looked at him mischievously, "that Saint Kevin actually pushed the poor girl into the lake?"

"Well, no, ma'am. That is a thing I could never bring myself to believe. What kind of a saint, let alone a prince, would he have been to treat a lady so? The story my good mother told me, and I have no reason to doubt 'tis true, doesn't say much for his kindness, but it stops short of drowning."

"What was the story your mother told you?" asked the girl.

He rested on his oars and looked at her seriously as he answered her question: "Just after he had found this remote spot and thought he'd escaped from her wiles, she found out where he'd hidden himself and came running after him. He was that bewildered and annoyed that he turned right around on her and, with a big bunch of nettles with which he'd armed himself, he laid on her with his nettles again and again. That cured her of her love for him and, indeed, 'tis even said she became a nun. But there was a good reason for that," and he looked significantly at Bridget.

"What sort of reason?"

"The reason, so my mother told me, was that her guardian angel, to say nothing of the saints, saw to it that the spots and swellings made by the nettle stings never disappeared, and so the poor young lady's looks were destroyed entirely. That is why she became a nun."

Bridget burst into laughter, in which Kevin joined.

"Surely, ma'am, you know the charming poem which begins:

"By that lake whose gloomy shore
Skylark never warbles o'er."

Kevin held up his hand. "You get along with your rowing," he said rather sharply.

"Ah, well, sir, no doubt you were right to stop me reciting all of that poem, but let me just be quoting the last two lines of that verse."

"What may they be?" asked Bridget.

"Alas! the good saint little knew
What the wily sex can do."

He waited a moment. "And that is only too true, ma'am, if you'll forgive me for saying so. For if a lady sets her heart on a man, even if he is a saint, he has got to watch out for himself."

"And d'you think it's true," asked Bridget, "that poor Kathleen's ghost haunts this very lake?"

"Of course it's true," said the old man vigorously. "I've seen her twice myself!"

He turned to Kevin. "You can't have forgotten, sir, what the saint said, if 'tis true, which I deny, that he pushed the poor creature into the lake?"

"What did he say?"

"It's all told in the poem, at the very end of it:

"The good saint said, 'Heaven rest her soul;'
Which round the lake like music stole;
And then her ghost was seen to glide,
Smiling, o'er the fatal tide!"

Once the old man had landed them he observed, "And now I expect you'll be climbing up to the Saint's Bed, while I'll wait for you here below."

The young man said doubtfully: "Would you really like to do that, Bridget? It's pretty steep." He looked at her feet and saw that they were stoutly shod, so he felt pleased when she said "yes" eagerly.

Off they started on what some would have called a perilous climb up the side of the mountain, and it must be admitted that the girl was glad when they at last reached the curious little enclave in the rock.

Kevin had actually brought up their luncheon, strapped on his back in a fishing basket, but Bridget decided that to eat it up there, in Saint Kevin's Bed, would scarcely be reverent, and about that he gave in to her, as he always did do, though she was not aware of it.

At last she looked over the edge and there came over her a slight tremor of fear. She said childishly, "I wonder how we shall ever get down? I can't help feeling frightened, Kevin."

He felt queerly touched by this admission of weakness on her part. Since they had come to Ireland he had sometimes told himself that what had happened in Paris had so far altered Bridget Malone that, though she had at once thrown herself into all his aunt's interests and proved herself able to take part in every form of sport open to her at this time of the year, she was no longer the young girl who had come to Europe on the Ile de France.

There often came across her face a shadow, and the last two days he had often seen her face looking very sad when in repose and when she believed herself unobserved.

"We'll manage all right," he said reassuringly, "but you must remember not to look down. Always look up or straight before you."

"I'll do that," she said submissively, and he took her hand and held it.

"It isn't as if there was any hurry," and he went on still holding her small cold hand. And it was then that for the first time he knew that the thought of going back to England and to his work had become especially hateful to him because it meant leaving Bridget Malone in Ireland behind him.

• • •

HE DROPPED her hand suddenly, and she felt a chill at her heart.

"Perhaps we might start down now," he said after a long silence, and they started what at that time of the year is a dangerous descent.

But he kept close to her, so placing himself that if at any time her foot slipped he could save her; and when at last they reached the level ground it was Kevin, not Bridget, who breathed a deep sigh of relief. "I'd no idea that it would be like that," he muttered.

Old Patrick Regan was waiting for them and as he rowed them back across the lake he told them the legend which provides a reason why Saint Kevin is always portrayed with a blackbird's nest in his hand. "He was praying with his arms outstretched in the form of the cross and a blackbird built her nest in his outstretched palm and laid her eggs there. Rather than disturb the mother bird he kept his arm stretched out, the angels helping him to do so, until the eggs were hatched and the fledglings ready to fly. Soon after, a fellow anchorite asked him coldly, 'Servant of God, where art thou bound? No bird, while flying, can catch her eggs.' But Saint Kevin only smiled in answer."

Kevin gave old Patrick a good tip, and joyously he exclaimed, "It's Saint Kevin will be showering blessings on you now for your kindness to a poor lone old man."

When they reached the castle they found that Mrs. O'Donnell and Col. Desmond were not expected back for at least another hour; and Kevin said slowly, "After I've put the car away shall we have tea on the terrace?"

Bridget nodded. Her heart was very, very full; she was remembering the day of her arrival at Mount Clare and of the happy hour she and Kevin had spent in having a late tea out of doors, she gazing with enraptured eyes at the marvelous view after their long drive from Dublin.

She asked for tea to be taken out on the terrace, and it was there by her now. She had changed into a white frock and there came over him a curious feeling of apprehension. She looked so elegant, so much the young lady, so different, in a word, to what she had done during their long expedition.

"There's something I ought to have told you before now," she said in a low voice. "It's something you must know before you see your aunt. I promised I'd tell you, Kevin."

"What sort of thing is it?"

He was staring across at her with a strange, stern expression, and then before she could answer he asked fiercely, "Are you going to be married?"

Astounded by the question, she blushed deeply. How could he ask her such a cruel thing as that?

"Whatever made you think of such a thing?"

He said roughly, "Come, Bridget. You know as well as I do that Aunt Kathleen had been encouraging Sir Timothy Meath."

"I have not been encouraging him," she said coldly. Then, as she saw the look of almost agonized relief in his dark face, there quivered a slight smile on her face. "But some one else is going to be married, Kevin," and then she came out with her great news. "Mrs. O'Donnell is going to marry Col. Desmond."

She could see he was astonished and, she thought, chagrined, and her heart swelled with pity at the thought of his being relegated to the second place both in his aunt's heart, and here, in his beloved home. For a few moments he said nothing. Then to her astonishment all he said was, "Does that mean you won't be able to come to London in October?"

As she remained silent, half to himself he went on: "But, of course, you can come just the same. It'll be easy enough for Aunt Kathleen to find some one who'd chaperon you."

Bridget was now pouring out his tea, but her hand was shaking so that she had to put the teapot down.

"I shall not be in Europe in October," she said quietly.

"What d'you mean?" And then he jumped up from his chair and stood glowering down at her.

"I am going to America immediately after your aunt's wedding," and then before he could speak again she cried with a bitter sob in her voice, "But that's a secret, Kevin! I don't want her to know anything about it till the last minute, and I've thought of a nice wedding present for her. It's one that I shall want you to help me to arrange."

He was still looking down at her with a fierce, bewildered expression on his face as if he hardly heard what she was saying.

"I want to buy up the mortgages on the castle and give them to her as a wedding gift. Even after I've done that I shall have much more money left than I shall know what to do with."

One of the doors giving on to the terrace opened and Mrs. O'Donnell came through it. She went straight up to her nephew and Bridget rose from her chair and, running by her, disappeared into the castle.

"My dear boy, have you heard my news?"

"Yes, I have——" and he bent and kissed her. "Indeed, I congratulate you both, Aunt Kathleen. Shane Desmond is one of the best," he said in a mechanical voice.

The man whose name was on his lips had followed Kathleen O'Donnell, and the two, her future husband and her nephew, clasped hands.

She looked eagerly from one to the other. "Don't you think we might tell him, Shane, what we've talked of now and again, and are beginning to hope may, after all, come to pass?"

The colonel hesitated. A glance at the young man's sad, stern face had made him doubt very much whether this was the moment to do what his dear, impulsive Mavourneen had just suggested should be done.

"I hope you won't think it impertinent of me, Kevin, but your aunt and I, especially during the last few days, have felt that maybe you and Bridget Malone are fonder of each other than you know; and we hoped today that your expedition to Glendalough might have helped to make up your minds for you."

Mrs. O'Donnell looked at Kevin yearningly, but he made no sign, and, turning, she left the two men alone together.

The colonel said in a hesitating voice: "Well? Am I to congratulate you, my boy?"

Kevin shook his head, and then muttered: "It's true that I love Bridget with all my heart and soul. The thought of parting with her is —I—I can't speak it. But I have no chance of ever making much money and I'm not a Timothy Meath." With an effort he added, "I have nothing to offer her, and we all know what she has."

• • •

SHANE DESMOND put his hand on Kevin's shoulder. And then he, too, went quickly through the door leading into the castle. For the first time since they had met again he hoped he would not meet Mrs. O'Donnell on his way, for he was boldly making his way up to Bridget Malone's bedroom, and he didn't wish to be asked any questions, even by the darling of his heart.

He knocked on Bridget's door and heard an almost whispered "Come in."

The girl was sitting by the window, gazing out at the marvelous view she believed would soon be only a memory.

Bridget naturally supposed it was the maid come to put out her evening frock, so she did not turn around. She felt as if wounded all over—the thought of saying or hearing commonplace words was agony.

Col. Desmond walked across to where she stood and tapped her on the arm.

She turned around and he saw her pale, distraught face.

"Now listen to me, Bridget. Kevin has just admitted that he loves you with all his heart and soul. But he says he will never ask you to marry him because of the difference in your fortunes."

"What can I do if he feels like that?" she asked in a trembling tone.

He took her cold hand in his. "Though you're an Irishwoman, what was good enough for Queen Victoria ought to be good enough for you. You will have to ask Kevin to marry you."

Still holding her hand, he led her downstairs, right to the door of the terrace. Then he pushed her through the door.

Kevin, his arms crossed, was gazing unseeingly before him. She called out "Kevin?" in a weak, trembling voice.

He came toward her with "Why are you crying?"

And she answered, "It's the thought of leaving you that's making me dreadfully unhappy."

He took her in his arms hungrily, masterfully. His lips sought and found her soft, innocent lips. "I wish you were poor," he muttered at last, "for then you would see how I would work for you."

There was no need for words when they joined the other pair and they all drank the healths of one another that night in the last two bottles of champagne left in the castle cellars.

(THE END.)

Beginning Next Week A beautiful, impetuous girl, a once great ranch now beset by debt, a magnetic young man and his magnificent horse, cowboys, cattle rustlers who ride trucks instead of horses, gangsters, and desperate fights—all these are woven into "Majesty's Rancho," the new serial by Zane Grey which starts next week. The scene, as might be imagined, is the great southwest. The story, however, opens in Hollywood.

An Open Letter to Deanna Durbin

DEANNA DURBIN

Dear Deanna: You have a wonderful start on a great career, but there is much more to it than the start. Your emotions are going to develop quickly from here on, and they are going to prove very tricky playmates for the rest of your character. Be most cautious in the placing of your affections, for your second guess will be quite a bit better than your first. Career? You have excellent lasting qualities—and will have to use them. With best wishes,

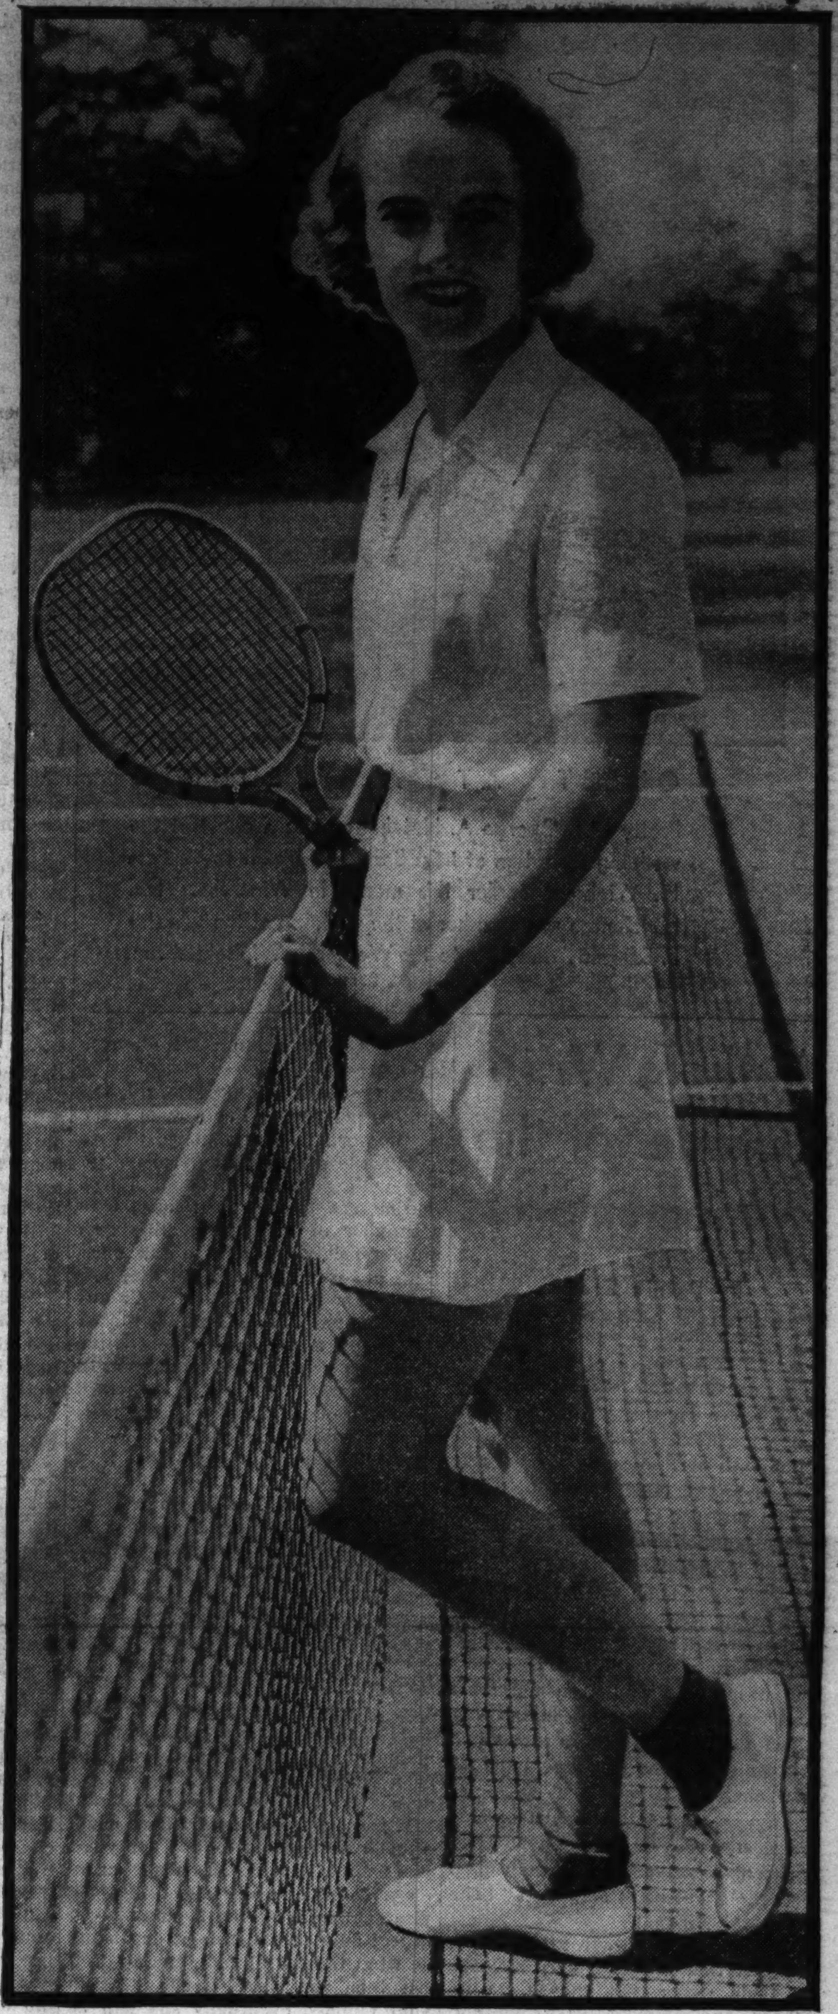
Chicago Sunday Tribune
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER
SEPTEMBER 19, 1937.

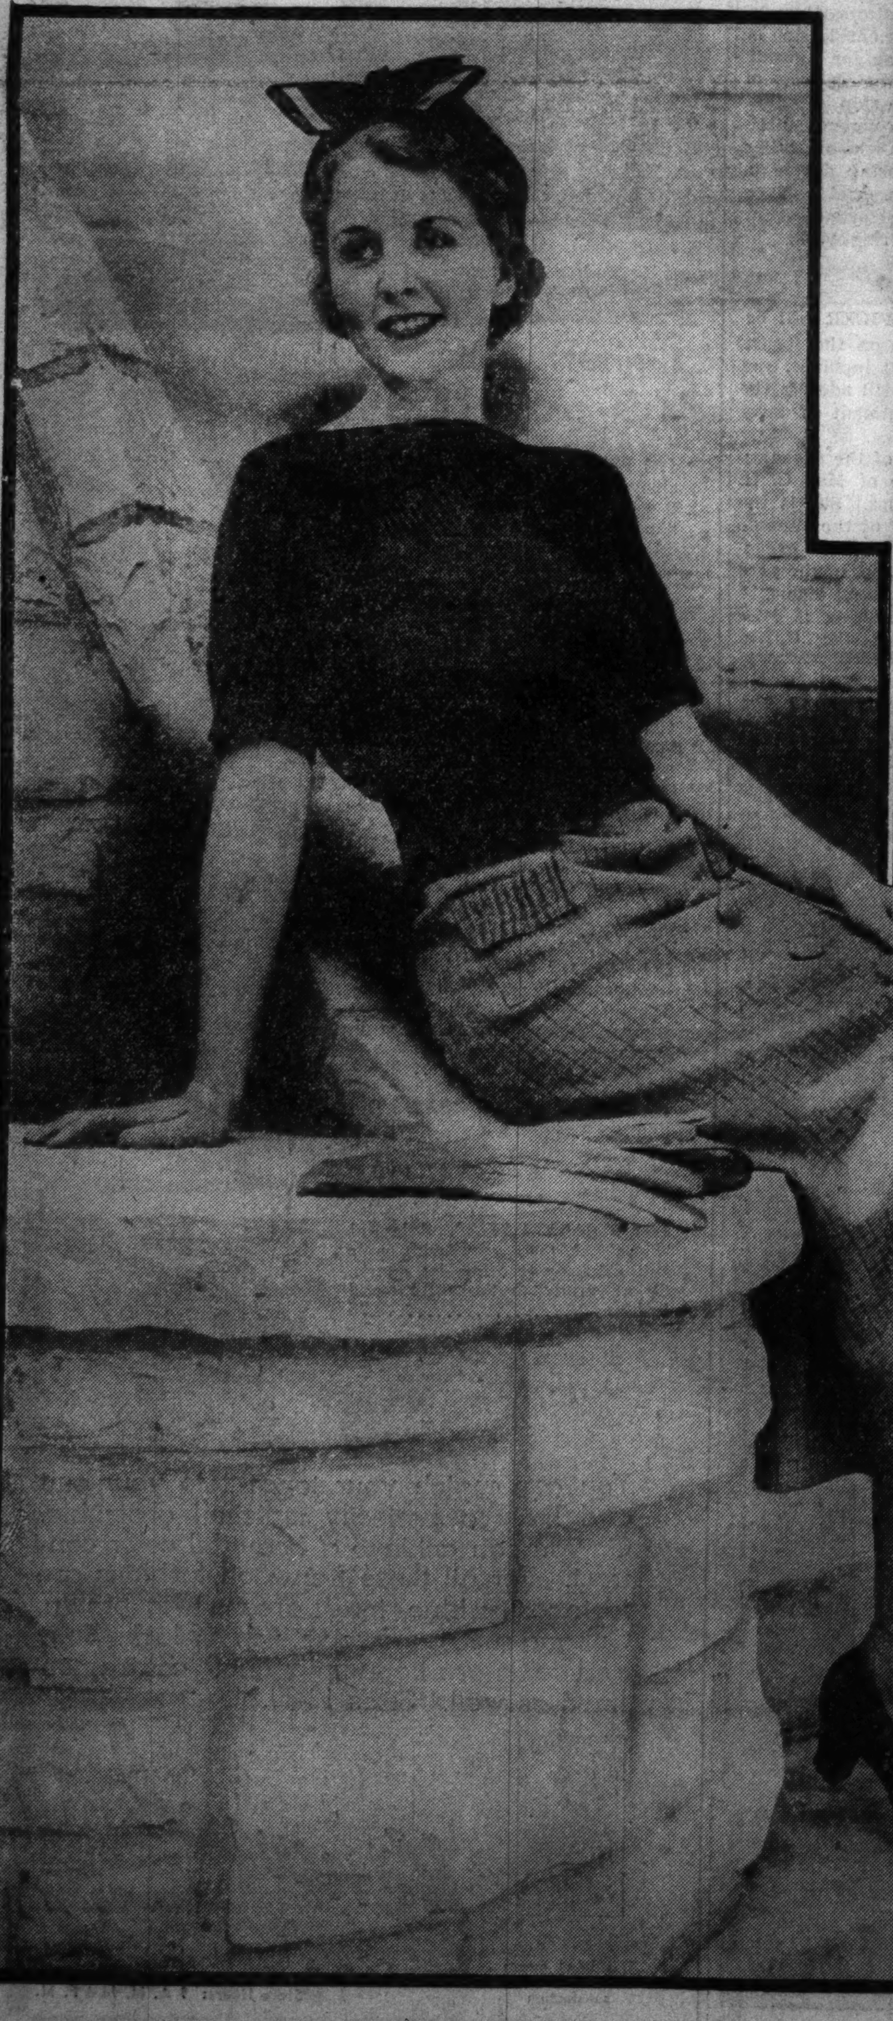
Left: Another of the half a hundred young women taking part in this season's debutante festivities is Miss Frances Orcutt. Miss Orcutt was at a debutante luncheon at the Saddle and Cycle club when our cameraman found her earlier this month.

Miss Virginia Brock is going south to school this year, having entered St. Mary's college at Raleigh, N. C. Miss Brock is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Brock of Kenilworth.

(TRIBUNE PHOTOS)



Right: Mrs. Hugh M. Johnston, the former Miss Deborah Butler, plays tennis frequently at the Onwentsia. Last Tuesday and Wednesday she watched tennis instead of playing, however, for the international tennis matches at the Onwentsia claimed the attention of Chicagoland fans.



Mrs. Philip S. Graver is a member of the Ridge Service Guild auxiliary of Beverly Hills. The auxiliary is planning a benefit supper-dance for the night of Oct. 2 at the Sherry hotel.

Miss Ann Elizabeth Hall, a debutante of the season, is a student at Mount Vernon Junior college this year. Her grandmother, Mrs. John Burton Foley, and Mrs. John D. Galbraith gave a luncheon for her and for Miss Louise Galbraith earlier this month, and the two young women will have another party Dec. 20.

Miss Ellen Bull was introduced to society at a tea-dance at the Indian Hill club last Wednesday. She is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Bull of Winnetka.

GUEST AT A WEDDING

Pretty Mrs. George A. Hutchinson was a guest at the wedding reception of Miss Barbara Sargent to William H. Wieboldt earlier this month in Winnetka. Mr. Hutchinson was an usher at the wedding of the Chester F. Sargents' daughter to the Werner A. Wieboldts' son.

Authors Write Guide for the Homemakers

By Doris Blake.

A CROSS section of bridge table conversation would almost convince one that a woman carries her home problems to the card game with her. Anyway, a cross section of bridge table conversation did reveal that one of the chief interests of the average woman who can afford a maid is the maid.

"Does your maid serve properly?" you hear. "My maid can't seem to systemize her work." Or, from another: "Yes, my maid can cook but she never gets things on the table hot!" And some women couldn't talk about their maids because theirs had left, or they were just breaking in a new one.

Anyway, that is the report of Lita Price and Harriet Bonnet who have written a guide for the one-maid household, entitled "Maidcraft" [The Bobbs-Merrill Co.].

The authors call our attention to the fact that few men ever mention to their wives that they have replaced one employe with another. But what husband does not know it when his wife has changed maids, they ask, hinting that efficiency as the man practices it is not always current in his home.

The authors admit that no one expects the machine-like precision in a home that exists in business—yet, they wisely remind housewives, order and routine are great aids to peace of mind. In most households, they note, changing help means a sort of minor upheaval.

• • •

PERHAPS the very nature of home running will not permit of it ever becoming one of those systematized institutions that can run itself for a while, at least. "It takes years to evolve such a system and even then few of us," say the authors, "take time to write it down or put it into simple, understandable form."

The Misses Price and Bonnet have done that for us in their clever guide.

"You do want your home to run efficiently and you want to spend a minimum amount of time making the wheels go round.

"If you're starting in with your first maid, you will want to start right. Or, if you're training a new maid after losing one you've had so long you've forgotten all the hundreds of things she did without even bothering you, you'll need help. In either case, you hesitate about keeping your usual appointments or about leaving home for any length of time. It is not pleasant to start all over again."

But the maid has her side, too, the authors point out. For a maid starting to work in a new home, the experience is a trying one. No matter how willing she is to adopt a new routine, she finds herself faced with a number of difficulties. She may quite sensibly hesitate to ask questions at every turn and yet may feel uneasy about going ahead with any duty about which she is in doubt.

"If only there were some written directions which she could consult without making a nuisance of herself by asking questions about every little thing! There is so much to be told about the care of a home that it is hard to remember to mention everything, to outline duties in a clear fashion so that the maid does not become too confused to remember what she is told."

• • •

A TIP in the foregoing for the mistress not to be impatient with the new worker, nor to criticize in a "stage aside" loud enough for the maid's sensitive ears, an error in manners and management we have been forced to listen to more than once.

If you engage an experienced maid, all you need do is to tell her what you expect. But if you engage an inexperienced one, our authorities advise explaining at the beginning you expect only certain things, depending on what the girl already knows. Tell her then and there, if she stays in your employ, eventually she will be able to do more. But in any employing of a maid, experienced or not, there should be a clear understanding about the amount of her wages; who pays for unavoidable breakage; how many meals are to be served daily and the approximate hours; whether or not she is to do all or part of the laundry; whether you or she furnishes the uniforms, if required; what afternoons and evenings she will have off duty; whether or not she may entertain company; what entrance she and her friends are to use and whether there are restrictions on her use of the telephone and whether she will be required to look after the children.

In a chapter on suggestions to be given the maid for daily housework, we see the proper method of making a bed emphasized, and, indeed, illustrated. Which reminds us of how comparatively few mistresses themselves know how to perform this simple household duty neatly, much less properly.

Every day there is presented in the feature columns of the Chicago Tribune a stimulating article by Miss Blake, who lends friendly counsel on a wide variety of common problems.

Wedding Bells Hold Interest of Pasadenans

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL.

Society here and in Chicago is looking forward with interest to the marriage of Miss Nancy Belle Bayly, daughter of Mrs. Ada Seeley Bayly of Flintridge and Roy Downer Bayly of Los Angeles, who is to become the bride of Howard Haradon Jr. on Saturday evening. Although only a small number of guests can be accommodated in the little Church of Our Saviour in neighboring San Gabriel, the event will link two prominent society families well known to Chicago winter colonists and to those who summer at Montecito, for Miss Bayly is a member [or will be until Saturday] of the Santa Barbara Spinsters. Its president, Miss Winnie Vilsack, will be a bridesmaid, as will Miss Jane Pond, native Chicagoan, whose engagement to Edward H. Groenendyke Jr. was announced a week ago. Miss Maybelle Bayly will be her sister's maid of honor, and other bridesmaids are Miss Susan Haradon and Mrs. Harold Cook Jr. [Marguerite Fiedler].

Alex Hixon, also well known in Chicago, is one of the ushers. Miss Bayly is a cousin of Mr. and Mrs. William Harber Hart [Martha Seeley] of Chicago.

• • •

UP in Montecito they're still discussing the Hunter-Renshaw wedding—all white against a background of white flowers making a shrine before one of the large windows of the Valley club where Miss Lilla Renshaw, daughter of Mrs. Joseph Coleman Jr. and the late Howard Price Renshaw of Chicago, became the bride of Phelps Stokes Hunter, member of a well known California family.

Mrs. Iris Rogers, popular resident of Hotel Huntington, leaves this week for Chicago, where she will be at the Drake, and then on to New York and Baltimore. Young Iris will be left behind, for school is beginning and that calls her back to Polytechnic and her old friends. Mrs. Rogers is hardly home from Honolulu, where she and her daughter summered. She will return here in six weeks and remain until California spring sets in next February. Then she will leave for Miami Beach.

"Hibernating" at the Huntington are Mr. and Mrs. Stephens McIver and their son, Edward, who closed their home here when they went to Harbor Point for the summer and will not reopen it until Oct. 1.

• • •

ACCORDING to architectural authorities the unusual residence of the Arthur Meekers, formerly of Chicago, is one of the finest of its type and is unlike any of its neighbors in the Montecito countryside. It is indeed a country home, and its rococo decoration of shells, employed also in the garden, is an excellent example of a type peculiar to Capetown. It exhibits both Dutch and French influence, the latter due to the influx of Huguenot refugees in the latter part of the 17th century. The late John Hays Hammond, who, with Harry Howard Webb, was consulting engineer for Cecil Rhodes, once said that no house in South Africa was as beautiful as the Meekers'.

"Utter enchantment and a superabundance of fish" describes the Pardee Erdman "Folly" ranch near Sheridan, Wyo., according to the Harold Landreths, who, with their children, Kathie and Jim, have been visiting the former Eleanor Donnelly and her professor-husband in the northwest. The Erdmans soon will be officially at home again in Pasadena.

The George Burnhams of San Diego entertained at dinner for 18 guests recently, honoring the Clifton Copleys, who are moving soon to Los Angeles.

Mrs. W. Kermit Wilson [Eleanor Boadway] arrives in Pasadena from Chicago on Oct. 13 to be matron of honor for Miss Barbara Stevens, who is to be married at a large church wedding to Robert L. Stump.

Woman, 107, Has Formula for Health and Happiness

AT the age of 107 years, Mrs. Emma Barboza of Harwich, Mass., has no formula for "long living," but she has one for health and happiness. Ever since her youth she has kept regular hours for eating and resting and has pursued some hobby as well as a job. At her advanced age she still can read and sew without spectacles, her family says.

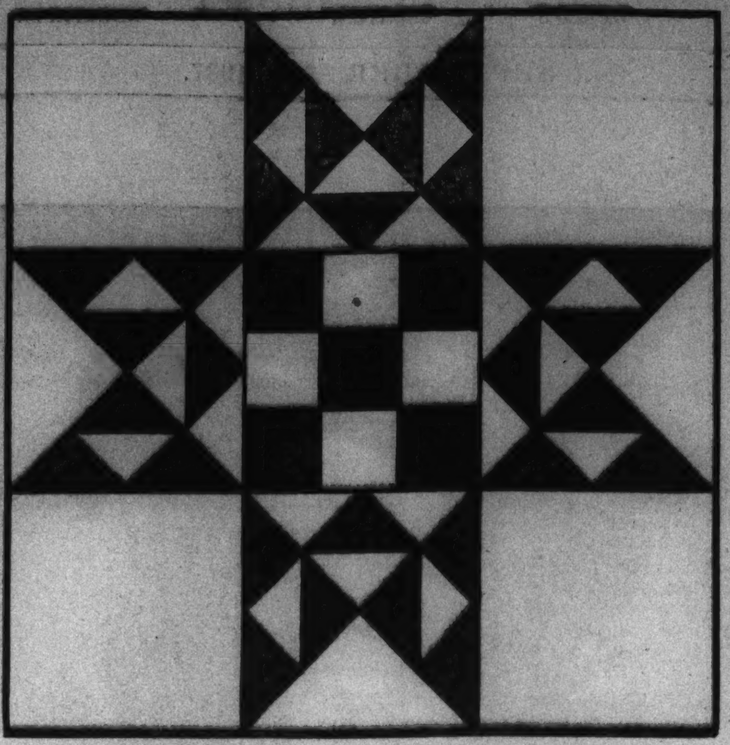
Popular Quilt Undergoes a Change in Its Title



PRESIDENT'S BLOCK.

By Nancy Cabot.

"PRESIDENT'S BLOCK" is none other than the famous "Dolly Madison Star." How its name was changed has not been definitly decided, but the "Dolly Madison Star" is such a popular quilt that it is recognized immediately anywhere. It is not a difficult pattern to piece and when finished measures 12 inches square. The blocks are set together with five inch bands of white material and surrounded by a five inch border and a half inch red bias binding. The "Dolly Madison Star" was set together with alternate blocks of white and finished with a wide 10 inch border quilted in a running feather design. This block is quilted on the border, and bands between, with a running cable cord.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Printed Linen Design Comes from Quilt

Next Sunday there will be a color page of home furnishings in this section celebrating National furniture week. Photographs of furniture, upholsteries, and draperies for the winter season will all appear in natural hues.

By Claire Winslow.

AMONG the most interesting printed linens to be seen in many a season are a series made by a celebrated manufacturer and called "Periwig." They are authentic copies of eighteenth century English designs, and the following letter, written by a woman in an old Connecticut town, explains how they were found.

"Early this spring," she writes, "I decided to explore the attic in our old home. The house, built about 1680, has been in the family continuously since 1740. The accumulation of family documents, wills, inventories and old discarded bedding, shawls, and clothing was stored under the eaves in numerous chests and old trunks.

"One chest, tucked far back in a dark corner, intrigued me. It was made of hide, reinforced with iron bands and adorned with narrow strips of lether held in place by countless hand wrought studded nails.

"The interior was lined with the London Magazine, dated November, 1762. And there were shawls from India and Persia and pieces of antique toile de jouy in the chest. At the very bottom was a wonderful handblocked printed quilt. I took the quilt downstairs and spread it out. It was lined with homespun linen and the balance of the border was a six inch strip of toile de jouy. Each three inch block was a rare bit of handblocked printing and every one a different pattern.

• • •

"I DECIDED right then that if there was some process whereby these prints could be reproduced I would have some of them copied so that I might bring back and make live again these quaint designs of bygone days."

Her wish resulted in the series of "Periwig" prints, now available in Chicago and in many other cities. These charming linens are suitable for window draperies, for bedspreads, and for slipcovers. They are, of course, ideal in the early American maple and the colonial mahogany room, although they adapt themselves to other types of decoration, as well.

One lovely print is an all-over tiny design of a figure like a tiny pine tree in a white circle. The colors are brown with white, red, and blue. Another having a delicate green ground shows a scatter pattern of flower sprigs and cross-barred squares in red and yellow. The same print comes also in white with blue and gray beige.

• • •

THERE is a decided trend toward quilting this fall. You'll see quilted chintzes for bedspreads and for draperies, too. Favorite colors are light olive green, turquoise, and gunmetal for backgrounds, with floral patterns in contrasting hues. The pastel tones, peach, coral, flesh, blue, beige, bisque, etc., continue popular for bedroom draperies.

Next week we'll tell you about the new materials for living room draperies and upholsteries—satins, brocatelles, mohair, wools, and matelasses.

Tea Strainer Is Good Press for Hardcooked Egg

TO prepare hard cooked egg yolks or cheese for a garnish, press them through a small tea strainer placed directly over the food.

Make a grape salad by spreading halves of pears with cream cheese. Arrange the pears, hollow side down, on crisp lettuce. Embed halves of grapes in the cream cheese on top. Add a tiny stem of any edible green.

A bushel of pears or peaches will produce about fifteen quarts if the fruit is canned in halves.

Relics of the Suffrage Era Fill Museum

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON

Suffrage is so old in this country that a museum about it has been opened. It is a small museum, in the basement of the Minerva club in Bloomsbury, and is sponsored by the Women's Freedom league. The old suffragists go there to revive old memories and the young feminists go there to marvel at what women did in those days of long skirts, small waists, and large hats.

• • •

THE gay purple, white, and gold banners line the walls and pictures of the women carrying them remind one of a corps de ballet more than the old fight for votes. There is a picture of Mrs. Pankhurst as she was then, a small fragile woman with an indomitable face, and the letter she addressed to Miss Cristabel Pankhurst: "If I do not return." It was written after her arrest in 1914 when she did not expect to survive another imprisonment and hunger strike.

There is the race card of Miss Emily Davidson who threw herself in front of the king's winning horse at the Derby and was killed. There is the MSS. of the late Lady Constance Lytton, who went to prison as "Jane Wharton" in order to avoid preferential treatment. She lost the use of her right hand as a result of her prison experiences.

• • •

ON the less tragic side is an exhibit of the chain which encircled the waist of Miss Edith New, who bound herself to the railings of Downing street. One can venture the statement that no one who views it today could get it around her waist!

And there is a copy of the "cat and mouse" act which gave the prison authorities the right to discharge a person who was likely to die, but to reclaim her for imprisonment as soon as life was assured.

Miss Marion Reeves, who helped organize the museum, spoke of the work that remains for women to do for themselves in fighting for equal pay for equal work. She also mused on what had happened to the old fighters. Mrs. Pankhurst became a Tory, Christabel got religion, and Mrs. Drummond, "the general," went all imperialist.

The new feminist can be found aplenty in London this month when the British Association of Women Engineers is holding its fifteenth annual meeting.

Man, menaced in every sphere of life by women competitors, thought for a while that the scientific side of engineering was secure for himself. But there will be on the platform of this meeting women ship builders, aero engineers, air company directors, inventors, women who are called upon to give engineering advice in government inquiries, and women who write the most scholarly treatises on all lines of engineering work.

• • •

MISS DOROTHY SPICER will deliver an address on the formation of ice on aircraft in flight, and Miss Pauline Gower will address the meeting on the treatment of steel for aero engines.

One of the officers of the organization is also the wife of Maj. C. H. [Social Credit] Douglas. She is the director and manager of the Hamble shipyard. Her chief job is to organize and oversee the duties of the yard and direct the shipbuilding teams.

A visitor at the meeting is Miss Maude Gardner from the United States, who during the war assisted the British ministry of munitions in America and has been an inspector of airplanes and aero engines and scientific aid to the American national advisory committee for aeronautics.

GOES ABROAD TO STUDY

Miss Jeanette McCartan, daughter of the Austin R. McCartans of 3100 Sheridan road, sailed on Sept. 16 to attend school at Ivy House in London this winter. Later she will study in France and Switzerland. She was graduated from the Girls' Latin school last June.

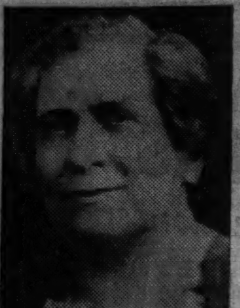
Hadassah Is to Hear Report on Palestine

MISS PEARL FRANKLIN, national vice president of Hadassah, and honorary president of the Chicago chapter, will report on the recent world Zionist congress at Zurich, Switzerland, at Hadassah's opening meeting of the season at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday at the Covenant club. A large proportion of the Chicago chapter's 3,700 members will be present to hear Miss Franklin, who returned recently from abroad.



Miss Pearl Franklin.

At the same time the organization's membership drive for 1938 will be launched. Mrs. Benjamin Levinson, membership chairman, will direct the drive. Mrs. Harry M. Fisher is president of the Chicago chapter.

Plans for the new year will be discussed at the first board meeting of the Mothers' Aid of the Chicago Lying-In hospital Wednesday in Dora De Lee hall of the hospital. Contributory members are to be added this year, supplementing the work of working members. In the last two years the organization of 1,300 members has been increased by 200. Mrs. S. Eugene Rosenbacher is membership chairman.

• • •

THE Mothers' Aid gift shop, started last year at the Lying-In hospital, and operated entirely by members on a volunteer basis, is to be continued this year. Mrs. Joseph Gidwitz is chairman with Mrs. Harold Aronson and Miss Caroline Bender as assistants.

Social service work, including motor service for patients and doctors, collection and delivery of layettes for newborn babies, library, guide and clerical work, sewing of bandages and selling of the organization's book, "My Baby's First Seven Years," are other activities of the group. The book has sold more than 90,000 copies in eight years. Mrs. Morris Fishbein is beginning her third year as president of the Mothers' Aid.

Mrs. Morris Fishbein.

The Chicago division of the National Home for Jewish Children will resume its activities at a meeting at 2 o'clock Wednesday at the Congress hotel. Officers will be hostesses at a handkerchief keno party.

The organization helps to maintain a home established in Denver in 1907 for children of destitute tuberculous parents. The thirtieth anniversary of the institution was marked by the dedication of new buildings in June.

• • •

HEADING the Chicago division are Mrs. Samuel Heller, honorary president; Mrs. Maurice S. Levy, president; Mrs. Ben Gorschen, first vice president; Mrs. Martin Wolf, second vice president; Mrs. Nathan Gilbert, third vice president; Mrs. William Kielle, recording secretary; Mrs. Meyer Zimbler, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Al Levin, financial secretary, and Mrs. Monroe Phillips, treasurer.

Mrs. I. Shoen, Mrs. Leo Ferdinand, Mrs. Clay Kelly, and Mrs. Phillip Bell are trustees. Mrs. Harry Rochelle is publicity chairman, and Mrs. Shoen, program chairman.

Dr. Louis Binstock, rabbi of Temple Sholem, will speak at the annual Succoth meeting of the B. M. Z. Woman's club at 2 o'clock Wednesday at the Old People's home, 1648 South Albany avenue. Eva Gordon Horadesky will sing. The meeting will open another season for the organization, which on Dec. 6 will celebrate its silver anniversary with a luncheon at the Drake hotel. The club is helping to finance the extension of the hospital at the home.

Mrs. Joseph Lewis is president of the club. Serving with her are Miss Anna E. Lebensohn, first vice president; Mrs. M. A. Samuels, second vice president; Mrs. S. Hokin, recording secretary; Mrs. H. S. Aberman, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Paul Ginsburg, financial secretary; and Mrs. M. Kaplan, treasurer.

The junior auxiliary to the B. M. Z. Woman's club will open its season with a meeting at 2:30 o'clock today at the Congress hotel. Marta Marenof will lecture on "Wandering Through Palestine," illustrating her talk with slides, while Shaindel Reznick furnishes a musical accompaniment.

HEADS BALL COMMITTEE

Mrs. Charles A. Mortimer is chairman of the committee planning the Monte Carlo ball to be given by the Ridge Service guild auxiliary of Beverly Hills on Saturday, Oct. 2, in the Casino of the Congress hotel.

Lord Dufferin Is Planning Cruise in Irish Waters

LONDON Lord Dufferin, who has been London's important invalid for some time, now has recovered enough to buy a yacht and prepare to cruise in Irish waters during his convalescence. He will be accompanied by Lady Dufferin, whose father sold Lord Dufferin the yacht.

Ernest Guinness, England's premier yachtsman, still has another yacht of greater size and, to replace the one he sold his son-in-law, he has bought the schooner "The Flying Cloud," a four master of 1,195 tons, from Nelson B. Warden of Philadelphia.

Lord Dufferin is renaming the yacht Connemara and sending her to Strangford while he goes to his Ulster home for a few weeks.

I can't say much for bath-tubs,
They seem very tame to me,
I've been bathing all the summer
In a place they call the sea.

The water there is salt
And it's very full of fish,
And there are tides and winds and waves,
Whatever kind you wish.

A bath-tub seems so very tame,
Completely without hope
Of storm or danger—still, in one,
You do not lose your soap!

End of Debut Whirl Finds Buds Serious

By Judith Cass.

THIS week marks the end of the wild whirl that has kept the debutantes busy for the last two weeks, for most of the debs are returning to their studies this week, or next, and the small number remaining at home will settle down for a bit of rest before the season in town begins. Those who will be here to model in the St. Luke's fashion show on Oct. 19 will go to the Casino Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock to be the guests of Mrs. Frank P. Hixon, Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams, Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., and Mrs. John W. Gary.

At the tea they will give their measurements to a secretary, who will add to each girl's card comments of her own that will help the committee in choosing the models. "Tall, blonde, lovely" might be an observation, or "short and dumpy" might be another, so, needless to say, the prospects will not see what is written on their description cards. Sometimes, however, the girls who look commonplace, or even unattractive at a tea, are the most glamorous on the runway in the ballroom of the Stevens hotel, where the famous St. Luke's shows are held each fall.

• • •

EVERY ONE knows how important makeup, posture, a smart and becoming coiffure and chic clothes are to a woman, so it does not follow that only those who look attractive at Tuesday's tea will be chosen to display the very last word in fashions on Oct. 19. Before that day, however, most of the debutantes will have a chance to try their hands, or feet, at being models, for the Winnetka board of Northwestern university settlement is having its annual early fall fashion show next Saturday afternoon. It will be held in the Skokie school auditorium in Winnetka, with dozens of luncheon parties preceding it.

Mrs. John P. Hooker is general chairman of the large committee that has been working for weeks to make the show the success that it is certain to be. Mrs. Harold O. Barnes is co-chairman, and chairmen of subcommittees are Mrs. N. Landon Hoyt Jr., Mrs. W. Edwin Smith, Mrs. Ernst von Ammon, Mrs. Robert Butz, Mrs. Austin Jenner, Mrs. Edwin C. Price, Mrs. Whipple Jacobs, Mrs. William O. Coleman, Mrs. Walter A. Strong, Mrs. Charles R. Jacobs, Mrs. Rawleigh Warner, Mrs. Clarence Randall, Mrs. Richard A. Aishton, Mrs. Martin Lindsay, Mrs. Robert S. Laird, Mrs. William S. Warfield III., Mrs. Calvin Selfridge, Mrs. Harold Wilder, and Mrs. Edward B. Hall.

This afternoon Mrs. Warren Corning is giving a tea at her Sheridan road home in Winnetka for debutante Margot Webbe, and tonight Mrs. Sidney Bartlett will entertain at supper at her Sheridan road home for Miss Webbe and Miss Helen Shoemaker.

• • •

TONIGHT is the first night of the Chicago engagement of Claire Boothe's comedy, "The Women," but many of Chicago's regular "first-nighters" are postponing their appearance at the Erlanger theater until tomorrow night. Among them are the Byron S. Harveys, Mrs. Welch Dickinson, the Orville Taylors, the William E. Vogelbacks, the Franklin M. Millers, and the George J. Noees.

Mrs. Freeman Hinckley is giving a luncheon Tuesday at the Saddle and Cycle club for her debutante daughter, Miss Eleanor McClurg, who leaves next Sunday for her first year at Smith college. Miss McClurg's debut will be at a ball at the Blackstone on Dec. 27.

Miss McClurg is among the girls invited to a tea the Chicago Smith College club is giving Tuesday afternoon at the Chicago College club for members of the class of '41 and all other undergraduates in the Chicago area. Mrs. Fred G. Heuchling is president of the Smith club.

LOVERS of fine horses will be going to Fort Sheridan Saturday and Sunday, when the annual horse show will be held. There will be events all day on both days, with the military exhibition that always is an exciting climax to the show given each evening. Proceeds, as usual, will go to the Army Relief society and post activities. Gen. Philip B. Peyton, Fort Sheridan's new commanding officer is general chairman of the show.

The Charles Hosmer Morses and their daughter, Baroness Wolfgang Beck von Peccoz, are entertaining at the Morse home in Lake Forest next Sunday from 5 to 7 o'clock for Charles H. Morse Jr. and his June bride, the former Miss Elizabeth Bonbright of Detroit.

French Woolen Frock Is Topped by Fur Bolero

A SMART new Paris outfit for fall consists of a gray mixture dress topped with a bolero of gray Indian lamb. The jacket is bordered all around with a scalloped finish of the fabric worked into several rows of cording. A belt of wine red suede, and a red felt hat brighten the costume.

AIDS IN CHARITY WORK

Mrs. Frederick V. Turner is a member of the Ridge Service guild auxiliary of Beverly Hills, which is planning a Monte Carlo ball Oct. 2 at the Congress hotel. Proceeds will go to the organization's charities, which include the Morgan Park Home for Dependent Children.

Quality in Carpets Depends Upon the Selection of Wools

QUALITY in carpets depends first on selection of the wools. Almost no wool grown in the United States is suitable for floor coverings. It is too soft and has little resilience. The best wools are grown in the high Andes, Persia, Scotland, Iceland, the Russian steppes, and in the wildernesses of Tibet and Mongolia.

The woolen yarn is spun so as to lay the fibers crisscross and interlocking. Some worsted yarn is included, however. This is long and straight. It costs about one-third per pound more to spin than wool, takes five times as long in manufacture and thirty more mill operations.

Much research is required to blend the various wools in the most effective way for each purpose. After the carpets are woven, even the expert has great difficulty in determining the enduring qualities of the wools used by inspecting a roll of carpeting.

British Nurses Seeking Their Own Trade Union

LONDON More than one hundred thousand nurses in the British Isles are agitating for a trade union of their own. A charter, setting out the minimum requirements in regard to hours, wages, and conditions of work, is being drawn up by an advisory committee of the Trades Union congress, which is considering the question of employés in hospitals and other institutions.

Nurses now are included in half a dozen other unions and are represented in the Trades Union congress by George Gibson, general secretary of the Institutional Workers' union. In trade union circles it generally is thought that a solution will be found in the formation of a joint body of employers and nurses which will administer matters connected with the profession, including the application of minimum conditions of service.

British Insurance Firms' Employes Growing Restive

LONDON Some 50,000 black coated employés of the big British insurance companies are getting restive. They want the 1931 cuts in their salaries restored.

Back in 1920 the late Lord Northcliffe of the Daily Mail backed the striking employés of an insurance company and brought them victory in two weeks. He returned to the insurance company an advertisment which it had tendered to the Weekly Dispatch and announced that he was contributing the $2,500, which the advertisment would have yielded his paper, to the strikers' fund and that the Daily Mail would contribute $5,000 a week to the strike fund.

Lord Beaverbrook is the only one of the big London publishers who follows attentively the struggles of black coated workers. His papers give a good deal of support to the efforts of the Bank Officers' guild and the Guild of Insurance Officials.

DETOUR

By Frederic Babcock.

LAKE LOUISE, Alberta.—[By Mail.]—A writer in the Calgary Herald pointed out the other day that if one is to know and appreciate the mountains he must get "back beyond"; that is, he must leave the rails and roads and follow the trails up over the passes.

- This is the way the Canadian writer put it:

"You would not think of saying that you knew a certain personage because you had passed by his home. Yet some say, and think, that they know the mountains simply because they have traveled over a certain auto road or railway. They have only passed by the front door, as it were.

"The trails lead you into the laboratories and flower gardens of the mountains. Here, as one travels along, new flowers of brilliant hues deck the open spaces, lakes of exquisite color burst upon your view, or some denizen of the forest startles you as it suddenly springs across the trail. As you mount higher and higher you reach nature's great laboratories, where she is patiently making new soil. Her tools are the glaciers, which are persistently and surely grinding down the mountains. This fight is ever going on, the forces of nature pitting themselves against the everlasting hills, and winning out.

"One has only to keep his eyes and ears open to realize this truth. The rush and roar of the winds, thunder and lightning, the falling avalanche, the rushing, silt laden streams, all proclaim the final triumph.

"What a change one sees, even in the forests, as one mounts higher! As one reaches the 7,000 foot contour, the forests of spruce, fir, and balsam give way to the Lyall larches, with their delicate light green foliage, which in fall turns to a glorious gold.

"Further on, vegetation is making a strenuous fight to get a foothold on the unsightly moraines. It, too, will win out, and in time cover these great heaps of mud and stones. Our railways and motor roads seldom go higher than 5,000 feet, but our trails mount up to 9,000 feet sometimes. Here, on the high Alp-land passes, trees are left behind and rough grasses with an occasional flower are under foot. The trail [if any] will be indicated by markers, either cairns of stone or stakes four or five feet high."

- All of which seemed fair enough.

So we looked over the field of trail riding opportunities, grabbed a Brewster bus for Lake Wapta, and there started on horseback for Lake O'Hara.

O'Hara is one of the places you can't reach by motor. It lies eight miles straight up the valley from Wapta, and whatever discomforts are experienced by the tenderfoot on the way are forgotten when he gets there. The lake has an indescribable color—a color that is seldom constant for more than a minute or so, and that sometimes changes with bewildering rapidity under the influence of passing cloud or wind. All around are mountains, glaciers, and forests. You are completely shut off from the marks of modern civilization.

- They tell me that there are more than 700 miles of good trails in Banff National park and vicinity, and that there are so many places to see it would take a whole season to take them all in. Assiniboine, Paradise, Kicking Horse, Ottertail, Sherbrooke . . . even the names are fascinating enough to cause the most tenderfooted dude to wonder why he can't stick around and visit them each in turn. . . . It's pretty late now to do much more horseback riding, but another season will be rolling around in a few months, and who knows but what he'll have his chance again?

- It seems to be inevitable that whenever Americans visit a foreign country they start comparing its attractions with those of their own land. . . . The national parks hereabouts may not have Yellowstone's freaks of nature, or the Grand canyon's awesome grandeur, or Yosemite's big trees. . . . But for towering peaks, shimmering lakes, chattering streams, and facilities for rest and recreation they can hold their own with Yellowstone, Glacier, Rainier, Yosemite, Rocky Mountain, and all the rest of the American playgrounds.

North Carolina Is Rare Beauty Spot, Says Ex-Chicagoan

DR. JAMES MURRAY WASHBURN, formerly a widely known north side physician, retired a number of years ago to Lake Lure, in the western North Carolina mountain region. Last Wednesday, back in Chicago for a brief visit, he showed a hundred of his old friends, gathered in the Tower room of the Drake, a large selection of his own color photographs of scenes and people in the Blue Ridge mountains, demonstrating that in lakes and woodland, and in color and foliage, in all seasons of the year, the region is a contender among the world's beauty spots.

Dr. Washburn surprised his friends with the statement that in the Appalachian range in North Carolina alone there are more than 80 mountains more than 5,000 feet high, and that within the last few years the state has spent $200,000,000 on good roads. He said that, as a beauty spot and as a place for motoring and touring, North Carolina hitherto has been comparatively unknown, or at least unappreciated.

TIPS TO TOURISTS

What's your travel problem? Address queries regarding where to go, how to get there, costs, and accommodations to the Travelers' Guide, Chicago Tribune, inclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope.

What are the principal outdoor sports at Turkey Run State park in Indiana? A. D. H.

Horseback riding, hiking, tennis, golf, swimming, archery, and bicycling.

Is it possible to visit New Zealand on a trip to Australia? H. L. M.

Yes. You can either break your trip to Australia with a stopover in New Zealand or take one of the regular intercoastal voyages between the two countries.

Please tell us something about the Laurentian mountians. D. P.

They are easily entered by way of Montreal. Older than either the Rockies or the Himalayas, they cover more than nine-tenths of the province of Quebec. Their height varies little more than from 1,000 to 1,500 feet, but their variety of scenery and wild life have made them one of America's favorite playgrounds. Golf, tennis, riding, and other outdoor sports are available in the more than a million acres of forest, stream, and undulating valleys.

Just what is the "turnabout" cactus found in Jamaica? W. E.

It is so called because it turns night into day by blooming regularly only after dark. Its flowers are exquisite and creamy white, and emit a delicate perfume.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

THIS is the time of the year when the lake regions up north and the mountains out west are being daubed in color, awaiting the arrival of the nature fans, along with the hunters and anglers who find some of their best sport in the fall.

Chicago railroad men say the north woods of Wisconsin, Michigan, and Minnesota are attracting more visitors each year. Nearby spots, such as Turkey Run and Starved Rock, also are being heavily patronized. Reports from Canada have it that there is a generous supply of moose, deer, and black bear in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Ontario, and Quebec, and that the hunters will find plenty of mountain sheep, elk, goat, grizzly and black bear, moose, caribou, and deer in Manitoba and Saskatchewan. Wyoming's open season on big game began last Wednesday and will last until Nov. 30. The Montana season runs from Oct. 15 to Nov. 15. This year bear, deer, elk, antelope, moose, and mountain sheep are on the shooting lists, and many of the dude ranches out there are remaining open to accommodate the sportsmen.

Tom Wall has received word from the Brewster Transport company in the Canadian Rockies that, even though the Canadian Pacific hotels out there closed down last week for the season, the two day, all expense tours by motor will continue until Oct. 15. The Mount Royal hotel at Banff and the Deer lodge at Lake Louise will remain open to take care of travelers stopping off on their way to and from the Pacific coast. The summer green of the Rockies already is giving way to the brilliant autumnal hues.

Notes in passing: Dr. Dudley Crafts Watson will renew his travelogue series Thursday afternoon at the Old Heidelberg inn. This week's talk will be on "The New Germany." . . . S. E. Whipkey is the new Chicago manager of Anglo-American Tours, Inc. . . . The Hyde Park Travel bureau, operated by Edna W. Rich and Harriet S. Louer, this month celebrated its first anniversary. . . . The United States liner Washington reached New York Thursday with 1,004 passengers, the largest westbound list she had ever carried. The previous mark, 993, was hung up two years ago. . . . A 24 day cruise-tour from Chicago to Mexico and return, with Havana and the Panama canal taken in on the way, was announced last week by the Panama Pacific line. It will begin Oct. 29, with Arthur P. Hubbell in charge. . . . The New York Central system had 113 all expense tours out of Chicago this summer, and the number of passengers carried on them was 25 per cent greater than last year's. . . . Faster schedules than ever before between Chicago and San Francisco have been inaugurated by United Air lines, which now have three schedules daily, including two sleeper flights, with only two stops en route. . . . American Air lines officials say they are facing a shortage of air stewardesses. At present 125 girls are so employed, but more are needed. Although there are 755 applications on file, few of the applicants can meet the rigid requirements for this newest of women's professions. And, once they have qualified, darned if a lot of them don't go get married and quit the service.

Capt. Antonio Lena last week made his farewell voyage as master of the Conte di Savoia. He was retired from active duty under the Italian maritime law which makes 60 the age limit for ship commanders. Of a family which for generations sailed schooners out of Genoa, Capt. Lena has spent virtually all his life on the sea.

The Bons Vivants, Chicago society of steamship and travel agents, will hold an old fashioned basket picnic in St. Paul's woods, west of Evanston, starting at noon today.

Prior to the departure of the San Francisco Challenger, low price tourist and coach train, on its initial run over the Union Pacific-Chicago and North Western, open house was held on board Wednesday evening. Inspection of the train revealed a number of innovations, including streamline type coaches, a car especially for women and children, and a radio equipped lounge car. Service is being maintained daily in both directions.

The Empress of Britain, flagship of the Canadian Pacific fleet, will have five more sailings from Quebec before the close of navigation on the St. Lawrence. The Cunard-White Star line has 33 trans-Atlantic sailings scheduled for September, October, and November. Many travelers prefer to "do" Europe in the autumn, when the rates are lower and the accommodations less crowded. This year the Paris exposition and a large number of festivals and celebrations are additional drawing cards.

ROAMING WITH RAMONA.

HEIDELBERG, Aug. 22.—To the Travel Editor: We entered Germany from Switzerland and spent one night here before beginning our journey down the Rhine.

Heidelberg is an old town with an ideal situation on the Neckar river. The high spots are the castle and the university. The castle is a ruin, except for the rooms that have been restored, but it is interesting to walk through it and to listen to its history as given out by the guide. You will see the largest wine cask in the world, the great banqueting hall, the chapel, and the various other chambers.

We explored the students' prison at the old university and saw the names carved on the walls hundreds of years ago. Suddenly we seemed to have been transported into another era. The new university is an imposing edifice, some of which was built through American generosity.

If you stay at Heidelberg you may begin your Rhine trip either at Mainz or at Bingen. The advantage of beginning at Bingen is that you can leave here by rail one hour later than if you board the steamer at Mainz. All day long you pass historical castles, great vineyards, cities and towns such as Coblenz and Bonn and famous landmarks such as the Lorelei.

Going down the Rhine is to be preferred to going up, on account of the current. It takes about four hours less.

I would by all means advise the prospective tourist to Europe to include the Rhine in his itinerary. With tourist marks purchased outside Germany, you will find the prices for hotels, meals, and transportation quite reasonable. By obtaining your transportation outside Germany you will obtain 60 per cent reduction on your rail tickets.

RAMONA GIBBONS HAYES.

HE'S COMING BACK.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 8.—To the Travel Editor: I have missed lately the travel articles by Mason Warner who told so interestingly his trip through the South Sea Islands. Surely hope that Mr. Warner is not gone forever from this column and that perhaps he is only on another trip and will bring back to his waiting readers more travel adventure. This column is the first one I read in the travel section. I believe it appeals to the wanderlust in every one for who is there that does not like to read and head about such interesting places.

Most Brilliant Fall Season In Years Now On at Glorious French Lick

Balmy days . . . Cool nights . . . Outdoor sports . . . Rest . . . Health . . . and the gayest crowds in years await you at this great American Spa!

NEVER before was French Lick more beautiful than today . . . in the full glory of another Fall Season. Never were crowds more gay and colorful. Never was the time so ideal for a thrilling "Health-Holiday" here.

Balmy, sunshiny days are perfect for golf, for tennis, for skeet and trap shooting. And the gorgeous foliage of the foothill forests add new thrills to riding over enchanting bridle paths on spirited thoroughbreds.

But besides building up your strength and energy in invigorating outdoor sports and diversions, even more important are the unequalled benefits of the famous Pluto Waters and French Lick Baths.

Here you can drink Pluto Water at its source. And you'll be amazed at how it will tone up a sluggish system, rid the body of toxic poisons, stimulate the appetite. And the world-renowned French Lick Baths invigorate body and mind, calm tired nerves, restore the energies lost by the depleting effects of a long, hot summer.

And you rest and relax on the broad veranda. Or in the luxurious comfort of lobby and lounge. And at night you sleep like a top in air that is crisp and cool. Yes, ten days at French Lick will give you a new outlook on life and fit you for the winter months just ahead.

So come and mingle with leaders of society and industry who are here each Fall for French Lick's unequalled health and pleasure benefits. Come and dance to the enchanting music of Jules Duke and his famous band.

Already reservations are greater than in years. So we urge you to make yours NOW to assure you the accommodations you desire. Or write TODAY for beautifully illustrated booklet.

How To Reach French Lick
Take Monon trains leaving Chicago twice daily—10:15 A.M. and 10:20 P.M. (C. D. S. T.). Or Eastern Air Lines via Louisville. Or motor direct. Phone our Chicago Office for further details.

English Prints Depict History of Caricature

By Eleanor Jewett.

ONE of the most amusing of the smaller exhibitions current in the Art institute to Oct. 12 is that of thirty-one brilliantly satiric old English prints which hang in the north wing of the museum under the comprehensive title of "English Prints of Wit and Humor." The collection gives one a fairly complete sociological survey of early 19th century England, mirroring as it does many of the foibles, eccentricities, and injustices of the compact little island of that age.

More than this, these prints, by the celebrated Rowlandson, the scornful Gillray, and the vivacious Cruickshank [whose illustrations for Dickens have endeared him to countless readers], form one of the best visual histories of the caricature and its outgrowth, the cartoon, that has ever been placed on view in Chicago.

• • •

ROWLANDSON was apt to verge on the rowdy. He loved to depict a crowd of men and women, jolly and vulgar and good humored. His color is a revelation in delicacy. Repeatedly his shadings in the various prints are exquisite; no other artist has ever succeeded as he in combining the most robust realism with the most fantastic gentleness, to the detriment of neither. His "Portsmouth Point" possesses all the features of his characteristic technique.

Cruickshank drew political cartoons only during his youth. Later he showed a decided flair for social satire, but his heart was really in his illustrating. He was tireless in his crusade for temperance. In the current exhibit are two delightful prints of his designed to show the joys of the dance in 1817. One of these is "Specimens of Waltzing" and the other "Elegances of Quadrille Dancing."

Gillray is the third in this formidable trio of draftsmen. Like Rowlandson, his work was often marred by coarseness, but there similarity ends. He worked in bold color and line and depended on obvious humor rather than delicacy of color to see him through. His prints today are striking because they are so obviously jolly. Slightly verging on the slapstick side is the comedy in "The Danger of Riding an Old Hunter." Two others, "Harmony Before Matrimony" and "Matrimonial Harmonics," make an amusing pair. Other notable Gillrays in the collection are "Substitutes for Bread," "Germans Eating Saur-Krout," and "The Union Club." Although these pictures reveal the artist as a man of quick mind and biting wit, he was prone to moods of great dejection which alternated with times of frenzied action. Gillray finally died incurably mad.

THREE new modern paintings have recently been acquired by the Art institute through purchase from the Joseph Winterbotham fund. They have been placed on view in gallery 39, on the second floor of the museum. One, "The Rabbi," is by Marc Chagall, and is a life size, three-quarter length portrait of a rabbi. It shows Chagall at his best.

The second of the new paintings is "Open Window, Nice," by Raoul Dufy, whose pot-hook technique has become familiar to us in innumerable water colors. This "Open Window" is a brilliantly colored interior.

The last of the group is "Dead Fowl," by Soutine, a striking arrangement in strong color—red, yellow, and blue—dashed on with a heavy brush. The macabre compositions of Soutine, who often oversteps the macabre into the decadent, have been among the most controversial perpetrations spawned by modernism. The name of Soutine invokes a mental miasma until you actually see the picture in question. Sometimes the work is likeable; sometimes not. Chagall, on the other hand, never invites vulgarity, nor, to give him his due, does Dufy. Dufy is harum-scarum; Chagall, a romantic. As for Soutine, one connects him with drugs and a slightly poisonous atmosphere. His work is just enough off color to warant suspicion.

Dudley Crafts Watson, who has been touring the festivals in the capital cities of Europe with a group of Chicagoans, returned home Sept. 9, ready for his series of lectures which started at the Art institute on Sept. 13. He wrote from Austria, sending a photograph of the travelers: "Here is my party in Vienna. Had a wonderful time at Carl Schwalbach's studio in Munich. Met Hermine Stellar at Dinkelsbuhl, where she is painting hard. Spent yesterday in Max Reinhardt's glorious castle at Salsburg."

A card from Louis Kronberg tells us he is back in Paris. His exhibition of portraits and figure paintings in the Carson Pirie Scott gallery last spring was one of the events of the art season.

Prints by Four American Artists is another of the smaller shows current at the Art institute which seems in danger of neglect. The exhibit is hung in gallery 13 in the north wing. There are eight prints by George Bellows, eleven by Arthur B. Davies, eight by Mary Cassatt, and four by Joseph Pennell.

Possibly the most noteworthy feature about this exhibit is that it presents four widely dissimilar tendencies in American art. Bellows, who never went abroad, is perhaps the most American of the four in his manner of work. Davies was more of the poet and was an internationalist in his painting. His beautiful, imaginative work could have been done anywhere and by a man of any nationality, given a romantic spirit, a poet's eye, and a cultivated mind.

Mary Cassatt lived in France so long that to most of us she appears a French painter. She was closely identified with the French impressionists and it is difficult to conceive of her as a product of the Yankee coast of the Atlantic. Her contribution to the present show is delightful and very characteristic.

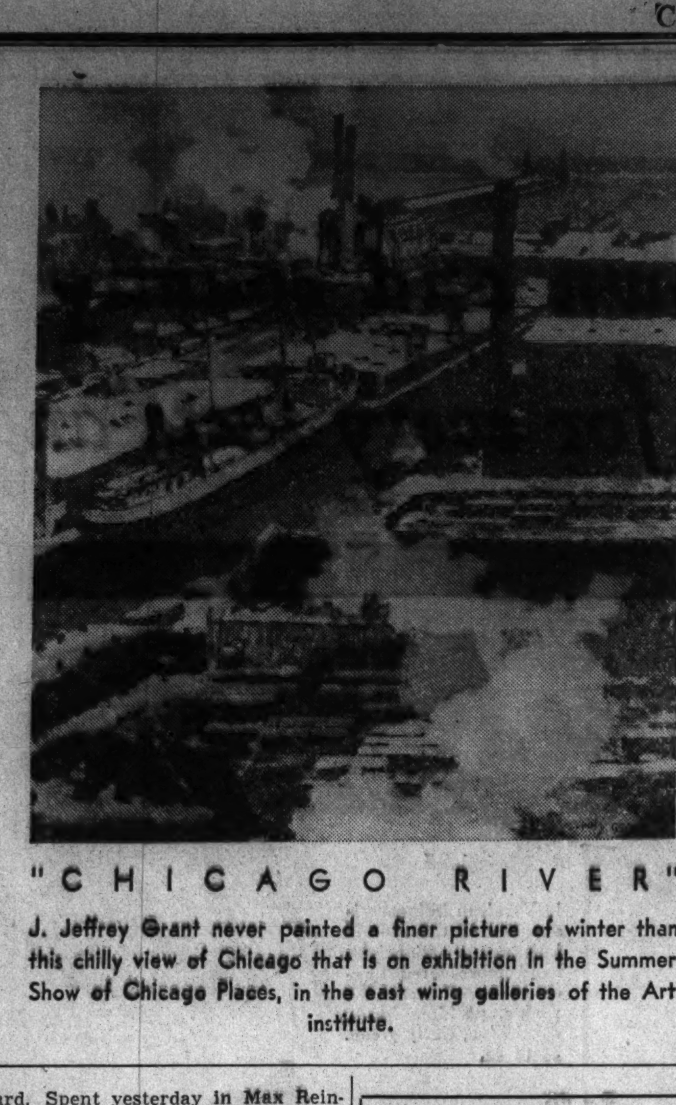
Joseph Pennell was a great traveler and a great American. His paintings and etchings are widely known. His series of sketches of the Panama canal are celebrated. Pennell was a great draftsman; his work was literal, but strong and vital. He was a warm friend of Whistler's and spent many years of his life in London. Wayman Adams' portrait of Pennell sketching on the skyline is an unforgetable canvas. Pennell was big, rugged, shrewd, and intelligent. His prints in the present show are striking.

The exhibit will continue to Nov. 1.



"CHICAGO RIVER"

J. Jeffrey Grant never painted a finer picture of winter than this chilly view of Chicago that is on exhibition in the Summer Show of Chicago Places, in the east wing galleries of the Art institute.

Channons Return to London After Salzburg Season

LONDON

With the close of the Salzburg season, Henry and Lady Honor Channon have arrived back in London. They were the center of much entertaining in Salzburg and among their guests were the young Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt.

The Channons are making some slight alterations in their Tyrolean nursery due to the increasing size of the young son. They brought back another Tyrolean bed made in the usual style, but large enough to accommodate the child as he grows. The Channon nursery is one of the noted nurseries of London because it represents, in complete detail, the charm of a Tyrolean village, with the landscape on the walls and the furniture in perfect harmony and beautifully made.

Yellowstone and Mammoth Score Heavy Increases

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo., Sept. 18.—Yellowstone National park travel skyrocketed past the previous season's record Aug. 29 to establish a new all-time high, the superintendent's office announced here.

The total for the season up to Aug. 29 read 439,069, compared with the total of 432,570 for the entire record breaking year of 1936. On Aug. 29, 1936, 382,631 persons had registered, which figure, compared with this year's, gives 1937 an increase of 14.6 per cent.

With the travel count for the season continuing until Sept. 30, officials expect the registrations for the year to approach 500,000, or about 65,000 above the 1936 mark.

Mammoth Cave, Ky., Sept. 18.—A new record for the number of visitors was set at Mammoth over the three day Labor day period, when 5,665 persons took routes through the cave. On the Sunday before the holiday the number was 3,616, while the previous record, established on July 4 of this year, was 3,044.

Labor day is the peak of the travel season. Officials say they are confident travel throughout the fall and winter will show an increase over last year's business by almost 25 per cent. They say more than 100,000 persons will have taken routes in the cave by the end of the year. Perhaps as many more will have visited the area for the scenic attractions found on the surface.

Pastel Tints Are Newest Note in Fall Wallpaper

AT the recent wallpaper show, held in New York City, the most popular styles were done in the pastel tints, varieties of pink, rose, and carnation being good. Prestige papers, chosen by the decorators, were in the new pinky-lavender, a color that will be extremely good this coming winter. It will be combined with silver gray, with turquoise, with white, and with light green. But it's not to be confused with orchid. Orchid is as dead now as it has been for the last five years.

Leaving Europe last Monday on the Lafayette were Mrs. J H. Lawrence, Miss Marie Lawless, Mrs. Geraldine Morse, John H. Lawrence, Mrs. J. W. Wineman and her daughter, Edith; Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Oberndorf and their son, Paul; Ernest Jacobson, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer F. Honig, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Meyers, H. O. Berger, William Berger, Miss Helen Pillans, Miss C. Buch, Miss Laura Reichman, George Kuh, Miss Mary Robyn, Miss Louise Robyn, Miss Annette Sicre, Frank McGuire, and William F. Ogburn. Returning on the De Grasse were Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Erickson and their children, Jean and John; Miss Anna Williams, Miss Mary Fabian, Mrs. Rose Wicky, and Miss Pocahontas Wicky.

Jaques Danzig returned a week ago on the Europa, and the Misses Ruth and Elinor Griffenhagen arrived Monday on the American Merchant.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

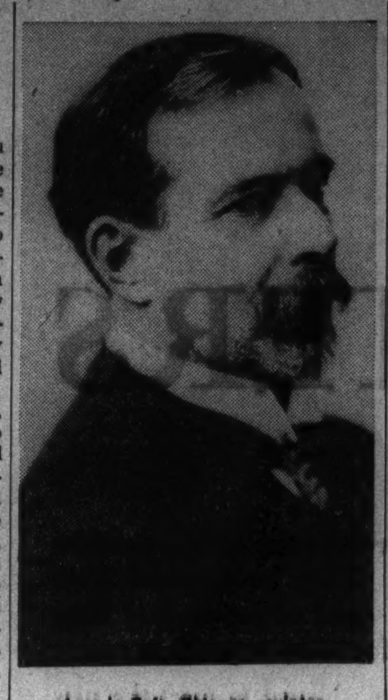
Chicago, Nov. 25, 1888.

DEAR JULIA: When next you come to Chicago I do hope there will be an Art institute exhibit with which I can entertain you. This week we enjoyed so much the reception which our splendid art museum gave . . . its tenth annual show and social affair. How many people do you think were present? No fewer than 1,082! New York mustn't say we aren't interested in the higher life.

Sandy and Martha dined with us, and about 8 o'clock we drove over to the institute at Van Buren and Michigan avenue, the horses curvetting in the frosty air, so that Michael had some ado to hold them. I have often seen Michigan avenue crowded, but seldom has there been a real blockade such as we found in the street before the building—hansoms and four wheelers, besides the private broughams. The galleries were jammed when we got in, interest centering in a collection of Dutch and Flemish paintings on exhibit. Some were quaint; some lovely.

Attracted by a crowd in one corner, where there was an unusual flutter, Will and I strolled up and found self-contained society women and dignified professional men, apparent victims of an uncontrolable desire to laugh. Ladies would saunter up with their gentlemanly escorts, a bored expression on their faces, and then one glance at the comical Jan Steen portrait, "Jolly Topers," and convulsive laughter! Some ladies almost went into hysterics. Thereafter Will took an impish delight in escorting his more dignified friends to this corner, standing by to see the effect. It never failed. Surprise. . . . An effort to remember one's manners. . . . Then a burst of merriment.

I did hope he wouldn't find Mrs. Blackstone in the crowd. I knew he'd enjoy escorting that correct lady to the Jan Steen corner. Vain hope! He didn't rest until he had brought her up. Even her New England lineaments relaxed into a surprised smile, and in a minute she, too, was in the throes of a scarcely suppressed fit of giggles.



Lorado Taft, Chicago sculptor.

I scolded Will, but he replied that he had seldom enjoyed an Art institute reception so much.

All fashionable Chicago was there. Of course, the committee in charge would insure that—Charles L. Hutchinson, young president of the Art institute; Edson Keith, vice president, and E. W. Blatchford, William T. Baker, N. K. Fairbank, Henry Field, Marshall Field, L. Z. Leiter, and C. D. Hamill, trustees.

Next Sunday, it was announced, for the first time the Art institute would be thrown open to the public, free of charge, from 1 to 5 o'clock. Such a departure from old custom provokes comment. Some think it is an entering wedge, leading to laxness in Sabbath observance. I hardly know what to say, but, on the whole, it seems as if it would help people to see lovely things on Sunday when they haven't time other days.

One person I met at the reception stands out in my mind, a young sculptor named Lorado Taft. Sandy had met him and brought him up to greet us. An immensely popular instructor in the Art institute, he has great charm of manner, a gay laugh, and, as you know at once, a real knowledge of his art. Born in Illinois, he is a graduate of the University of Illinois, where his father is a professor. After study in Paris he has returned here, enthused over sculpture, to which he has dedicated his life. Already he has a fine commission—he is doing a statue of Grant, which will stand in Leavenworth, Kas.

Martha Junior asked him how to learn to appreciate sculpture and he replied promptly: "The best way is to do it, not just to read about it." He fires every one with enthusiasm, and it wouldn't surprise me to know that she has joined his class at the Art institute.

Much love from us all.

MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

FOOTNOTES.

Lorado Taft [1860-1936] was just beginning his work in the late '80s. His largest single figure is perhaps the statue known as "Blackhawk," on the wooded banks of Rock river, near Oregon, Ill. His "Fountain of Time" and "Fountain of the Great Lakes" are treasures of Chicago.

Has any reader a copy of "Mr. Barnes of New York," by Archibald Clavering Gunter? A best seller of the '80s, it was bound in paper covers and apparently few copies survive. It is not in the Chicago Public library.

Expect Welsh Nationalism to Grow Fast

By Ann Whittingham.

LONDON

With the release from Wormwood Scrubbs of the three Welsh leaders, sentenced about seven months ago for setting fire to the Royal Air Force airdrome near Pwllheli, Carnarvonshire, Welsh nationalism is expected to forge ahead.

Curiously enough, the first step will be to purge the Welsh Nationalist party of "Fascist elements," which have thus far controled the party organ, Y Ddraig Goch [the Red Dragon], according to declarations made at the party's conference at Bala this month. Prof. J. Saunders Lewis, one of the three erstwhile imprisoned leaders of the party, has been dismissed from his post as lecturer at Swansea university college, but the fiery Welsh Nationalists have appointed him editor of the paper with instructions to eliminate its anti-parliamentary tone and its singular admiration, expressed in leading articles, for the nationalistic achievements of Hitler, Mussolini, and Franco.

• • •

WHEN this has been straightened out the party, it is stated, will nominate three candidates for parliament from North Wales and one from South Wales. The party appears to be much stronger in the north than in the south, but whether it can wean the Welsh from their strong affiliations with the Liberal party and the Labor party remains to be seen.

The party was founded in 1924, although there has been a "home rule for Wales" movement for the last forty years. The party demands dominion status with a separate parliament and a Welsh speaking governor general; restoration of Monmouthshire, which Henry VIII. "stole" from Wales, and a trade treaty with Britain.

• • •

WALES is wonderful country for the motorist, yielding a steady succession of fascinating views. I suppose more Englishmen know Wales from their own motor cars than know it in any other way, for almost every car owner sooner or later "does" Wales. There also is an annual trek to the charming Welsh seaside resorts, many of which still are relatively unspoiled by the speculative builder and his "bungaloid" growths.

But Wales as a political and racial entity seems to penetrate very slowly, if at all, into the English consciousness. However, that is perhaps not strange as long as a large part of the population of Wales itself seems to regard "nationalism" as a rather faddy development for which there is no vast need.

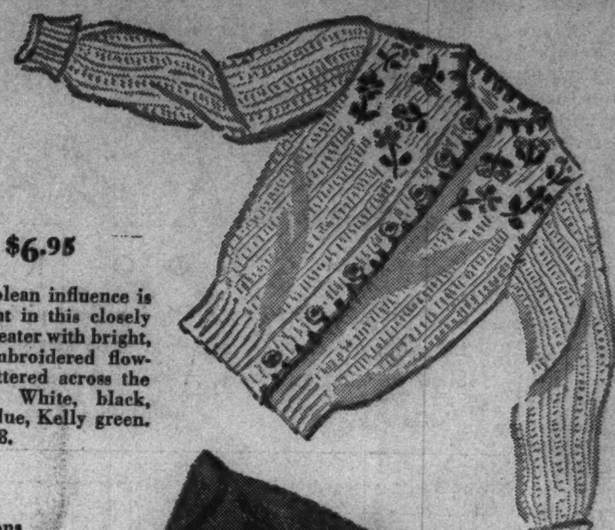
SWEATERS

WITH casual clothes moving in an ever-widening circle, sweaters are becoming more and more in demand. They have spread from country to suburbs—from suburbs to town—and of course they have been campus favorites, term in, term out, for many a year.

Here at Carson's, the style selection has widened to meet the new broadening of uses. To the perennially popular classic types are added cardigans with new details, slipovers with more feminine touches, a lively Tyrolean style. Weaves are widely varied and colors are plentiful. As for prices—they go all the way from $2.95 to $6.95 in this carefully selected group of wool sweaters in the Sports Shop—and each price brings remarkable value.

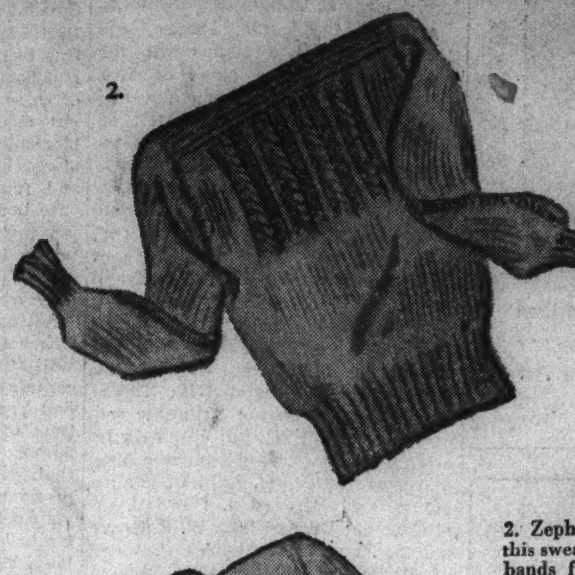
Sports Shop, Fourth Floor.

$2.95 to $6.95



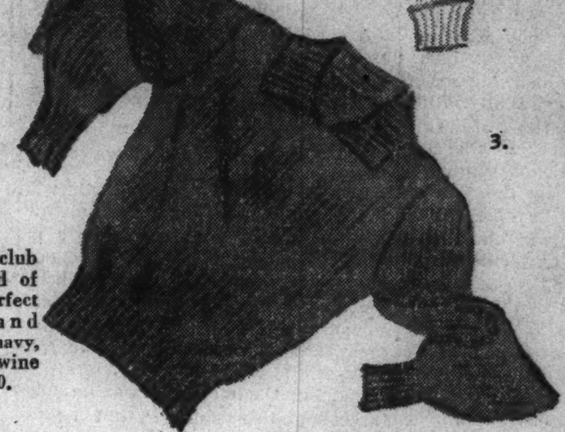
$6.95

1. Tyrolean influence is apparent in this closely knit sweater with bright, hand-embroidered flowers spattered across the yoke. White, black, royal blue, Kelly green. 32 to 38.



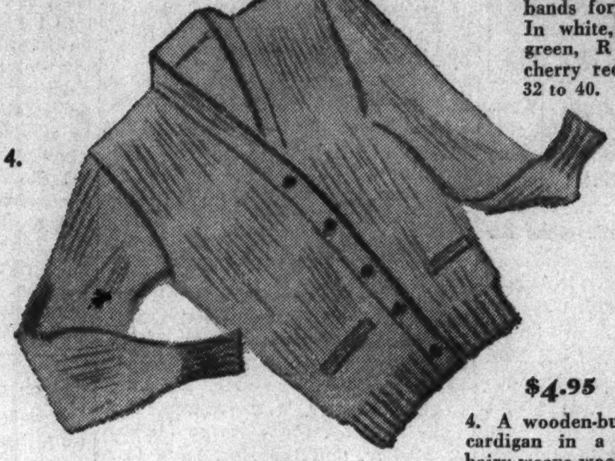
$3.50

2. Zephyr yarn fashions this sweater with vertical bands forming a yoke. In white, black, Kelly green, Royal blue, cherry red and brown. 32 to 40.



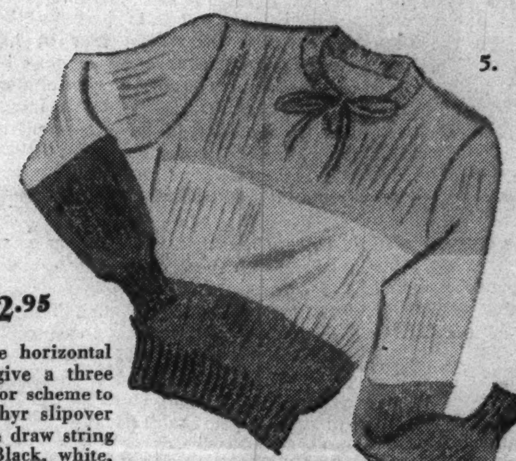
$2.95

3. The classic club style fashioned of zephyr yarn. Perfect for campus and country. In navy, brown, beige, wine or rust. 34 to 40.



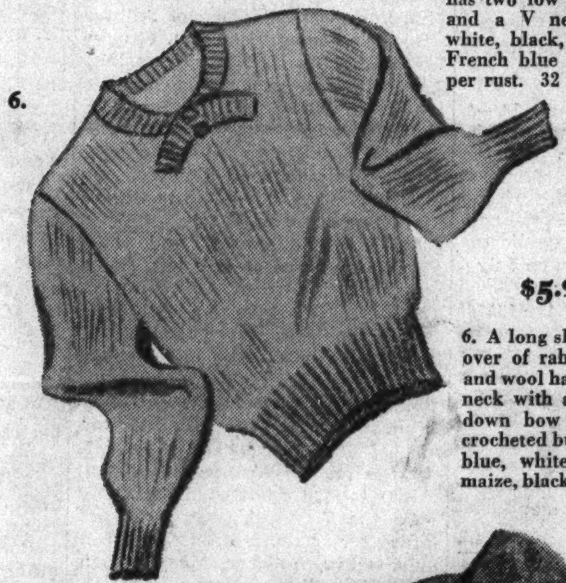
$4.95

4. A wooden-button cardigan in a soft hairy weave wool. It has two low pockets and a V neck. In white, black, brown, French blue or copper rust. 32 to 40.



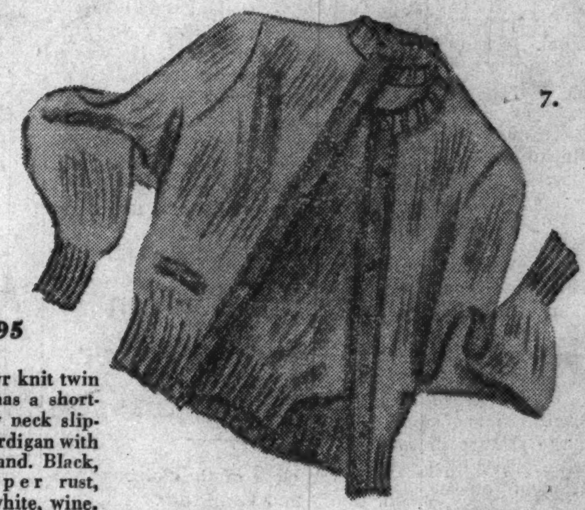
$2.95

5. Wide horizontal stripes give a three tone color scheme to this zephyr slipover with the draw string neck. Black, white, and grey; brown, tan and rust; navy, red and white. 32 to 40.



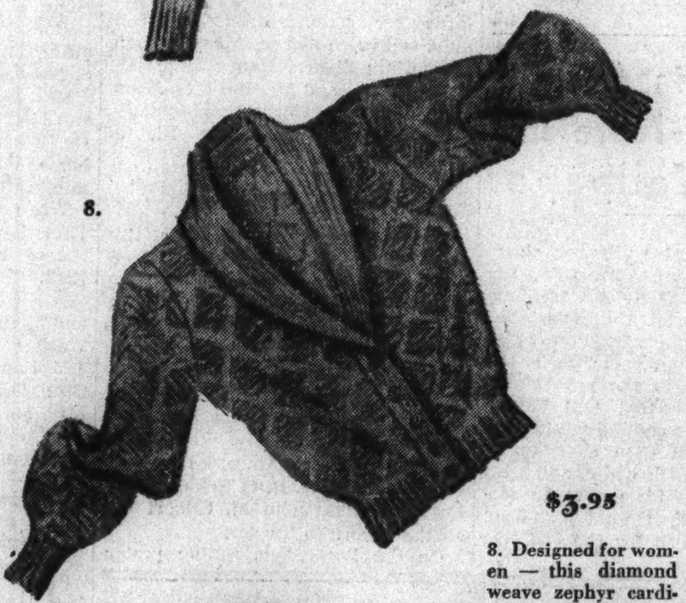
$5.95

6. A long sleeve slipover of rabbit's hair and wool has a round neck with a stitched down bow and two crocheted buttons. In blue, white, cherry, maize, black. 32 to 40.



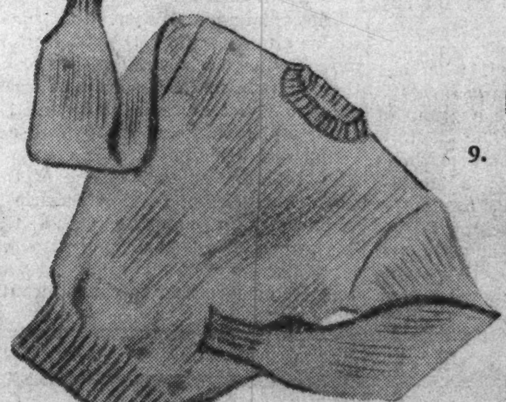
$6.95

7. This zephyr knit twin sweater set has a short-sleeved, crew neck slipover and a cardigan with a grosgrain band. Black, brown, copper rust, cherry red, white, wine. 34 to 40.



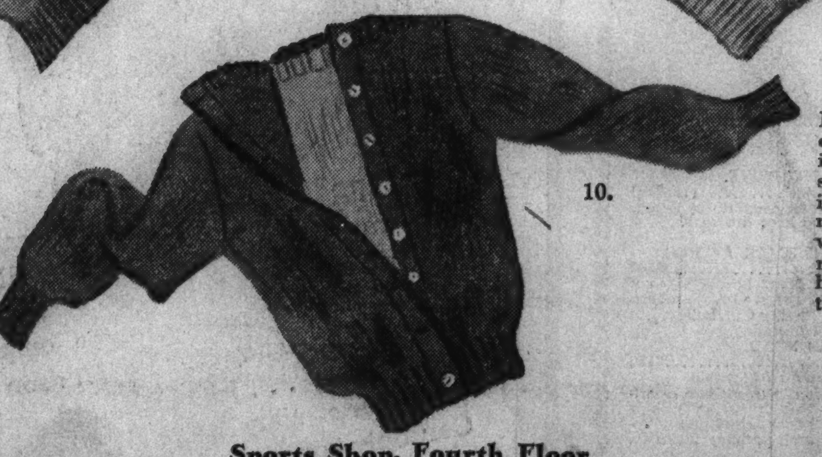
$3.95

8. Designed for women — this diamond weave zephyr cardigan with flattering deep V neckline with a roll collar. In wine, black, green, brown, navy or white. 32 to 40.



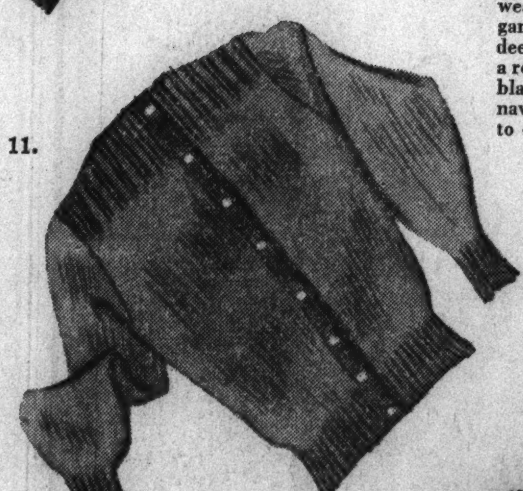
$2.95

9. Zephyr classic crew neck sweater—the type that gets a big rush on campus. In white, black, a[illegible], cherry red, grey, Kelly green, copper rust Sizes 34 to 40.



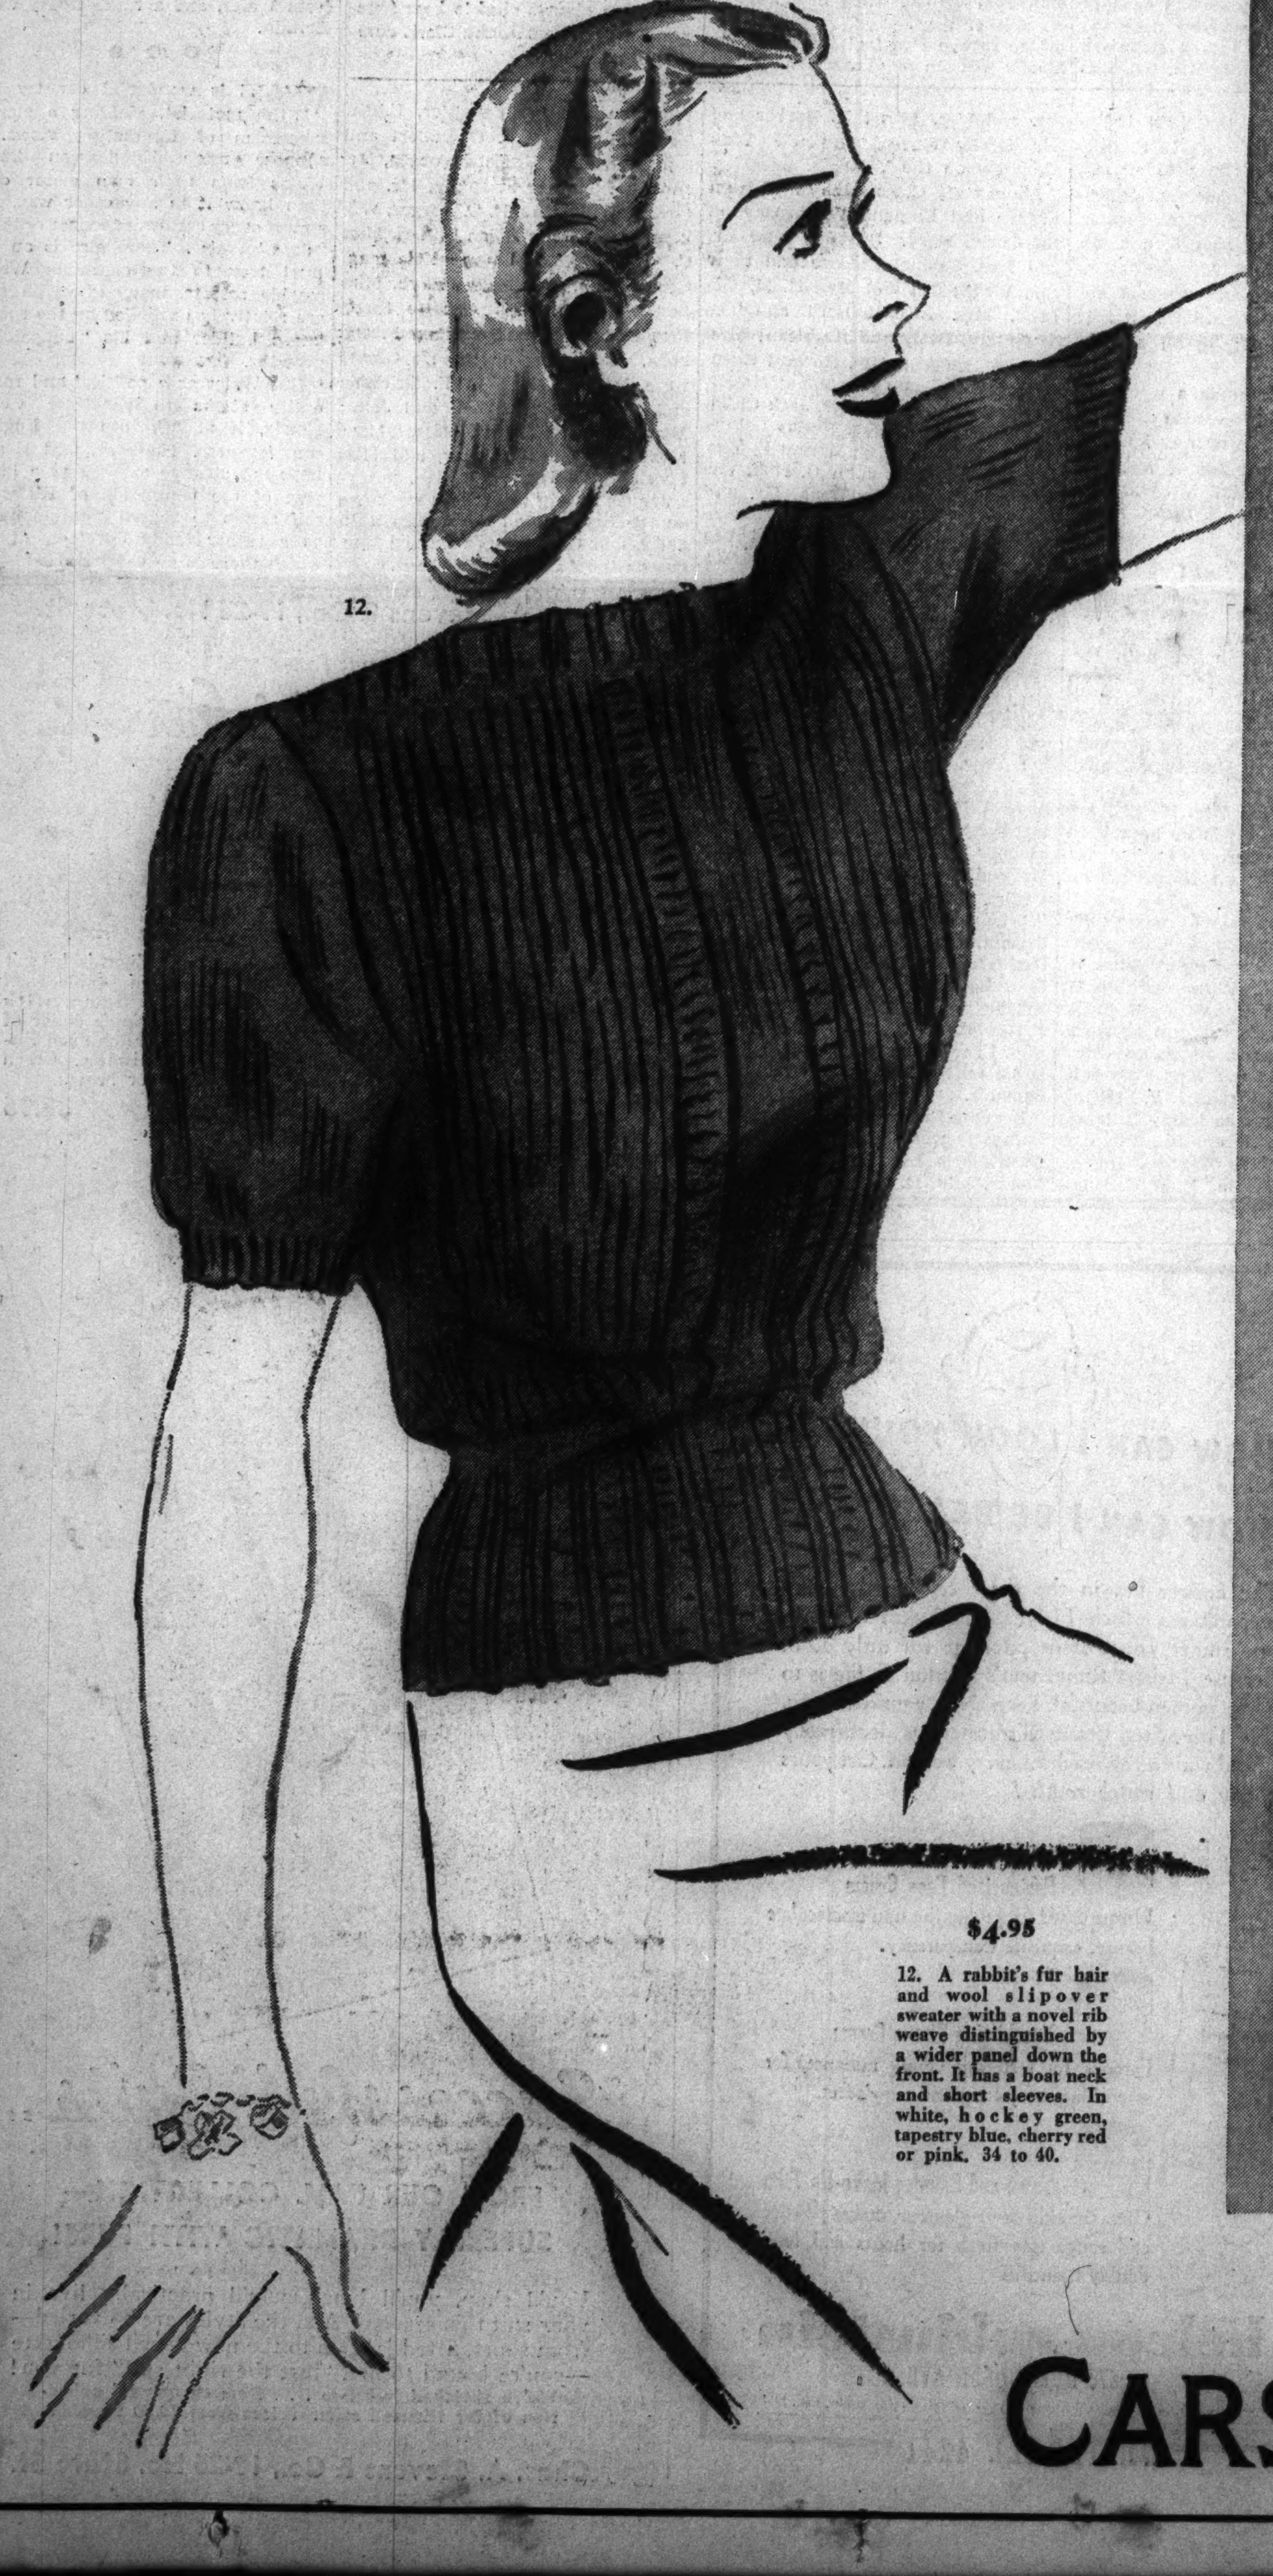
$4.95

10. A twin set fashioned of zephyr yarn contrasts its cardigan with its slipover. The slipover is a short sleeved, boat neck style. In black with green, brown with rust, navy with cherry, black with white. 34 to 40.



$4.95

11. A zephyr cardigan with a "difference"—a novel ribbed weave yoke and mother of pearl buttons on a grosgrain band down the front. It comes in rust, black, brown, hockey or cherry red. 34 to 40.



$4.95

12. A rabbit's fur hair and wool slipover sweater with a novel rib weave distinguished by a wider panel down the front. It has a boat neck and short sleeves. In white, hockey green, tapestry blue, cherry red or pink. 34 to 40.

China—Battleground of the Orient

THE territory indicated in yellow on the accompanying map represents all that is left actually under Chinese rule of the once great country of China, a land that has been the scene of conflict almost continuously since the Chino-Japanese war in 1894. Little by little old China has been whittled away.

● It will be noted by consulting the key to the map that Outer Mongolia, once a part of the old empire of China, now is under the dominance of soviet Russia; that Manchukuo, the former Manchuria, wherein the Manchu dynasty of old China arose, now is a puppet state under Japanese control; and that a sizable section of North China now has been invaded by Japanese military forces and therefore, to all practical purposes, no longer is under Chinese rule.

● China, a land of culture for at least 4,000 years, gradually is being cut up by newer nations. What part of it is due to be sliced off next?

Hollywood Reforms – Stars Grow Gracious

New Adventures of Color Cameramen in Filmland

By MAE TINEE

THE cameramen of The Tribune's color studio have just returned from their second visit to Hollywood. You may remember their first visit and the beautiful photographs in natural colors which they obtained. Perhaps you also recall their difficulties with the great and near-great of the movie capital.

This second trip was different. Eddie Johnson, manager of the studio, was full of pleasant cheer over the manner in which this time the stars coöperated with him. Also lots of little yarns about this, that, and t'other that we thought you'd like to hear. For instance:

Would it surprise you to learn that Leslie Howard's feet were anchored to one another by a ball and chain and a cowbell attached to him—and not for a picture, either? And that a weeping visitor on the Joan Crawford set is the lady largely responsible for the "No Visitors on Sets While Pictures Are Being Made" edict? Or that no feminine star is supposed to comb her own hair during the filming of a picture? Or—but let Eddie tell his story as he leans comfortably back in his chair by my desk with the light of reminiscence in his eye.

• • •

"It's just like a foreign country—Hollywood," says Mr. Johnson. "The people there live in a different world. The only two places that exist for them are Hollywood and New York. It is screwy—and it is getting screwier all the time. . . .

"The first place we visited was the Warner lot. We wanted to get photographs of Joan Blondell, George Brent, Olivia De Havilland, and some others. Joan was making process shots——"

"Process shots?"

"Yes, background and action shots. The painted background was a country road, and Joan was in an automobile perched on some pieces of boards built up high. The car was supposed to be plunging through a driving rainstorm and stirring up a lot of mud puddles.

"The illusion of speed was acquired by men shaking the boards, and the rain effect was made by somebody dashing buckets of water against the windshield. . . . Joan was making some retakes for 'The Perfect Specimen.' She was in a good deal of a hurry, for she was being loaned to Walter Wanger for 'The Stand In.' But she was lovely to us and we got some good pictures of her. Gave her one we made of Hubby Dick Powell last year, and she was tickled pink.

"Then we went over to the sound stage that was fixed up as the interior of a submarine. Here we got George Brent, Wayne Morris, Pat O'Brien, and Frank McHugh. Mrs. O'Brien came on the lot while we were there, and there was a happy family reunion between Pat and the missus. He'd been away on location, see?

• • •

"We got a nice picture of Olivia De Havilland. She was dressed in silver. One of Anita Louise, too—and a neat affair of a very beautiful newcomer, Gloria Dickson. She's engaged to Perce Westmore, the makeup man. Gosh, was it hot there that day! As a matter of fact, it was hot most of the time we were there. I never felt as sorry for anybody as I did for Loretta Young the time we took her.

"She was working in 'Wife, Nurse, and Sweetheart' on the Fox lot—wearing a mink coat. She hasn't any stand-in and so had to do all the posing for effects under those blistering lights. But it didn't affect her disposition. Nice gal. We got Warner Baxter there, too. He has a stand-in who looks so much like him that you can't tell 'em apart!

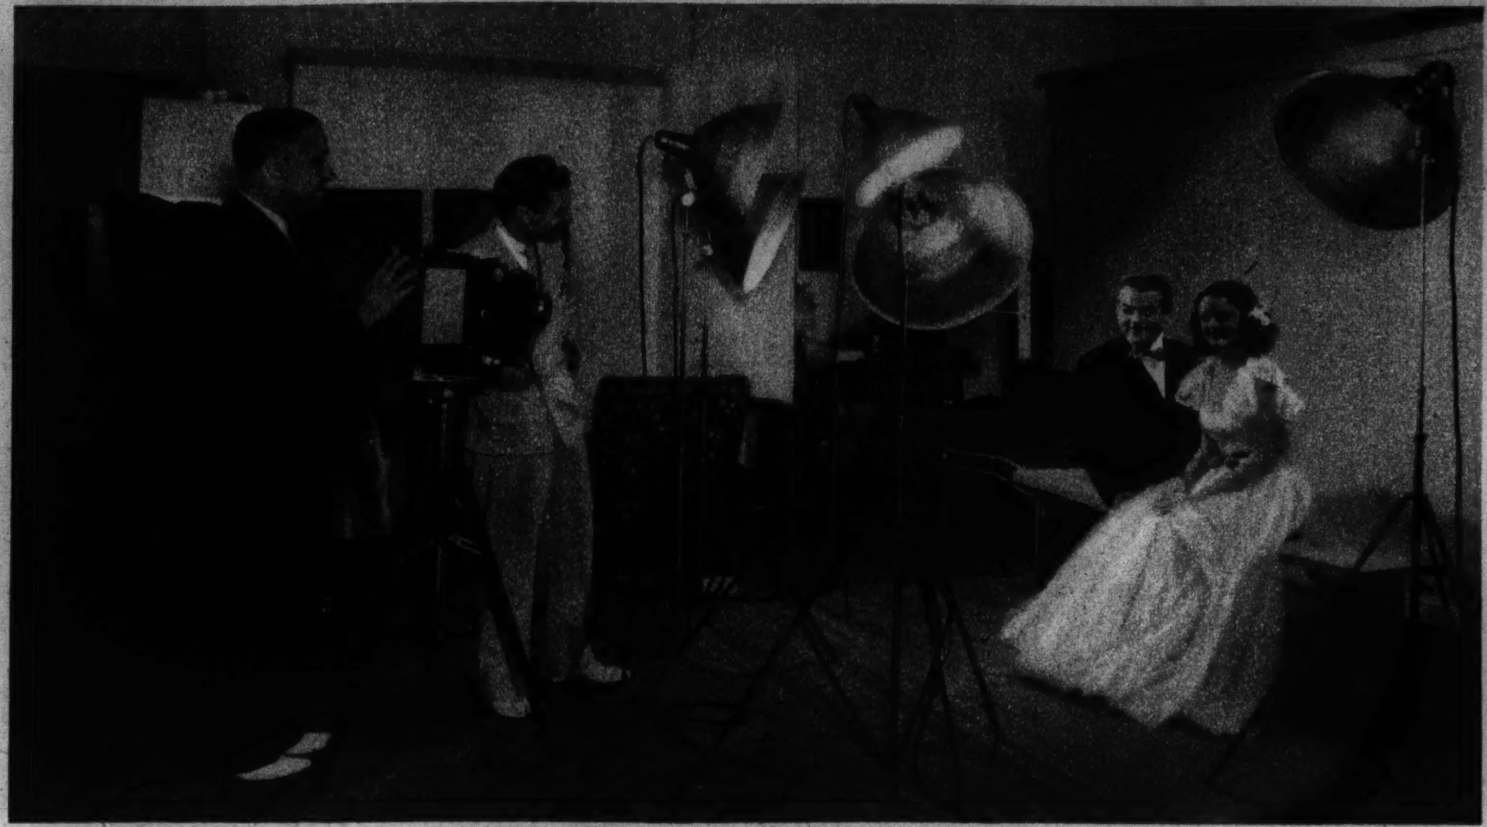
"Shirley Temple was cute. She was working in 'Heidi.' The fans will like her pictures. She makes a policeman of everybody on her lot. Gets batches of tin stars from the five-and-dime stores.

"You'd have been interested in the sets for 'In Old Chicago'—that Fox is filming. The ones that represent part of the west side in the good old days are startling. They have some sort of stuff that they put on paint that overnight makes it look as if it were a hundred years old."

"Umm! Who'd you photograph on that set?"

"Let's see—Alice Faye—nice! Tyrone Power and Don Ameche. Good guys, both of them—especially Ameche. He hasn't gone Hollywood in any sense. Everybody likes him, and he knows the first name of everybody on his lot—and calls him by it.

"Sonja Henie was busy finishing 'Thin Ice.' We had fun watching another process shot of it. Men were supposed to be walking up a hill through woods in the dead of night. A treadmill, torches, and branches, heavily leafed, which employés moved and waved here and there, accomplished the effect."



Eddie Johnson and Harry Hull, Chicago Tribune color cameramen, taking photographs of James Cagney and Evelyn Dawn, who play the leading roles in the Grand National musical, "Something to Sing About."

Madge Evans went through a lot for the Tribune cameramen.

"Did you get Joan Crawford?"

"No. They don't allow anybody on her set since a woman visitor started crying with her when she was doing a weeping scene, and so compelling the company to photograph that entire episode over again. Incidentally, that affair has made it tough for visitors on all the other lots. But we did get Nelson Eddy at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio."

"Like him? Some folks don't."

"He was swell to us. Jimmie Stuart was okeh, too—nice overgrown kid. Wouldn't put on any makeup. He said, 'Aw, let the freckles show!'

"And speaking of nice kids—that little Judy Garland (she was working with Eleanor Powell and Robert Taylor in 'Broadway Melody of 1938') is a lambie pie. She was SO flattered at having her picture taken. So anxious to change her dress and do everything just right and not keep us waiting. Betty Jaynes was sweet, too. Wanted us to say hello to Chicago for her.

"Then we went to Robert Taylor's house. He just lives in a rented one now, but he's building a ranch house out somewhere, and he could only spare us a half hour, as he had appointments with architects. But he was most agreeable. Had on slacks and an old sweater when we got there, but wanted to put on whatever we thought he'd better.

• • •

"Spencer Tracy was regular. Kidded us. 'Ha,' he says, grinning, 'Gable's away, or you'd never bother with me.' Maureen O'Sullivan wanted to wear some orchids her husband had sent her, but when we told her the heat—it was another of those days California doesn't brag about—would melt 'em, she put 'em away and posed without 'em.

"Say, you'd have died at Leslie Howard!"

"What did Leslie do?"

"It wasn't what he did, Mae; it was what they did to him. You see, he hasn't any stand-in, and he has a habit of wandering off nobody knows where when he isn't being actually photographed. So, pretending they were just kidding, the directors put a ball and chain on his ankles and tied a cowbell to him one day. Of course, he could get away—but not far—and wherever he was, they could locate him."

"Did you get a picture of him with the trimmings?"

"Don't be funny. Say, Henry Fonda's fun. Great kidder. We caused June Lang to be late for a sailing date—but she didn't care. The guy with the sailboat probably did."

"Don't suppose you captured Garbo?"

"No. The queen will not be photographed. Had a nice time with Mary Brian out at her place at Tolucca lake, near Burbank. She has a gorgeous estate. Years ago she bought up lots out there—was the first settler, in fact. Since then she's sold land to the stars and made a load of money.

"I suppose you know all about the 'Our Gang' kids, too?"

"Not a thing. What's the gossip?"

"Well, lady, that Hal Roach lot is simply alive with kids and their mammas. Kids who are acting and kids whose mammas hope will be acting. And the mammas stop at nothing to bring the youngsters to a director's attention.

"Most of them come looking poor. Some of them stage scenes. One of them had her little boy fall in the water and seem about to be drowned in order to bring him to the attention of the director. You get the idea? One kid stole Alfalfa's bicycle.

"But really it's wonderful to watch the youngsters in action. The directors have perfect control of them. They work with the mothers. The mothers of the kids who are acting stay on one side while a scene is being made. When it's over the director tells them just how soon he'll need their offspring again, what must be worn, and issues commands in general. It's up to mamma to see that the orders are carried out—or ELSE.

Alice Faye—"nice."

"Madge Evans went through a lot for us. It was another hot, hot day. And we wanted Madge to sit on a high, high stool and look beautiful.

"She did, but we thought several times that she was going to faint. She kept having to have her face mopped and her hair fixed. Speaking of having hair fixed, Mae, you'd die at the way hairdressers follow the women around those sets.

"You see, the unions have things all their own sweet way out there. Anyhow, when an actress is once working in a picture she can't comb her own hair. The hairdressers' union undertakes to see that it's combed properly and takes no chance on kicks which might be forthcoming if a girl carelessly ran a comb through her own black or blonde or platinum or red tresses at will.

"So the hairdresser is always present. Seeing, but unseen. And after every scene (ha ha!) out come the brush and comb and my lady of the screen is given those touches that tell. It's all very complicated."

"But all very interesting, Mr. Johnson! And your pictures?"

"They are lalapaluzas," said Mr. Johnson fervently.

Believe him or not—they are.

Nelson Eddy "was swell to us."

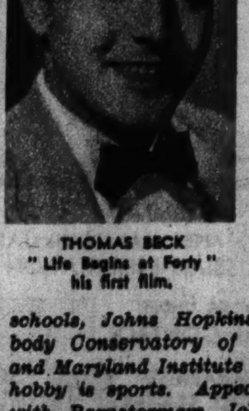
Voice of the Movie Fan

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper. If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: I've been reading your Sunday column, and I am inclosing a question I would appreciate your answering. Can you tell me something about Thomas Beck, the movie actor? Could you manage to squeeze in a tiny picture in your column?

Thanks in advance. SALLY.



THOMAS BECK
"Life Begins at Forty" his first film.

Editor's note: Thomas Beck was born in New York City. He's 6 feet tall, weighs 168 pounds. Educated in Baltimore public schools, Johns Hopkins university, Peabody Conservatory of Music, Baltimore, and Maryland Institute of Fine Arts. His hobby is sports. Appeared on the stage with Barnstormers, Johns Hopkins dramatic organization. After receiving A. B. degree from college joined the Vagabonds, Baltimore little theater group. Played summer stock at Magnolia, Mass., and then appeared on the New York stage in "Mademoiselle" and "Her Majesty the Widow." In 1935 he went to Hollywood, and his first rôle was in the film "Life Begins at Forty."

Dear Miss Tinée: Recently I saw a picture which was made about ten years ago. It was not a silent, but I understood silents were made at that time.

When were talking pictures first made, and what was the first one produced?

Sincerely, JANE STADDON.

Editor's note: The first all-talking picture made was "Jazz Singer," starring Al Jolson. It was produced in October, 1927.

Dear Mae Tinée: I was surprised that any one claiming intelligence could bring you to task about your adverse criticism of "Mountain Music"!

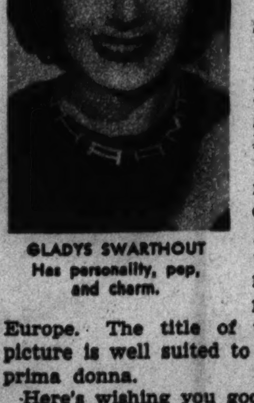
My husband branded it a gross insult to the hill billies. Bob Burns wanted to act in the movies badly when he let them put that over.

Here's to your continued good judgment for years and years, and years!

Sincerely yours,
HELEN W. M'NAMARA.

Editor's Note: I'm so glad your husband agreed with my judgment. Thanks so much for your letter and your good wishes!

My dear Miss Tinée: I have just seen "Champagne Waltz," starring Gladys Swarthout. There is a woman who has personality, pep, and, last but not least, charm—and she has plenty of it.



GLADYS SWARTHOUT
Has personality, pep, and charm.

When Miss Swarthout sang in South Bend, Ind., I met her. My, but she is gracious and lovely!

I hear her next picture is entitled "Yellow Nightingale," which she will make when she returns from Europe. The title of this forthcoming picture is well suited to this lovely little prima donna.

Here's wishing you good luck!

Your ardent fan,
MARTHA NOWLEN.

P. S.—If you have room enough in your Sunday column, put in a picture and a very short biography of Miss Swarthout, will you please? Thanks a lot!

Editor's note: Gladys Swarthout was born in Deep Water, Mo. She's 5 feet 3½ inches tall and has dark brown hair and brown eyes. She was educated at Bush conservatory in Chicago. Miss Swarthout made her first concert appearance at the age of 13. Sang in Chicago churches and in large theaters. Appeared with Minneapolis Symphony orchestra and sang with Chicago Civic Opera company. She went to Europe and upon her return joined the Metropolitan Opera company. Films in which she has appeared are "Rose of the Rancho," "Give Us This Night," and "Champagne Waltz." She's married to Frank Chapman, singer.

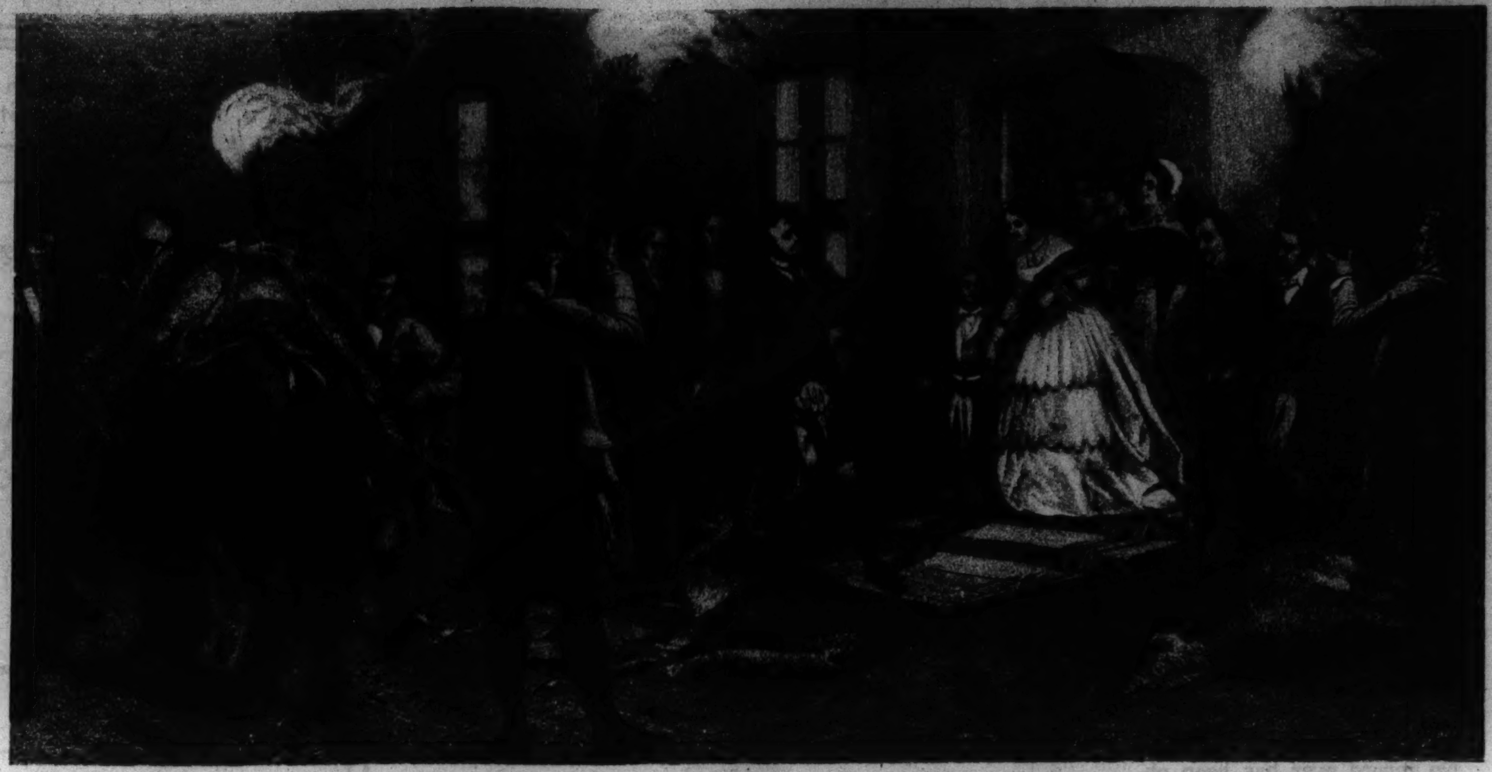
We have room—and here's the picture (with fond hopes that you grow ardenter and ardenter).

Dear Miss Tinée: I read your column every Sunday and your opinions on the new pictures and enjoy them very much.

I wonder if you would be so kind as to give me the ages of the following stars: Hoot Gibson, Eric Linden, Errol Flynn, Jack Holt, and Rochelle Hudson. Sincerely yours. HENRY C. ALLAN JR.

Editor's note: The birth dates you request are as follows: Hoot Gibson, 1898; Eric Linden, Sept. 15, 1909; Errol Flynn, June 20, 1909; Jack Holt, May 31, 1888, and Rochelle Hudson, March 6, 1916. Thanks so much for your letter.

Queen Victoria's Remarkable John Brown



Evening at Balmoral castle in Scotland, where John Brown, the faithful Highland servant and factotum, first ministered to the needs of Queen Victoria. In this scene the queen has been called to the door to witness the return from a stag hunt.

A Servant's Power Over His Queen

By E. E. P. TISDALL

(Reprinted by arrangement with the London Express.)

The intimate story of John Brown, the outstanding personality in the life of Queen Victoria, whose servant he was, continues in the accompanying article. Last week John Brown was pictured as the most mysterious figure in British royal history. Many astonishing stories have been told of his ordering the queen to change her dress, of chastising the royal children, of insulting great men. Brown was the son of a poor Scotch farmer, but when he died his funeral was held from Windsor castle. Another instalment of this interesting story will appear in next week's Graphic Section.

WHEN judging a character from records alone, it is always a difficult thing to put two and two together and not arrive at the sum of three or five. John Brown has suffered much from this mode of reckoning. One point, however, which is often omitted from judgments of him is that the queen never regarded her Highland servants as she did her English or German ones.

Repeatedly in her journal she stresses this point; she even quotes other authorities to show that there are races with whom there is no need to stand upon one's dignity, and wrote frankly, "We were always in the habit of conversing with the Highlanders, with whom one comes so much in contact in the Highlands."

The prince consort also appreciated the "good breeding, simplicity and intelligence which makes it so pleasant and even instructive to talk with them."

From the beginning of the queen's life at Balmoral this friendliness existed between her and the keepers, ghillies and poor of the neighborhood. She was interested in their homes, their doing, their ideas.

In the simplicity of their lives, the minister of the kirk at Crathie was an esteemed visitor at Balmoral. The gentlefolk of the district joined their parties without ceremony.

• • •

Everything that was Scots was right. The queen loved the wild pipes, the Scots dances, the Scots ways.

When a cairn was made at Craig Gowan, Mackay, her piper, met her on the way and preceded her, playing. And at the highest point of Craig Gowan the servants, the tenants, and the children—little Mary Symons, Lizzie Steward, and the Grant children, her "little friends"—awaited her coming. The queen laid the first stone, the prince consort the second, and then their sons and daughters according to age, and after them the others assembled there. They drank whisky together, the pipers played, the children danced, and "dear old Monk, Sir Robert Gordon's faithful dog," sat amongst them all.

I quote at length to convey the utter absence of all ceremony and to show how very much the queen was just one of a happy family at Balmoral.

All the servants there were dear to her. She saw to it that in time they got their own little houses; the prince consort took a personal interest in the erection of the lodges, and when they were built the queen and her daughters visited the new owners and their families.

Every possible advance was given. The Brown family was not particularly singled out for favor, even though one of John Brown's brothers became a shepherd, another a rent collector on the royal estate, and some time later the youngest, Archie, became Prince Leopold's valet. John was simply one of a faithful band chosen for an outdoor servant to the queen.

John Brown, Queen Victoria's remarkable servant.

The queen would drive out with her daughters with no other escort than Brown and Robertson attending. Once when she visited the Grants, Brown and Duncan carried her across the river with her arms around each man's shoulders.

In 1857 the queen had not got over her wonder at the strength of these hardy men of the north; she was still amazed at the speed at which Brown could walk without tiring and the rate at which he could lead her pony.

Slowly he was becoming a man apart and superior, in her estimation, to the other servants.

She discusses her husband quite freely with him and when the prince consort was chatting with Grant she points the fact out to Brown who, thoroughly approving of Prince Albert, replies, "It is pleasant to walk with a person who is always content."

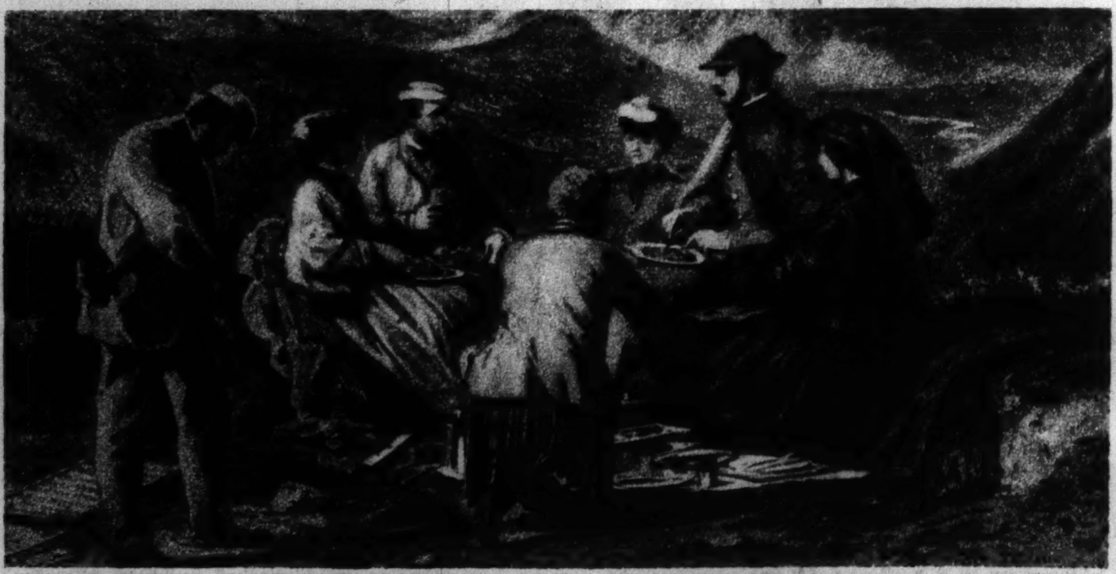
Here the queen smiles happily and feels the remark is a compliment and thinks it not out of place for Brown to air his opinions when he added:

"Everyone on the estate says there was never so kind a master. I am sure our only wish is to give satisfaction."

• • •

The queen and Prince Albert were passing through troublesome times and were dubious even of friends. It is easy to understand how she felt a certain safety in the care of this calm and rugged Scotsman, who seemed to be even more kindly than the others whose "only wish was to give satisfaction."

Here, too, was the beginning of John Brown's influence over the royal children.



The royal family on a Highland picnic. Victoria's servant, John Brown, is kneeling to serve her. Albert's Highland servant, Head Keeper Grant, is opening a bottle.

The Death of the Prince Consort

The eldest was only a child when she first came to Balmoral, the younger ones John Brown knew from their infancy and his first words to them were "Do this" or "Don't do that." Because they were little and somewhat afraid in the wilderness of a strange country, they obeyed him. The obedience of infancy is long lasting and the authority an old servant acquires is very overpowering.

The queen, naturally, had to keep in touch with her ministers when at Balmoral. They were very weary and jaded men. John Brown had little respect for them—but it must be borne in mind that his first experience of meeting them was when he was a very young man, before he realized the dignity of their state. To him a minister was just a man who was not too nimble, either on his feet or on a pony riding the rough trails; not too quick in spearing a salmon; nor too ready to plunge into the icy water of the swift brown streams and wade breast high against the current. In short, a "puir body," that did none of the things that make a man in the Highlands. He never quite recovered from his opinion that because ministers did not work with their hands they did very little and he was apt to remind them of the fact.

But the gruffness of John Brown's tongue was not so much in evidence in his youth, perhaps because his duty lay simply in attending the queen out of doors. When she left Scotland he remained there, and the pony, much beloved by the queen, became his special charge.

• • •

Without any flights of fancy, we can imagine how the young and happy queen must have appeared to this uncouth young man, used only to the braw lassies of the countryside. He had a respect for any one who did his job well, and he saw a little lady grappling with the affairs of an empire and giving commands that men far above his ken bowed to and obeyed.

He knew what motherhood meant to the poor; in her he saw a gay and laughing motherhood, a mother who could frolic with her children and join in their simple sports. He knew wifehood only in women who regarded their husbands as part of the responsibilities of life. In the queen he saw a woman, some years married, still adoring her husband with romantic ardor; in short, the queen was something entirely apart from his ordinary life.

Balmoral castle in northern Scotland west of Aberdeen, was a favorite vacation spot of Queen Victoria and the prince consort.

On one occasion Lord Stanfordham, hoping to recreate himself from his arduous duties by a little quiet fishing, was told by John Brown, "Ye'll no be ganging fishing. Her majesty thinks it time ye did a little work!"

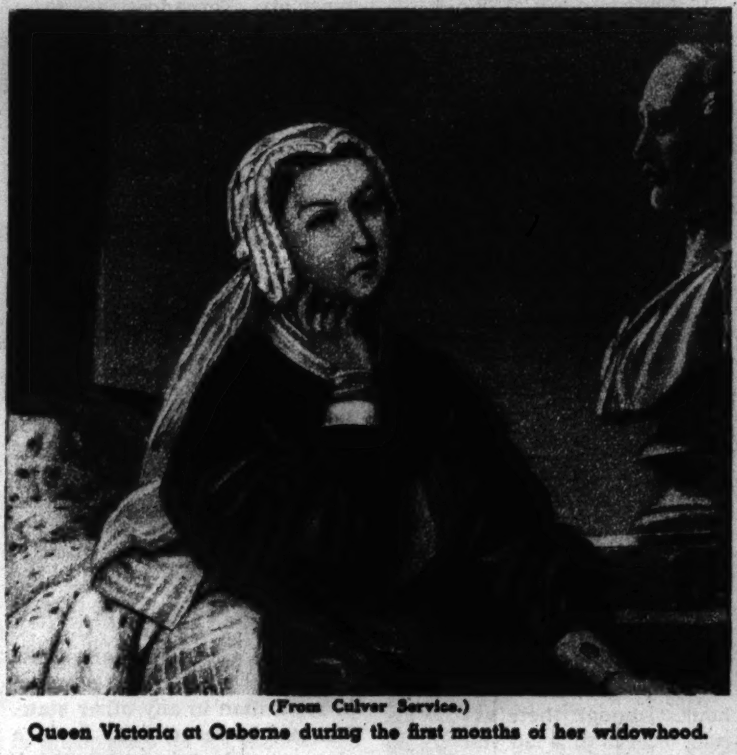
That he was appointed to look after her was a wonder of wonders to him, and he tended her with a care that would have been absurd had it not been so reasonable.

He was told to look after her; he accepted that phrase in its fullest meaning. It did not convey to him that he just led her pony. He guided her footsteps when she walked; he kept the children in order when they were with her; he waited on her at table; when she was hot, he took off her wrap and carried it; if the wind blew cold, he insisted she put on her shawl.

He came into touch with the queen as few servants could, for only at Balmoral was life so unceremonial. The queen and her consort, with a couple of friends, all using far more simple names than their own, would sometimes leave the castle and wander a day or two in the Highlands, sleeping at hunting lodges, eating at little inns, attended by a couple of maids and, as the queen herself put it, "No other servants but our two excellent Highlanders, Albert's first stalker or head keeper, and my own Highland servant and factotum, both excellent, intelligent and devoted people."

The following year the queen writes from Balmoral to King Leopold of Belgium, well-beloved uncle to whom she confided all her joys and troubles both of home and of state:

"We have had a most beautiful week, going out every day and taking luncheon in a basket on the back of a Highlander and served by an invaluable Highland servant I have who is my factotum here and takes the most wonderful care of me, combining the office of groom, footman, page and maid, I might almost say, as he is so handy about cloaks and shawls, etc. He always leads my pony and attends me out of doors, and such a good, handy, faithful, attached servant I have nowhere. It is quite a sorrow to me to leave him behind."



(From Culver Service.)

This feeling was reciprocated, for as early as 1851 the queen said to John Brown, "You must be dull when we leave." He replied, "It's just like death come all at once."

This was written and said in 1861, during the queen's last visit to the Highlands with the prince consort. They returned to England towards the end of October and a month later the prince consort sickened.

• • •

It is an extraordinary thing that the queen, who devotedly loved her husband, appears almost irritable with him for being ill; one can only think she did not realize the seriousness of his malady and perhaps no one else did. Queen Victoria in a letter writes, "Albert is a little rheumatic, which is a plague—but it is very difficult not to have something or other in this season." And later: "His rheumatism has turned to regular influenza, and you know he is always so depressed when there is anything the matter with him. . . . Our beloved invalid goes on well, but it must be tedious, and I need not tell you what a trial it is to me. Every day, however, is bringing us nearer the end of this tiresome illness, which is much what I had at Ramsgate, only that I had it much worse and not, at first, well attended to."

It is plain from other reports that she was not alone in the idea that the illness was not serious and when it was suddenly realized that "the end of the tiresome illness" was not recovery, the tragedy was as terrible as unexpected.

At the passing of Prince Albert, Dec. 14, 1861, the queen was calm. She even "addressed her children" a few minutes after his death. This very calmness in great trouble was an outstanding trait in her character.

Little things would drive her to gusts of anger, reproach or self pity, but a great emergency she always faced with terrible calm, and, like most people who can so control their natures, she paid the price for this repression of feeling.

Only God knows what she suffered when her husband died. Those around her only saw a woman who in spite of her great sorrow was calm. That word was on everyone's lips, in the bulletins, in the papers. "The queen is calm."

Her overwhelming grief she locked in her own heart, but she could not bear to see her husband lowered into his grave. She fled from Windsor, leaving her son as chief mourner at the prince consort's funeral, while she sat in silent, calm despair at Osborne.

Her eldest daughter was married and in Germany, between herself and her eldest son was a barrier of growing misunderstanding; the other children were too young to be her confidantes and her intense pride would not let her reveal to others the bitter loneliness she was now experiencing.

[The "eldest daughter" referred to above was Princess Victoria, born 1840. At the time of her father's death she was married to Prince Frederick of Prussia, who later became the German Emperor Frederick III. Frederick and Victoria were the parents to Emperor William II. The "eldest son" later became King Edward VII.—Ed. note.]

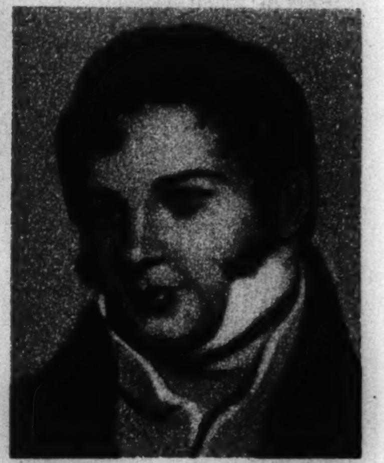
Emperor Frederick III. of Germany with the empress, former Princess Victoria, daughter of Queen Victoria.

Her marriage, like most royal marriages, had been a matter of state, but if Queen Victoria had had the choice of every man in the world she would, without doubt, have chosen Prince Albert. She had idolized him. The unpopularity he had at first encountered in England had passed away as the nation realized how splendid a man he was, and for the last few years he had basked in general favor. She had felt the early animosity keenly, and since it had disappeared she had hoped for much happiness for them both.

Her consort was in the early forties when he died. There should have been so many years of life and endeavor before them together . . . and now she was alone.

The only token we have of her own private feelings is the first letter she wrote to her uncle, King Leopold, after Prince Albert died. In this alone one can measure her grief a little. There is only this one, for curiously the others she wrote to the king of the Belgians during the first year of her widowhood have been destroyed. The first letter brought him to England to comfort her, but even he could not break down the terrible, calm control.



King Leopold I. of the Belgians, the uncle of Queen Victoria and throughout his lifetime her confidant.

She became silent, meditative, almost morose.

Every day she allowed her ladies to lead her to the window and she would sit there staring with unseeing eyes at the bleak, wintry gardens of Osborne. Sometimes she would be persuaded to walk a little on the terrace where, leaning on the arms of her ladies in waiting, she would totter for a few steps to and fro. But nothing could rouse her from her misery.

The doctors feared for her reason.

Then some one thought if her favorite little pony and carriage were sent from Balmoral she might take more exercise.

They were sent for.

The pony and carriage were John Brown's special charge. Where they went, he went. So one morning, as the queen sat listlessly by the window, she saw John Brown walking through the grounds of Osborne leading "dear little Lochnagar" harnessed to the little carriage.

It brought back memories of the carefree days in the Highlands and the happy past. For the first time since the prince died the queen smiled.

The Tornado—Weather's Most Devilish Prank

Wind Speed May Reach 500 M.P.H.

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

MANY persons have experienced the terrors of tornadoes, although relatively few have been able to remember much of what happened during the brief space of time in which they encountered the weather's most violent manifestation.

Tornadoes strike so swiftly and with such devastating force that about all an eye-witness can recall may be told in words that run something like this:

"Everything suddenly became black. There was a noise like that made by a thousand trains. Then the wind hit us."

No record ever has been obtained of the maximum velocity of a tornado's wind. No reading is of record of the amazingly low point reached by the air pressure within the center of a tornado's cloud.

Perhaps it is the ferocity of tornadoes, as much as anything else, that makes people in this country, particularly in regions where tornadoes are commonest, read the weather news. It may be that they hope to find in forecasts the warning that will give them sufficient time to attain the safety of their storm cellars. Tornadoes, however, are not discovered far enough in advance to make forecasting of them possible, nor are they likely to follow paths previously mapped. Whatever the reason, people go on reading weather news. A survey made recently revealed that newspaper reader interest was greater in the subject of the weather than in any other, not excluding war, sports, or crime.

The fact that the autumnal equinox occurs next Thursday may cause some persons to consider this week's weather with apprehension. They may be fearing the so-called equinoctial storms. They may even have tornadoes in mind. Their fears, however, are baseless, according to C. A. Donnel, chief of the government weather station in Chicago.

"The autumnal equinox has no relationship to the weather situation," says Mr. Donnel. "The term equinoctial storm does not mean anything. We have storms on any day of the year. At any given time there are storms raging somewhere in the world. If they occur at the time of the equinox they are called equinoctial storms. It is as sensible to speak of Fourth of July storms or Labor day storms."

• • •

A tornado is a violently whirling funnel-shaped cloud, which progresses in a line more often straight than curved. Its average rate of advancement is about thirty miles an hour. Some tornadoes may move so slowly as twenty miles an hour, while others may advance at the rate of fifty miles an hour. The path of a tornado ranges from a few feet wide to perhaps 2,000 feet, and the trail of a tornado may be from a mile long to 200 or 300 miles long.

Ninety-five per cent of the tornadoes in the United States move in a general direction from southwest to northeast.

Although the tornado moves in a line at a comparatively low rate of speed, the velocity of the wind within it is terrific. That is the wind that is whirling about the center of the tornado. It has been estimated that this wind sometimes attains the amazing speed of 500 miles an hour, although there are no actual records of wind velocity as high as that. Evidences of such astounding wind speed, however, are seen in the freak exhibits that are found in the wakes of tornadoes, such as bits of straw driven end on into the trunks of trees. During one of St. Louis' several tornadoes a piece of wood was imbedded in one of the steel girders of the Eades bridge by the driving force of the wind.

Within the center of a tornado the air pressure reaches an extremely low point. It is believed that it may go below twenty inches by barometrical reading, although, as pointed out before, this is only an estimate. There are no records available. It is this partial vacuum within the tornado that often causes buildings of weak construction to explode. The pressure of the air within the buildings is greater than that on the outside. The buildings simply burst because of this pressure from within.

Formation of tornadoes is due to a very simple cause. When air lying just above the surface of the earth is heated with exceptional speed, and exceptionally cold air forms above this surface layer of warm, moist air, there may be a violent upturning of the lower air. This violent upturning takes the form of a whirling cloud, and thus the tornado is established. Tornadoes are more frequent in the United States in the spring than at any other time, because of rapid heating of surface air. In the extreme south tornadoes occur most frequently in late winter and early spring. Farther north the season for these phenomena is later, but they are generally rare in July and August, because of the uniform heating by that time of the upper air. Tornadoes that form over oceans are waterspouts, although as a general rule the conditions that form waterspouts are less intense than those that form tornadoes over land.

• • •

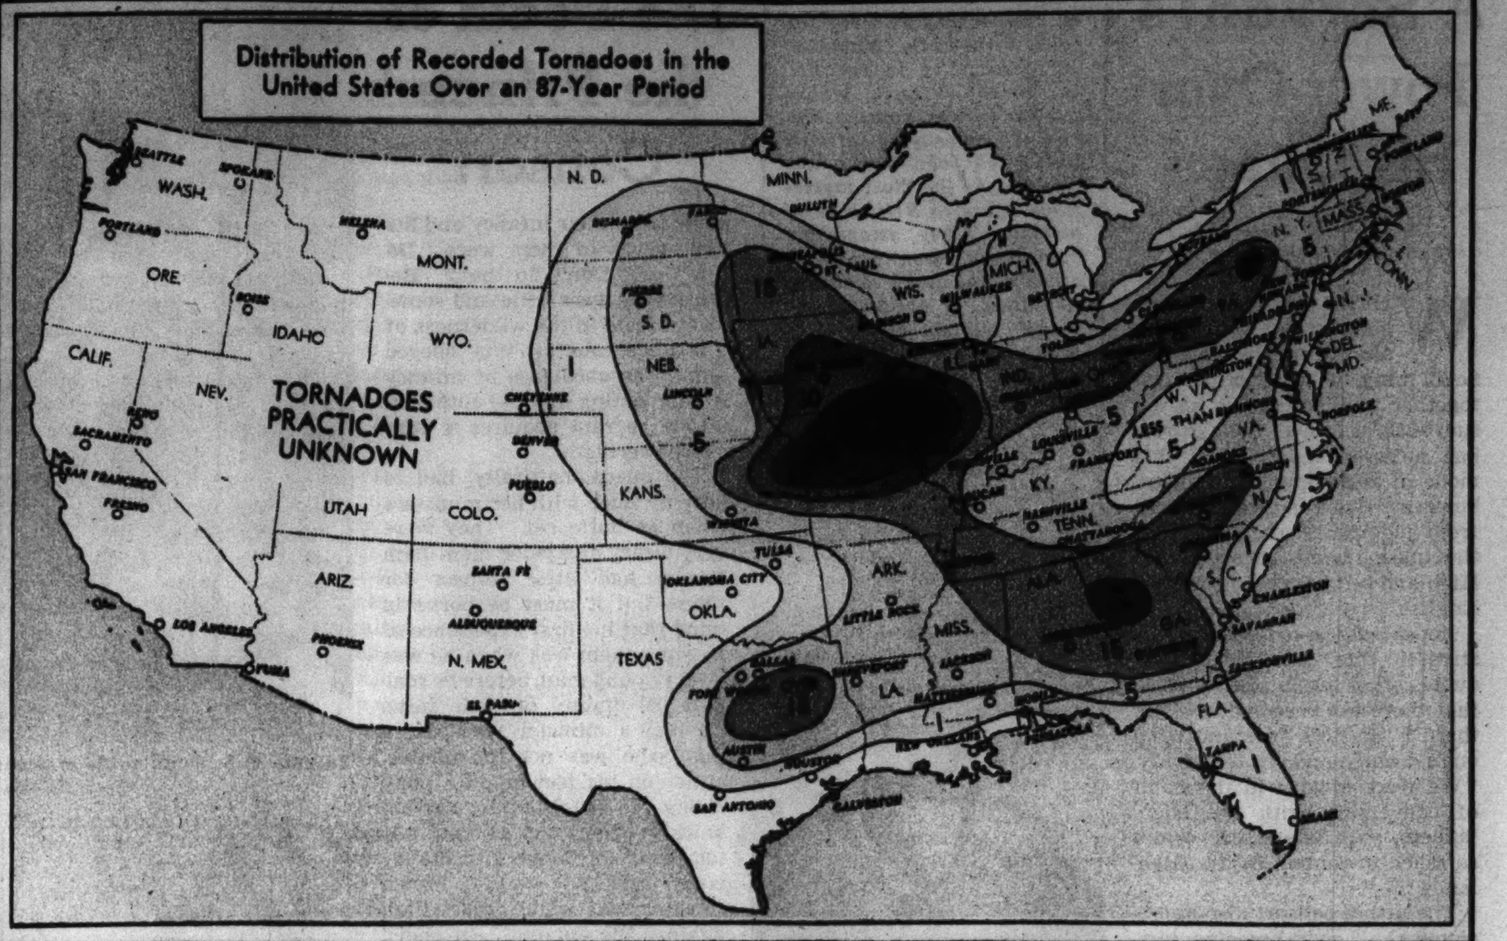
The accompanying map reveals in a general way the distribution of tornadoes over the United States. Although it is based upon figures for recorded tornadoes over an eighty-seven year period that ended some years ago, it shows very much the same general distribution of tornadoes as they occur at the present time—most common in the central states, fairly frequent in some of the more easterly states, and virtually unknown westward from central Colorado.

Most recent tabulations show tornadoes to be more common in Iowa than in any other state. Kansas, however, runs Iowa a close second. Arkansas is third. For every 10,000 square miles in Iowa (a section 100 miles square) there has been an average in recent years of nine tornadoes for every ten years. In like areas in Kansas the average has been 8.8 tornadoes for every ten years. Arkansas' average is 8.3 for every section of 10,000 square miles every ten years. In Illinois like areas average three tornadoes every four years. In California there is an average of one tornado every hundred years for every 10,000 square miles, and in Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, and Utah the average is one for every 200 years. There never has been a tornado reported from Alaska.

• • •

Despite the violence of tornadoes, which sometimes sweep low across stretches of country, ripping asunder everything in their paths, or less frequently rise and dip as they progress, destroying one village or homestead and sparing the next, there is reason to believe that a city's business section of well constructed steel framed skyscrapers might withstand their fury. Mr. Donnel, for example, believes the tall buildings of the loop district of Chicago would not be leveled by a tornado. Aside from varying exterior damage, the bursting out of windows and the like, these steel skyscrapers would weather a tornado remarkably well, in his opinion.

Supporting Mr. Donnel's belief is the following composite opinion obtained from a group of Chicago architects and engineers:



This map in a general way shows the location of the tornado belts in the United States, although it is based upon figures for an 87-year period which ended several years ago and does not indicate actual tornado distribution at the present time. The small figures in map indicate the number of tornadoes in the aforementioned period.

"First, it may be stated that there is no record of a tornado ever striking the skyscraper section of a city, and there are several instances which lead engineers to believe that the rugged terrain formed by buildings, streets, and alleys destroys the force of a tornado or deflects it from its path, especially as the buildings increase in height, size, and rigidity of construction as they approach the business section of a large city.

"If a tornado of maximum violence should strike the skyscraper district, as for instance on a bound from some outlying district of low buildings, it would no doubt cause all windows to blow out in the area affected and in many cases would pull out whole panels of wall, especially in buildings constructed of the lighter kinds of masonry. This destruction of windows and walls would relieve the stresses on the frames of buildings and leave them standing, without particular damage other than that necessitating the rebuilding of some walls and such adjuncts as exterior tanks, light penthouses, and the like.

"It is assumed that only such skyscrapers are included in this discussion as are built in compliance with existing laws regarding wind stresses. It is believed that these will withstand the tornado as they do the hurricane. Their safety is greater when they have large window areas which can relieve the pressure, or suction, and when they are finished and completely occupied so as to load the members to their computed capacity."

• • •

Mention of the term hurricane in the previous paragraph provides reason here for defining that type of weather disturbance and explaining how it differs from a tornado. In the first place, a hurricane is much less destructive than a tornado, considering the area covered by each.

The hurricane is a vast whirling movement of air, 300 to 600 miles in diameter, that progresses with moderate velocity (ten to twelve miles an hour) and has a whirling air speed of from seventy-five miles an hour to well over 100 miles an hour, possibly as high as nearly 200 miles an hour in severest cases. In a hurricane that struck San Juan, Porto Rico, in 1928 a wind velocity of 180 miles an hour was recorded before the breaking of the anemometer at the office of the United States weather bureau there.

Hurricanes form in the western Caribbean sea and southern Atlantic ocean and move westerly or northwesterly. When they reach land they soon are dissipated by friction set up by hills or mountains, although they frequently cause heavy damage to islands and in coastal areas such as Florida, Mississippi, or Texas. Disturbances of a nature similar to hurricanes and occurring in the eastern hemisphere are called typhoons.

A hurricane is caused by continued heating of moist air in the tropics. The heat liberated in heavy convectional showers is generally believed to be the energy that starts the storm. The side movement of air toward this center of low pressure sets up a whirling movement that increases in speed and in extent. Whereas the tornado is caused by the violent rising of warm air, the hurricane is the direct result of a sidewise movement inward of air.

• • •

Tornadoes often erroneously are called cyclones, although as a matter of fact the two vary greatly. A cyclone is a large general low pressure area outside of the tropics. It may be over land or over water, and in extent it is greater than a hurricane, although it has many features in common with a hurricane. The lows of the weather map—those areas bearing the word low—are cyclones.

The whole formation of a cyclone may be from a hundred to one or two thousand miles in diameter. The cyclone moves from some westerly to some easterly quarter at an average speed of from twenty to thirty miles an hour. The internal or whirling movement of the air of a cyclone varies from a few miles to more than 100 miles an hour.

Cyclones are caused when two bodies of air of unequal temperature — one cold, heavy, dry air and one moist, warm, light air—pass each other and set up a wave, or turning movement, at their region of contact. This wave, or turning movement, grows with the movement of the two bodies of air until it itself takes on a whirling movement. Gradually this develops into a well defined low pressure area, with its accompanying spiral winds. The foregoing description of the cause of cyclones is called the polar front theory. It is the most modern of the theories acceptable as revealing how cyclones, or weather map lows, originate.

Rain and thunder storms may occur in connection with tornadoes, hurricanes, and cyclones or in high pressure areas (anticyclones).

Fashion Decrees Height in Fall Coiffures

Back to "Merry Widow" days, this new coiffure shows hair curled on top in a built-up pompadour and softly waved at the side. The "wings" are made of lackered human hair, a clever touch.

But the Styles Are Varied and Individual

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1937: By The Chicago Tribune-New York News Syndicate, Inc.)

RUMOR has been floating around for some time that hair styles for fall and winter are going to be as varied and individual as the lady's own caprice.

Yet there is a dominant note running through the season's coiffure theme. A feeling for height is the way it is described. Which means hair is dressed off the neck, slightly or extravagantly reminiscent of the Empire dress trend. The "page boy" roll already begins to look shopworn and last-yearish. On the older women, few of whom had the right to adopt it anyway, it looks decidedly outmoded.

• • •

As with hats and frocks, your first introduction to the new season's coiffures is slightly startling, to put it mildly. You wonder if it is possible for you to get yourself up so. But coiffure styles "settle," too, and you find an adaptation of the mode that is becoming to you, though you may sacrifice (willingly) some of the first extravagant features.

It isn't smart to cling to that year-in-and-year-out coiffure that is easy to arrange because you are accepted in it. Try to introduce a new feature into your hair style just to indicate that you're in the parade. You take on new hat lines and new frock lines, so bring the hair up to date along with the rest of the ensemble.

From the American Hair Design institute come photographs of new fall hair styles and news of the latest style trends in design.

"First and foremost," says this authority, "hair will be shorter. Necklines will be smooth and high. Built-up effects will be popular. The new coiffures all stress originality, and you can be certain that all hair-do's will be as different this coming season as they were monotonously the same during the first half of 1937."

All an indication of the logic of fashion! Hair arrangements began to look too much the same, so an up-and-about turn occurs, with curls and waves all directed toward the "head lift," if we may so describe it.

Above: For a classic beauty the hair is swirled into a smart straight roll at the side. A soft curl on the forehead adds charm.

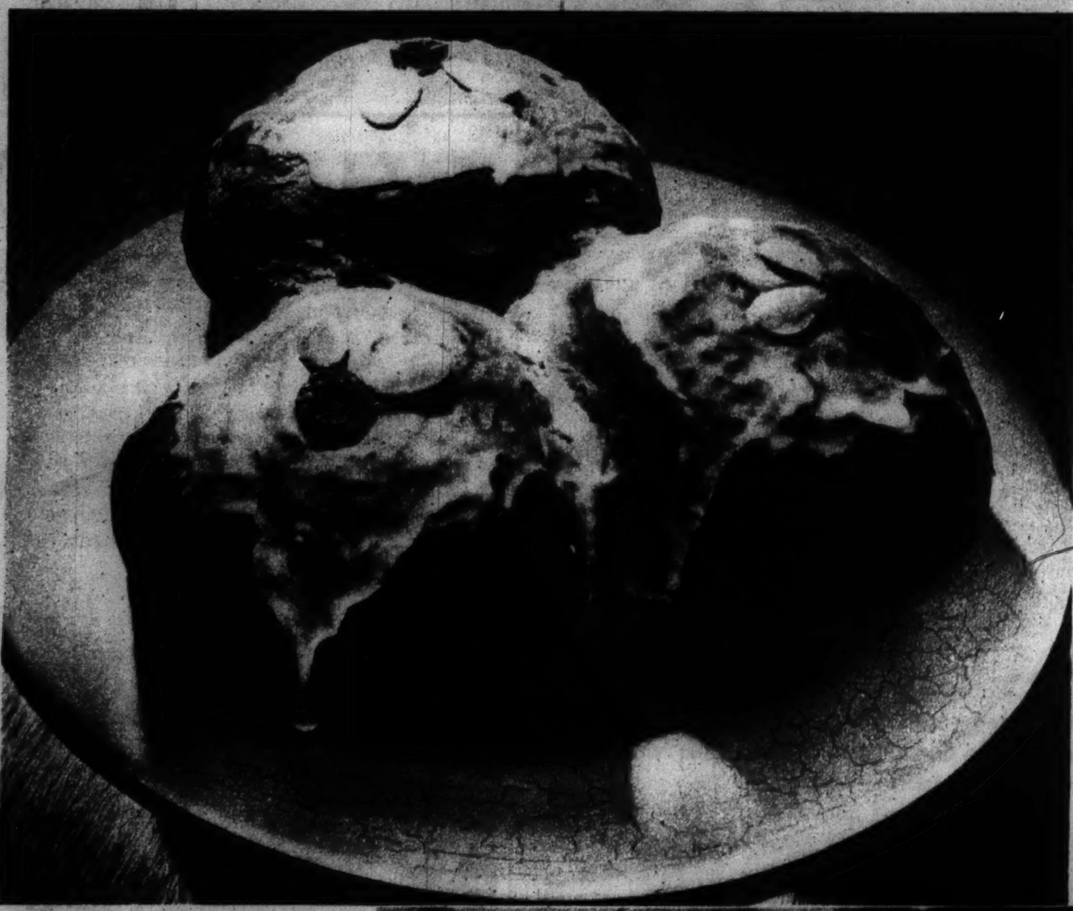
At left: Skirts are higher, hats are higher, so curls are going up, too. Here the hair is cut short and turned in at the neckline, curled high on top.

Straight back off the brow and over in a soft wave go the locks of this smart hairdress. It's flattering to feminine features.

Winsome and perky is this coiffure, again emphasizing height in its heaps of loose waves and curls. It's especially suited to a young face.

Here lovely blonde locks are brought down over the forehead in a swirl effect, while the sides are waved back in a winglike curve.

Bacon Is Used to Add Flavor to Cornmeal Muffins



Almonds and candied cherries decorate this "feast bread."

By MARY MEADE

CORNMEAL bread and muffins are better than usual if bits of bacon are pressed lightly into their surfaces just before they go into the oven. It isn't necessary to fry the bacon first—the baking period is long enough to cook it through.

If a yeast bread is your choice, why not try the buns pictured here, which are eaten as feast breads in the Balkan countries? To make them, scald ½ cup milk and add ¼ cup butter and ¼ cup sugar. Cool to lukewarm, add 2 cakes compressed yeast and 1 cup flour. Beat to a smooth batter and add 2 beaten eggs and 1 more cup of flour. Turn out on floured board and knead until smooth. Place in greased bowl, cover, and let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk. Shape into three round loaves and place them on a greased baking sheet in the form of a three-petaled flower. Cover and let rise again. Bake for 45 minutes in a 375-degree oven. Cool, glaze with uncooked icing, and decorate with nuts and cherries.

NEXT WEEK: Two meat platters.

Bits of bacon add flavor to cornbread or cornmeal muffins.

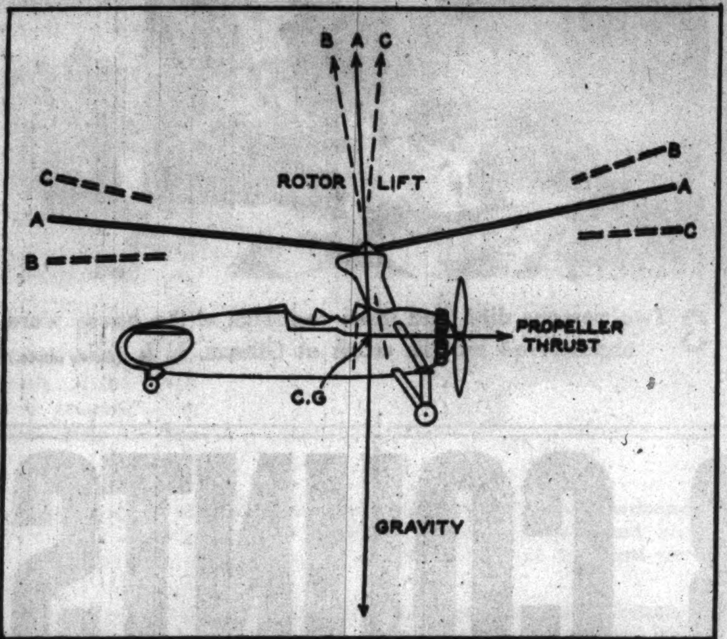
The Flying Windmill—and Why It Flies

Autogiro Most Distinctive Type of Airplane

By WAYNE THOMIS

HOW does an autogiro fly? What forces act upon the twirling rotor blades to enable them to supplant conventional wings? Why do they continue to whirl and to support the machine when the motor of the giro stops in the air?

These are some of the questions more thoughtful observers of so-called windmill planes have asked many times. They are not simple questions. For the autogiro not only is the newest distinctive type of aircraft, it also is one of the most involved—technically—of flying machines.



Control of a giro in a vertical plane. Rotor position A is that for rectilinear flight, rotor position B for curvilinear flight in climbing, and rotor position C for curvilinear flight in diving.

The YG-1A model wingless direct-control autogiro built by the Kellett Autogiro corporation for U. S. army air corps. (Bond Bros. photo.)

This department is devoted today to an attempt to explain as simply and clearly as possible exactly what happens in giro flight.

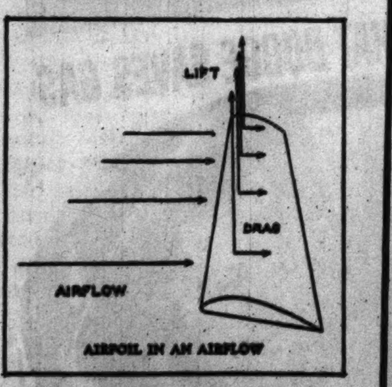
From the photographs and diagrams reproduced herewith it may be seen that the autogiro, in its present stage, at least, does not have a complicated structure. There is a fuselage and landing gear much like those of conventional planes. There also is an engine and propeller in the nose of the fuselage as in the instance of single engined tractor airplanes.

But with these parts the similarity ends. There are no wings of the conventional type—their places being taken by the rotor blades. In the case of the Kellett YG-1A model wingless direct-control autogiro illustrated here there are three rotor blades. Other types of giros have four blades, and some have only two.

• • •

Without wings there are of course no ailerons for lateral balance. And the tail group of the autogiro is quite different from that of a conventional ship. There is a horizontal stabilizer but no elevators. There are two vertical fins or stabilizers, with a movable rudder between them.

The rotor blades—or rotor wings, which they really are—turn about their axis on the supporting pillar at the rate of about 400 revolutions each minute in flight. They are not connected with the engine but turn due to forces which play and counterplay upon them. The propeller of the machine pulls it through the air just as do the propellers of normal airplanes.



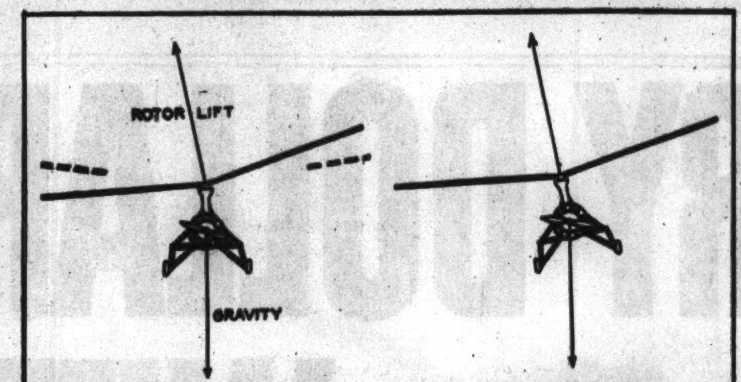
How lift is generated when an airfoil is moved through the air.

The autogiro motor is connected with the rotors only on the ground, where it is used to start them turning, and, in the case of some of the new jumping giros which are capable of a vertical start from a standstill, of overturning the rotors to store up energy used in making the jump.

Now for the why of their turning.

First and most important—THE ROTOR CONTINUES TO TURN ONLY SO LONG AS THERE IS A MOVEMENT OF AIR UPWARDS THROUGH THE PLANE OF ROTATION.

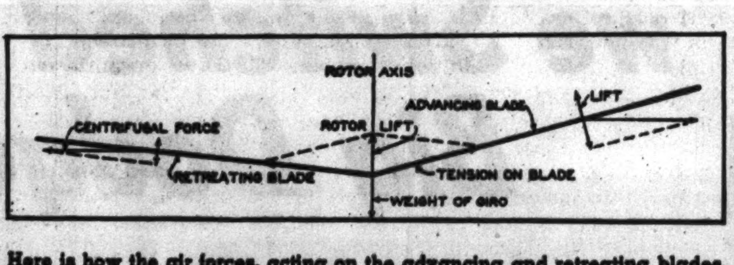
In order to achieve this movement of air in any flying attitude, whether climbing, diving, or level flight, the rotor blades turn in a plane of rotation which is tilted upward in relation to the axis of the propeller. This inclination results in the propeller always throwing a blast of air upward through the spinning rotors.



Control of the giro in turns. In the first figure the rotor is tilted laterally to the position shown in the full lines, but the machine has not yet responded. In the second figure the giro has responded to the tilt of the rotor and is in the turn.

(Diagrams from the Field Artillery Journal.)

Should the propeller stop the autogiro will instantly begin sinking again, causing a flow of air upwards through the rotor blades. Thus the designers achieve their intention with either power off or power on. The drawings show the inclination of the plane of rotation to the thrust line. In the Kellett machine this inclination is about three degrees.



Here is how the air forces, acting on the advancing and retreating blades, combine to lift the rotor as a whole.

Lift is created by the rotor blades because of the fact that they are airfoils with a curvature similar to that of the section of a conventional airplane wing. In other words, as is shown in the airfoil diagram, their movement against air creates drag and lift, the lift being perpendicular to the line of airflow.

In order that the maximum lift be created by the rotors they have been inclined slightly to the plane of rotation. This means that the blades themselves have been given a slight pitch—about 2½ degrees in the Kellett machine.

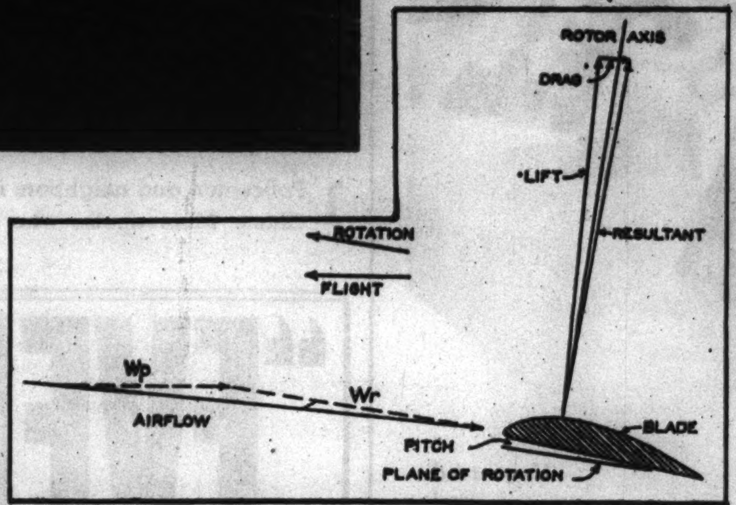
Now to understand why the drag created by the inclination of the airfoil blades and their own bulk does not tend to bring them gradually to a stop in the air, or even to cause them to revolve in the opposite direction look carefully at the two diagrams showing the advancing and retreating blades. Remember that while the autogiro as a whole moves forward in the air, the rotor blades are moving in a circle, half the time advancing and half the time retreating in their courses.

Rotor Blades Take Place of Conventional Wings

Tests have shown that the tendency to stop in a rotor blade is dependent upon the position of the so-called resultant line of lift in relation to the blade's axis. If the resultant is behind the axis the force developed is anti-autorotative or acts as a brake and tends to stop the blade and start it in the opposite direction.

If, however, the resultant lift is ahead of the axis of the blade the force developed tends to keep the blade turning in the same direction.

Consider now the advancing blade diagram. "Wp" in the diagram represents the necessary flow of air upward through the blades. "Wr" represents the direction of the air flow due to the forward movement of the machine. Because they are moving in slightly different directions nature compromises on these forces and combines them in the resultant airflow which is simply labeled airflow.



The advancing blade of the rotor, showing how it is acted upon by anti-rotative air forces.

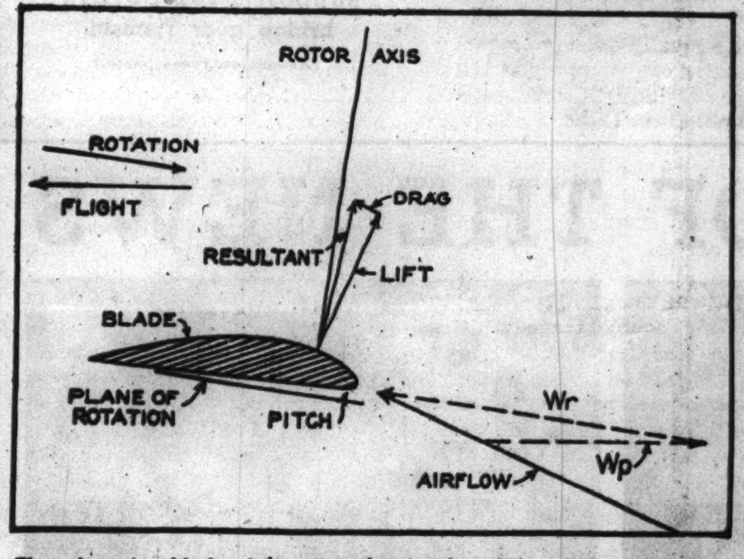
Note the line of the lift, the axis of the blade and the position of the resultant lift force there. It is behind the axis and therefore anti-autorotative. However, this stopping force is developed only on the outer third or more of the rotor blade. The inner two thirds of the blade is not moving so rapidly, being closer to the axis, and upon this section only autorotative forces are found.

In the case of the retreating blade, as is shown in the diagram, only autorotative forces are generated so that the balance is in favor of autorotation and consequently the rotors continue to turn.

• • •

So well has the engineering of the rotors been done that while there is some change to be sure in the speed of the rotors as the attitude of the airplane varies, this change is very slight, being on the order of 10 per cent. This means that the rotor speed is virtually constant.

Thus far it has been assumed that the rotors are rigidly fixed at the axis so that they neither rise above nor move below the theoretical plane of rotation. Actually they are free and are held in place by the inevitable balancing of centrifugal and lift forces.



The advancing blade of the rotor, showing how it is acted upon by autorotative air forces.

The diagram showing the lift of the autogiro as a whole has the right blade tilted or coned above the left. In practice this is not the case, the maximum coning is found at the left front segment of the circle and the minimum at the right rear. This is caused by the fact that there is a lag between the point at which maximum lift is created and the point where it takes effect.

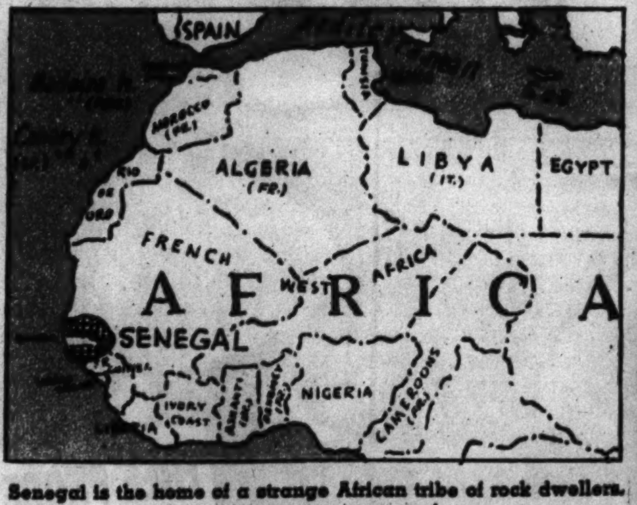
Control of the Kellett giro, as an example, is absolutely direct. Instead of tilting the fuselage upward or downward as in an airplane with fixed wings, the rotor itself is tilted, for a climb, dive or turn. There is a total of 11 degrees between the maximum climb and the maximum dive positions, sufficient for the performance of almost any aerobatic maneuver, including loops.

The World Still Has Cliff Dwellers—in Africa



Senegal is the home of a strange African tribe of rock dwellers, whose picture story appears here.

The odd stone huts of more progressive tribesmen who have abandoned caves.

AFRICA, strange continent of contrasts, offers as one of its curious sights the modern cliff dwellers—Habbe Negroes. In Senegal, French possession on the west coast, these peaceful descendants of a tribe that sought safety atop a great plateau cling to the rocky sides and base of that landmark, although danger from marauding neighbors ceased long ago.

They live in odd stone huts built on the rocky ledges, and some of the less progressive even stay in caves. It is inconvenient, for their little crops and flocks are far below in the valley, but tradition is strong. Prof. Arnold Heim, Swiss scientist, visited the tribe recently and took these pictures.

Great Codona—Tragic King of the Big Tops

Two Killings End Noted Career

By CHARLES COLLINS

ALFREDO CODONA'S cold-blooded murder of his divorced wife, Vera Bruce, and immediate suicide, in Long Beach, Cal., on July 31, caused a shudder of horror to sweep along the sawdust trail of circus life, which leads around the world. He was the most famous trapeze performer of this generation; for many years he had been a prince of his profession and the observed of all observers under the tents of the Ringling and Barnum & Bailey organizations as he executed his almost impossible aerial exploits. His sudden homicidal outbreak, timed and executed with gymnastic precision, clouded the romantic skies of the circus tradition. Its effect was as if a stroke of raw, ferocious melodrama had disrupted an entertainment for children.

Codona was the master of the triple somersault with catch from the flying trapeze—the most dangerous trick in the acrobatic repertory. He was the only man of his time who used it in his daily routine for a term of years; other trapezists have shunned it except as an occasional tour de force, for they regard it as an invitation to disabling accident or death. Codona was unique in circus history for his long-continued demonstrations of the "triple." Moreover, his earlier wife had been equally outstanding in the annals of circus gymnastics. She was Lillian Leitzel, internationally famous for feats impossible to others on the rings and rope until her death from a fall in 1931. These two were the greatest circus performers of the period.

Miss Leitzel's shadow formed a part of the background of the Codona double tragedy. Vera Bruce had been her protégée in circus life and had become a member of the "Flying Codonas" troupe through her influence. A year after Miss Leitzel's death Codona married this pretty young Englishwoman.

In 1933 Codona was overtaken by the fate that every acrobat dreads. His shoulder joint was injured in a fall, and after several months in hospital he found that he was unable to continue his career as a trapezist. There had been a tearing of muscles and ligaments which stiffened his arm and prevented him from attempting anything but the most elementary tricks. In circus parlance, he was "grounded." The swift swings and dizzy somersaults high in the air above the tanbark were denied him forever. He could follow the circuses as a trainer and manager of acts if he chose, but his career as a star had ended.

• • •

He was of Latin American blood and mercurial temperament, and he brooded over his disability. He joined the motion picture settlement in southern California and found frequent employment at high salaries in film productions that needed his skill, usually as a "double" for actors in difficult exploits. He participated in the aerial tricks shown in "Variety," "The Four Devils," and "Polly of the Circus"; in addition, much of the tree-swinging in "Tarzan of the Apes" was done by him in disguise. But this form of faking before the camera was a poor substitute for the great, authentic adventure of the circus, in which his life had been spent since infancy. He missed the thrilling waves of applause that rewarded the successful execution of a difficult feat. He had been born to a circus family and all of his 43 years had been spent in the atmosphere of the "big tent." Now his hereditary occupation was gone and he became despondent and bitter.

• • •

Last spring the circuses sent out the annual call, summoning their acrobats, equestrians, clowns, animal trainers, and roustabouts to headquarters in preparation for the tours. Lalo Codona, Alfredo's brother and partner in the triple somersault, heard it and responded. Vera Bruce also reported for duty and signed a contract. Alfredo was left alone in his home in Long Beach, nursing a mood of resentment toward life in general and toward his wife in particular because of her return to the career which was denied him.

Miss Bruce (Mrs. Codona) returned on June 28 to file an unexpected suit for divorce, charging cruelty and jealousy. Codona did not contest it, and the decree was signed a few days later.

On July 31 they met by appointment in a lawyer's office to discuss certain points in a property settlement. They talked quietly for a while in the presence of Mrs. Codona's attorney and her mother. Then Codona said that he would like a private conversation with his divorced wife and asked the others to leave the room. There was nothing threatening in his manner, and the lawyer went out. The mother, however, thought that it might be well to remain with her daughter, and Codona shrugged his shoulders as if to say, "It doesn't matter."

Mrs. Codona prepared to smoke a cigaret; Alfredo courteously held a lighted match for her. Then he said with an edge of sarcasm in his voice, as if gently reproaching her for ingratitude:

"That is the last thing I will be able to do for you."

The tragedy followed, as swiftly as any carefully rehersed circus trick. Alfredo's hand came away from a pocket, holding a revolver, and four bullets blazed their way into Vera Bruce's breast before the mother could utter a scream. The fifth bullet in the gun went into Alfredo's brain. The lawyer rushed into the office to find the acrobat dead and Mrs. Codona dying.

Two days later the great acrobat was buried in the cemetery plot that held an urn of ashes representing the remains of Lillian Leitzel.

In a magazine article published nearly seven years ago these words were attributed to Codona by his ghost writer or Boswell, Courtney Ryley Cooper: "What my end will be I, of course, do not know. I think I'll die of old age."

He then went on to tell about a Berlin theater manager who had compiled a complete list of fatalities from the triple somersault and published them in the playbill for an engagement of Codona's in his variety hall. This gloomy historian added the following footnote:

"Alfredo Codona is now the only living man consistently performing the triple somersault. Sooner or later, of course, he will meet the same fate that has befallen others who have attempted this dangerous feat."

The question arises: Why is the "triple" so much more dangerous than the "double," performed in the same way from a flying trapeze, ending with a catch by a partner hanging by the knees from an opposite trapeze, also swinging? The latter trick is commonplace. Codona has explained the perils of the triple at length.

In order to execute the triple in perfect time and deftly catch the wrists of the partner at its finish the acrobat must spin head over heels in air at a terrific speed. He estimates this velocity at more than sixty miles an hour. The second revolution must be faster than the first, so much so that the acrobat's body rises a foot or two above its position in the first whirl. At the end of this spin, because of centrifugal force affecting the circulation of fluids in the brain, there is an inevitable dimming of consciousness, a mental fog that often becomes a transitory coma.

• • •

This is a moment of acute peril. The acrobat must snap out of the clouds that have enveloped his mind in a one-hundredth part of a second if he is to escape a fall which may kill or disable him. He must fight off the fog by an instinctive effort of the will to live and to succeed. If he is not in perfect condition, if he has become careless or overconfident in some way or other, his third revolution will not be timed to make the necessary grasp at the wrists of his partner at the end of the trick.

If he misses he may strike the bar of the opposite trapeze with his head, in which case a fractured skull will be the probable result. Usually, however, he falls into the net which spread beneath him about eight feet above the floor.

A fall into the net looks safe enough to the spectator; in fact, it looks enjoyable. Nevertheless it is dangerous. The acrobat must turn in the air so as to strike the net on his back and must handle himself on the rebound to avoid a toss over its edge. An incorrect fall often causes maiming injuries, and occasionally a broken neck. Moreover, the knots in the cords that form the protective mesh are likely to cause burns, abrasions, and lacerations.

Furthermore, the net will break once in a while. Codona's closest escape from death in the arena was not from a fall after a triple, but from an exhibition dive into the net from a lofty perch. His body cut through as if the net were a paper hoop, and only his acrobat's instinct, causing him to go into a series of somersaults and flip-flops as he was striking the ground, saved his life.

• • •

He had many falls into the net during his use of the triple, which began in 1919. (The Coliseum, Chicago, was the scene of his professional debut in this act.) None of them caused serious injury until his luck ran out in 1933 at Madison Square Garden, New York City. Once he escaped being pitched over the edge of the net on the rebound by a temporary catch of a side rope in the crook of his arm. The audience thought that this was a planned trick and applauded lustily. Once a year thereafter he repeated this in performance as an intentional accident, usually at the closing performance in Chicago, until his wife (Miss Leitzel) exerted her domestic prerogative and forbade such flirtations with disaster.

Codona, born in Laredo, Tex., was the son of a Spanish aerial acrobat, Edward Codona, and a Mexican bareback rider, Adelaide Codona. Both of his parents, now dead, were well known to American circus patrons. After his accident he spent one season with the Hagenbeck-Wallace organization and one with the Tom Mix troupe as equestrian director. Vera Bruce was his third wife. His first was a minor circus performer whom he married in his youth. She now lives in Cincinnati.

Lillian Leitzel married Codona in Chicago at the close of a circus engagement, on July 24, 1928. She had been a unique performer in circuses and variety halls in this country and Europe for a number of years. She was exceptionally pretty; in figure she resembled Eleanor Holm Jarrett, the luscious little professional swimmer of today. Her personal charm brought her frequent contracts for tours over the vaudeville circuits.

Miss Leitzel's masterpiece was called the "giant half-flange." It required enormous strength of grip and arm and an abnormal double-jointedness at the shoulder. Hanging by one hand from a ring or a climbing rope, she would literally throw herself over her own shoulder and repeat this feat almost indefinitly. Her record was 249 throws without pause. She suffered almost constantly from rope burns; the skin of her right forearm became thickened and unsightly from scar tissue; and once she was hospitalized with an infection that nearly caused an amputation.

She was born in Breslau of a Bohemian circus family and came to this country in childhood. Her family name was Pelikan. Her brother, Alfred G. Pelikan, was art director of the Milwaukee public schools at the time of her death.

• • •

On Feb. 14, 1931, she was giving a performance in the Valencia music hall of Copenhagen, Denmark. The ring she was holding during her "giant half-flange" broke and she fell fifty feet to a thin rubber mat on the stage floor, fracturing her skull and several vertebræ. Codona was then appearing in Berlin. When informed of the accident he immediately chartered an airplane for Copenhagen. He found Miss Leitzel's physicians hopeful of her recovery. He returned to his show, according to circus tradition. The next day he received word of her sudden death after a deceptive rallying of strength.

Her ashes were returned to this country on the S. S. Mauretania a few hours before the opening of the Ringling-Barnum & Bailey season in New York. An airplane carrying representatives of the Circus Saints and Sinners association dropped wreaths in her honor on the deck as the vessel lay at its quarantine station in the bay.

Munitions from Mud

1 An army barrage. Cartridge cases, now made of brass, may soon be manufactured from aluminum derived from ordinary clay.

By DR. THOMAS M. BECK

A MODERN army needs bullets to fire at the enemy, cans in which to store and carry its food, and wires over which to send and receive messages. At the present time wires for carrying electricity are made out of copper, cartridge cases from brass (an alloy of copper and zinc), and cans from sheet iron plated with tin.

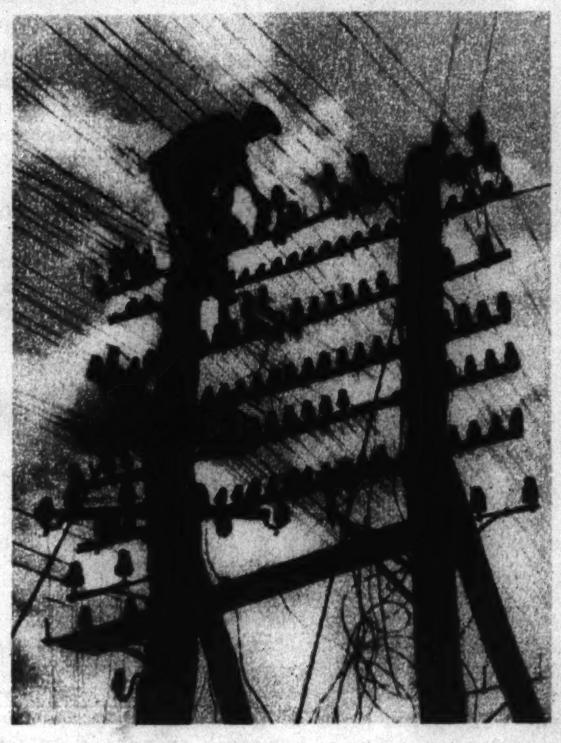
Most of the world's copper comes from the United States, Africa, or South America, and most of its tin comes from the Malay peninsula or Bolivia. Neither of these metals are found to any significant extent in Germany, a country now bending every effort to prepare for war. Consequently the Germans feel that they must find substitutes for these two metals.

Brass is used for cartridge and shell cases because it is strong enough to stand fairly rough treatment, high melting enough not to fuse under the heat of an explosion, and malleable enough to expand tightly against the barrel of the gun. Aluminum possesses much the same properties. Copper is used for wires because it is an excellent conductor of electricity and is resistant to weather corrosion. Aluminum is equally resistant, and in certain respects is a better conductor than copper. Tin plate is used for cans because its surface resists the slow corrosion of mildly acidic foods. In some cases aluminum can be similarly resistant.

Consequently the aluminum production of Germany has increased fivefold during the last four years and is expected to increase still more. Unfortunately for the reich, aluminum is prepared by passing an electric current through molten aluminum oxide, and the latter is now largely obtained by purifying an impure form of it known as bauxite. The amount of bauxite in Germany is far from sufficient to meet the country's needs.

However, all kinds of clay contain aluminum in the form of complex compounds with other elements. While clay has been recognized as an inexhaustible future reserve of the metal, it has never been exploited because it is a far less satisfactory source than is bauxite. German chemists now claim to have developed satisfactory methods of utilizing certain types of their country's clay as a raw material for aluminum. It is unlikely, however, that such methods will be profitable in countries that produce bauxite or can afford to import it.

2 At right: more use for mud. Aluminum is a satisfactory substitute for the copper used in electrical transmission.



It is hardly likely that the United States will ever have to fear being shut off from the world's copper and tin deposits. Nevertheless the German efforts to substitute aluminum may be a forecast of future developments in one respect, that of electrical equipment. A mile of copper wire is a better electrical conductor than a mile of aluminum wire of the same thickness. But since aluminum is a much lighter metal than is copper, a mile of aluminum wire is a better conductor than a mile of copper wire of the same weight. And since the corona losses of high voltage wires decrease with the increasing thickness of the wire, the future may see considerable use of aluminum cables for the distribution of large amounts of electric power.

Mining by Light

1 A foreign light globe filament. Notice wasted length of coil and awkward clamping.

3 Tungsten for filaments comes from scheelite, which is detected in quartz by this handy ultraviolet mining lamp.

2 An American filament, neatly, economically constructed. It is from a 60-watt light.

TUNGSTEN is used as an alloying agent for tool steels, and in a pure form for making electric light filaments and X-ray targets. One of its chief sources is an ore known as scheelite, a glassy, almost colorless mineral. Unfortunately scheelite frequently is imbedded in veins of quartz, which is also a glassy, almost colorless mineral. It would be highly difficult to distinguish the valuable tungsten ore from the relatively worthless quartz were it not for the phenomenon of fluorescence.

Fluorescence is the emission of light of a definite wave length by a substance when exposed to light of a different (usually shorter) wave length.

Ultra-violet light is invisible to the human eye, but when it falls upon certain substances it causes them to fluoresce; that is, to give off visible light of a color that is characteristic of a particular substance. Scheelite, although almost identical with quartz when viewed in visible light, glows with a distinct greenish color when exposed to ultra-violet light. In this way the miners can readily distinguish between the two.

• • •

The ultra-violet light used is produced in a small portable lamp, containing two electrodes and a little mercury, and thoroughly evacuated of all other substances. When a sufficiently high voltage is applied across the gap between the electrodes, the mercury vapor is excited to luminescence just as neon gas is excited in a similar type of lamp. The light from mercury vapor is rich in ultra-violet light. Since the latter is absorbed by glass, the walls of the lamp must be made of quartz, which it transparent to ultra-violet.

A similar application of ultra-violet light, but one in a different field, has recently come into use in the textile industry. Certain types of color patterns are produced in cloth by printing the fabric with colorless dye intermediates, followed by a chemical treatment to convert these intermediates into dyes of the desired shade. It is naturally difficult to judge the quality of the printing until the whole operation is complete, and since it is most convenient to work on large quantities of fabric, a faulty application of the intermediate might damage an unpleasantly large amount of cloth. Many of these dye intermediates, however, are capable of giving off a visible fluorescence when exposed to ultra-violet light. Consequently the fabric may be inspected continually by means of mercury vapor lamps and faults of dyeing corrected as fast as they occur.

Mostly About Dogs

By BOB BECKER

Healthy Coat Important to Dog

EVERY dog owner that has any pride in the appearance of his pet invariably wants the animal to exhibit a sleek, well groomed coat. Probably few visitors to a dog show realize how much work some of the handlers or owners have put into the preparation of their dogs' coats.

From letters we've received about dogs that develop unhealthy coats, dogs that have dry hair and skin, and dogs that shed constantly it seems the modern dog, especially one kept in a small home or an apartment, has none too easy a time to keep a good coat.

If your dog is in this class it's very easy to figure out what the causes may be. The most common causes are: Faulty diet, too warm a sleeping place, failure of the owner to use a comb, brush, and (when indicated) stripping knife; too much bathing, skin trouble such as eczema or mange. Of these probably the two most common are faulty diet and lack of grooming.

Diet is more important than many owners realize. Before Mick of Barrington, our Labrador retriever, died last spring he made a number of trips back and forth from our home to a kennel where he had to stay for varying periods. Every time we took him to the kennel, following quite a stay in our home, we waited for the kennel manager to look at the dog and hear his verdict. If he exclaimed: "What a beautiful coat! What wonderful condition he is in," then we knew our feeding methods again were being approved.

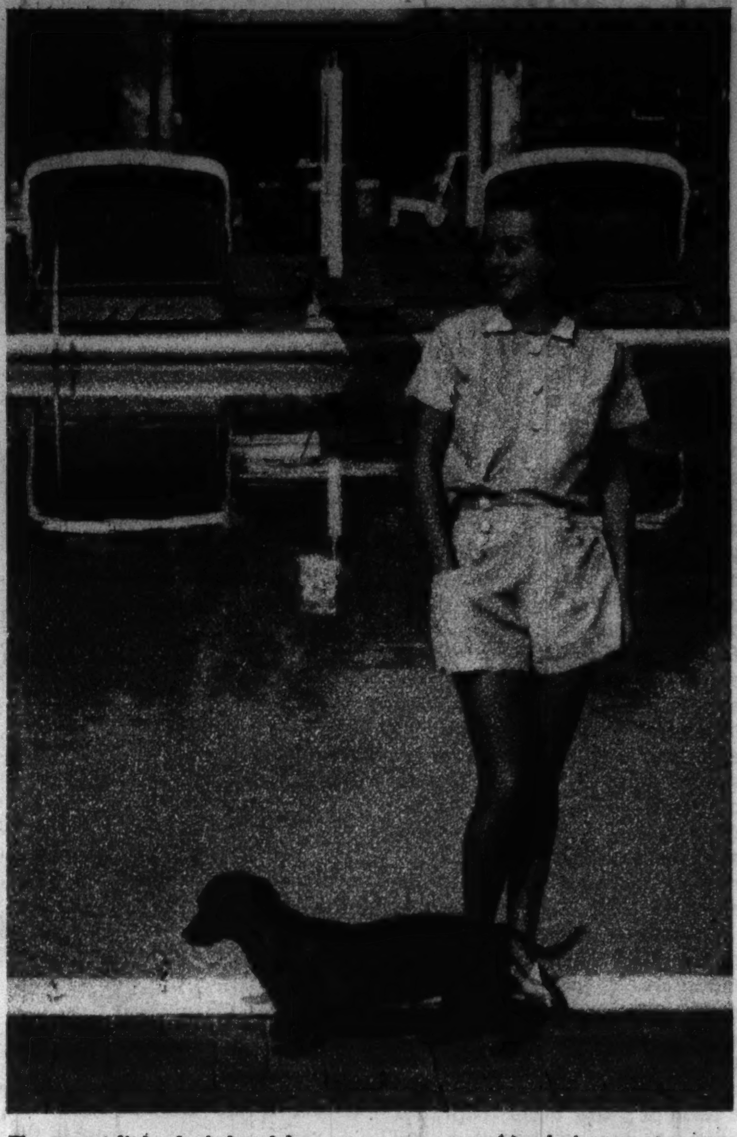
• • •

There are no magic potions required to give a normal dog a fine coat. Just give him a diet rich in protein and vitamins and he'll provide his own beauty treatments. By protein we mean meat, fish, and eggs. On the other hand, too much carbohydrates, which is another word for cereals to most of us, is apt to retard a coat.

There are several supplementary foods which help a dog's coat and skin. For example, patented products made of milk minerals are an aid. Cod liver oil is a supplementary food which is helpful in producing a good coat on a dog. Irradiated yeast and liver also are favorable. These foods are rich in vitamins, particularly vitamin G.

But whatever the diet is, the dog isn't going to develop a beautiful coat if the owner does not take the time to comb, brush, and 'barber" him.

When owners ask us about a dog shedding all winter we usually find that the pup is sleeping in such a warm room that nature is just following a sensible procedure. Lots of heat . . . out comes the hair.



The smart little dachshund has won many new friends in recent years. Being rather small in size, short-haired, and easy to keep in the home, it makes an ideal companion dog. Here is Joan Crawford, the motion picture star, with her dachshund named Pupchen. It is one of the three dachshunde owned by Miss Crawford.

DOG NOTES

In England a dog in a dog show is entered in an average of two and one-half classes. The English show reports are rather misleading unless you know what they mean by entries. For example, all figures having to do with entries in an English show represent the number of class entries, not the number of dogs in the show. An English show reporting 2,000 entries should be divided by two and one-half to get the number of dogs in that particular show.

"A good character in a dog is something that all of us understand," says Elliot S. Humphrey, the distinguished dog authority with the Seeing Eye organization in Morristown, N. J. Mr. Humphrey recently made the above statement in an "American Field" article in which he told something of the remarkable training which the dogs destined to guide the blind receive.

In telling about the guide dogs produced by the Seeing Eye, Mr. Humphrey wrote:

"Before a dog is really a good dog he must add to these an elusive quality called 'intelligence.'

"I am speaking as one of those engaged in educating dogs at the school of the Seeing Eye in Morristown, N. J., so they may guide the blind in independent travel about our American cities. Occupied as I am with dogs which are to assume such great responsibilities, I have left out a qualification which many people would put first—looks.

"In the education of a guide-dog we pay the same attention to the looks of a dog as a bank pays to the looks of a man who is being considered for president. What concerns us is character and intelligence. If the dog is handsome, all the better.

"If the fitting of a guide-dog for his job were a matter of training him to obey unconditionally the direction commands of 'right,' 'left,' and 'forward,' our standards of selection and education could be relaxed. But the dog is not trained. He is educated. This means that before obeying any command the dog must be taught to weigh the safety of obeying it. If it is safe to obey, the dog obeys. If it is not, the dog disobeys. The exercise of such judgment demands intelligence.

"We know that once a dog leaves our school, in charge of a blind owner, that dog will be guardian of his master's safety. The dog's own resource must never be at a loss to know how to solve every trafic difficulty or avoid every danger the owner encounters.

"To cross a street, for instance, the master commands 'forward.' If the dog were 'trained' he would go forward in the face of everything. He is educated to use his discretion. Before moving he must be sure that the way is clear. If his master is too eager and steps out in front of some oncoming, menacing object, the dog must be prepared to draw back on the curb until it is safe for the owner to cross."

Rodney is a day scholar, but his parents see very little of him, even so. Has to stay after school to play on the lower school football team.

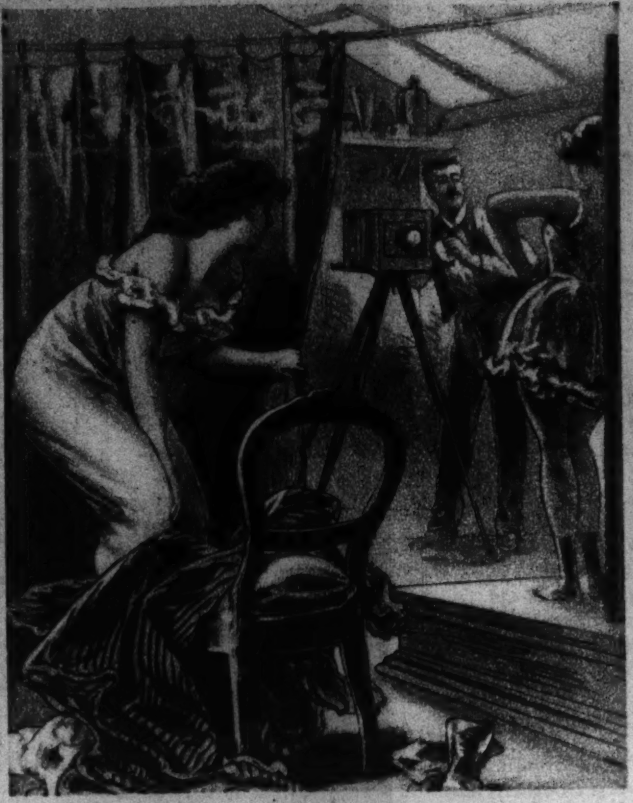
Joseph is a new boy and his parents and his Aunt Margaret came along to see that everything was all right. Dr. Hall, the headmaster, is showing them around. Joseph's mother is telling Dr. Hall that her little man has never been away from home before and won't they please see that he doesn't take cold, etc., etc. Joseph is hoping none of the old boys is within hearing.

The family has had two brief postals from Edmond since school opened, and these under compulsion. Being badly in need of funds, he is composing a letter which is taking all of a study period. Can't think of a thing to say except that a few dollars would come in handy.

The new instructor—just out of college—is in charge of his first study period. Tries to look very fierce for the benefit of two cutups in the rear of the room. They know he's new at the game.

Harry is a senior, and very popular with every one. Expects to enter college next year and it's a great problem. His family favors Yale, the headmaster suggests Williams, the history teacher is all for Purdue, and two good pals are headed for Cornell.

For Publicity's Sake



In 1894 the National Police Gazette published this drawing of "pretty and shapely misses who are fond of having their photographs taken in tights." Which goes to show that girls who pose for publicity cameramen today aren't so modern—just a little sillier.

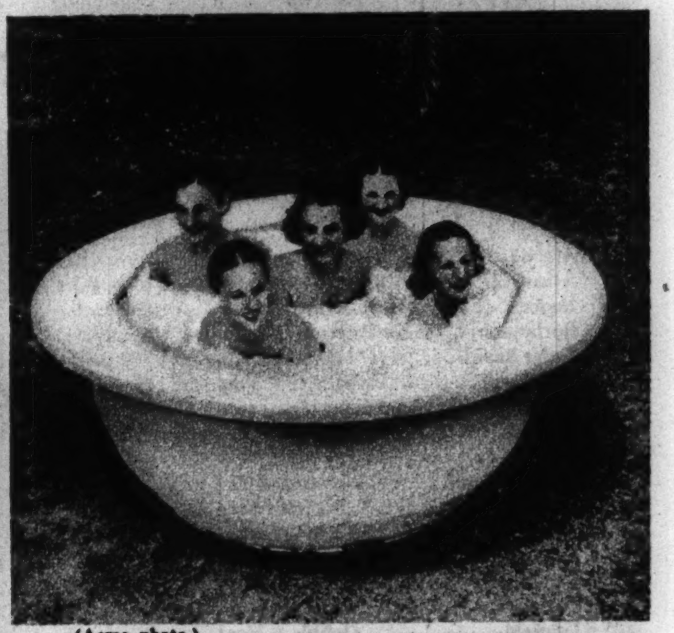
(Acme photo.)

Here is how they pose today. Jayne Terry lends a sort of Gargantuan charm to a model of the Los Angeles city hall, in honor of California's eighty-seventh anniversary of statehood.

(Acme photo.)

Hynes, Cal., calls itself the world's largest hay market, doing an asserted million and a half dollar business a month, so what more fitting than a line of pretty girls to celebrate its annual hay fiesta?

Opening various weeks is a favorite pastime for publicity girls. Verna Knopf, Bernice Pelton, and Alice Anderson, left to right, appropriately chose white to launch coal week in Chicago.



(Acme photo.)

For the sake of the first annual Crowley, La., rice festival these Creole girls bathe in a bowl of the cereal.

You're right. The girls are publicizing tobacco. It's for the annual tobacco festival at South Boston, Va. The bowl of the 18-foot pipe will hold two girls, the press agent says breathlessly.

Just to prove that Sun Valley, Idaho, is a versatile sports center, the press agent had Ethel Blais of San Francisco dress this way.

The Knit-tex Coat $30

For All Occasions, All Kinds of Weather
10 Months in the Year

In extremely mild weather Knit-tex is seemingly weightless—you hardly know you have a coat on your shoulders. Yet should it turn cold and frosty, you will revel in the snug and pleasing warmth it provides on all but the very coldest days of Winter. On moist days it keeps you dry as a tinder box because Knit-tex resists drizzle.

It is suitable for any occasion, day or evening, in town or in the country, motoring, travelling and general knockabout utility. The above photograph shows you the smart appearance of the coat and the luxurious texture of the fabric. We can assure you that it retains this same look of freshness and that it seldom requires pressing because it does not wrinkle easily.

ANGORA KNIT-TEX $35. The photograph you see above is of the Knit-tex Coat at $30. There is also the Angora Knit-tex Coat, a super luxurious edition of Knit-tex. Its fabric is based on the soft, silken hair of the Angora goat which lives in regions where the days are hot and the nights cold. Therefore, the protective hair of this animal which is used in this coat is adaptable to varying degrees of temperature.

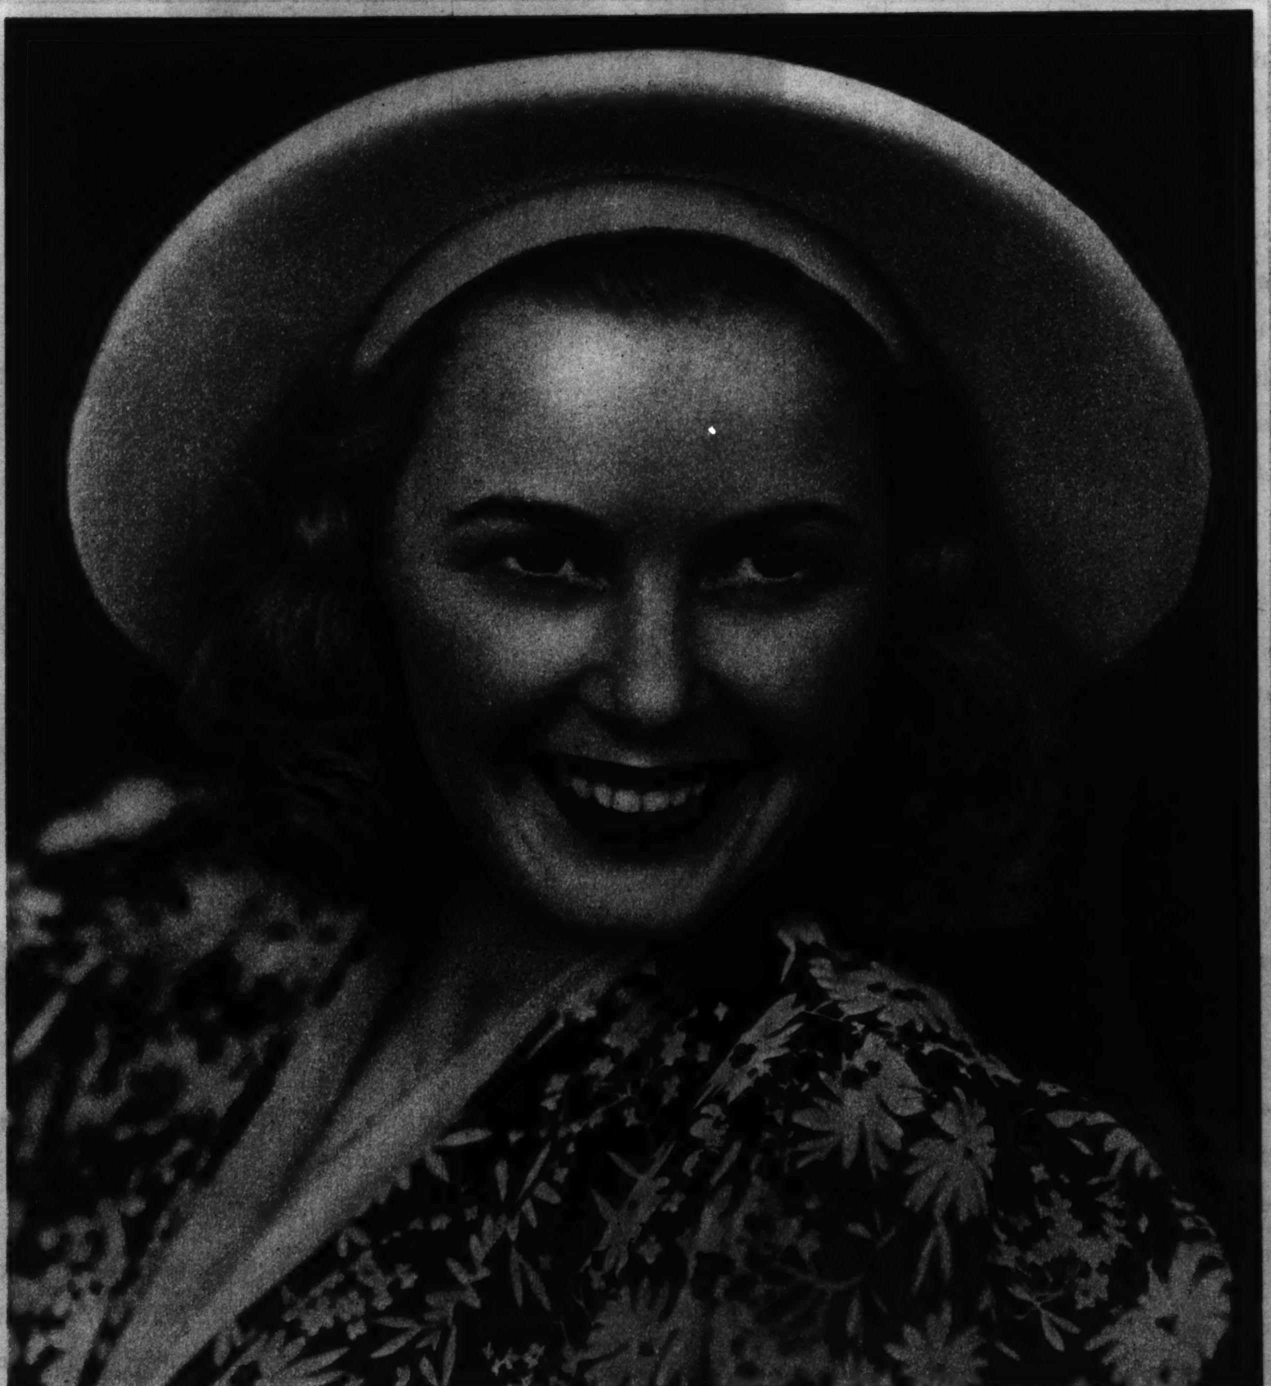
THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

September 19, 1937

Our Gang as currently constituted is formed of these cherubs. They joined up progressively, substituting from time to time for former members who had outgrown the side-splitters of juvenile fun. By the same token, a few years from now the gang will show an entirely new set of faces. Left to right: Buckwheat Thomas, Spanky McFarland, Patsy May, Alfalfa Sweitzer, Porky Lee, Darla Hood.

AGAIN THE TRIBUNE COLOR CAMERA HAS BEEN DISPATCHED TO HOLLYWOOD TO OBTAIN EXCLUSIVE PICTURES OF MOVIE CELEBRITIES. THE DIRECT COLOR PHOTOGRAPHS ON THIS PAGE INITIATE A NEW PRESENTATION OF FILM PLAYERS AS SEEN BY TRIBUNE COLOR PHOTOGRAPHERS. ON PAGE 2 OF THE GRAPHIC SECTION OF THIS ISSUE APPEARS AN ARTICLE SETTING FORTH THE ADVENTURES OF THE CAMERA MEN IN THE THE CAPITAL OF THE MOVIE WORLD.



A Canadian lass educated at the Toronto Academy of Music and at a Hollywood convent, Cecilia Parker put aside grand opera ambitions to sign a movie contract. You have seen her in some of the best of Hollywood pictures of recent years.

Carpeting to the World!

The supreme distinction for this Carpeting whose success has swept America!

Go to Paris, and you will see it in the great Exposition to which the nations of the world have sent their finest achievements.

It was authorized for Exhibit by the United States Commission, to demonstrate that today America is creating a peerless beauty of its own . . . not at collectors' prices, but at a price millions can afford . . . an achievement of which the whole country can be proud.

See Gulistan Carpeting for yourself. It strikes an entirely new note in decoration. It provides an effect like that of Plain Shade, but infinitely richer, softly patterned in relief, lustrous with tone upon tone of the same color . . . an effect only possible because of unusual texture-combinations. More practical than Plain Shade, too, because footmarks show up less.

Gulistan's loveliness is such that people use it not just for one room, but to cover a whole floor, creating a wall to wall expanse of gorgeous yet restful color.

You will find exquisite color-tones that can only be created in this type of weave—subtle shades that give an interior an unmistakable touch of refinement. Little wonder, that Gulistan Carpeting is being bought by people who demand the best—millionaires, statesmen, the President of a foreign Republic, stars of stage and screen!

Gulistan Carpeting is featured in Department Stores, Furniture Stores and Specialty Stores everywhere. Twenty-seven Texture Patterns in the styles most sought-for today. Also twelve lustrous Plain Shades. Obtainable in standard widths up to 15 feet—no seams. Cut and finished specially to your order—either as Rug or Carpet.

A small down payment re-Carpets your rooms. Consult your store about the attractive, convenient payment plans on Gulistan Carpeting. At most stores, you can obtain immediate delivery of Gulistan Carpeting for a small initial payment. The price is a little less than that of the Gulistan Rug itself. $13 per square yard, or $156 to cover a 9 by 12 foot space.

"You can't beat TIMKEN LIVE HEAT for comfort and real economy."

"I wouldn't sell my Timken Oil Burner for double the price if I knew I couldn't get another. It's never given a minute's trouble and has saved me money and an awful lot of hard work."—S. Keywell

No other oil burner offers LIVE HEAT. Only Timken Burners produce LIVE HEAT because the chromium steel flame-rim warms up 7 times faster . . . releases all the heat from each drop of oil. And the wall flame applies this heat to the walls of the furnace or boiler most effectively, with greatest economy. That's why more and more people are turning to Timken LIVE HEAT for comfort and real economy. See your nearest Timken Dealer before you buy any heating equipment.

"I have to watch my money, and if it weren't for thrifty Timken LIVE HEAT, I'd have to shovel coal. Some people say that oil heat is expensive. Maybe it is with some burners, but NOT with a Timken . . . and my records prove it."

Patricia Meade

"I replaced an ordinary burner with a Timken because I wanted LIVE HEAT. Believe you me, it was one of the best investments I ever made. I've checked my bills and found that Timken saves me ; on oil and electricity over ordinary oil heating costs."

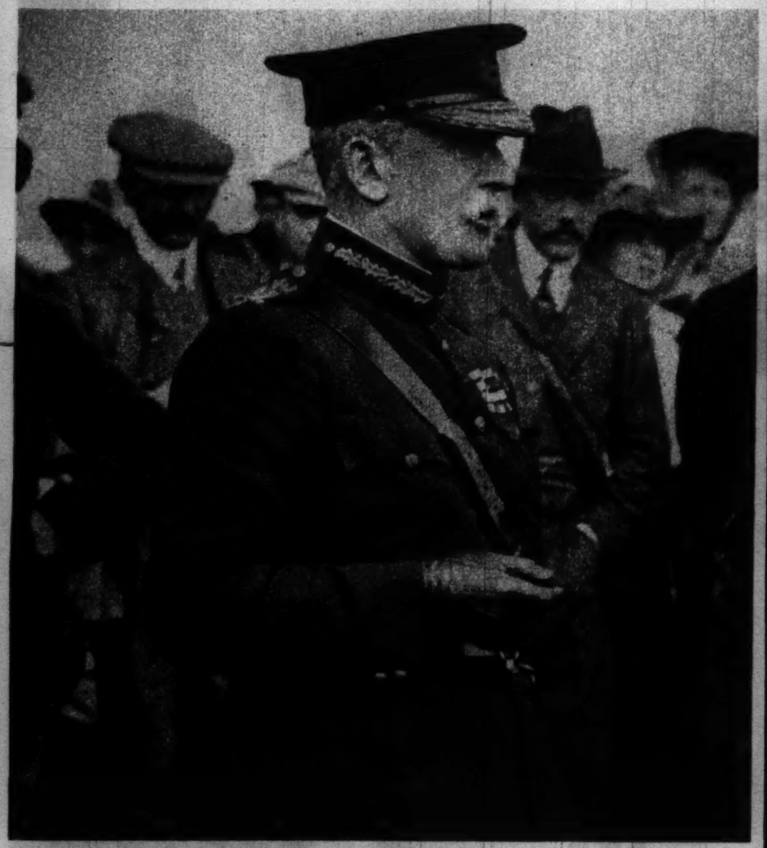
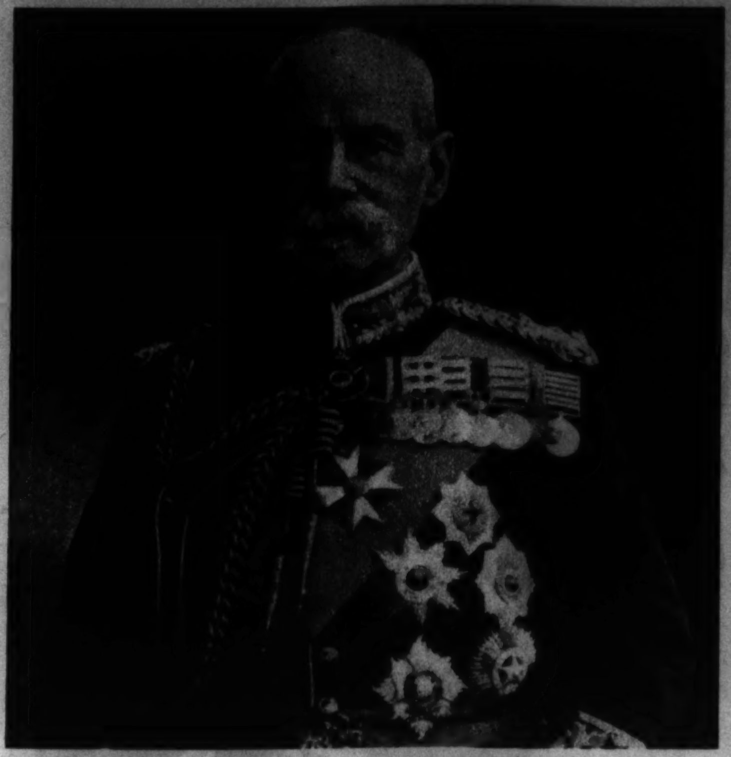
They Would Have Been Roto Pictures In Their Day

LOUIS BOTHA, Boer general and statesman, won brilliant victories over the British at Colenso (1899) and Spion Kop (1900). He became first premier of the Union of South Africa, and during the World war led the conquest of German Southwest Africa for Britain.



MAJOR GENERAL FRENCH, in charge of British cavalry, won a number of dashing victories that were vital in Lord Roberts' triumph over the Boers. A field marshal when the World war broke out, he commanded the British army on the western front through 1915. In 1921, he became earl of Ypres.

GENERAL JAN SMUTS joined the Boer field forces in 1900, taking part in some of the hardest fighting of the latter stages of the war. During the World war he took German East Africa; in 1919, became South African prime minister.



FIELD MARSHAL ROBERTS was sent to South Africa as commander-in-chief after repeated disasters had overtaken the British forces, and within a few months crushed organized Boer resistance. In reward, Britain gave him an earldom.

KITCHENER OF KHARTUM, succeeding Roberts as commander-in-chief in South Africa, made bitter war against Boer guerrillas until the war ended in 1902. He was made a viscount, later became field marshal and earl. He led Britain to battle as war minister in 1914; in 1916, en route to Russia, died when the cruiser Hampshire struck a mine.

Serve him the Salad Dressing made with the Salad Oil of Character for Luscious Salads

MAZOLA SALAD DRESSING

1 egg
¼ cup vinegar
¾ cup Mazola
1 cup water
2 tablespoons sugar
⅛ teaspoon paprika
1½ teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons dry mustard
4 tablespoons Argo Cornstarch
(All measurements should be level)

PUT egg, sugar, seasoning, vinegar and Mazola in mixing bowl but DO NOT STIR. Make a paste by mixing the Argo Cornstarch with ½ cup water; add additional ½ cup water and cook over slow fire, stirring constantly until it boils and clears up. Add hot cornstarch mixture to ingredients in mixing bowl and beat briskly with Dover egg beater. Cool before serving.

MAZOLA FRENCH DRESSING

½ cup Mazola
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons vinegar
⅛ teaspoon white pepper

BEAT thoroughly and use with any vegetable, meat, or fish salad.

Because of its distinct, delicate flavor, Mazola is known as the Salad Oil of Character . . . it's pressed FRESH each day from the tender hearts of fully-ripened Golden Corn.

MOST of us are never able to avail ourselves of real money-making opportunities, simply because we haven't laid away any funds for investment.

And yet practically everyone today can acquire substantial cash reserves in relatively short time through a plan that is enabling thousands of ambitious men and women to get somewhere instead of drifting with the tide.

The Fidelity Income Plan means setting aside each day only a little odd change that might otherwise be frittered away. And you can make it do so many things . . . assure real educations for your children, provide yourself with retirement income, take care of responsibilities and emergencies that will require more ready money than you have now.

Behind the Fidelity Income Plan are the strength and success of an organization that, throughout its existence, has met every obligation at maturity without exception . . . and keeps on deposit at all times with the state treasurer of West Virginia approved securities equaling the total cash obligation to all contract-owners wherever they may live. Upwards of $450,000,000.00 of Fidelity Income Plan contracts have been written for people of all ages and all walks of life.

The ugly, clinging dandruff revealed by the fingernail test is a double threat to your good looks! Unsightly in close-ups, it may also be a symptom of premature baldness.

Don't take chances. Use Wildroot Hair Tonic. This time-tested formula removes encrusted dandruff . . . stops itching . . . leaves scalp cool, clean, refreshed.

For clean, attractive, dandruff-free hair, get Wildroot at your druggist—and use it every day! Professional applications at barbers.

New! "EVEN·LITE" REG. APP. FOR by Even-Pul REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
WEIGHS EVER-SO-LITTLE yet MOULDS MIRACULOUSLY!
5.00 TO 10.00
Made with a new, improved, light-weight version of Even-Pul's famous patented panel — an Even-Lite foundation or girdle cleverly controls the diaphragm and flattens the stomach, removing every trace of "bump" or "bulge." If you prefer a heavier garment, see the regular Even-Pul styles, starting at $3.50. Both types are a revelation in figure-control—and are so constructed that they cannot "ride up!"

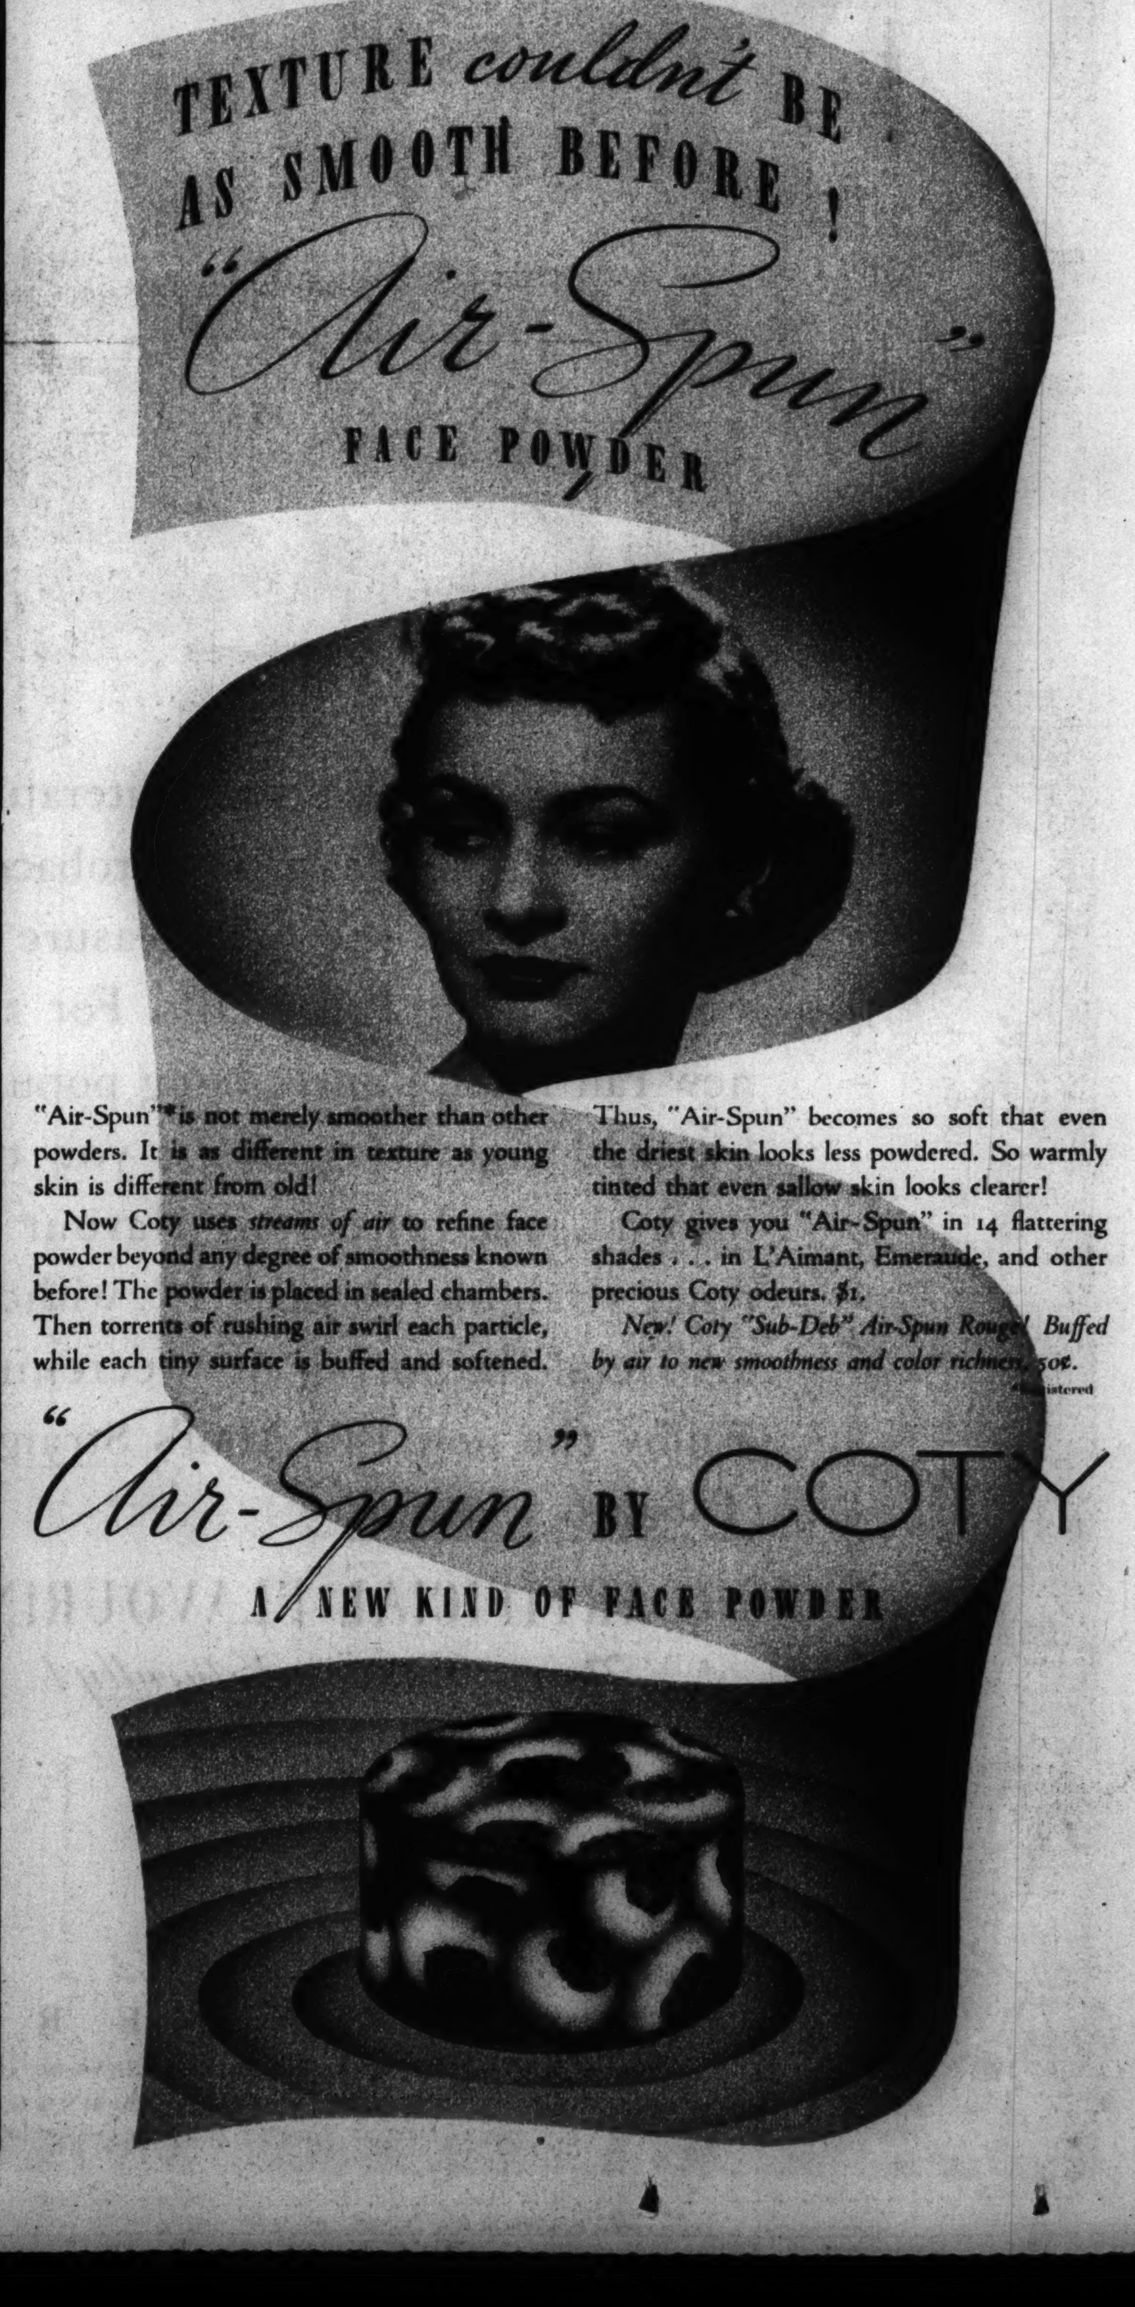
HAVE YOU TRIED VICEROY WITH THE NEW FILTER TIP?

Yes! True tobacco flavor . . . no loose crumbs . . . and teeth protected from stain!

MADE BY THE MAKERS OF RALEIGH AND KOOL CIGARETTES



TEXTURE couldn't BE AS SMOOTH BEFORE!
"Air-Spun" FACE POWDER

"Air-Spun"* is not merely smoother than other powders. It is as different in texture as young skin is different from old!

Now Coty uses streams of air to refine face powder beyond any degree of smoothness known before! The powder is placed in sealed chambers. Then torrents of rushing air swirl each particle, while each tiny surface is buffed and softened.

Thus, "Air-Spun" becomes so soft that even the driest skin looks less powdered. So warmly tinted that even sallow skin looks clearer!

Coty gives you "Air-Spun" in 14 flattering shades . . . in L'Aimant, Emeraude, and other precious Coty odeurs. $1.

New! Coty "Sub-Deb" Air-Spun Rouge! Buffed by air to new smoothness and color richness. 50¢.

"He who doth not smoke hath either known no great griefs, or refuseth himself the softest consolation, next to that which comes from Heaven."

EDWARD BULWER-LYTTON
1803-1873

For three hundred years literature has praised the pleasures of tobacco. Today you get the full pleasure of smoking from Pall Malls. For the new Pall Mall, alone among popular blended cigarettes, offers you the natural, unadulterated flavour of fine, straight tobaccos . . . without artificial flavouring or sweetening. Enjoy the new Pall Mall's Straight Tobacco Flavour.
